

THE

NATURAL HISTORY

AND

ANTIQUITIES

OF

NORTHUMBERLAND:

And of fo much of the County of

D U R H A M

As lies between the Rivers Tyne and Tweed;

COMMONLY CALLED,

NORTH BISHOPRICK.

IN TWO VOLUMES.

By JOHN WALLIS, A.M.

VOL. II.

LONDON:

Printed for the AUTHOR, by W. and W. STRAHAN; and fold by S. BLADON, in Pater-noster-Row.

M D CC L XIX.

NATURAL HISTORY

AND

ANTIQUITIES

NORTHUMBERLAMD:

V. 2

As lies between the Levers Type and Taylor

LONDOM

Printed for the Author, by W. and W. Serains, and fold by S. Branch, in Pater-nolles-Roy.

XIZIODEM

C O MOST THE ENNU OT S

From Berwick to Combill, by Etall, Wooler, the vales of Whittingban, Rethbury, Witton, Walling H Tap IQ aton, Beljay, Kirkley, Pont-

cland, so Newcolds upon Inc. A W U L O V C I O O B B C The whole illustrated from menumental inferiplications within

The ANTIQUITIES.

and private records, curious manufcripts, antient and fearce

Military ways, forts, incampments, Tumuli or barrows, urns, coins, fignets, and other curiofities, whether Roman, Saxon, or British, of principal note.

Royal palaces, honours, castles, feats, villas, monasteries, churches, market-towns, islands and harbours, worthy of obfervation. Their antient and present state. With descriptions written on the spot.

IN THREE JOURNEYS.

JOURNEY I. Page 1.

HHT

From the West to the East end of the famous Roman wall, and on part of the great military road.

JOURNEY II. Page 267.

From Newcastle upon Tyne, through Morpeth, Alnwick, Belford, to Berwick upon Tweed, on the great post-road.

JOURNEY

? TOUNNEY III. Trage 446. 0

From Berwick to Cornbill, by Etall, Wooler, the vales of Whittingbam, Rothbury, Witton, Wallington, Cap Heaton, Belfay, Kirkley, Ponteland, to Newcastle upon Tyne.

The whole illustrated from monumental inscriptions, public and private records, curious manuscripts, antient and scarce historians, and other undoubted authorities.

Military ways, forts, incampments, Timuii or barrows, urfa, coins, fignets, and other cariolities, whether Remer, that it of British, of principal note.

Royal palaces, honours, caffles, feats, villar, moneficing, thurches, market-towns, illands and institute, worthy of classervation. Their anticut and prefent flate. With definitions written on the fpot.

IN THREE JOURNEYS.

JOURNEY E Tage 1.

IHT From the West to the East end of the farmous Roman wall, and on part of the great military road.

JOURNEY IL Page str.

From Newcastle upon Tyne, through Marpeth, Alluwick, Belford, to Berwick upon Tweed, on the great poll-road. erable Reis politively afferts, that Severus's Proguing was offlerian, and the atheixed

Las backmud a tome the

LERMINGER OF ANDREED ANTENDERING

ANTIQUITIES

OF

NORTHUMBERLAND, &c.

JOURNEY I.

From the West to the East End of the famous Roman Wall, and on Part of the great military Road.

TNDER the name of the Roman Wall are included three Pratentura or defences against the inroads of the Pists; viz. Hadrian's, computed to have been built Anno Christi 123; Severus's, Anno 210; and the last made by the provincial Britons conjunctly with the Romans under the third consulate of Ætius, A. U. C. 1198, Anno Christi, 444, or, according to Archbishop Usher, 446. Hadrian's is acknowledged by all the learned in antiquity to have been cespititious, or of turf, but they differ with respect to Severus's; and the Roman writers, Spartian, Eutropius, Aurelius Victor, Cassiodorus, and Paulus Diaconus, are not clear enough to decide the controversy with precision, whether it was of turf, or stone, only expressing it by the words Murus and Vallum (a).

(a) Spart. in Severo.

Eutrop. Breviar. Hift. 1. 8. p. 118. Ed. Francf.

Aurel. Victor in Severo.

Cassiod. in Severo.

Paul. Diacon. 1. 8.

Venerable Bede positively afferts, that Severus's Pratentura was originally no other than a ditch and rampart of earth, and that it was re-edified with stone by a Roman legion, and the affociated strength and purse of the whole British nation, in the space of twelve months, after their second embassy to Rome for assistance. It is in length, sixty-eight English miles, and one hundred and sixty-nine paces, according to the survey of the ingenious Alexander Gordon (b), which are equal to seventy-three Roman miles, and nine-hundred and sifty-nine paces.

By Sir Henry Spelman's calculation, the Roman militia along the wall amounted to 13,800, allowing 600 to a cohort; befides a whole legion, and thirteen other detachments of horse and foot, stationed at other places, by the grand roads and passes, and attending on the emperor, or his lieutenant. A great officer, stiled, Comes spectabilis Litoris Saxonici, created by Constantine the Great, had under him seven companies of foot, two troops of horse, the second legion, and a cohort, to protect the sea-coasts from the Saxon rovers. The Roman army in Britain under Nero were 70,000 (c).

The notion of their having a brazen trumpet in the wall, between one Castellum and another, through the whole length, to give an alarm in cases of danger, on the strictest enquiry is groundless. Some of our ancestors, indeed, held their lands by cornage, by blowing a horn on the approach of an enemy, which custom was probably borrowed from them.

Rauco strepuerunt cornua cantû.

Virg.

(b) Iter. Septentr.

(c) Ph. Tr. No. 337.

This famous wall (d) crosses the rivulet of Poltrofs, the boundary between the two counties of Cumberland and Northumberland, at a place, called The Crooks. About a quarter of a mile farther east, a breach was made in it by the Scots, which to this day bears the name of The Gap. From hence it goes for a quarter of a mile, nearly in a straight line, to of John de Thirlwall, fon-in-law to Sir William de Swinburn, Knt. 7 K. Edward III, 1333; and of Robert de Thirlwall, 10 Q. Elizabeth (e). The last and sole heir was Eleanora Thirlwall, married, 1738, to Matthew Swinburn, a younger brother of the house of Cap-Heaton, Esq; who sold it to the late right honourable Henry Earl of Carlisle. The castle stands on the western banks of the brook Tippal, whose stream glides under it in a winding current, guarded by a Vallum, or wall, of a vast thickness, which with the brook, and a rocky slope, rendered it on that side inaccessible. At the entrance, part of an iron-gate is still remaining, within which, on removing the rubbish, the slooring of a room was discovered in 1759, consisting of three courses of slags one above

(d) Gual Sever.

Gal Sever.

Mur Sever.

Vallum Barbaricum. Romanis.

Scottis-Waith. Scotis.

Picts-Wall. Anglis.

Keep-Wall.

The Wall.

Incolis Septentr. Cumbriens. Northumbriens.

(e) Robertus Thirlwall fuit feisitus de et in manerio de Thirlwall, Lowbyre, le Hill, Chappel, Wade's-Gapp, Cruke, Wardhaw-hill, Shaw-sield, Dirt-house, Over-hill, Brow-houses, Brunt-walls, Holly-house, cum terris in Hexham, Estree, Newbrugh, Haltwesel, Byddlesse, et Blind-gapp.——Escaet. de Anno 10 Eliz.

another, a stratum of sand lying between each. The walls now remaining are in some parts three yards, and in others two yards and three quarters thick. The west end, for the sake of the stones, is entirely demolished. It has been large, and vaulted underneath, as most of the old castles are.

At a small distance, and in sight, from the south front of Thirl-wall-Castle, is an encampment, with a cespititious rampier and foss; the sirst pretty high to the north, now called, the black dykes, wherein, on digging turf or suel, lead-bullets have been found. A quarter of a mile to the west of it, there is another encampment.

The Roman wall crosses the Tippal, under the south front of Thirlwall-Castle, and by a little cottage ascends the hill for a quarter of a mile to the Roman station.

Caer-vorran (f), so called from the British Caer, a town, and Vorwyn, a castle; i. e. a garrisoned town; Vorwyn being corruptly called Vorran by the Northern borderers. There is a notable specimen of their dialect in an instrument of truce made by the river Esk, near Salom, bearing date xv March, M. CCC. XX. IV; the right honourable Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, and Archibald Douglas, Lord of Galway, then governors of the borders. It is inferted in the Acta Regia (g). The poor people upon Esk, and on the wastes near this station, speak the same dialect at this day.

(f) Caervorwyn. Britannicis. Lel. Itin. Vol. 6. p. 128.
Caervorran. Camden's Britan. p. 848.
Magna. Horsley.
Voreda.
Castle Voran.
Richard of Cirencester. Dr. Stukeley.

(g) Vol. 1. 8vo. p. 394-5.

The station or fort is nearly in the form of a square, the grand wall making a slexure round it to the south, and then ascending the precipices; the ground within it sour acres and a half, as measured by Mr. Waller, surveyor of the military road through Cumberland. At the east end of it, a Human skeleton was sound by the workmen employed in digging up the soundations for making that road; the offeous parts, particularly the skull and teeth, fresh and fair, but on being exposed to the air, the whole turned to dust.

A fmall, but very fair Roman altar was found fome years ago, inferibed,

DEO VITERINO.

Also a small brass Lar. The Romans facrificed to the Lares on May-day; the violet then in bloom; their alters fragrant with it and aromatic drugs.

Præstitibus Majæ laribus, videre Kalendæ
Aram constitui, parvaque signa Deûm.

Ovid.

Hic nostrum placabo Jovem, laribusque paternis Thura dabo, omnes Violæ jactabo colores. Juv. Sat. xii.

— Panchæis adolescunt ignibus aræ. Virg. Geo. iv.

The altars blaze with rich Arabian sweets. Warton.

They are both in the possession of Miss Fanny Bacon, of Newbrough.

A Roman ring, with a victory, on a coarse Cornelian, was found and sold to Mr. Horsley, of which he takes notice *.

* Brit. Rom:

Mr. Thorefby has given a good print of a Roman altar carried off from this station to Blekensopp-Castle, from a drawing of Mr. Cay's; the stone neatly decorated, but the inscription a little injured (b). Mr. Horsley has sigured it in the condition he probably saw it, in a less agreeable form (i).

A curious and beautiful sculpture of a Roman soldier, in stone, of the white-rag kind, within a nich, and in relief, was digged up in 1760; helmeted; a Pallium or light robe down to his feet, fastened at the breast with a Fibula; an Hasta or spear in his right hand; in his left, a Parma or shield, resting on a short pedestal; above his left shoulder, a lion recumbent, and a deer under it, kept down by the strength of the paws of that noble animal. It is fourteen inches and a half in length, and nine inches, in diameter.

It has been the work of an excellent artist. It was placed as a side-supporter in an aperture to let in the light in a new barn by Mr. Carrick, whose son was so kind, with his consent, to present it to me, 6th June, 1764.

An abundance of Stags horns have been digged up; also many small mill-stones, three of them now lying at the door of Mr. Carrick, owner of the station.

It is near the 38th mile-stone on the military road, at the head of the slope above Glenwhelt, to the north-east. It has a pretty vale and mountain prospect; the Orchard-house near Wardrew, and the castle of Thirlwall, in sight to the west; the castle of Blenkenfopp, east and west Coenwood, Touse-Bank wood, the sloping hills of Knarsdale, and the mountain of Cross-fell, to the south. It is within the manour of Blenkenfopp-Caftle, the feat of the antient family of the Blenkenfopps; of Ralph de Blenkenfopp, 1 K. Edward I (k); of Thomas de Blenkenfopp, 39, 42. K. Edward III (l); and of William Blenkenfopp, 10 Q. Elizabeth (m); who held it of the honour of Langley, paying annually for all fervices 6s. 8d. one half at Martinmas, and the other at Whitfontide. In the fouth-west end of Haltwesel church is the stone-effigies of one of the family, recumbent, in armour, his legs a-cross, and hands elevated; the habit and attitude of a Knight Templer, or such as made the Crusade; on which, and for the ransom of our Caur de Lion, K. Richard I, so much money was swept out of the kingdom, that not one genuine coin of his

(b) Ph. Tr. No. 231.

(i) Brit. Rom. No. LXX.

- (k) Ranulphus Blenkensopp tenet Blenkensopp per dimidium marc. de Baronia de Tynedale. Esc. de Ano. 1. Ed. 1.
- (1) Thomas de Blenkensopp tenet villam de Blenkensopp libere de manerio de Langley, pro sidelitate, et pro servicio 6 s. 8 d. per annum: et valet per annum in omnibus exitibus, 10 l.

Inquist. ex bundello Escaetr. Turri Londinensi, No. 17. capta apud Nov. Castrum super Tynam die Veneris proxime post sestum Sancti Petri in Cathedra, 39 Edvardi III. coram Willielmo de Ryegate, Escaetore Dom. Regis in comit. Northumbr.

Thomas de Blenkensopp tenet manerium de Blenkensopp, cum pertinen. de manerio de Langley, pro fidelitate, et pro servicio reddendi 6s. 8d. per annum, pro omnibus serviciis ad terminos Pentecost. et Sancti Martini in Hyeme, ad æquales portiones.

Inquisit. ex bundello Escaetr. turri Londinens. No. 37. capta apud Langley in comit. Northumbr. Die Jovis in Festo Sanct. Andreæ Apostoli. 42 Edvardi III.

(m) Willielmus Blenkensopp fuit seisitus de et in Blenkensopp, Glenwhelt, Darles, Hill-houses, Driburn-haugh, et Wry-tree, cum terris in Haltwesel, et le Ousett.—Escaet. de Anno 10 Eliz.

is faid to be met with in the cabinets of the curious; his ranfom alone costing one hundred thousand pounds in filver, equal to three hundred thousand pounds of our present money (n).

Gawen Blenkensopp, D. D. is on record for being a benefactor to that renowned seminary of learning, Pembroke-Hall, in Cambridge, of which he was fellow (o).

The castle of Blenkensopp is about a mile to the south-east of Thirlwall-castle, on the southern banks of the Tippal; upon an eminence, and overlooked by another; the west and north-west side of it protected by a very high cespititious wall, and a deep foss; a vault going through it, north and south, thirty-three feet in length, and in breadth eighteen feet and an half; two lesser ones on the north side. The facing of the western wall has been down beyond the memory of any person now living in the neighbourhood. It has been a very strong building. It is now in the possession of John Blenkensopp Coulson, of Jesmont, Esq.

We proceed with the wall from Caer-Vorran for half a mile, when we have the pleasure of seeing a piece of it standing of the height and breadth of nine feet. We only go half a mile farther, before we come to

Wall-Town, the lordship and seat of John Ridley, Esq; in the reign of K. Edward VI; of the antient house of Willemoteswick, and brother to that exemplary and learned prelate, Nicholas Ridley, D. D. Bishop of London, whom his lordship mentions in his

(n) Ad pondus Coloniæ monetæ publicæ probatæ. Rad. de Di.eto, inter decem scriptores.

<sup>(0)</sup> Parker's Hist. of Cambridge, p. 49.

Farewell-letter with the warmest affection. A plain monument is erected over him on the north side of the chancel of Haltwefel-church. His seat was a castellated building, of which nothing now remains but a poor fragment, just sufficient to shew its former strength, as if designed to last for ages. Out of its ruins was built a small mansion by the late possessor, George Marshall, Esq; eminently beloved by his tenants, and the whole neighbourhood, for letting his lands at moderate rents; in which he was succeeded at his death by Mrs. Bacon, of Newbrough, and Mr. Hunter, of Dux-Field, in Hexhamshire.

To the east of the broken remains of the old tower, in an opening of the precipices, is the Well where Paulinus is said to have baptised King Egbert, and some thousands of his subjects. It seems to have been walled round; some dressed stones lying by it.

We pass on with the wall for a mile and a quarter, and then come to the Roman station of Great Chefters (p); the ruins of which appear at this time very fair, on a fine flope, large and spacious, nearly square, the angles obtuse or rounded. On the east side of it is an altar with a Patera sculptured on one side, the inscription entirely essayed by the weather. By its side is another stone, with the sigure of a man in a nich, his head gone, his left hand resting upon his side, his right on a short column; no appearance of any inscription.

In digging up the foundations of a building in the upper part of the station, in the beginning of the year 1767, a very large stone was found with a long inscription, but imperfect by two fractures at each corner at the bottom, whereby half of four lines are wanting, besides some letters. Part of the second line is also injured. So much of it as is perfect runs thus.

(p) Æfica. Horfley.

IMP. CAS M. AVR SEVE
RVS. MEDCANDER. PFE
AVG. HORREUM VETV
STATE CONR. AR SVMM.
COH II ASTVRVM SA
A SOLO RESTITVERVNT
PROVINCV. ARECNT
MAXIMO LEG. W GPRP
SAL MARTI MED LEGA
TVS CO. II. ET DEXT.

The stone is of the fine rag, nearly square, with a handsome moulding.

About a quarter of a mile to the fouth of the station, near a mill, called, The Wall-Mill, is a funeral-stone fixed in the ground, with the figure of a child in a nich, and an inscription underneath, dim and obscure by being exposed to the weather, four feet and a half in height above ground. Hard by is another sepulchral memorial converted to a post for a gate to hang on, called Wall-Mill-Gate. The inscriptions on both are published by Mr. Horsley (q).

At a finall distance from Wall-Mill, and very near the 35th Mile-Stone on the military road, on a ridge of moor, are four tumuli, twenty yards afunder north and fouth, twenty-eight east and west; cut through by the late observing and curious Mr. Currey, a diffenting minister, who found both entire human bones and an urn with ashes and falt in it; the falt well preserved, white and fair.

The Romans were not very careful to separate the human ashes from the rest, but sometimes put coals and other things into the urn. Their urns were of gold, of filver, and other metal; of glass, of stone, and of marble, but most generally of potter's This was of that kind. Trajan's was of gold. They were of all figures, but commonly round and bellied; those of metal generally embellished with sculpture and bass-reliefs. Urns for perfons of distinction were either set under marble-monuments, or in niches of sepulchral chambers. Severus provided his before his death (r). It is faid to have been of porphyry (s), or of alabaster (t). The ashes of persons of quality were usually fprinkled with wine, before they were collected into an urn.

Postquam collapsi cineres, et slamma quievit, Reliquias vino et bibulam lavere favillam; Ossaque lecta cado texit Chorinaus aheno.

Virg. Æn. vi

Soon as the pile, fubfiding, flames no more, With wine the heap they fprinkled o'er: Then Chorinaus took the charge, to place The bones felected in a brazen vafe.

Pilt.

(r) Spon.

(s) Dio.

(t) Herodotus.

Salt was used in their solemn facrifices, as well as in urn-burial:

Dant fruges manibus falfas. -- Virg. Æn. xii. v. 173.

Urn-burial is not fo antient as the present practice of interment. Burning the dead is first attributed to the Greeks, and Hercules is faid to be the first of the Greeks who used it. This he did to free himself from the obligation of an oath. He had fworn. to bring back a youth (u) to his father (v) from the fiege of Troy, and he had no other way of doing it, but by prefenting him with his ashes. From the Greeks this custom passed to the Romans, but it was not general among them. From the authority of Pliny (w), it appears, that it was not used by many families, and that Syllathe dictator was the first of the Cornelii whose body was burnt; which is the reason assigned by Antiquaries why we find Roman bones both burnt and unburnt. It was the choice of some, because they would preserve their bodies from the resentment of their enemies. This was probably Sylla's motive. It is supposed the Gauls had it from the Romans; the Celtics or antient Britons from the Gauls; but it is not fo easily accounted for how the Danes, and other nations, called Juti and Angli, Saxons and Germans, came by it. It is believed they had it from the Grecian cuftoms and learning, and that they all laid it aside on the introduction of Christianity.

To distinguish which are Roman, British, or Danish tumuli, has been observed to be difficult. Some antiquaries pretend to fix them from their shape. But that is reckoned guess-work, unless inscriptions, arms, or coins, be found in them; the latter of gold, silver, or copper, but neither of them of brass; instruments and coins of that metal belonging to the northern nations, and where they are found in tumuli unquestionably Roman, they are supposed to have been taken from the enemy, and thrown into it in honour of the deceased. The Roman tumuli were cespititious, or mounts of earth, like those here. Such was Hector's, viridi cespite (x); such was Dercennus's, terreno ex aggere bustum (y). Such was that made by Æneas.

(u) Argius.

(v) Licimnius.

(w) L. 7. C. 54.

— Pius Æneas ingenti mole sepulchrum Imponit, suaqùe arma viro, remumqùe, tubamqùe, Monte sub aërio. Virg. Æn. v. ver. 232, &c.

No greater misfortune could happen to a Roman, than to be denied the honos tumuli, the folamen humandi. The atheist, Mezentius, could not die in peace, without begging it of his enemy with his last breath.

Corpus humo patiare tegi——

Et me confortem nati concede fepulchro. Virg. Æn. x.

If a vanquish'd foe this grace may crave,
Oh! let me find the refuge of a grave.

— Guard my coarse, and lay me by my son.—
Grant, grant that pleasure, e're I yield my breath,
To share his dear society in death.

Pitt.

At a fmall distance to the east of the 35th mile-stone, the military road is crossed by Haltwesel-burn, over which is a stone-bridge of one arch. In sight from it is a farm-house, called Lees-

(x) Virg. Æn. iii. v. 302, &c.

(y) — Æn. xi. v. 849, &c.

Hall, past which is a road leading by a pleasant and easy descent to the villa of Haltwesel, which was plundered by the Scotch-outlaws in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; for which they received fevere correction from the lord warden of the middle marches, Sir Robert Cary, created Baron of Leppington by K. James I, 1621; and Earl of Monmouth by K. Charles I, youngest of ten sons of Henry Lord Hunsdon, warden of the east marches; his Lordship's son-in-law, Thomas Lord Scrope, knight of the garter, being warden of the west marches; both likewise famous for their courage, conduct, and abilities, in defending the borders (z). It hath an inconfiderable weekly market on Thursdays. There is a manufactury in it of coarse bays, belonging to two worthy Quakers; their fullingmill finished, and approved of by trial, 17th September, 1762; pleafure and chearfulness appearing in every face on the occasion; giving a prospect of better bread to the industrious poor. It is fituated on a rifing ground on the north fide of the river Tyne, the church and vicarage-house to the south of it; the churchyard forming a terrace, and giving a prospect of the vale, and the winding course of the river; the church consisting of three isles, pewed with oak, the roof lofty, as is the acute arch into the chancel, the window above the altar gothic and flately.

By the river Tyne is a piece of ground, now part of the vicarage-glebe, called The Church-yard, where it is supposed the church antiently flood; grave-stones and bones being frequently digged up.

Lady Capel, among other charities at her death, left a finall fum, at the request of one of her domestics, born in this neighbourhood (a), for the endowment of a reading and writing-fchool; the master's salary reputed at this time about eight or ten pounds per annum; the school-house built by the Rev. Mr. Pate, vicar of the parish (b).

(z) Monmouth's Memoirs, p. 87. 150.

Nicholas Ridley, Esq; an alderman of, and governor of the merchants company in, Newcastle, by his last will and testament, bearing date 7th December, 1710, gave to the poor of the parish forty shillings per annum, out of a little farm or tenement, called Wagtail-Hall; to be distributed to the more aged and insirm, eight days before Christmas (c).

On an eminence, called Caftle-Banks, east from the church, is the vestiges of a fort, guarded by a cespititious wall on all sides, except the south, where it is open, and has a pretty steep slope, and a large spring towards the middle, now a bog; a fine vale, river, wood, and moor-prospect before it; the villas of Haltwesel, Redpeth, Widen, Bellester-Castle, Plenmeller, and Unthank, all visible from every part of it; the sight of the river lost under hanging woods; the meadows and corn-fields between it and the river forming a spacious area or amphitheatre, projecting to the streams like a peninsula; these last belonging to Mrs. Cuthbertson, widow of the late George Cuthbertson, of Newcastle, Esq; who was Lord of the manour.

About a mile fouth-west from Haltwesel, on the other side of the Tyne, is

- (a) His name, Fetherstonbaugh. Lady Capel's Will.
- (b) Collectan. Warburton.
- (c) Bourne's Hist. of New aftle upon Tyne.

Bellester-Castle, the seat of a younger branch of the Blenkensopps, of Blenkensopp-Castle; of Thomas de Blenkensopp, 6 K. Edward VI. (d); of George de Blenkensopp, 10 Q. Elizabeth (e). It now belongs, with its demesses, to George Blenkensopp Coulson, of Jesmont, Esq; and the manour to Robert Ellison, of Park-house, in the bishoprick of Durham, Fsq. The castle stands on an artisicial mount, and had a park belonging to it.

The river Tyne makes a flexure under a hanging wood near this place, and a little higher up is croffed by a flone-bridge of one bold arch, founded on a rock at each end, called Fetherftone-bridge; near half a mile above which is

Fetherston-Castle, the scat of the antient family of the Fetherston-haughs; of Thomas de Fetherstonhaugh, 1 K. Edward I. (f), and 2 K. Edward II. (g); of Alexander de Fetherstonhaugh, 39 K. Edward III. (h); of Thomas de Fetherstonhaugh, 42 of the same reign (i); of Sir

- (d) Bp. Nicholfon's Border-Laws, p. 240.
- (e) Georgius Blenkensopp fuit seisitus de ct in Bellester, Over-Warden, Barne-Houses, Park, Lin-sheels, Dodlawood, cum turris in Haltwesel. Escaet. de Anno 10 Eliz.
  - (f) Thomas de Fetherstonbaugh tenet Fetherstonhaugh per Dimid. Marc. Baron de Tynedale. Escaet. de Anno 1 Edwardi I.
  - (g) Escaet. de Anno 2 Edvardi II. No. 78.
- (h) Alexander de Fetherstonhaugh tenet villam de Fetherstonhaugh de manerio de Langley per homagium et servicium 2 s. 7 d. et sectam curiæ de Langley; et valet per annum, 10 Marc.

Inquisit. ex bundello Escaetr. turri Londinensi, No. 17. capta apud Novum Castrum super Tynam, Die Veneris proxime post festum Sancti Petri in cathedra, 39 Edvardi III. coram Willielmo de Rygate, Escaet. Dom. Reg. in Comit. Northumbr.

(i) Thomas, hæres Alexandri, de Fetherstonbaugh, tenet manerium de Fetherstonhaugh, de manerio de Langley, pro homagio et fidelitate, et pro servicio reddend. per annum 20s. 10 d.

Sir Albany Fetherstonhaugh, Knight, high sheriss of Northumberland, 2 Q. Elizabeth (k); of Alexander Fetherstonhaugh, also high sheriss, 32 of the same reign (l). In later times, the manour was fold to the right honourable the Earl of Carlisle; and the castle and estate came into the possession of Matthew Fetherstonhaugh, of Newcastle upon Tyne, Esq; father of the present possessor, Sir Matthew Fetherstonhaugh, of Up-Park, in Sussex, Bart. a representative in parliament for Portsmouth, in Hampshire.

The castle is vaulted underneath, and has two speculating turrets, one to the north-west, and the other to the south-east. It is in a low situation, in a fertile vale or haugh, on the east-side of the Tyne, which glides past it under shady banks of wood in pleafant murmurs.

On the western margin of the same river, about two miles higher up, is Lambley, where was a priory founded for Benedictine nuns, and dedicated to St. Patrick, but by whom is not determined with pre-ad terminos Pentecost. et Sancti Martini in hyeme, ad equales portiones; et pro secta curiæ per tres vices per annum; et valet ultra servicium prædictum 10 marc. per annum.

Inquisit. ex bundello escaetr. turri Londinensi, No. 37. capta apud Langley in comit. Northumbr. Die Jovis in sesto Sancti Andreæ, apostoli, 42 Edvardi III. coram Johanne Henderskelf, escaet. Dom. Regis in prædicto comitatu.

(k) Fuller's Worthies.

Albanus Fetherstonhaugh fuit seisitus de et in Fetherstonhaugh, Fetherstonhaugh-row, Whitwham, Lambley, Redpeth, Widen, Widen-esles, Horse-close, Kellaws, Greenriggs, Harper-houses, cum terris in Haltwesel, mill-houses, et umbres.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

(1) Fuller.

Vol. II. D cision

cision by authors (m). K. John gave and confirmed to them by charter the site of the abbey, and its appurtenances, and right of pasturage on both sides of the Tyne, at Lambley, the manour of Adam de Tynedale, and his lady. He also gave them the chapel of Sandiburnsele, and a glebe at the same place, containing four acres of land, and all the tythes and offerings belonging to the same, and within the whole Lordship of Lambley. He also confirmed to them the lands given them at Brenerigs and Sandiburnsele by Adam de Tynedale's nephew, and other lands given them by that young gentleman's mother (n). They had a fifth part of the village of Widen (o). A house in Newcastle, at the end of Painter-bugh, was charged with the annual payment to them of

(m) King John. Compendium compertum.
 K. John, or Adam de Tynedale. Bp. Tanner.
 Lord Lucy. Candon. Speed.

(n) Johannes Dei gratia, &c. Sciatis nos concessisse et præsenti carta confirmasse Deo, et l'anêtæ Mariæ, et Sanêto Patricio, et sanêtimonialibus de Lambeleya, locum abbatiæ de Lambeleya super Tinam, liberum et quietum in perpetuum, cum pertinentiis suis, & pannagium liberum, & communem pasturam ex utraque paste Tinæ in toto seodo Adæ de Tindale, & Helwisæ uxoris ejus. Et capellam de Sandiburnessele, cum quatuor acris terræ in eodem loco, & onines decimas & obventiones totius wassi ipsorum Adæ & Helewisæ de seodo suo. Confirmamus etiam eis rationabiles donationes quas Helyas nepos ipsius Adæ eis secit de Brenerigs & de Sandidurnessele, & donationem quam mater ipsius Helya cis secit de terra sua. Quare volumus, et sirmiter præcipimus quod prædictæ sanêtimoniales habeant & teneant omnia prædicta benè & in pace, liberè & quietè, integrè, plenariè & honoriscè, cum omnibus libertatibus & liberis consuetudinibus suis, sicut carta prædictorum Adæ & Helewisæ rationabilitèr testatur. Testibus, Willielmo de Stutevill, Hugone Bardulph, Roberto de Ros. Dat. per manum S. Wellenss archidiachoni, apud Hextoldessam xvi die Februarii, regni nostri anno secundo.

Char. 2. Johan. n. 9. m. 12. Vid. etiam Pat. 31. Ed. III. p. 1. m. 201

<sup>(2)</sup> Esceat. de anno I Edvarai I.

18 s. granted by William Porter to John de Chambers, a burgess of that corporation (p).

At the fuppression, this priory had six nuns, when its annual revenues were valued at 5 l. 15 s. 8 d. It was granted, 7 K. Edward VI. to John Duke of Northumberland (q); and was in the possession of Sir Albany Fetherstonhaugh, of Fetherston-Castle, Knight, 10 Q. Elizabeth; and now belongs to Sir Lancelot Allgood, of Nunwick, Knight; the site of the convent washed away by the river Tyne.

Two miles from Lambley, on the fame fide of the river, is Knarefdale-Hall, which, with the manour, was taken from John Prat by the crown, 8 K. Edward I. for his disloyalty; and given to Sir Robert de Swinburn, knight; the grant scaled in council with a large green wax-scal (r); the manour of Williamston, held of the manour of Knarefdale, being also given to Sir William de Swinburn, knight; its owner Bartholomew Prat, confirming the title by a release, in the same reign, and 31 of Alexander, King of Scotland (s); a year remarkable for a grievous pestilence in that kingdom. The heir to Sir Robert, was Thomas de Swinburn, who, besides the

- (p) Bourne's Hist. of Newcastle.
- (q) Compend. compertum.
- (r) Collins's Baronage.

· ....)

(s) Omnibus hoc scriptum, &c. Bartholomaus Prat, salutem, &c. Noveritis me remissile, et relaxasse, &c. Dom. Willielmo de Swinburn, &c. totum jus et clamum, &c. Manerio de Williamsson, in seodo de Knaresdale, &c. Sigillat. his testibus, Dom. Thom. Ranulph. Simon. fratres, tune justiciarii itinerantes; Johanne Cumyn, Johanne de Swinburn, Roberto de Insula de Chipches, Milit. Johanne de Shutlington, Gilberto de Grindon, Odardo de Ridley, et aliis. Dat apud Wark in Tynedale, anno regni Alexandri regis Scotia tricesimo primo.

manour

manour of Knarefdale, held the manour and hamlet of Chirdon of the crown, 3 K. Edward III. under the manour of Wark, in Tynedale, by the service of one knight's fee (t). In the reign of Q. Elizabeth, Knarefdale-Hall, and other estates near it, were possessed by William Wallace, of Copeland-Castle, Esq; (u); who married Eleanor, the second daughter of John Swinburn, of Edlingham, Esq; by Anne, eldest daughter of Sir Cuthbert Collingwood, of Eslington, knight; her eldest sister, Anne, marrying William Shaftoe, of Bavington, Esq; His descendant, Ralph Wallace, sold it to the late John Stephenson, and alderman of Newcastle upon Tyne, brother to Sir William Stephenson, Knight, an alderman, and twice Lord Mayor, of London; bother born at Crosslands in Aldston-moor.

About three miles from Knaresdale; on the same side of the Tyne, is Whitley-Castle, the Roman station Alione (v), on an irregular slope, by a rivulet of the same name, the southern boundaries between the two counties of Northumberland and Cumberland; the samous Roman military way, called, The maiden way, coming to it from

(t) Thomas de Swinburn, filius et hæres Roberti de Swinburn, tenet manerium de Knaresdale, in Tynedale, et manerium de Chirdon, cum hamlet. de rege, ut de manerio de Wark in Tynedale, in manerio regis existens, per servicium unius seodi militis.

Mich. Fin. Anno 3 Edvardi III.

(u) Walles.

Wallase.

Wallace.

Vid. AYDEN-CASTLE.

Willielmus Walles fuit seisitus de et in Knaresdale, Knarehope, Eliside-house, Burnes, Hanging-show, Knare-houses, Lusley, Slagiford, et Thornhope.

Escaet. de Anno 10 Eliz.

(v) Dean Gale's Antoninus.

21

61

Caer-vorran. A corpse of the twentieth legion, called, Valens Vic-

VEXILATIO LEGIONIS VICESSIMÆ-V. V. REFECIT.

The third cohort of the Nervii was quartered at it, as mentioned in the Notitia (w), attested by two inscriptions on altars, inscribed to the Emperor Caracalla; the latter holding forth a long train of titles. There is a beautiful print of it in Dean Gale's Antonimus. They are all among Mr. Horsley's Romana.

Alione is thought to have been garrisoned by the Romans to the last. Mr. Warburton has placed it in his map of this county at Old Town, by Catton Beacon, near the union of the two rivulets, East and West Allen: of which hereafter. The ruins here are large, the ditches and ramparts still conspicuous. The Maiden Way is continued from it to Whellop-Castle, or Kirby-Thore, in West-morland.

Notice is taken by Mr. Horsley of an altar in the church-yard at Kirk-haugh, on the other side of the Tyne, inscribed,

DEÆ MINERVÆ, ET HERCULI VICTORI.

We now continue our course from the bridge over Haltweselburn on the military road for near a quarter of a mile, when on the left hand, on the ridge of a hill, we have a view of three upright pillars of whin-stone, two of them broken off towards the middle. Some persons imagine they were set up for rubbingstones for cattle, but they stand too close together for that end; and, besides, the setting up more than a single stone in one place for that use is not known to have been ever practised. As those at Little Salkeld, in Cumberland, are called Long Meg and her Daughters, so these here are called the The Mare and her two Foals.

(w) The title of it, as published by Pancirollus, is, Notitia utraque Dignitatum cum Orientis, tum occidentis ultra Arcadii honoriique tempora. It is supposed by the editor to have been written before the Romans deserted Britain, and near the close of the reign of Theodosius Junior.

The former are acknowledged to be British. The latter are most likely of the same origin, religious and funeral memorials.

From a rifing hill, a little beyond the 32d mile-stone, we have a slight view of Willimotefwick (x), i. c. the Mote, or Keep, and Villa of William; built, as usual, on a rising ground, to observe the motions of an enemy. It was the antient sear of the Ridleys; of Sir Nicholas Ridley, high sheriss of Northumberland, 1, 2, 3, 23 K. Henry VII; and 1, 2, 3 K. Henry VIII (y); ancestor to Nicholas Ridley, Bishop of London (z).

The bishop was the ornament of the house of Willimstefwicke, and of Northumberland. He suffered at Oxford with Bishop Latimer, 16 October, 1555, on the act de Heretico comburendo, made in the reign of King Henry VII. 1410, against Wickliff's followers; William Sautre being the first who suffered (a); the next being John Badby, who was burnt alive in parliament-time, and in the face of the whole house, in contempt of the commons, who had

- (x) Willimoteswicke. Canden.
  Wyllimountswick. Bishop Ridley:
- · (y) Fuller's Worthics.
  - (z) See Bishop Ridley's own account of his family, in his Farewell Letter.
- (a) Asta Regia, Vol. 2. 8vo. p. 105, 106, &c.

petitioned the king for the repeal or mitigation of that cruel flatute.

There was another eminent divine of this family at the reformation, Lancelot Ridley, D. D. He was fellow of King's-Hall, in Cambridge, about the year 1532. one of the fix preachers of Canterbury, and author of a Commentary on St. Paul's Epistles (b).

That great civilian, Sir Thomas Ridley, Knt. L. L. D. derived his defcent also from this antient stock. He was born at Ely (c); educated at Eaton-school, of which he was afterwards a school-master, and sellow of King's College, in Cambridge. For his juridical erudition, and other liberal accomplishments, he was promoted to a mastership in chancery, to the honour of knighthood, to the Chancellorship of Winchester, and the high station of vicar general to Dr. George Abbot, Archbishop of Canterbury. He was member of parliament for Wycombe, in Buckinghamshire, 28 Q. Elizabeth. He was author of a treatise on the Eucharist, and of a book, intitled, A view of the civil and ecclesiastical law. He died, 22 January, 5 K. Charles I. 1629 (d); and was interred in St. Bennet's church, near St. Paul's wharf, London.

The Ridleys of Willimoteswicke seem to have been a family of Literati and divines. Three of them were rectors of the parish of Simonburn, in Northumberland; viz. Robert Ridley, D. D. nominated, 1510; John Ridley, 1532; Cuthbert Ridley, 1635 (e).

Willimoteswicke was the seat of Sir Nicholas Ridley, Knt. 12 Q. Elizabeth; then high sheriff of Northumberland, and possessed of a

(b) Carter's Hift. of Cambridge, p. 308.

(c) Id. p. 149.

(d) Id.

(e) Registr. Dunelm.

considerable property (f); also of Richard Ridley, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 27th of the same reign (g). In the reign of K. Charles I. it was in the possession of Richard Musgrave, Esq; (h); the manour of Henshaw, and the forest of Lowes, and other lands, being then held of the crown, under the manor of Wark, in Tynedale, by William Ridley, Esq; by the same service as his father, of his own name, performed (i). Willimoteswicke now belongs to Sir Edward Blacket, of West Matsen, Bart.

A little higher up from the military road we have a view of the Roman station of Little Chefters (k), easily distinguished by the clumps of trees and brushwood in it, like natural arbours, from which it has obtained the name of The Bowers. It is of the usual form, nearly #### (f) Fuller's Worthies.

Nicholaus Ridley fuit seisitus de et in manerio et villa de Wyllymontswycke, Henshaw, Cragg-sheel, Horny-steed, Legget, Roses-bower, Crook-bank, Chester-wood, Haddon, Woodsheel, Ridley-hall, Beltingham, Shaws, Woodburn-house, Midshaw, Style, Braydwood, Farnes, Allington, Fenpugh, Wood-hall, Melkridge, High-houses, Whitchester et Whitchester, cum terris in Haltwesel, Haidon-bridge, Morylee, White-sheel, Thorn graston, Birkshaw, Mill house, Bradley east, Grindon-dikes, Toy-houses, Hunter-Cragg, et Bardon-Mill.

Escaet. de Anno 10 Eliz.

(g) Fuller.

(h) Richardus Musgrave, Arm. tenet in capite manerium de Willimontswicke, Ridley, Ridley-hall, et Melkridge, ac diversa messuagia, et terras ibidem, ac Rector. de Haltwesel.

Ex Lib. Feodar. Petri Osborne, Milit.

(i) Willielmus Ridley, Arm. filius Willielmi, tenet de rege, ut de manerio de Wark in Tynedale, manerium de Henshaw, et forestam de Lowes, cum molendino aquatico, et diversa tenem. infra dictum manerium et forestam. Ex prædicto Libro Feodar.

(k) Ph. Tr. No. 278.

fquare, containing about an acre and an half; the wall round it of earth and stone, very fair; a pleasant slowing rill, called Bardon-Burn, washing its eastern skirts, in its course to Bardon-mill, overlooked by Barkham-hills: a deep ditch or hollow, called in this country a clugh, to the south; one of the natural arbours large, composed of white thorn, birch, oak, and nut-bushes, giving a pleasant shade.

The Via Vacinalis from Caer-vorran to Walwick-Chefters comes close up to the north fide of it, on which a Roman military stone is still standing, by a gate called Caudley-gate, near the brink of Bardon-streamlet; also another a mile west from it, in a straight line; the road very fair; the mile-stones in sine preservation, of white rag, six feet, four inches, in diameter, and near as much in height above ground, of a round sigure, like large rollers.

Some Roman shoes and fandals were digged up by Mr. Warburton, the late Somerfet-herald, which he gave to the royal fociety. A winged image, wanting the head and feet, about three inches long, was found and prefented to Dr. Hunter. A Roman Hypocaustum or sudatory has been also discovered, of which the last mentioned inquisitive and industrious antiquary gives this account. "Some years ago, on the west side of this place, about " fifty yards from the walls thereof, there was discovered under a " heap of rubbish a square room strongly vaulted above, and paved " with large square stones set in lime, and under this a lower reon, "whose roof was supported by rows of square pillars of about "half a yard high: the upper room had two niches, like (and " perhaps in the nature of) chimneys on each fide of every corner " or fquare, which in all made the number fixteen; the pavement " of this room, as also its roof, were tinged black with smoak, "The flones used in vaulting the upper room have been marked " as Vol. II. E

"as our joiners do the deals for chambers; those I saw were "numbered thus x. xi. xiii" (1).

Roman baths were first introduced in Britain by Agricola, to give the natives an agreeable picture of a polite and well civilized community.

Fornix—et uncta popina Incutiunt urbis desiderium.—Hor. Epist. Lib. i. 14.

A sculpture in stone of Mercury, the Custos Manium, and god of the highways, was found here; an engraving of which, with some others, may be seen in the Britannia Romana. The mercantile part of Britain held a solemn festival to Mercury, 15 October.

Camden gives us an altar, found at this place, of A. Licinius Clemens prefectus cohortis prime Hamiorum, dedicated to the Syrian goddess, Astarte; the reading scrupled by Mr. Horstey, but confirmed by the Greek altar to Astarte at Corbridge, in the judgment of Dr. Stukely (m).

In digging up the foundations of a Castellum or milliary turret, in the wall, in an opening of the precipice by Crag-Lake, called, Lough-End-Crag, or Milking-Gap, for stones, for building a farm-house, belonging to William Lowes, of Newcastle, Esq; to the north-east of this station, a centurial stone was found by the masons, very large, inscribed,

IMP CAES TRAIAN HADRIANI AVG LEG II AVG

A PLATORIO NEPOTE LEG P R P R

<sup>(1)</sup> Magna. Camden.

(m) Caraus. Vol. ii. p. 160.

This stone is now at Mr. Lowes's Seat at Ridley-Hall.

A large stone, in the altar-form, was lately digged up at this station, with the sculpture of a red deer in the center, leaning against a tree, and two fawns at the bottom, in relief. It is now standing in a field on the north side of the house of Hugh Ridley, at Archy-flat, adjoining to the station, who placed it there to answer the use of a rubbing stone for cattle. It was two feet thick, when it was turned out of the ground, but he split it nearly in the middle downwards, to make it casier to remove. It is of the sine white rag, adorned with moldings.

Many ftags horns have been digged up; some of an unusual fize; one, presented to me, measures round at the base nine inches; striated lengthways, and studded with small irregular tubercles. The festival of the Roman hunters, sacred to Diana, was 13th August, when stags were facrificed (n). A temple, perhaps built in honour of her, was discovered by some masons in digging for stones, some years ago, adorned with doric pilasters and capitals, which perished under the strokes of their tools, being unacquainted with the value of such a curiosity. It was at the west end of the station.

Urns, of various fizes, with ashes in them, were found in digging by the above-mentioned Hugh Ridley, on the north side of his house; both of fine and coarse pottery, incautiously broken by his spade; one of them as small as a pint-mug.

In the fouth-west end of the Well-House, belonging to William Smith, built about twelve years ago, at the west end of the station, by the suburbs, is an altar inscribed,

(n) Stukeley's Richard of Cirencester, p 43.

MARTI VICTORI COH III NERVIORVM PRAFECT I CANINIVS

It is thirty-four inches long, and twelve inches and an half broad, the under part hammered off by the incurious majons; the infcription within a neat molding or raifed border, much injured by the weather, though cut upon that durable stone, the fine white rag, found plentifully on the neighbouring moors. The festival of Mars, was 1st March. In the cabinet of the Revd. Mr. Walton, vicar of Corbridge, is a brass coin struck in honour of it, Marti pacifero; the deity in armour, helmeted; a Parma or shield. on his left arm; a fprig of olive held forth in his right (0).

He is fometimes on coins in armour, dancing. The Saltatio armata of the Roman militia on their festival Armilustrium, celebrated 19th October, is still practifed by the country people in this neighbourhood, on the annual festivity of Christmas, the Yule-Tide of the Druids. Young men march from village to village, and from house to house, with music before them, dressed in an antic attire, and before the Vestibulum or entrance of every house entertain the family with the Motus incompositus, the antic dance (p), or Chorus armatus, with fwords or spears in their hands, erect, and shining. This they call, The sword-dance. For their pains they are prefented with a fmall gratuity in money, more or lefs, according to every housholder's ability. Their gratitude is expressed by firing a gun. One of the company is distinguished from the rest by a more antic dress; a fox's skin generally serving him for a covering and ornament to his head, the tail hanging down his back. This droll figure is their chief or leader. He does not mingle in the dance. Like the frantic Bacchinalian Aruspex,——

(o) Stukeley.

(p) Virg. Geo. L. 1. v. 350.

Nunciet Orgya BACCHI.

This Chorus armatus is prettily described by Claudian.

Armatos hic supe choros, certaque vagandi
Textas lege fugas, inconfusosque recursus,
Et pulchros errorum artes, jucundaque martis
Cernimus: infonuit cum verbere signa magister.
Mutatosque edunt paritur tot pectora motus,
In latus allisis Clypeis, aut rursus in altum
Vibratis. Grave parma sonat mucronis acuti
Murmure, et umbonum pulsu modulante resultans;
Ferreus alterno concentus clauditur ense.

Claud, de vi. Conful. Honor.

Here have I feen the armed rings revolve,
In artful flights, in order then advance,
Attack, retire, in all the forms of war,
Their eye ftill on the fignal of the chief.
Then face about, ringing their brazen shields
Against their corslets, or uplifted high
Threaten the echoings skies, whilst steely blades
Harsh murmur, and the clanging trumpets sound
Alternate struck, the martial consort close.

The unlettered Roman called this festal chorus, The Phyrric dance; the better fort, The Trojan game (q).

(q) Sueton. in Tiberio. C. 27. Virg. Æn. v. 596. Stuk. Itin. Curios. p. 92-3.

Some other festival-entertainments of the Romans were observable among the same people some years ago. Their youth ushered in the new year by taking their rounds in the neighbouring viliages from house to house; one of the most sprightly and ingenious among them being their bard, who recited some verses, composed in honour of the season, with a chorus, in which all the rest joined, in giving their congratulations. Thus the Romans.

Nec non Ansonii gens missa, coloni, Versibus incomptis ludunt, risuque soluti.

Virg. Geo. 2. v. 385, &c.

Nor less th' Ausonian swains deriv'd from Troy, Sport in rough numbers and unweildy joy.

Warton.

Their Chorus.

Ergo rite fuum Baccho dicemus honorem Carminibus patriis, lancesque et liba feremus. Id. v. 393-4.

Then let us Bacchus' praifes fing, And confecrated cakes and chargers bring.

Warton.

Our British youth being rewarded for their new year's compliment of poetry to their neighbours, retired to the mollia Prata, the foft meadows, spent the festal hours in wrestling, leaping, and other exercises. So the Romans.

Pars in gramineis exercent membra palæstris, Contendunt ludo, et fulva luctantur arena, Pars pedibus plaudunt choreas, et carmina dicunt.

Virg. Æn. vi. v. 642, &c.

Some

Some wreftle on the plains, and fome in play, And games heroic, pass the hours away. Those raise the song divine, and these advance In measur'd steps to form the solemn dance.

Pitt.

The present owner of this station is Mr. William Lowes; his house behind it, within the manour of Henshaw, belonging to Sir Edward Blacket, of West Matsen, Bart.

On the other fide of the Tyne, by the confluence of the brook Allen into that river, is Ridley-Hall, antiently belonging to the Ridleys of Willim teswicke, and in later times to the antient family of Lowes; a local name, from the neighbouring forest of Lowes; now the seat and Lordship of William Lowes, of Newcassle, Esq; whose ancestor, Robert Lowes, was one of the gentlemen who had the direction of the watch at Thorngrasson, 6 K. Edward VI (r). The seat-hot is on a rising ground, built by its present owner; the south-front of brick; a pleasant garden before it; a winding terrace had long from it southward above the banks of the seat-hot appropriate from the seat and near its termination a precipice of broken rocks, called, The Raven-Gray, from its being the resort of those birds; yews and hollies growing in the cless and crevices; one yew associated an agreeable shade and verdure; at a small distance the woody banks of Kingswood, which close this romantic scene.

From a hillock on the west side of the house, the chapel of Beltingham, the eastle of Willmoteswicke, the new bridge over the

(r) Bishop Nicholson's Border-Laws, p. 240.

Tyne, the floping fields, woods, and little dwellings on its opposite banks, and the villa of Hayden-bridge, are agreeable objects.

Opposite to Kingswood, and a mile and an half from the Raven-Cragg, on the eastern banks of the Allen, is the ruin of Staward le Peel, or Staward Castle. It stands on the ridge of a rocky peninfula or promontory, between the Allen and Harfingdale-Burn, a small rill; entered to the east by a narrow, lofty terrace, whose sides are cloathed with trees; rocks and precipices appearing through them; under it is a triangular area in tillage, with a hutt in the midst of some scattered trees, the Allen passing by in broken murmurs, enlarged by the streamlet of Kingswood, the northern boundary of the Lordship of Whitsield; a semicircular hanging wood adorning its western margin; the rocks of Shewing-sheels, and the villa of Thorngrafton, in view to the north. A fragment of the gateway is flill flanding, where was a drawbridge, an iron-gate, and port-cullice. There are also nine courses of it standing at the west end, of the white rag-stone, and hewn work; the cement fo flrong, that one flone can hardly be separated from another without breaking them; guarded by a Fofs, and a Vallum of earth and stone. It belonged to the friers Eremites of Hexham; granted, with its demesnes, by Edward Duke of York; to hold by the annual payment of five marks (s). It is in fight from High, but not from Low, Staward; as are many of the beauties of the Allen, whose banks from its Ostium to its affociation and union with East Allen, present us with such groups of rural imagery, as are not to be furpassed by any spot in this county, for the like space. Among others, is a crag, called, Judas's-Crag, well known to hunters, for giving protection to foxes, in their distress by the chace.

(s) Le Peyle de Staworth dimissa. Prior. de Hexteldesham per Edvardum ducem Eberaci pro termino annorum reddend, per annum 5 Marc.

Pat. 10 Ricardi ii. p. 2. m. 9.

The two Stawards, and the Peel, were in the possession of the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (r), and are now the property of John William Bacon, of Etherston, Esq;*

About half a mile from High Staward, under a hill, the two Allens pass in a pleasant stream, immediately after their junction, through a handsome new bridge of three arches, of white free-stone †. At the oftium of West Allen is a lead-refining mill, called The Cupilo, belonging to a wealthy company of quakers. On the western, shady margin of that rivulet, is a handsome road, about two miles and a quarter in length, leading to

Whitfield-Hall, the feat of the antient family of the Whitfields; of John de Whitfield, 22 K. Richard II (s); of Sir Matthew Whitfield, Knight, 12 K. Henry VI. then high sheriff of Northumberland (t); of Ralph Whitfield, 10 Q. Elizabeth (u); held by the annual rent of 6s. 4d. of the prior and convent of Hexham, Lords of the Manour, to whom it was granted by William King of Scotland (v); pur-

- (r) Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.
- * Since dead.

- † Lately carried away by a flood.
- (s) Escaet. 22 Ric. 11. n. 39.

- (t) Fuller's Worthies.
- (u) Rudulphus Whitfield fuit seisitus de et in Whitfield-Hall, Hunter-Sheels, Burn-Mouth, Old-Town, Dews-Green, Whittingstaw, Sost-laws, Elme, Mill-House, Hope, Parmanlee, Parm
- (v) Prior et conventus de Hextoldesham tenent et habent dominicum totius villæ de Whitfield, et sexdecem solidat. et quatuor denariat. reddit. in liberam, puram, et perpetuam eleVol. II.

  F

  mosinam,

purchased and annexed to the estate, after the dissolution of that monastery, by the Whitsields; the last of whom, Matthew Whitsield, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1728, sold his antient patrimony, of Whitsield, to William Ord, of Fenham, Esq; who hath made great improvements by buildings, enclosures, and planting.

The feat-house is at a small distance from the villa, on a rising ground, by the streams of West Allen, the eastern boundary between this manour, and the manour of Hexhamshire. Before the east front is a hanging bank of wood, called Monk, remarkable for its beautiful hollies. There is a water-fall from a limestone-rock, about a mile to the south, by a precipice of a prodigious height, nearly perpendicular.

At Limeftone-Cross, in the manour of Whitsheld, there was formerly a lead-mine.

On Whitfield-Fell is a chalibeat spring, called Redmires.

About a mile from the Cupilo, is Old Town, fituated partly on an eminence, and partly on a flope, extending to East Allen; the house next the moor, called Stony-Law, from a little craggy mount, composed of earth, and large single masses of coarse rag-stone, streaked with red and white. There is not the least memorial of its being a Roman station, as supposed by Mr. Horsley, either by funeral-stones, altars, inscriptions, coins, or foundations of buildings; not even a tradition from any body on the spot of its being of Roman original. A quarter of a mile to the east of it, upon the moor, is a hillock mosinam, de dono Willielmi Regis Scotiæ, et inde habuerunt cartam, et tenuerunt a tempore quo non extat memoria. Rot. Cart. 27 Edvardi III. n. 35. of stones whereon about fourteen years ago stood an upright piece of timber or pole, called Catton-Beacon, to which was affixed a vessel with fire in it, to alarm the country on any public danger. The alarm was communicated from it to another beacon on Whit-field-Fell, called Whitfield-Law, visible both from it, and from the mount of Stony-Law; from which last place we have a fine view of the hanging wood leading to Whitfield by West Allen, of the rivulet of East Allen, of the lead-smelting-mill belonging to John William Bacon, of Etherston, Esq; of the capital town of Allen-dale, called,

Allen-dale-town, fituated on the banks of East Allen, on an eminence, and overlooked by others on both sides of that rapid brook. It is inhabited chiefly by miners; the church small, consisting of one isle; near the altar, a flat sepulchral stone to the memory of John Bacon, Esq; and his wife Cicilia.

At Bride's Hill, near this town, is a free-school; founded by Mr. Christopher Wilkinson, of Chapel-House, who by will, dated 27th February, 1700, gave 250l. for its endowment.

The reverend Mr. Thomas Wife, minister of the parish, born at Thornbill, in Yorkshire, by the codicil to his will, dated 2d February, 1700, left to it 10 l.

Mrs. Cicilia Bacon, of Catton-Lee, widow of John Bacon, Esq; by will gave to it 50 l.

Mr. William Hutchinson, of Port-Gate, in the same parish, by will gave a house and garth in Allendale-town, called the Tinker-house, valued at 24 l.

The school-house was built, 1704. It cost 50 l.

A road leads by a gradual afcent from this town, fouthward, over a moor, to the villa of Allen-Heads, inhabited also by miners; both belonging to Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. the alpine country round it reputed rich in veins of lead-ore.

To this villa, Mr. Burnand, a Cumberland-clergyman, retired, one his being filenced for nonconformity at the reftoration, and employed himself in a little farm, till by the favour of Sir Williams Blacket, Bart. he was appointed minister of the chapel here, built for the conveniency of the miners, with a salary of 30 l. per annum; the mines then prosperous and rich (w). Sir William gave also to l. per annum to a schoolmaster, for teaching the miners children to read and write.

To the east of, and only half a mile from, this mineral villa, is the mountain, called Shorn-Gate, over which the Scots made a road by paring the moss, and tumbling in stones, (to which it owes its name) in their precipitate retreat homewards from Stan-hope-Park, 1 K. Edward III. 1327; in fear of correction from the English army, commanded by the king in person, after they had made themselves merry at the regimental trim and mien of his soldiers, their cloathing being coats and hoods, embroidered with slowers and branches, very prettily, and their beards uncut, it being the fashion then for the soldiery to wear them.

The boundary-line, called The Scotch-Dike, extends from this place northwards by Catton-Beacon, and croffes the Roman wall at

(w) Bishop Kennet's Hist. Regist. p. 891.

Busy Gap; between which and Housesteeds, from a rocky eminence, called The King's Crag, a little to the north, it is in view.

There is nothing more remarkable by the streams of the two Allens.

We now continue our journey from the afcent between the 32 and 31 mile-stone on the military road, for about two miles, till we come to an exploratory mount, with a cut through it, on the right hand, midway between the 30th and 29th mile-stone, when we have a near view, on the left hand, of the Roman station of House-steeds (x), easily distinguished by the ruins and foundations of buildings; garrisoned by the first cohort of the Tungri, or Belgic Gauls, as attested by no fewer than six inscriptions in the Britannia Romana. It is on a large slope; the Picts-wall behind it, on a lofty precipice; Grundon-Lake in sight before it.

Those two celebrated antiquaries, the late Roger Gale, Esq; and Dr. Stukeley, were both at this station in August, 1725; of which we have an account by the latter in his Carausus (y), who had transcripts and drawings of an incredible number of altars, inscriptions, and sculptures, in large letters, and excellent work, taken on the spot by himself, and unpublished; many of them engraved by Mr. Gordon and Mr. Hersley, but, in his opinion, inferior to the originals. The three females, Deve Matres, on one stone, with globes in their hands, and short pallia down to their knees, are still remaining; their heads broken off. They were the tutelary deities of the chace or forest of Lowes. Both Venus Venatrix, and Venus Paphia, are represented as attired in a short robe, nuda genu (z). These here with globes in their hands, and in short coats, are supposed to have been made by a corpse of Thracian or Syrian auxiliaries, expert in the chace, and excellent horsemen; their horses remarkable for their beauty (a).

(z) Borcovicus. Horsey.

House-steeds.

(y) Vol. 2. p. 152, &c.

The globes in the hands of their deities may intimate not only the universal empire of the Romans, but their reliance even in their pleasures on the protection and guidance of heaven. They had a temple on a hillock, now called, The Chapel-Hill. It was of the Doric order; a large fragment of a Doric capital lying proftrate by it some years ago, consisting of two Torus's, plain; also many broken columns. Those deities were worshipped in open temples, and in groves. Hard by is a wet meadow, which might then have been a grove, now over-run with brushwood, particularly with the sweet-scented willow, whose foliage, after the morning and evening dew, yield a most grateful fragrance.

Through an opening of a ridge of limestone rocks, a little on this side of the 28th mile-stone, on the right hand, south from, and almost opposite to, Shewingsheels 'h', is a good view of

Langley-Castle, the scat of the barons of Tynedale; of the two Adams de Tynedale, father and son, in the reign of K. Henry III. (c); of

- (z) Virg. Æn. I. Vaillant. Numismat.
- (a) Virg. Æn. v. ver. 565.
  - (b) Seavenshale. Camden. Shewingsheels. Horsley.
- (c) Asam de Tynedale tenet in capite de domino rege baroniam suam de Langley per servicium unius seodi milit. (viz. Wardons, Fourstones, Allerwes, Langley, Wyden, Haiden-Brigges, tores,

of Richard de Bolteby (d), fon-in-law to the last Adam de Tynedale, who died 57th of the same reign, and was succeeded by his son, Adam de Bolteby, then of full age; from whom it passed to the noble family of Lucy, barons of Egermond and Cockermouth; their baronial inheritance for sive descents; first possessed by Thomas Lord Lucy, who died 33 K. Edward I. (e); by another Thomas, who died 2 K. Edward II. (f); by Anthony Lord Lucy; by Thomas Lord Lucy, Brigges, Blenkinsoppe, et Fetherstonehaugh;) et omnes antecessores sui tenuerunt per idem servicium post tempus domini regis Henrici, qui eos seossavit; ac de illo tenem. nihil est alienatum aut datum, per maritag, aut elimosin, aut aliquo alio modo, unde rex minus habeat de capit. Servicio suo.

Testa de Nevill.

(d) Richardus de Boltby tenuit in capite de dom. rege in comit. Northumbr. de hæreditate Philippæ uxoris suæ, siliæ et et heredis cujusd. Adam. de Tindale, scilt. Langley, Haiden, Allerwas, et Fourstones, per servic. seod. unius militis; et Richardus tenuit de aliis in comit. Northumbr.

Et dicunt juratores, quod Adamus Boltby est hæres propinquior ipsius Richardi et Philippæ matris suæ, et est plenæ etatis.

Inquisit. ex bundello escaetr. turci Londinens. No. 3. capta apud Morpeth Die Jovis, 20 post festum Sancti Clementis, 57 Hanrici III. per Thomam Fetherstonhaugh, jun. &c.

(e) Thomas de Lucy tenuis is domino rege in capite mancrium de Langley, cum pertinent. in comit. Northumbr. die quo obiit, per servicium secdi unius militis, et pro cornagio annui reddit. ad castrum Novi Castri super Tynam, et saciendo sectam comit. ad castrum Novi Castri super Tynam. Et dicunt juratores, quod Thomas dicti Thomæ silius, est hæres ejus propinquior, et erit ætatis 24 annorum ad sestum Die Ascensionis proxime suturo.

Inquisit. ex bundello escaetr. Turri Londinens. No. 79. facta apud Corbridge in comit. Northumbr. Die Veneris proxime ante sestum Sancti Marci evangel. 33 Edwardi I.

(f) Thomas de Lucy tenuit manerium de Langley, cum pertinen. in comit. Northumbr. de dom. rege in capite, per fervicium feodi unius militis, et per servicium faciendi sectam ad comitat. Novi Castri super Tynam, et per cornargium de 8 s. 6 d. per annum. Et dicunt jura-

ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

Lucy, who died, 39 K. Edward III. (g); by Anthony the last Lord Lucy, who died 42 K. Edward III. (h).

The first Anthony Lord Lucy, 16 K. Edward II. 1323, by order of his Majesty then seized Andrew de Herkley, Earl and Governor of Carlifle, for treason, in the castle of that city, assisted by Sir Richard Denton, Sir Hugh Lowther, and Sir Hugh Moriceby, Knights, and four Esquires; Sir Richard Denton killing the porter of the tores, quod piedictus Thimas de Lucy nil tenuit de aliquo alio in comit. prædicto; et quod Antinius de Lucy, filius prædicti Thomæ, est hæres propinquior, ejusdem Thomæ, et est ætatis — annorum, et amplius.

Inquisit. ex bundello escaetr. Turri Londinens. No. 78. capta per Thomam Fetherston-baugh patrem, et Thomam Fetherstonhaugh, sil. apud pontem de Hayden, in comit. Northumbr. Die Martis 20, post festum Sancti Michaelis, (die quo obiit dictus Thom. de Lucy) 2 Edvardi II.

(g) Themas de Lucy (fil. Antonii de Lucy) tenuit in dominico suo ut de seodo, die quo obiit, de dom. rege in capite, mancrium et castrum de Langley, cum pertinen. in comit. Northumbr. per homag. et servic. reddendi disto dom. Regi and cornag. 8 s. 8 d. ad sesta S. Cuthberti in Sept. et Novembr. per æquales portiones, per manus vice-comitis Northumbr. qui pro tempore sucrit. Et dicunt juratores quod distus Thomas obiit Die Jovis proxime post sestum S. Andreæ, apostoli; et quod Antonius de Lucy, filius prædicti Thomæ de Lucy est hæres ejus propinquior; et est ætatis 24 annorum, et amplius.

Inquisit. ex bundello escaetr. Turri Londinens. No. 17. capta apud Novum Castrum super Tonam Die Veneris proxime post sestum S. Petri in cathedra, 39 Edward III.

(b) Antonius de Lucy, desunctus, tenuit in dominico suo, ut de seodo, die quo obiit, manerium et castrum de Langley, cum membris et pertinen. suis. Et dicunt juratores, quod Johanna, filia prædicti Antonii de Lucy, est hæres ejus propinquior; et est ætatis 2 annorum, et unius quarterii.

Inquisit. ex bundello escaetr. Turri Londinens. No. 37. capta apud Langley in Tindale, in comit. Northumbr. Die Jovis in sesso Sancti Andrea apostoli, 42 Evardi III.

inner - inner gate, for attempting to shut it against them; one servant of the Earl's escaping to the Peel, a castle at Heihead, the seat of his Lordship's brother, Michael Herkley, who by that means was informed of his disaster, and sled into Scotland, with Sir William Blunt, a Scotch Knight, and others of their party.

The year following his lordship obtained a grant of free warren within his Lordships of Langley, Hayden, Four-stones, Allerwash, and Warden (i).

The last Anthony Lord Lucy dying without iffue-male, and his daughter and heir Johanna surviving him only five years and three quarters, he was succeeded in his baronial honours and estates by his sister, Matilda, wife to Sir Gilbert Humfranvil, Earl of Angus (k);

(i) Rex Archiepisc. &c: salutem. sciatis nos de gratia nostra speciali concessisse, et hac carta nostra confirmasse, dilecto et sideli nostro Antonio de Lucy, quod ipse et hæredes sui in perpetuum habeant liber. Warren. in omnibus dominicis, terris, de Langley, Hayden, Fourstones, Allerwase, et Warden, in comit. Northumbr. dum tamen terræ illæ sucrint insra metam sorestæ nostræ, vel libræ parcæ nostræ. Item quod nullus intrat turras illas ad aliquid capiendum quod ad Warren. pertinet, sine licentia et voluntate ipsius Antonii, vel hæred. suorum. Quare volumus, et sermiter precipinus, pro nobis et hæredibus nostris, quod prædictus Antonius et hæredes sui in perpetuum habeant liberam Warrenam in omnibus dominicis, terris, suis prædictis, dum tamen terræ illæ suerint, &c. Item quod nullus, &c. Sicut prædictum est his testibus, venerabili patre W. Archiepiscopo Elor. Angl. Primat. Edmundo comite de Avundell, Hugone le Despenser, et aliis, dat. per man. nostr. apud Holland, 18 Die Octobris, per breve de privato sigillo.

Carta turri Londinens. 17 Edvardi II. No. 33.

(k) Gilbertus de Humfranvil, comes de Angus, et Matilda, uxor ejus, Antonii Lucii confanguinea et hæres, Joan. Fil. et hæres, ejusd. Anton. tenuerunt de rege in capite medietatem Baroniæ de Alderdale, vicessimam partem Baroniæ de Egremond, et tertiam partem residui ejusdem Baroniæ de Fgremond, ac manerium de Langley in comit. Northumbr. per Servic. reddendi regi per annum viiis. ad cornagium per vicecom. dieti comit. Northumbr. nec non castrum et honorem de Cockermouth, cum pertinen. ac manerium de Papcosser, cum pertinen. in Allerdale, quod ad dominicum, castrum, et honorem pertinent, per servicium unius seodi militis.

Rot. turri Londinens. Paschæ Fin. Anno 47 Edvardi III.

after whose death she married Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, and settled her whole fortune upon his Lordship, and his heirs-male, under the easy condition, that as their hearts were, the arms of the two noble families might be, united, for a memorial of her affection (1).

In

(1) Matilda comitissa Northumbr. obiit seisita, Henrico com. Northumbr. superstite, de reversione castri et manerii de Langley, cum pertinen. in com. Northumbr. ex concessis Johannis de Walthame, Clerici, Johannis de Mitford, et Radulphus de Frisknay, quæ Johanna de Greystock tenet in dotem ad vitam suam, habend. prædicto comite et Matilda, et hæredibus masculis de corpore ipsorum exeunt. de Dom. rege et hæredibus suis per servicium inde debitum, et consuet: in perpetuum. Et si prædictus comes et Matilda sine hæredibus masculis de corporibus enrum exeunt. obierint, quod tunc post mortem corum castrum et manerium prædictum, cuma pertinen. remaneant integre hæredibus de corpore prædictæ Matildæ exeunt. tenend. de dom. rege, cum pertinen. suis, per servicium inde debitum, in re, et consuetudine, in perpetuum. Et si eadem Matilda, sine hæredibus de corpore suo exeunt. obierit, quod tunc prædictum, castrum, et manerium, cum pertinen. remaneant Henrico de Percy, silio prædicti comitis. Northumbr. et hæredibus suis masculis de corpore suo exeunt. tenend. de dom. rege, et hæredibus suis per servicium prædictum.

Et ipse Hemicus, et hæredes sui masculi, arma prædicti comitis Northumbr. quæ sunt de auro cum uno leone de assurg, rampant, quarteriant cum armis de Lucy, quæ a gudes com tribus Luciis argenteis consistunt, gerunt in omnibus venellis pro amaibus tuto me aris armorum, et omnibus aliis armaturis suis, quæ de pictura cognitione armorum solita compet, adornari, quoties cognitiones armorum in artibus bellicis, vel alibi stendere volues int, ubicunque.

Et si idem Henricus silius prædicti comitis Northumbr, sine hærede mascule de corpore suo exeunt, obierit, quod tunc prædictum castrum et manerium, cum pertinen, integre remancant Thomæ de Percy, certo silio prædicti comitis, et hæredibus suis masculis de corpore suo exeunt, tenend, de dom, rege et hæredibus suis per servicium prædictum in perpetuum, et gerend. Arma prædicta in omnibus modis et formis.

Et si idem Thomas sine hæred. mascul. de corpore suo exeunt. obierit, quod tune prædictum castrum et manerium. cum pertinen. integre remaneant Radulpho de Percy, silio prædicti comitis, et hæredibus masculis de corpore suo exeunt. tenend. de dom. rege et hæredibus suis per servicium prædictum in perpetuum.

In later times, the barony and castle of Langley came into the possession of the Ratcliss of Dilston; and gave the title of Viscount and Baron Langley to Sir Francis Ratcliss, Bart. 7 March, 4 K. James II. 1688; then created Earl of Derwentwater; and were forfeited to the crown by James Ratcliss, the last Earl of Derwentwater, and given to Greenwich-hospital.

The castle is on a rising ground, on the south side of the Tyne, in the form of the Roman letter, H. with four towers, slanding north and south; many of the windows large; four small sire-rooms remaining entire to the east; also eight others, four-ground-rooms to the east, and as many to the west; the roofs arched with stone. The walls are six feet, ten inches, thick; and the north-east tower sixty-six feet high; to the west, the foss or ditch still visible.

In fight from it, about a mile to the north-east, on the banks of the Tyne, is its appendant manour and villa of

Hayden-Bridge (m), to which the first Anthony Lord Lucy procured a weekly market on Tuesdays, and an annual fair on July 21, and Et dicunt juratores, quod prædictum castrum et mancrium, cum pertinen. in omnibus exitibus, tam in servicio, quam in dominico, ultra reprisas, juxta verum valorem, valent per annum centum merc. et non plus iis diebus, propter destructionem Scotorum; et tenentur de dom. rege per servicium militare. Et dicunt, quod dista Matilda obiit Die Mercurii, proxime ante Festum natale Dom. ultimo; et quod Willielmus de Melton, Chr. est ejus propinquior hæres, viz. Filius Johannæ de Melton, sororis Dom. Thomæ de Lucy, patris Matildæ et est etatis 24 annorum, et amplius.

Inquisit ex bundello esceatr. turri Londinens. No. 39. capta apud Morpath, coram Willielmo de Lewther, esceat. Dom. Regis in comit. Northumbr Die Lunæ, decimo Die Martii, 22 Ricardi II.

(m) Haiden-Brigges. Inquisit.

Aidon. Canden.

Haydon-Bridge. Horsley.

three

44 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

three days after; now discontinued. The Tyne is crossed by a bridge of six arches; on the south side of which, on a little eminence, is a grammar-school, over the entrance of which is the following inscription.

Hæc schola fundata et Munisice dotata fuit anno Domini MDCXCVII, a
Reverendo et doctissimo viro domino
Johanne Shastoe, A. M. ecclesiæ
Netherwarden in hoc agro vicario;
In tam benigni capitis elogium
Deesse nequit: hoc unum opus pro
Cunctis aliis suis benesiciis fama loquetur.

For the use of this school, and the relief of poor house-keepers within the chapelry of Hayden, the Revd. Mr. Shaftoe, vicar of Nether-warden, left his chate of Mousen, near Belford, by a deed of gift, bearing date 17 June, 1 James II, 1685; afterwards confirmed in chancery, on account of a subsequent will, bearing date 13 May, 5 William and Mary, 1693; the deed being uncancelled (n); the estate now lett for upwards of 1501. per annum; the grammar-master to be of the degree of master of arts in one of our universities; his salary at present upwards of 501. and the usher's 151. per annum.

On the right hand of the military road, by the 25th mileflone, in an opening between two rifing hills, giving a view of part of the vale of South Tyne, is,

(n) See both in the Appendix.

Carraw-Brough, the Roman station Procolitia, garrifoned by the first cohort of the Batavi, as attested by an altar found near it, inscribed,

FORTVNAE
COH. I BATAVOR
CVI PRAEEST
MELACCINIVS
MARCELLVS PRAE.

The first notice taken of it was by Dr. Cay, by whom a copy of it was presented to Mr. Thorsby, and published in the Philosophical Transactions (o). It was then in fine preservation, the stone handsome, and the inscription fair; in the possession of Mr. Forster at Carraw, 1697; and removed to the library at Durbam, by the late Mr. Warburton.

Carraw-Brough has its name from the Saxon Burgos or Brough, and the Emperor Caraufius who repaired it; of British descent, and a noble and graceful person, as represented on coins.

In crasso jurares Ære notum.—Hor.

To him is attributed the origin of the British empire by sea. He had the high post of Comes Litoris Saxonici, instituted by Constantine, for the correction of the Saxon rovers, whose visits were then bold and frequent. He was also an admiral in the Roman navy under Maximian. On his defection, that Emperor, and his associate Dioclesian, came with their whole naval power on the British coast to destroy him. He saw them, beat them, and made them acknowledge his sovereignty over his countrymen and friends, the Britons; maintaining it ever after in full splendour, both by fea and land, against the whole Roman power. That celebrated Sea-victory over the two emperors was gained on the coast of the Isle of Wight, near Carisbrook-castle, so named in honour of the victor, Carausius. That Carausius, whom the Roman arms could not subdue, fell a facrifice to private envy. He was killed in his imperial palace at York by an insidious friend, Allectus; who survived him but three years, before he met with the like fate.

Among the coins of Caraufus in the collection of the Revd. Mr. Walton, of Corbridge, there is one of brass, which exhibits a galley, with Felicitas Aug. struck on the festival-day of Neptune, 5th November.

A curious sculpture of Neptune, down to the knees, in a reclining attitude, with his trident by him, in stone, of the fine white rag, was digged up at this station, and built up in the eastern gable of a cottage at Carraw, belonging to Ralph Soulsby, of Halyton, Esq.

From an ascent by the 23d mile-stone, we have a distant prospect of Tone, the feat of Alan Hodshon, Esq; grandson to Sir Alan Swin-burn, Knt. a younger brother of the house of Cap-Heaton; who hath made great improvements at it by repairs and additions, by enclosures, hedge-rows, and good roads, and raising plantations about it for shade and shelter.

From the fame place we have a full view of Chipchace-Castle (p), the seat of Peter de Insula, 1 K. Edward I (q); and afterwards of a branch of the noble family of the Herons, of Ford-Castle, by the river Till. In the reign of K. Henry VIII, it was in the possession of Sir John Heron, Knt. whose daughter, Ursilla, married Roger Fenwick, Esq.; of Bitchsfeld, in the parish of Stamfordhum, second son of Sir John Fenwick, of Wallington, Knt. by Margery the daughter and heir of John Harbotell, Esq.; (r). In the next reign it belonged to Sir George Heron, Knt. then keeper of Tynedale; high sherist of Northumberland, 13 of Q. Elizabeth (s). He was killed in a fray with the Scotch borderers in July, 1575, in company with Sir John Forster, Lord warden of the middle marches, and his son-in-law, the Lord Russel, who were taken prisoners, but released, and the regent of Scotland, Murrey, obliged to make satisfaction by the best offices in his power. He was succeeded by his cousin, Cuthbert Heron, Esq (t); high sherist of

- (p) Chipchace-castle. Lel. Itin. Vol. vii. p. 59. Chipches. Camden.—Inquisit. et escaetr.
- (q) Petrus de Insula tenet Chipches et Whithill per tertiam partem unius seodi milit. veteris seossament. Baron. de Prudhow.—Escaet. de anno I Edvardi I.
  - (r) Ms. penes Gulielm. Fenwick, de Bywell, Arm.
- (s) Georgius Heron fuit seisitus de et in manerio de Chipches, cum villa, et Symonburn, Pigdon, Hawbarnes, Overton, Sharplawe, Teppermoore, Billerley, Shetlington-hall, Brome-leises, Eshees, Brig-houses, Nether-Crag, Snabdaugh, Chirden, Heyrigges, Pindershawe, Morkeley, Roughside Rampshawe, cum terris in Butland, Goston, Hetherington, Boisdon, et Suingsheeles:

  Escaet, de anno 10 Eliz.
- (t) Cuthbertus Heron, consanguin. et hæres Georgii, est seissus de et in manerio de Chipches, cum villa; et tenet in capite de rege manerium de Simonburn, ut de manerio de Wark, per servic. milit. Villam et manerium de Shetlington, Snapdaugh, Fpleswoodhope, Hatherington, Harelawe, Le Cragg, Newbiggen, Blackaburn, Chesterhope, et unum messagistive castrum vocat. Sewingsheeles-castle, et tenement ibid. et tenet de rege per servic. milit. Manerium de Pigdon, ut de manerio de Mitsord.

Escaet. de anno 14 Carcli I.

Northumberland, 1625; created a baronet, 12 K. Charles II, 1662, for his loyalty to K. Charles I; in whose service his brother, Colonel George Heron, was flain at the battle of Marston-moor. In the 19th of K. James I, he built on to the old castle a very handsome structure; the initial letters of his name, C. H. cut in stone, on each fide of his coat of arms, with the date of the year, 1621, above the fouth entrance. He married Elizabeth, the third daughter of Sir Richard Graham, of Netherby, in Cumberland, Bart. master of the horse to K. Charles I, and afterwards Lord Preston. by whom he had three fons, viz. Cuthbert, John and Charles; the two last of whom lived to succeed him in honour and estate. His grandfon, Sir Harry, only fon to Sir Charles, fold Chipchace to George Allgood, Efq; of whom it was purchased by the late John Reed, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1732; descended from a younger branch of the antient family of the Reeds of Troughend, by the river Reed. Mr. Reed added much to its beauty by fashing the whole building, making gardens, plantations, and enclosures, rebuilding the chapel, and finishing it neatly at his own expence. He died, 20th March, 1754, and was interred in his own chapel. He was fucceeded by his nephew, Christopher Souliby, now Christopher Reed, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1764. He married the eldest daughter of Francis Blake, of Twifel, Esq; great grandaughter by the mother's side to Sir Francis Blake, Knt. of Ford-Caftle, by the river Till. He hath given many embellishments to Chipchace, by buildings; by laying it open to groves and plantations, and casting the fields before it into a park-like form. It has a very lovely fituation, on a declining eminence, to the east of the river of North Tyne; a prospect from it of Nunwick, and of Simonburn-Caftle, diverlified with the fight of woods, of moors, of rocks, and of the winding motions and meanders of the Tyne, which opposite to the house forms under a hanging bank of wood a large and deep canal; a fhady, projecting cliff on the other fide.

Under the hill, a little beyond the 23d mile-stone, on the left hand, a road branches off to Nunwick (u), formerly a village, as its name imports, but now the feat of Sir Lancelot Allgood, Knt. It belonged to the Herons of Chipchace, and was fold by Sir Harry Heron to Robert Allgood, Esq; whose only daughter and heir married its present owner, son and heir of Isaac Allgood, Esq; of Brandon-White-House, by the rivulet of Bramish. Sir Lancelot was high sheriff of Northumberland in 1746; one of its reprefentatives in parliament on the death of John Fenwick, of Bywell, Efq; and on the accession of his present Majesty received the honour of knighthood. His feat at Nunwick is of his own erection, after a genteel defign; of white free-stone, and hewn work. It stands on a rising plain, which to the east has the appearance of a park. The offices are to the north, a grove to the west, a grass-lawn to the south, and a terraced gravel-walk to the eaft, which commands a view of Chipchace at one end, and a variety of prospects on the other. Two brooks unite their loquacious streams to give beauty and ornament to a neat garden, and render it an entertaining, as well as useful recess; and thence take their course by another grove, on a declining hill, to the fouth front of the house, and fall two or three fields below into the river of North Tyne.

In an adjoining field, called, Nunwick-east-field, were five upright stone-pillars, in a circular order; four of them perfect and entire in 1714, the other broken; the perfect ones eight feet high, and nine feet and an half over; the circumference of the area in which they flood, ninety feet. Mention is made of them by Bishop Gibson in his Camden (v). In such kind of cirques, the Britons held their public assemblies, both civil and religious *.

(u) Ninwick. Canden. Bishop Nicholson. Nunwicke. Rot. Artiq. ex informat. Lance'. Alignod, Milit.

Sir Lancelot has given a new face, as it were, to the country about Nunwick, within the space of a very few years, by making plantations, enclosures, and good roads, one of which leads to the villa of Simonburn, at the distance only of half a mile from his seat, and in sight. It is situated on a rising ground, by a pleasant brook, from which, and the dedication of the church to St. Simon, it takes its name. It is remarkable for being the largest parish in the diocese, extending northward from Chollerford-bridge to Liddesdale, in Scotland; a space of 23 computed, or 32 measured, miles; in which are only two chapels of ease, Bellingham, and Falstone; the last of which had Queen Anne's bounty, by a donation of 2001. from the late rector, the Revd. Mr. Stainsforth, one of the proctors for the clergy of this county in the house of convocation in 1717; prebendary of the collegiate church of Southwell, in Nottinghamshire; and father-in-law to the Right Revd. Dr. Terrick, the present Bishop of London.

The patronage of this rectory was taken from the See of Durbam by K. Edward I, together with the Lordship of Wark upon North Tyne, and the patronage of the living of Penreth, in Cumberland, in resentment of some undutiful behaviour from Anthony

(v) Page, 870.

* See Borlase's Antiquities of Cornwall.

Beck, then Bishop (w). We find it afterwards in the possession of the Darcys. In the reign of K. Edward III, John Darcy left it at his death to that king's amiable confort, Queen Philippa, who gave it to the college of Windsor (x). The Ratcliss of Dilson, Earls of Derwentwater, had it in later times. By the attainder of the last earl it reverted to the crown; on whose presentation Mr. Stainsforth was succeeded at his death, 1719, by the present rector, the Revd. Mr. Henry Wastell, A. M. Fellow of Peter-House, in Cambridge; to whom the rectory-house, garden, and little glebe, owe their neatness and culture; the south front being entirely built (w) Provocatus rex contra Antonium Episc. Dunelm. eo quod pasta inter ipsum et priorem Dunelm. Ricardum, rege mediante inita non observaret, et ex aliis causis, castrum Bernardi cum pertinen. ab eo abstulit, et comiti de Warwick contulit; Hert. et Hertness, Roberto de Clifford; Keverston, Galfrido de Hertlipole, quæ episcopus habuit ex sorissastura Johan. de Baliol. Roberti de Brus, et Christopheri de Seton. Abstulit eo etiam rex Werke in Tynedale, Penreth, et ecclesiam de Symondburn, quam appropriavit mensæ suæ.

Monast. Angl. Vol. ii. p. 846. Cand. Brit. Ed. 1722. p. 1029.

(x) Edvardus, &c. Sciatus quod cum Philippa, Regina Angliæ, confors nostra charistima, advocationem ecclesiæ de Eymendesburne, quam ipsa nuper habuit ex dono, & concessione Johannis Darcy, Chivaler. desuncti; & Edvardus princeps Walliæ & Dux Cornubiæ, filius noster charistimus, advocationem ecclesiæ Sancti Stephani de Saltesh, quam nuper habuit ex concessione nostra, nobis dederint & concessionet, habend. nobis & hæredibus nostris in perpetuum: Nos de gratia nostra speciali dedimus, concessimus, & assignavimus dilectis nobis in Christo custodi & collegio capellæ nostræ de Wyndesore advocationes superadictas; habendas sibi & successionibus suis, de nobis & hæredibus nostris, per servicia inde debita & consueta in perpetuum. Concessimus insuper & licentiam dedimus, pro nobis & hæredibus nostris, quantum in nobis est, eisdem custodi & collegio, quod ipsi ecclesias illas appropriare, & eas sic appropriatas in proprios usus tenere possint sibi & successionibus suis in perpetuum, statuto de terris & tenementis, ad manum mortuam non ponendis edito, non obstante. In cujus, &c. T. meipso apud Westm. ixo. Die Maii, anno regni nostri Angliæ xxvo, regni vero Franciæ xxiio.

Pat. 25 Eduardi III. p. 1. m. 14. Monast. Angl. Vol. iii. de Collegeat. Ecclesiis. p. 70.

4

H 2

by him, and the old house repaired, which was built by Mr. Stainsforth's predecessor, Mr. Allgood, grandfather to Sir Lancelot; the following inscription still remaining over the entrance in memory of it, much injured by the weather.

Non tam fibi, quam fuccessoribus suis,

Hoc ædificium extruxit Major

Allgood, anno mirabili, 1666.

Nunc mea, mox hujus, sed postea nescio cujus.

The church was repaired in 1763; the walls of the fide-ifles raifed; three fash-lights put in, on each side; and another at each end, to the east.

By the pulpit and window at the east end of the south isle, is the effigies in stone of one of the antient family of the Ridley's, the Revd. Mr. Cuthbert Ridley, rector of this parish, in a supplicatory attitude, on his knees, venerable with years; a ruff about his neck, the dress of that age. Near him are three of his family sculptured in stone likewise; one at the south corner of the window, in the same attitude; his dress a straight-bodied coat, a sword, and a cloke loosely cast over his shoulders; the head broken off; before him, the following inscription under the bottom of the window.

SENSUS VIVUS.

RECORDOR MISERICORDIAM

DEI ERIPIENTIS EX HAC VITA

IN VITAM ÆTERNAM ALBANIUM

RIDLEY, FILIUM CUTHBERTI RIDLEY,

MISERI PECCATORIS, ANNO DOM. 1625.

Above this stone figure, is another of a child on the fouth side of the window, in the devout posture of prayer, kneeling. The effigies of one of somewhat riper age is in the bottom of the window, recumbent, with this mural inscription underneath.

DEFECTUS MEMORIE.

In making a grave in the pew under the next window, 1762, for Mrs. Robley, relict of the late Revd. Mr. Robley, formerly curate of this place, a very remarkable skull was turned up with the spade; on the back part of it, the sigure of a large scallop-shell; at one of the auditories, the sigure of a torcular shell, like a skrew.

Within iron-rails, on the north fide of the chancel, is the burial-place of the family of Sir Lancelot Allgood, Knt. above it a mural monument of marble, with the following infcription.

NEAR

this place lieth the body of the Revd. Mr. Major Allgood, M. A.
Rector of this parish, eldest son of Lancelot Allgood, Esq; Escheator for this county of Northumberland, lineally descended from John Allgood, of Salherne, in the county of Devon, Esq; who attended John Duke of Lancaster in his expedition to Spain, against the pretended King of Castile, Anno 1386, the 9th of Richard II. He died the 30th day of December, 1696, aged, 59.

Alfo

the body of Mary, relict of the above MAJOR ALLGOOD,

Daughter

54 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

Daughter of the Revd. Mr. John Pve, Rector of Morpeth, in this county: she died the 28th day of Feb. 1712, aged 60, and left Issue 3 sons, and 2 daughters; viz. Isaac, Major, Lancelot, Mary, and Margaret.

the body of Isaac Allgood, of Brandon-White-House, Esq; eldest son of Major Allgood and Mary his wife aforesaid, who died the 9th day of July, 1725. aged 42.

Alfo

the body of Lancelot, 2d fon of Lancelot Allgood, Efq; who died the 6th day of Sep. 1747, aged two years and nine months.

On the fouth fide of the chancel, within the communion-rails, is a flat funeral-stone to the memory of Giles Heron, of Wark, in this parish, interred 1684; who by industry and extreme parcimony acquired the sum of 800 l. which he left by will, dated 23d September, 1679, for the relief of the poor of this parish, the maintenance of a schoolmaster at Wark, and the binding out the poor children apprentices; his trustees purchasing after his death the estate of Tecket, adjoining to the rectory-glebe, now let for 72 l. per annum (y).

In a grave in the church-yard, about three feet below the furface, a fmall, bright, filver coin of K. Edward II, was found in 1756; now in my possession. On the obverse is the profile of that king; on the reverse, civitas Lincoln, the place of mintage; the arms of England and France not being on the reverses of our common filver coins till the reign of K. Henry VII.

(y) See the will in the appendix.

About half a mile north-west from the village of Simonburn, is Simonburn-Castle, which belonged to the Herons of Chipchace (z), and was fold with its manour and demesses by Sir Charles Heron, Bart. to Robert Allgood, Esq; now possessed by his son-in-law, Sir Lancelot Allgood, Kt. It is situated upon a shady eminence of tall fir and beach, with a small stream, carrying the name of Castle-burn, gliding under it, between two hanging woods. It was pulled down to satisfy a violent curiosity the country people had for searching, like King John at Corbridge (a), and Nero at Carthage, for hidden treasure; where they succeeded no better than those two royal money-hunters, who got nothing but rubbish for their pains. Part of the west end was rebuilt, 1766, with two small turrets at the angles. It is a pleasing object from Nunwick, and other places, in view at a considerable distance.

Three miles north from Simonburn, on the western banks of North Tyne, is Wark, the manour of which was part of the possessions of the erown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (b); granted to Sir Theophilus Howard. Earl of Suffolk, 1 K. James I; afterwards sold to Sir Francis Ratcliff, of Dilston, Earl of Derwentwater, and by his son's attainder reverting to

- (z) See the records under Chipchace.
- (a) Lel. Itin.vol. 7. p. 65. Camden.
- (b) Escaet. de anno 10 Q. Eliz.

56 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

the crown again, was given to Greenwich-hospital. An extensive common belongs to it, carrying the marks of the plow, for the division of which an act of parliament passed 1765. By the river is a hill, called Mote-Hill, exploratory, for observing the motions of an enemy; on which was a mansion-house belonging to the Ratcliffs; under it, on the north side, is the school founded by Giles Heron; the master's salary, 12 l. per annum.

About four miles north from Wark, on the eastern banks of North Tyne, is Bellingham, two parts of the manour of which belonged to the archbishop of York, 3 K. Henry V (c), and the villa and lands to a family of the same name; to Robert de Bellingham, 2 K. Richard II (d), 3 K. Henry IV (c); to Richard de Bellingham, 33 K. Henry VI (f); their seat an antient castle, hard by, now in ruins; their arms, are 3 hunters horns, sable, stringed, gules.

It hath a weekly market on Saturdays, and two annual fairs.

It is a finall, but pretty well built town, belonging chiefly to Christopher Reed, of Chipchace, and the heir of Edward Charleton, of Reedsmouth, Esqrs. the manour claimed by his Grace the Duke of Northumberland; the situation pleasant, on the slope of a hill; the church-yard forming a sinc terrace above the river; the church fmall, but antient, dedicated to St. Cuthbert; the roof of the body of it arched with stone, of rib-work, not a stick of timber in it; many gravestones in the pavement, sculptured with swords; no inscriptions upon them. In the chancel, on the north side, is a mural monument, of blue and white marble, erected by the late John Reed, of Chipchace, Esq; to the memory of his father.

(c) Do minus Episcop. Ebo: ac. obiit seisitus de et in duobus partibus manerii de Bellingham, et Gryndon, infra Tynedale. Escaet. de anno 3 Henrici V.

(d) Escaet. de anno 2 Ricardi II. n. 49.

(f) _____ 33 Henrici VI. n. 17.

A mile from Bellingham, on the western banks of North Tyne, is Hezleyside, the seat of the antient family of the Charletons; of William Charleton, Esq; in the reigns of K. Edward VI, Q. Mary, and 10 Q. Elizabeth (g); of another William in the reign of K. Charles I, who married Jane, daughter to William Swinburn, of Cap-Heaton, Esq; (b); of Edward Charleton, Esq; created a baronet, 21st of the same reign, 6th March, 1645; son-in-law to Sir Edward Widdrington, of Cartington, Bart. (i); his estate sequestred by the parliament for his dutiful affection to his sovereign, November 8th, 1652; his title extinct at his death: of William Charleton, Esq; 1722 (k); father of Edward Charleton, Esq; the present possession, who married Teresa, sister to Sir Edward Swinburn, of Cap-Heaton, Bart. The seat-house is modern, of white-freestone, and hewn work, built after a plan resembling that of Lowther-kall, in Westmorland, and

(g) Bishop Nicholfon.

Willielmus Charleton fuit seisitus de et in Reeds mouth, Hezleyside, Old-house-hills, Bre-ridge, Oldtrom-hill, et le Grenes.

Escaet, de anno 10 Eliz.

(b) Collins's Baron.

(i) See Cartington.

(k) Fuller.

Vol. IL

like that also had the missortune to suffer greatly by fire. It stands on the top of a gentle declivity, under a hanging bank of wood; the town of Bellingham in sight; an avenue extending from it through shady enclosures to the river Tyne; a varied prospect to the north; woods, rocks, and moors; the latter pleasant in summer by a moving scenery, the sheep and cattle grazing on them.

About four miles north-east from Hezleyside, on the easterns banks of the river Reed, is Risingham, i. e. the hamlet on a rising ground; of note for being the Roman station Habitancum, by their famous road, called Watlingstreet (1); on which, a mile to the southward of it, was standing some years ago one of their milliary stones, like that by their station at Little Chesters. Brass coins and medals of Roman mintage, of the Antonines, are frequently turned out of the ground by that industrious pioneer, the mole; one of the latter found, 1701; the emperor's name on the obverse worn out, Aug. Pius very legible; on the reverse, a wolf, without any inscription. Mention is made of it by Dr. Hunter, in the Philosophical Transactions, to whom it was presented (m).

This station is not mentioned by Antonine in his Itinerary, yet it must have been a Roman garrison in the time of Aurelius Antoninus, as appears from inscriptions on altars found at it, mentioning his name (n). Some take this Aurelius to be the philosopher An-

- (1) Camden. Horsley.
- (m) Ph. Tr. No. 278.
- (n) Horf. No. lxxxvii. No. xciv. 3.

tonine, and that it might have been deserted before the reign of Caracalla, the reputed author of that Itinerary. It must be antient, as shewn by Camden (o), and others (p), from an imperfect inscription discovered and published by them, mentioning a public edifice—Vetustate conlapsum,—gone to decay through age.

At Elishaw, a small village on the same side of the river, are foundations of large buildings; the river crossed by Watling street, by a bridge of arches; some of the stones still to be seen, with iron-cramps in them, and melted lead. Elishaw belonged to the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (q); a chapel at it, now in ruins.

Near two miles east from Watling street, is Elsden (r), a town of great antiquity; supposed to have been a Roman town in the time of M. Aurelius Antoninus; two Roman altars, with inscriptions found at it, in a hill, called The Mote-Hill; one of them inscribed to the tutelar deity, Matunus; mention made of both in the Britannia Romana, with engravings (s). I'his hill is trenched round, ten yards deep; a breast-work to the north for its defence. Jaw-bones of beasts, a large stag's head,

- (o) Camd. Brit. p. 1078.
- (p) Horsley. No. lxxxix.
- (9) Domina Regina Elizabetha fuit seisita de et in Elyshawe, in provinc. de Riddesdale. Escaet, de anno 10 Eliz.
- (r) Hellesden.
  Elsden.
  Elsdon.
- (s) Page 244. No. xeviii. No. xcix.

and a small urn, with ashes of burnt bones in it, were digged up. by the late Mr. Warburton, and some imperfect Roman altars observed by him about the hill. It has been sepulchral and exploratory.

The Lordship of Elsden was in the possession of Luke Clenell, of Clenell, Esq; 18 K. Edward I; in which, and in his Lordship of Clenell, he then had a grant of Free Warren (t). In the reigns of K. Edward VI, it was in the possession of Sir Ralph Grey, of Chillingham, and of his son, Thomas Grey, 10 Q. Elizabeth, then a minor (u); and lately of Charles Howard, Esq; of Overacres, whose son sold it, with the patronage of the rectory of Elsden, and his paternal seat and estate of Overacres, to the present possessor, the Duke of Northumberland.

(t) Rex archiepiscopis, &c. falutem. Sciatis me concessisse, et hac carta nostra confirmasse, dilecto et sideli nostro Thomæ de Clenhil, quod ipse et hæredes sui in perpetuum habeant liberam Warrenam in omnibus dominicis terris suis de Clenbil et Hellesden in com. Northumbr. Dum tamen terræ illæ non fint infra Metas forestæ nostræ. Ita quod nullus intrat terras illas ad fugand. in eis, vel ad aliquid capiend. quod ad Warrenam percineat fine licentia et voluntate ipsius Thomæ vel hæredum suorum super forisfacturam nostram decem librarum. Quare volumus, et firmiter precipimus, pro nobis et hæredibus nostris, quod prædictus Thomas, et successores sui, in perpetuum habeant liberam Warrenam in omnibus dominicis terris suis prædictis. Dum tamen illæ non sint infra Metas sorestæ nostræ. Ita quod nullus intret terras illas ad fugand. in eis, vel ad aliquid capiend. quod ad Warrenam pertineat, fine licentia et voluntate ipsius Thomæ, vel hæredûm suorum, super forisfacturam nostram decem librarum, sicut prædictum est. His testibus venerabilibus patribus J. Archiepiscopo Ebor. Anglia Primat. R. Bathan. et Wellen. J. Wynton, et Dunelm. Episcopis. Willielmo de Valence, avunculo nostro. Edmundo Comite Cornub. consanguineo nostro. Gilberto de Clare, Com. Glouc. et Hertford. Henrico de Lacy, Comite Linc. Willielmo de Bello Campo, Comite Warr. Roberto de Tibtot. Reginaldo de Grey. Waltero de Bello Campo. Hugone de Breck, et aliis. Dat. per manum nostrum apud Westm. xi die Maii.

Ex Rotulo Cartarum anno 18 Edvardi I. n. 79.

(u) See Chillingham.

The church is small, on the west side of the village; an old tower at a small distance, which is the rectory-house; the arms of the Humfranvils upon it; argent, a fess, between six cinquesoils, gules; an inscription underneath, not legible.

At Berrenes, is the ruin of an old chapel; a British temple near it, on Berrene's-Knowl; the stones numerous, of various sizes, in a circular order.

On a green hillock, on a moor, called The Todd-Law, north of the river Reed, are three large stones in a triangular order, twelve feet distant from each other, and each as many feet in diameter; fepulchral, in memory of the like number of valiant chieftains slain in battle.

Near a small village, called the Paunch-Ford, is a hill of indurated argillaceous earth, resembling Roman mortar, used with success in husbandry.

On the west side of the river Reed, is Trough-end, the feat of the antient family of the Reeds; of John Reed, Efq; in the reigns of K. Edward VI, Q. Mary, and 10 Q. Elizabeth (v); great improvements made at it by enclosures and planting by the late Mr. Reed, father of Mr. Elrington Reed, who fold it to his near relation, Christopher Reed, Efq; of Chipchace.

(v) Bishop Nicholson's Border-Laws.

Johannes Rede fuit seisitus de et in Trowend, Thedes, Felling, Wheston-house, Steid-law-hill, Bromehope, Steil, Langley-close, vocat. Calf-close, Hind-haugh, Duns-house, Old-Town, et le Bogge, cum tertis in Grene-chesters, Farnyclugh, Soppet Dunscheel, et Chesterhope.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

62 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

... (21), ". 1. 1.

About a mile from Troughend, is Otter-burn, so called from its situation by the brook Otter; remarkable for the bloody battle fought at it between the English and Scots, 5th August, 12 K. Richard II, 1388, by moon-light; the former commanded by the Earl of Northumberland, and his two fons, Hury and Ralph Percy, young noblemen of distinguished bravery and courage; the latter, by Earl Douglas, who being defirous of atchieving glory by encountering Henry Lord Percy fingly, reputed the bravest man in England (w), sirnamed Hotspur, for his martial prowefs, was overmatched with strength, though equal in courage, and flain. Intimidated by the fall of their chieftain, the Scots were on the point of yielding the victory, but a large body of forces arriving to their affiftance, under the leading of the Earl of Dunbar, the English were in their turn forced to give way, and, at length, after a glorious flruggle, to give up the laurels; 1800 of them being flain; among the prisoners were Lord Percy, and his brother, Sir Robert Heron, Sir Robert Ogle, Sir John Lilburn, Sir John Colwell, and other knights of Northumberland; the Durham-militia not arriving till after the battle, when they were frightened home again by a manœuvre of the Scotch General, who on their approach caused every man in his army to blow a horn as loud as he could, the found of which from fo many mouths being multiplied in the echo from the hills, made them feem more numerous and formidable than they were (x).

The encampments of the two armies are still conspicuous, also tumuli or sepultures of the slain.

(w) Rapin.

(x) See Sir John Froisart's account of this battle in Holing shed, allowed to be the best.

The manour and villa of Otterburn were part of the estate of the noble family of Humfranvil(y); and belonged to the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (z).

Four miles from Otterburn, and eight miles from Rifingham, is Rochester, the Roman station Bremenium (a), on the brow of a steep rocky hill, as its name imports—quasi castrum in rupe—near the head of the river Reed, by Watling street, the course of the sirst Iter of Antoninus; reputed the strongest garrison of any the Romans had in the north (b); the capital of the Ottodini, and Ripendiary (c). The tribunes, Capio Charitenus, and Lucius Celius Optatus, were both commanders in it; the latter having under him a body of Spanish auxiliaries, the sirst cohort of the Varduli, from Hispania citerior. An abundance of coins of M. Aurelius Antoninus have been digged up at it. Dr. Hunter of Durham (d), and Dr. Taylor, Chancellor of Lincoln (e), have both published an inscription upon an altar inscribed by this cohort to the Emperor Cara-

- (y) See Prudhow.
- (z) Domina Regina Elizabetha est seisita de et in manerio et villa de Otterburn.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.
- (a) Bremenium. Camden.

  Rochester. Camden. Burton. Dr. Hunter.

  Riechester. Gordon. Horsley. Stukeley.

  Rutchester. Dr. Taylor.
  - (b) Dr. Hunter. Ph. Tr. No. 278.
  - (c) Richard of Cirencester. Dr. Stukeley.
  - (d) Ph. Tr. No. 474.
  - (e) -No. 482. Vol. 44. p. 344.

64 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

calla. It was found among some rubbish, standing upon two supporters. The name of the Præfect is effaced in the last line. It is now in the possession of the Revd. Dr. John Sharp, Archdeacon of Northumberland.

There is nothing more worthy of remark by the alpine streams of Reed and North Tyne.

From the floping eminence, where the road branches off to Nunwick, we are prefented with a fine view of Swinburn-Castle (f) which in the reign of K. Edward I, was in the possession of Peter de Gunnerton, who held it of the barony of Bywell, by the service of two knights sees, of the old seossement (g). In the reign of K. Edward II, it was the seat and manour of Adam de Swinburn, on whose death it came to Sir John de Woodrington, of Woodrington-Castle, Knt. by marrying Christian, his daughter and coheir (h). It continued in that antient house for many generations (i).

- (f) Swinburn-Castle. Great Swinburn. West Swinburn.
- (g) Petrus Gunnerton tenet Gunnerton et Swinburne per duo feoda vet. feoffam. Baron. de Byweil.

  Escaet. de anno 1 Edwardi I.
- (h) Adam de Swynburn obiit seisitus de et in manerio de Swynburn, de et in manerio de Haughton, et Humsaugh.

Escaet. de anno 20 Edvardi II.

See Cap-Heaton, in Collins's Baronetage.

(i) Johannes Woodrington, miles, fuit seisitus de et in manerio ac villa de Swynburn magna, et Swynburn parva, et Haughton, cum medietate villæ et manerii de Humsaugh, &c.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

rick

It is now the feat and lordship of Thomas Ridell, Esq; descended from Sir Jurdan de Ridell, Knt. who had a mediety of the lordship and villa of Tinmouth, in Norhamshire, 1 K. Edward I (k); ancestor to Sir William de Ridell, Knt. high sheriff of Northumberland, 8 K. Edward II (1); fon to Walter, grandfon to Patricius, and great grandson to Dukentinus de Riddel, lords of the manour and villa of Whickham, in the Bishoprick of Durham (m). Sir William was in the possession of the whole manour and villa of Tilmouth, of the manour and villa of Twifel, of the hamlets of Dudhow, and Old Grindon, and two parts of the manour of Upfetlington; inherited by his three grandaughters, by his eldest fon, William; his family-name being preferved in his younger fon, Hugh, from whom descended a numerous and opulent race. Thomas, his great grandfon, married the daughter and heir of — Herbotell, Knt. Peter, great grandson to Thomas, married the fister of Sir Robert Brandling, Knt. and another Thomas married the daughter of Sir, John Coniers, Knt. Baron of Sockburn, in the Bishoprick of Durham (n).

Sir William Ridell, Knt. in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, was one of the grand lessees in trust for the corporation of Newcastle upon Tyne, of the lordships of Gateshead and Whickham, in the Bishop-

(k) See Tilmouth.

<sup>(1)</sup> Rex omnibus ad quos, &c. salutem. Sciatis quod commissimus dilecto et sideli nostro Willielmo Ridell, militi, comitatum Northumbriæ, et castrum nostrum novi castri super Tinam, cum pertinen. custodiend. a sesto paschæ proximo præterito, quamdiu nobis placuerit, ita quod sermas debitas nobis reddat annuatim ad scaccarium nostrum, et debitis nostr. et omnibus aliis ad vicecomit. illius ad custodiam castri prædicti spectantibus nobis respondeat, sicut alii vicecomites comitatus ejusdem, et custodes illius hactenus reddere, et inde respondere consueverunt, in cujus, &c. Teste rege apud. Westm. 3 Die Maii, anno regni sui 8.

(m) Ms. penes Thom. Ridell, Arm.

(n) Ibid.

rick of Durham, and the parks, wastes, and coal-mines belonging to them, said by Dr. Craddock, Archdeacon of Northumberland, to be then worth 50000 l. per annum (o). Sir William's seat was the abbey of St. Edmund, in Gateshead.

Sir Thomas Ridell, Knt. feated at Fenham, was a reprefentative in parliament for Nerveaftle upon Tyne, 18 K. James I, 1620; also, 3 K. Charles I, 1628, with Sir Peter Ridell, Knt. Sir Thomas, by his active zeal, and steady loyalty to his distressed sovereign, King Charles I, fo provoked the Oliverians, that they offered by proclamation 1000 l. for taking him. He narrowly escaped their vengeance by retiring beyond fea from Berwick upon Tweed. His great, great grandfon, Mr. Ridell, the prefent possessor of Swinburn-Caftle, married the daughter and fole heir of the late Horsley Widdrington, of Felton, Esq. His seat at Swinburn is of his own erection, out of the ruins of the old castle, after a very neat defign. It stands on the fouthern banks of a rivulet, whose streams after heavy rains pass in rude majesty, loud and sonorous, between rocks and precipices, on whose eastern fummits the mountain-pink displays its modest bloom in June and July, alike fearless of the tumultuous torrent, and blustering winds. It is sheltered with a few tall forest-trees to the east and west, and before it is a spacious field, sloping and verdant, in the neighbourhood of a wood; the range of rocks at Shewing-sheels, and the Roman station of House-steeds, the mountains of Cross-Fell, and of Kilhope, the moors and cultivated plains of Hexham/hire, fo fatal to the royal Rose of Lancaster, are in full view on a clear day.

From the fame floping eminence on the military road we have a flight prospect of

<sup>(0)</sup> Gardiner, p. 12, 13.

Haughton-Castle, on the western banks of North Tyne, shaded with trees; remarkable for its strength, a neat little bed-chamber being cut out of the walls, holding two or three chairs, a table, with a fire-place; one sash-light in it. It has been a large, as well as a strong, building; most of it now uncovered; the entrance by a slight of steps; a stable near it without any timber in the roof, arched with stone; also a domestic chapel, now in ruins; belonging formerly to the Swinburns, and the Widdringtons (p); and now to Mr. William Smith, Gent.

We continue our journey down the hill to Walwick, i. e. the village on the wall; which is here in better prefervation than it is any where through its whole length in Northumberland, except at Wall-Town. The villa belongs chiefly to Thomas Dixon, Efq; whose feat was lately repaired, with hand-fome additions; commanding a variety of agreeable prospects; the castles of Haughton and Swinburn, the town of Hexham, the sine river of North Tyne, the bridge over it at Chollerford, the villages of Humshaugh and Chollerton, being in view.

A little below Walwick, on the right hand, is Walwick-Chefters, the Roman station Cilurnum, garrifoned by the Cohors prima Vangionum (q). The ruins are still visible, covering a spacious area, with a slope to the south, beautifully diverging to the trout-streams of North Tyne. The Romans chose such pleasant situations whenever they could have them, and the heights only from necessity.

(p) See the Records under Swinburn-C. file.

(q) Horsley.

Lucis habitamus opacis,

Riparumque toros, et prata recentia rivis,

Incolimus:

Dehine fumma Cacumina.

VIRG. Æn. vi. ver. 673, &c...

A confular medallion of Hadrian, of the old mixed brafs, was found near this station by some labourers in making the military road, now in my possession. It is four inches in circumference; his bust in bold relief on the obverse; the legend round it, Hadriano Aug. Caesari; within a laureated border, or civic garland---

S. P. Q. R. OPTIMO PRINCIPI, S. C.

It was struck on the first of January, a day facred to Janus, obferved with great solemnity, as presaging the felicity of the new year. The consuls entering on their high office on that day, their coins were then minted, with S. C. in area, i. e. ob Cives servatos.

The Romans croffed the Tyne at this flation by a bridge of arches; fome of the stones of which may be seen when the river is low.

A little farther down the river, and in fight, is Walwick-Grange, the feat of Anthony Errington, Efq; 6 Edward VI. (r); a younger branch of the antient family of the Erringtons, of Errington; ancestor of the late William Errington, Efq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1739; father of the prefent possessor, John Errington, Esq. His seat is a modern structure, built on to an old tower, in a low situation, on the brink of North Tyne, upon a rock.

(r) Bishop Nicholfon's Border Laws, p. 335.

The large funeral-stone, in memory of a Roman lady, with her effigies; the altar, with a female deity, supposed to be Cybele, and the figure of a lion gently raising up the head of a man, prostrate, at full length; the estigies of a soldier on horseback; described and engraved by Mr. Horsley, in his Romana (s), are still at the Grange, in the face of a wall, on the right hand, in going to it; brought from Walwick-Chesters.

In a field fouth-west of the Grange, by the road to Nether-warden, is part of a stone-cross, or upright pillar, in a square pedestal; upon one side of it, the sigure of a sword, in relief, sheathed.

About a mile fouth-east from the Grange, by the 21 mile-stone, we cross the Tyne, by a stone-bridge of four arches, called, Chollerford-bridge. A release from pennance for thirteen days was granted by Walter Skirlaw, Bishop of Durham, to all such as should contribute by labour or money to the repair of it, 17 K. Richard II; as attested by the following instrument, to which is an old seal appendant, of white wax.

- "To all Christian people, to whom these presents shall come,
- Walter, Bishop of Durham, health in our Lord everlasting.
- " Whereas the bridge of Chollerford, as we hear, is decayed by the.

(s) Page, 215, &c. No. xxii. No. xxiii. No. xxiv.

"inundation of the waters, by which there used to be a fre"quent passage, and now wants repair, whereby the inhabitants
"in the neighbourhood are in great danger. We therefore confiding in the mercy of Almighty God, and the sufferings of his Holy Mother, and all the Saints, do release unto all our parishioners, and those in other dioceses where this indulgence shall be received, 13 days of their enjoined pennance, upon condition they lend a helping hand to the repairing of the said bridge, or contribute their pious charity thereto. These prefents after three years nothing availing. Given at Chester the Sth Kalends of August, of our pontificate the 7th year."

A mile and a half above the bridge, is

Chollerton, i. c. the town by Chollerford; a pleasant villa on the eastern banks of the river, belonging to Sir Edward Swinburn, of Cap-Heaton, Bart.

The parish is large; the chancel of the church lately rebuilt; the roof sealed; a handsome new tower at the west-end. The vicarage-house is a neat structure, built, with all other conveniences, by the present incumbent, the Rev. Mr. Stoddart, father-in-law of John Errington, of Wallwick-Grange, Esq.

From the bridge we ascend the hill, cross the Hexham-road, by Brunton, to the turnpike-gate; opposite to which, on the right hand, is a slight of terraces, on a bank, called,

Hanging-Show, of the same use as the Mote-Hills, exploratory, for the militia to retreat to on any sudden alarm, to observe the motions of, and shew themselves to, an enemy, rank above rank.

We continue our course up the hill by St. Ofwald's chapel to the 19th mile-stone, a little beyond which we are presented with a fine view of Hexham, fituated chiefly on an eminence, by the little brook Hextold, and near the united streams of South and North Tyne, giving its name to a large tract of country, called, Hexhamshire. It is a town of great antiquity. The most learned antiquaries believe it to be Roman, and all, except Mr. Horsley, give it the name of Axelodunum, or Uxelodunum, importing the same thing as the Celtic or antient British word Uchelodunum, i. e. a high situation. Mr. Horsley will have it to be the Roman Epiacum or Ebchester of Camden (t), and that Brough on the Solway-sands in Cumberland, was their Axelodunum, and the station of their Cohors prima Hispanorum (u).

In the year 1726, Roger Gale, Esq; and Dr. Stukeley, antiquaries of great name, were in this country in search of antiquities, and at Hexham. In a vault at Hexham-church, the burial-place of the late Rev. Mr. Andrews, A. M. they discovered two inscriptions, both Roman, and both, in their opinion, curious. Mr. Gale, in his letter to Baron Clerk, inserted in Mr. Gordon's Appendix, observes, that the first is of very ill work, but what makes it curious is, it contains a new name of a Legatus Augusti, viz. Q. Calpurnius Concession, and that of a body of horse at Cor-chester, called Equites Casarienses, or Casariani Coronotata, not mentioned either in the Notitia Imperii, or any where else. The other is of Lucius Septimius Severus, of the best sculpture, the letters large, but very imperfect. The curiosity of it consists in its having so distinctly the name of that emperor, and its being the only genuine one found fo near the wall with his name upon it. They are both published by Mr. Gordon, with his own, and Baron Clerk's, and Mr. Gale's Observations upon them (v). To his, Mr. Gale hath farther added this, That the whole vault, and the long winding subterraneous passages to it, are all built out of the Roman ruins; carved stones and fragments of other inscriptions appearing every where in the walls; and he supposes them to have been brought from the neighbouring Roman station at Cor-chester, on the first foundation of the church.

(t) Camden's Britannia, p. 955.

(u) Hors. Britannia Romana, p. 109.

Hexham in the Saxon times was called Hextoldesham, and Hagustald. In the reign of Egsfrid, King of Northumberland, 674, it was crected into an episcopal see by St. Wilfrid (w), Arbishop of York, and afterwards confirmed by Theodore Archbishop of Canterbury (x). As Theodore was the first who assumed a jurisdiction over the northern bishops and churches, it will not be amiss to enter a little into his history, before we proceed to give an account of the bishops of this see.

He was born at the city of Tarfus in Cilicia (y), a famous university in the days of St. Paul, wherein that apostle had his education (z). Here he also had his learning, and took on him the monastic habit. Being at Rome on the death of Deusdedit, Archbishop of Canterbury, he was chosen by the Pope to succeed him

- (v) It. Sept. Append.

  Hors. p. 108, 109.
- (w) Browne Willis's Survey of the Cathedral, Vol. i. p. 224.
- (x) Id. p. 30.

- (y) Hol. Chron. Vol. i. p. 120.
- (2) Bishop Bull's Discourses.

at the age of 76. This was done on the recommendation of his learned friend Adrian, who out of modesty and humility declined accepting it himself. Adrian came over with him. Another of his learned attendants was Benedict Biscop. These three, on their arrival in England, found learning and the arts at a very low ebb. They united their endeavours to make them flourish. Schools were founded under their patronage for the education of youth in Latin and Greek. Music and painting met with particular encouragement. Artists of all kinds were fent for from Rome. Benedict made five journeys to that city, and founded two monasteries himself, Girwy and Weermouth, both in the Bishoprick of Durham. But the Archbishop's principal labour and study was to extend the splendour of the See of Canterbury, by subjecting the northern churches to its jurisdiction. In this he met with much opposition, especially from St. Wilfrid. The easier to effect his purpose, he divided the kingdom of Northumberland, by leave from King Egfrid, into more dioceses. It now consisted of York, Lindisfarn, and Hexbam.

The first Bishop of Hexham, after the founder, was Eata, An. 678. He was succeeded by fhould have any jurisdiction over his, and the other dioceses, openly censured Archbishop Theodore's ambition. Theodore, to punish him for being so bold, took a journey on purpose into Northumberland. He called a council of bishops at Twisord, near the river Aln, 684, at which was present King Egsrid himself. Tunbert was cited to appear before them, and deposed. They proceeded to a new election. The person agreed on was Cuthbert, a monk of Lindisfarn, better known afterwards by the name of St. Cuthbert. It was not without a fort of violence that Cuthbert could Vol. II.

be prevailed on to be a bishop. At length, through the forcible perfuasions of the king, and the importunity of the bishops, he complied to be bishop of Lindisfarn, and Eata, who had it, was translated to Hexham, which he had before held with Lindisfarn. He was succeeded by John of Beverley, 685, a Saxon of quality, born at Harpham* in York/hire; first a scholar of St. Hilda's, abbess of Whitby, and afterwards of Archbishop Theodore's, and a student at Oxford, where he compleated his education. The humility, piety, and learning, for which he was remarkable, made him much caressed. The See of York being vacant, by the death of Archbishop Bosa, he was translated thither, 687 (a). He there lived in high reputation and love for upwards of 33 years. Finding age come upon him, and episcopal cares weighty, he resigned 718. He retired to the monastery of Beverley, of which he was abbot. There he fpent the remainder of his days in devotion. and in educating his foul for the glories of another life. When he was at Hexham, all the leifure he could get, he used to spend this way. It was his custom to retire, on every opportunity that offered, particularly in Lent, to his country vill, or epifcopal feat, where he had a little chapel or oratory, dedicated to St. Michael. This place is on the north banks of the Tyne, a mile and a half north-west from Hexham. Both Bede and Prior Richard speak of it. Bede says, it stood among a few shady trees, enclosed with a rampier (b). The Prior calls it Mons Aquila, Mount-Eagle.

* Browne Willis makes him to be a native of Beverley.

(a) - Survey of the Cathedr. Vol. i. p. 31.

(t) Bed. Eccles. Hist. L. 5. C. 2.

and Erneshow (c). It is supposed to be the present village of Nether Warden. The dedication of the church, the distance from Hexham, and the situation, under a hill, on a peninsula, by the union of the two rivers of North and South Tyne, all correspond to fix it there.

In this fweet recess, Bishop John and his chaplains spent their leisure whilst at Hexham, never weary of spending it well, in acts of devotion, of charity, and in reading. Exemplary men! worthy of imitation! The bishop died in 721, and was buried in his own monastery. For his piety and good works he was canonized after his death, and became celebrated by the name of St. John of Beverly. He was succeeded in the see of York by his chaplain, Wilfrid the younger, and in this of Hexham by

St. Wilfrid, or Wilfrid the elder. In the difputes above mentioned with archbishop Theodore, he was overmatched, and on the loss of the see of York, given to Bosa, in his absence at Rome, he was glad on his return to be re-instated in this his favourite one, of his own foundation. In the height of his archiepiscopal grandeur he obtained a grant from King Egfrid, by the favour of his Queen, Etheldreda, of the town of Hexham, and the large tract of country, called Hexhamshire, with the regalities, giving other lands in exchange for them. He annexed them to this bishoprick. The fine church in Hexham, dedicated to St. Andrew, so much extolled by Prior Richard, Heddius, Hovedon, Malmsbury, and others (d), was of his erection. The workmen were brought from Rome. The model, finishing, and decoration, were then above any in England, or on this fide the Alps. He also built three other churches, of two of which there are now no remains. One was dedicated to St. Mary. It stood in the place now called St. Mary's Chare; part of the foundations of which have been discovered in digging, and raising buildings upon it. The other was dedicated to St. Peter. It is uncertain where it stood. The third was his predecessor's favourite church of St. Michael at Nether Warden. This has been in the cathedral-form, or in the form of a cross, and long reduced almost to a mere ruin, to the great regret of that parish, who in 1760, obtained a brief for its being rebuilt. The monastery of Hexham, which is incautiously assigned by Cressy (e) to St. Oswald, was of his foundation (f). He died Oct. 12, 709, and was buried in the monastery of Rippon, of which he was likewise abbot; and was removed to Canterbury by Archbishop Odo, 940. His successor in his see and abbey here was,

(c) Tractatus de flatu & episcopis Hogustald, inter decem scriptores Hist. Angl. p. 291.

(d) Leland's Collectanea, vol. ii. p. 259. vol. iii. p. 109.

Acca, his chaplain, companion and friend. Acca's education was under Bishop Bosa, till his admission into his friendship and favour. He attended him in his worst fortunes, and was with him at Rome. There he learned to chaunt and sing well in the Roman choir, and at his return was one of the best voices, the most musical and graceful, in the church of Hagustald. He was so charmed with church-music, that after his election to this see, he engaged one Maban, an Italian, who taught the quire of Canterbury with great applause, to teach his, and detained him twelve years. He improved himself all that while, and with delight took the lead in the facred chorus. He was a most heavenly man, Vir magnificus, a great soul, says Bede (g). He gilded the walls of his cathedral with filver and gold, and, to add to its splendour, presented it with rich coverings for the altars, with communion-plate, and candlefticks to illuminate the whole glorious dome; and, laftly, with a library, collected at no fmall ' pains and expence, confifting chiefly of facred biography, and church-history. Bede loved him most dearly, dedicated many of his compositions to him, and gave him all the marks of respect and esteem in his power. How deferving soever he was of it. and how much foever he was liked and careffed by all good men, and was as a guardian angel among them, to train them to glory, and fit them for heaven, there were those, as there ever will be, who could not bear the thoughts of either, who could not endure the light of his precepts and example, and turned him out of his bishoprick, after he had held it, with so much honour and dignity for 24 years. This was done in the year 732, or 733. He died Nov. 20, 740, and was interred in the confistory of his own: cathedral, but was afterwards removed to Durham (h).

(e) Creffy's Ch. Hist.

(f) Spelm. Conc. vol. i. p. 203.

(g) Bed. Eccles. Hist. 1. v. c. 20.

The Bishops that succeeded Acca, were.

Fredbert, Bp. 34 years.

Alcmund, - 13.

Tilbert.

Ethelbert, - 7.

Eadfred, - 3.

Eanbert, or {

Tydferth.

Of these nothing remarkable is recorded. How long Tydferth was bishop is not known (i). The incursions and outrages of the Danes made him refign his fee, and for the fame reasons others declined accepting it. He died on a journey to Rome, about the year 821, as is supposed. His bishoprick, after a long vacancy, was united to the diocese of Lindisfarn at Chester-le-street, 883, by Bishop Eardulph. It continued in the possession of the Bishops of Durham till the reign of K. Henry I. That King being offended with Bishop Flamberd, gave it to the see of York. Thomas, Archbishop of York, the fecond of that name, coming to Hexham to visit the monastery, was so much moved with the fight of it, and the cathedral, its folemnity and grandeur, which prefented to his mind the great prelates that adorned it by their piety, extenfive charity and learning, that he refolved to become its friend and patron. He placed in the monastery a prior and regular canons of St. Austin, 1113, and generously endowed it. Besides other donations, very handsome and liberal, he gave it the cathedral and all its privileges, all the tithes within his manour, and the parish, of Hexham, both great and small (k). The parish was then a rectory, appropriated to the parish of Holm in the church of York, and in the possession of Richard de Maton, a canon of Beverley (1). His vicarius, or vicar, was named Eillan, junr. He had a house and a caracut * of land in Hexbam, and six bovats † of land in Ainwick. The rector, Maton, for fome confideration out of the common revenue of the chapter of York, refigned all his rights to the priory; but the vicar, Eillan, did not give up his till after the death of the first prior Aschtill, March 17th, 1130 (m).

(b) Bed. Eccles. Hist. 1. v. c. 20.

(i) Pr. Ric. inter X scriptor.

(k) Id. 1. 2. c. 8. Dugd. Monast. Angl.

<sup>(1)</sup> Pr. Ric.

* A Hide, or Plough-Land, which was not of any certain extent, but as much as one plough could in the course of husbandry plough in one year. It was of the annual value of five nobles, or 1 l. 13s. 4d. Lord Coke. 1 Inst. fo. 69, &c.

# Six Oxgangs.

(m) Pr. Ric.

There is a house in Hexham, belonging to the lecturer, which still, bears the name of the vicarage; and a street, called Eillans-gate, from the vicar Eillan.

Archbishop Thurstan had a like regard and veneration for Hexham-priory, as his predecessor. For the better support of the prior, he gave it the prebend of Salton in his cathedral of York, which was the impropriation and advowfon of Salton-vicarage, antiently rated at 80 marks, or 53 l. 13s. 4d. His munificence' did not stop here, as will appear from the following account of its revenues, and by whom given, confirmed by an inquisition taken at Newcastle upon Tyne, 25 K. Edward I, July 7, 1297; William de Halton, then high sheriff of Northumberland.

"The prior and canons held, besides the church and priory of "Hexham, with the appurtenances thereunto belonging, the ma-" nour and village of Ainwick, and the villages of Sandhoe and "Yarnzigg, with a mill upon the Tyne and the mill-race, and all " the feet which belongs unto, or ought to belong unto, the faid "mill; and the tithe of all things (whether belonging to the "archbishop or other persons) within the liberty of Hextildesham; "as also Soke (n) and Soken (o), and other privileges, as the " power of regulating the affizes of bread and beer, and that their "fervants should bear a virge on their making distresses, sum-"mons's, and attachments, and on correcting offences of the "tenants in the prior's court: Given by Thomas, Archbishop of "York, the fecond of that name, and confirmed by the chapter of "that fee, to hold as a free, pure, and perpetual alms.

"They also held certain lands in the town of Hexham, viz. the "whole intire street of Cockshaw; twenty-four messuages in the

(n) Vid. Bract. lib. 3.

- "ftrect, called Priest-pople; fourteen messuages in the street, called the Market-place; and sixteen messuages in the street, called "Hencotes: also the villages of Dotland, Knitilhesell, and the two "Grotingtons, with the tithe of all animals within the liberty of "Hexham;—the gift of Thurstan Archbishop of York.
  - "They held also half the village of Bing field, without doing any fecular service, of the gift of one Germund; and a rent of fix marks in the same village;—the gift of Robert de Skipton.
  - "They held also twenty-four acres of land, and two water"mills, in the villages of Hamburn and Newbiggin, with the sect
    "of all new lands brought, or to be brought, into tillage, by the "fervice of twelve merks per annum; as also one rod of land in "the village of Acome, one rod in the village of Wall, one rod
    "in the village of Halyton, one rod in the village of Kepwick, one
    "rod in the village of Catteden (or Catton), one rod in the village
    "of Ninebanks, and one rod in the village of Rouley for the build"ing a grange or tithe-barn;—the gift of Walter Grey, and Walter
    "Gisford, Archbishop of York, by the service only of two shillings "per annum, for each.
  - "They held also the whole manour and church of Warden, with the chapels of Stonecroft, Hayden, and Langley; likewise all the lands of Byres, through the right divisions, and common of pasture without the divisions of the said lands, and one messuage, seven acres of land, and common of pasture for two hundred and sixty sheep in Hayden aforesaid;—the gift of Adam de Tynedale, consirmed by the Bishop of Durham.

"They held also forty acres of land, and fix acres of meadow,

" and two messuages, in Settling-stones;—the gift of Adam de " Settling-stones. And in Whinetley two messuages, and forty acres " of land, with their appurtenances, and a rent of ten shillings;

"-the gift of Adam de Thorngrafton.

"They held also the mill of Aller-wash, with its appurtenances;

"-the gift of UEtred de Aller-wash; and one plow-gate of land

"in a certain place of the faid village, called Oulmers; —the " gift of Richard Bailiff, of Hexham.

"They held also the church of Chollerton, with its chapels, viz.

" Birtley, Chipchace, Gunnerton, and Swinburn; also Little Heton, and

" Colvell, with their appurtenances, and eight ox-gangs of land " in the village of Chollerton, of the endowment of the faid church,

" together with five acres of land, which are called Le Michel-

" croft, lying on the north fide of the faid church; —the gift of " Odinell de Humfranvil.

"They held also the hamlet of Beumont, through their right "divisions; the gift of Gilbert de Humfranvil. And one toft,

" and feven acres of land, in Birtley, also the lands and pasture

" of Coleden, through their right divisions; —the gift of Richard

" de Eumfranvil.

"They held also common of pasture in the moor of Gunnerton

" for a hundred cattle going out of Coleden, as well when the "hedges were up, as when all was open; and two tofts, and

"two ox-gangs of land, in the village of Chefter-hope; - the gift " of Ralph de Gunnerton.

81.

- "They held also two tofts and thirty acres of land in the vil"lage of Barrwesford;—the gift of Margery de Humfranvil. One "plow-land in Newton, in Coquet-dale;—the gift of Walter de Insula.
- "They held also common of pasture for thirty-two oxen, and for two hundred and forty sheep in Colwell;—the gift of Walter "Corbet.
- "Also the manour of Little Heton, and of Cald-strother, with their appurtenances;—the gift of Alice de Bolam, James de Caus, and Alice his wife.
- "They held also six acres of land in Little Bavington;—the gift of Stephen Bataille. And in the same village, two tofts and three acres and a half, with their appurtenances, and common of passure for sisteen cattle, sixty sheep, and two horses;—the gift of Gilbert de Wircestre.
- "They held also three tofts, with a tithe-barn, and two ox-"gangs, and twelve acres of land, in the village of Gunnerton, "and Thurkilby, de Caderon.
- "They held also the church of Slealey, and one plow-land of the endowment of the said church, and a common of pasture in the same village for two hundred and sixty sheep, and a common of pasture in Le Stele for the same number of sheep;— the gift of Gilbert de Slealey.
- "They held also one messuage, and one acre of land in the village of Chipchace;—the gift of Robert de Insula.

- "They had also a rent of forty shillings and four-pence arising out of eight messuages in the town of Newcastle upon Tyne, and a rent of three and forty shillings and two-pence issuing out of fifteen messuages in the village of Corbridge;—the gift of different persons.
- "They held also an acre of land in the field of West Swinburn;—"the gift of John de Wircestre.
- "They held also the whole manour of North Milnburn, with a "common of pasture on the moor of Crekelagh;—the gift of Sir "Thomas de Divisson.
- "They held also all the land of Shilden, by the service of three and twenty shillings per annum;—by the cession of the Abbet of Newminster.
- "They held also the whole demesne and village of Whitsfield, and a rent of sixteen shillings and four-pence;—the gift of William King of Scots. Also a certain moor, called Carraw-moor;—the gift of the same King of Scots.
- "They held also a certain hamlet, called Carraw, with its ap"purtenances, and one plow-land in Ri-sheels through its right divisions, together with a common of pasture in Hethenshalgh, and one toft and thirty acres of land in Stone-croft;—the gift of Richard Cummin.
- "They held also fix tofts and one plow-land in Thirwall, and a common of pasture for four and twenty cattle, four and twenty beasts with their young, four and twenty swine, and M 2 "twenty

- "twenty goats;—the gift of Bricius de Thirlwall, and Roger, his fon.
- "They held also a certain pasture, called Priest-dale, through its right divisions; also eight messuages, and one plow-land,
- " in Aldstone; also a rent of thirteen shillings and four-pence in the
- " mill of Elrington; --- the gift of Ivo de Veteri Ponte.
- "They held also a rent of eight shillings in Tecket;—the gift of Laurence de Tecket.
- "They held also a rent of eight shillings in Ald-sheels;---the gift of Henry de Graham.
- "They held also half of the manour of Echwick;—the gift of Robert, fon of Hubert, de Delavale, and Richolda, his mother.
- "And in the fame village they held ten acres of land;—the gift of Thomas de Echwick. Also seven acres of land in the same village;—the gift of Peter de Fawdon.
- "They held also a rent of thirteen shillings and eight-pence in the village of Stockfield; paying out of the same for the ward of the castle seven shillings per annum;—the gift of William, son of Boso.
- "They held also in the same village a rent of three shillings; "-the gift of John, son of Elias.
- "They held also five tofts, and ten acres of land, and three acres of meadow, in Thornton;—the gift of William de Insula, and confirmed by Walter de Bolbeck.

"They held also one manour, and three acres of land, in Ben"well;—the gift of Hugh de Delaval. Also two acres of land,
"and a rent of fixteen shillings, in the village of Throckley, the "gift of Robert de Snestones, and Christian de Throckley.

"They held likewise in East Matsen one manour, six messuages, and three plow-lands;—the gift of Thomas de Fenwick, and confirmed by Robert de Insula.

"They held also in the village of Stanington one toft, and two "ox-gangs of land, and a rent of eighteen pence;—the gift of "Roger de Merlay.

"They held also a rent of one mark per annum arising out of the mill at Brinkley; --- the gift of Henry de Ferlington.

"They had also in the village of Whalton one toft and croft, and two and forty acres of land and a half, and a common of pasture for forty yews and their lambs; and in the village of Riplington a rent of eight shillings;—the gift of Walter, son of William, and Isabell, his wife.

"They had also two fisheries in the river Tyne, and a place to dry their nets on; one of the fisheries called Dripentell, and the other Foul;—the gift of Roger Bertram.

"They had also in the village of Stamfordham one tost, and two plow-gates;—the gift of John de Normanvil.

"They held also the manour of Cheseburgh (or Cheesburn) and "Nesbet, with all their demesnes, services, bondages, and other appurtenances;—the gift of the same John de Normanvil.

"They held also a certain portion in the church of Stamfordham, "viz. The tithes of the sheaves of corn in the villages of Matsen, "East Nesbet, Ulkeston, Hawkwell, and Bitchfield;—by the cession of Richard Bishop of Durham, and confirmed by the Chapter of the same.

"They had likewise the manour of Stelling, with its appurte"nances; and in the village of Newbiggin by the sea one tost,
"and two acres of land; also a rent of forty shillings in the vil"lage of Seaton; --- the gift of Bernard de Baliol.

"They held also the third part of the village of Dalton;--"the gift of Ralph de Gunnerton. And in the same village four oxgangs of land, and a rent of sive shillings and sixpence issuing out of the mill of the said village;--- the gift of William de Dalton.

"They had also in the village of Prudhow one toft, and eight acres of land; --- the gift of Richard de Humfranvil.

"They had also the homage of John de Swinburn, and his heirs, and a rent of one shilling per annum for his capital messuage of "Swinburn;—the gift of Hugh de Baliol.

"They had also the homage of Nicholas of West-Swinburn, and "the service of three shillings per anum for the chantery of the chapel of West Swinburn;—by the cession of John de Wircestre.

"They had also the homage of John de Cambow, for the land and tenements which he held in Little Heton, and Cald-strother; ---- the gift of Alice de Bolham, James de Caus, and Alice, his wife.

- "They had also the homage of Richard de Thirlwall, and a rent of three shillings per annum for the lands he held of them in "Thirwall;—the gift of Bricius de Thirlwall, and Roger, his son.
- "They had also the homage of Adam de Whitley, and the service of four shillings of annual rent of the same;—the gift of Adam de Tynedale.
- "They had also the homage of Thomas, the son of Richard, the son of Bricius, de Thirlwall, for the land which he held of them in Thirwall;—the gift of the same Adam de Tynedale.
- "They had also the homage of John de Normanvil, for the lands of Stockfield and Apperley, by the service of thirteen shillings and eight-pence per annum;—the gift of William, the son of Boso.
- "They had also the homage of Robert de Ribill, and the service of ten shillings annual rent, and three writs annually at the prior's court against such as refuse to do suit and service;—the gift of Theophania de la Bataile.
- "They had also the homage of Matthew de Whitfield, for the land and tenements in Whitfield, which he held of them;—the gift of William, King of Scots.
- "They had also the homage of Robert de Throckley for the lands and tenements he held of them:—the gift of Robert de Snessones, and Christian de Throckley.
- "They held also a tithe-barn, and a garden, in the village of:
  "East Swinburn;—the gift of Hugh de Baliol (p)."
- (p) Inquisit. facta apud Nov. Castrum sup. Tyn. 25 Ed. I. Cart. 27. Ed. I. n. 35: post. incend. priorat. per Scotos. Confirmat. Cart. 35 Ed. I. n. 25. Monast. Angl. vol. ii. p. 92, &c.

88

All which donations were confirmed by royal charters, 27, 35 K. Edward I, on the loss of their title-deeds by their priory being burnt by the Scots; which occasioned the above inquisition to be taken.

Edward, Duke of York, granted them a lease of Le Peyle de Staworth, or Staward Peil, on the eastern banks of the river Allen, of which I have before taken notice. In the rental, or priory-register, called, The black book of Hexham by the vulgar, is an ample account of all their revenues. It has been so carefully gleaned by those two celebrated antiquaries Mr. Dodsworth and Sir William Dugdale, for the use of that elaborate and excellent work, the Monasticon Anglicanum, that nothing is left worthy of the public attention, either for curiosity or use, for others to transcribe.

They had the impropriation of the church of Aldfon (q), and of the church of Renwick, dedicated to St. Benedict (r); and the impropriation of the church of Ifell, dedicated to St. Bridget (s); in the county of Cuniberland.

They had also the impropriation of the church of Ilkley, dedicated to All Saints (t); and the impropriation of the church of Edston (u); in the county of York.

Their conventual church of St. Andrew had the privilege of fanctuary for a mile round it, till 25 K. Henry VIII, 1534, when

- (9) Browne Willis's Cathedr. Vol. i. p. 315.
- (r) Id. 281.
- (s) Plac. in Com. Cumberland, 20 Ed. 1. quo War. Rot. 66. de terris in Ifell. Rot. 75. de advocatione eccles. de Aldston et Isell. Browne Willis's Cathedr. Vol. i. p. 313.
- (t) Id. p. 188.

it was enacted, that gross offenders against the laws taking fanctuary at the altar, or any confecrated place, should be out of the protection of churches.

Their revenues at the diffolution were valued at 122 l. 11 s. 1 d. per annum, Dugd. 138 l. 1 s. 9 d. Speed. There were then in the abbey fourteen religious; the Prior's name, Edward Jay (v). The fite of it, with some lands, was granted to Sir Reginald Carnaby (w).

They had an hospital for leprous persons, of the soundation and patronage of the archbishops of York, as antient at least as the reign of King John, dedicated to St. Giles, in the street, called, from him, Gilligate. It had revenues valued at four marks per annum. It was granted at the same time with the priory to Sir Reginald Carnaby (x).

They had also an hospital for the sick, called, The Spital, about a mile west from the town on a pleasant shady eminence by the Tyne, which glides past it in a slow and silent stream.

The archbishops of York had great powers and privileges belonging to their manour of Hexham, being a county palatine affirmed by the king's council in parliament, 21 K. Edward I (y);

(v) Hol. Chron. Vol. ii. p. 938. (w) Tanner's Notitia Monast. (x) Id.

(y) In antient times, the Archbishop of York had a royalty, with great powers, belonging to his manour and county of Hexham. In the one and twentieth year of K. Edward I, his liberties and powers in Hextildesham were affirmed by the King's Council in parliament. His case was of this nature. In an Iter of Hugh de Cressingham and his companions, a writ of Quo Warranto was brought to warn the Archbishop of York, to shew by what warrant he claimeth to have all capitulas of the crown delivered to his bailist, to be pleaded by his justices whom he will assign for that purpose, concerning all things emerging in his manour Not. II.

of which it was stript, 2 K. Henry V, for being an asylum to outlaws and robbers (2). The tenants within the manour were exempt from the payment of the public subsidies (a). Under a vacancy of the See of York, a chancellor or guardian was appointed for the spiritualities of Hexham (b). Robert Holgate, Archbishop of York, within a month after his translation from the Seeof Landass, 6th February, 36 K. Henry VIII, 1545, gave the manour of Hexham to the crown, in exchange for some impropriations and advowsons, parcels of abbey-lands, retaining nothing but the spiritual jurisdiction (c). It was united to the county of Northumberland, 14 Q. Elizabeth (d). In the 21st of her reign, it of Hextildesham; and that all pleas, as well of the crown, as of other pleas, be pleaded by his writs and his justices in his said manour; and to take and have the issues and profits arising thereby; and to do and execute by his ministers all things pertaining to the office of sheriff and coroner; and that no bailiff of the King do enter into the said manour, to exercise any office; and to have the custody of prisoners, and to make delivery of them at his will; and to have a market, gallows, chatells of sugitives and selons condemned in the said manour, without leave and consent of the King and his progenitors; which things do pertain to the King's crown and dignity.

The archbishop cometh by his attorney: and saith, that he claimeth all the said liberties from antient time: and that he and all his predecessors, from immemorial time, without any interruption, have used the said liberties; and this he is ready to verify.

Madox's Baron. Angl. p. 152, 153, 154. Hexham hath been formerly stiled a county Palatine.—Ibida Stat. 27, & 33 K. Henry VIII. c. 10. 824.

- (z) Stat. I. C. 5. Madox's Baron. Angl.
- (a) De liberatione tenentium de Hextildesham subsidiis, Pat. 33 Ed. III. par. 2. m. 19.
- (b) Pat. ii. Ric. II. par. 2. m. 9.
- (c) Browne Willis's Survey of the Cathedr. Vol. i. p. 19, & 44.
- (d) Stat. 14 Eliz. C. 13.

was fold by the crown to Sir John Forster, knight-banneret, Lord warden of the middle marches; and on the 43d of the same reign, devolved to his son-in-law, Sir John Fenwick, Knt. whose grandson, Sir John Fenwick, Bart. sold it to Sir William Blacket, of Newcastle upon Tyne, Bart. in the reign of King William III. It is now in the possession of Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart.

The chief streets in Hexham are

Hen-cotes,	Cockfhow,
Priest-pople,	Pudding-chare,
St. Mary-gate,	Hall-garth,
Costeley-row,	Hall-stile-bank,
Meal-market,	East-burn or Bond-gate.
Gilly-gate.

Hencotes is the place where the poultry belonging to the priory were kept, to which it owes its name. It is a good street, through which is the road to Carlifle.

Priest-pople was the residence of the poor people maintained by the alms of the priory. It is a broad and pleasant street, at the entrance into the town from Newcastle.

St. Mary-Gate leads from the market-place to Priest-pople. It is well built, and regular.

Costeley-Row goes from the Market-place to the head of Priest-pople. It is a good street.

Meal-Market is between St. Mary-Gate, and Costeley-Row. It is a narrow street, but regular.

Gilley-

Gilley-Gate, or St. Giles's gate, is a good street, uniform, and furnished with many good houses.

Cockfloow is chiefly inhabited by tanners. It is an irregular flreet.

Pudding-Chare is between the head of Gilley-Gate, and the fummit of the Hall-Stile-Bank. It is a small street.

Hall-Garth, or Hall-Court, confifts of feveral fmall, irregular ftreets; fo named from the town-hall, or town-court.

Hall-Stile-Bank is contiguous to Hall-Garth. It is the entrance into the town from Morpeth.

East-Burn, or Bond-gate, is a narrow, confined street, as the name of Bond-gate imports. It has the name of East-Burn to distinguish it from a streamlet at the west end of the town. It is the entrance from Hexhamshire.

The Market-Place is in the center of the town, large, square, well built, and paved. On the south side, is a market-house on piazzas, or stone-pilasters, lately built for the use of the town by Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. In the middle is a large sountain, with a reservoir under it, of freestone, and hewn work. It was erected at the charge of the inhabitants of that part of the town. The water which supplies it is brought, for near a mile, in pipes. Here are two weekly markets, on Tuesday and Saturday. The first is of chief note. Every Tuesday-fortnight, from the tenth of March, to the tenth of December, is a market for horned-cattle. On the 25th of July, and on St. Simon and St. Sude, are two annual fairs.

The

The want of a bridge over the Tyne is often the occasion of thin markets and fairs. The floods after rains and fudden thaws of fnow fometimes come down fo hastily, that they surprize and drown the paffenger in an instant, or else, which sometimes happens, force him to take refuge on an iflet, where he is at leifure to lament his fituation, till the danger is over. There are two boats, it is true, for the convenience of passengers; one below the Hermitage, called, The East boat; and another by Nether-Warden, and the West Wood, called, The West boat. But these, at such times, either cannot pass, or are in danger of perishing, with many useful and valuable lives. On this account, the inhabitants on the north fide of the Tyne for ten, fifteen, and fometimes twenty miles, prudently confult their own fafety by flaying at home, under the want of many necessaries for themselves and families, as well as the town and neighbourhood, by their abfence. A good bridge would, therefore, be the greatest benefaction and bleffing that could be beflowed on this antient town *; the trade of which is fo inconsiderable, that many of the inhabitants have been under the difagreeable necessity of taking up with other employments, besides their own callings, for their decent fupport; as appears by the following petition prefented by them to their patron, the Lord of the manour, Sir John Fenwick, Bart. in the reign of King William III.

- 'The humble petition of the inhabitants of the town of Hexham.
  - 'Humbly sheweth,
- 'That the faid town of Hexham, or the greatest part thereof, consistent of mechanics, handicraftsmen, or tradesmen, who for
- * Since this was written, the first stone for a bridge was laid by Sir Walter Calverly Blacker.

  Bart. 15th October, 1767.

the better support and maintenance of themselves and fami-' lies have, time whereof the memory of man is not to the con-'s trary, kept shops, and traded in buying and felling of groce-'ries, and all other forts of merchandife, whereby they made a ' very good shift to live very creditably and honestly, and dif-'charged the merchants of Newcastle, and others they dealt and ' traded with, from time to time, to the great comfort and fatis-' faction of their friends and relations, and benefit and advan-' tage to themselves and families, and never troubled or molested ' for fo doing, until now of late fome wicked and malicious per-' fons envying the happy estate and condition of the faid trades-"men, out of a peevish and perverse humour, and felf interest, ' go about and endeavour to foment and fet up fuits against the ' faid tradefmen and shopkeepers of the faid town, and threaten ' to indict them in the crown-office, and at the affizes and feffions upon the flatute of the fifth of Elizabeth, and for following "more trades than one, which will be a very great lofs and prejudice to the faid tradefmen, and to the impoverishing, undoing, ' and ruining of them and their posterities, and in a manner de-' populating of the faid town, fome tradefmen being fo nume-'rous there, viz. tanners, glovers, and shoemakers, that they ' are fearce able to maintain their families by one of these single ' trades, without making malt, keeping shop, or following some other employment, which if they continue to do, they are ' threatened to be indicted, and if fo, they must be forced to 'look for a livelihood fome where else for themselves, and leave ' part of their children to the town to be maintained, which will be a great and insupportable burden for the faid inhabitants to " undergo.

'May it therefore please your honour to take the premises into your serious and judicious consideration, and not to give any en"couragement to any fuch promoters and informers, but rather to aid and affift your petitioners in making their just defence to fuch hard and vexatious dealings and pleadings, and your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.' (b)

On the west side of the market-place, are the remains of that celebrated and admired structure, the priory-church or old cathedral. The best view of it is from the north-east. In the center, on four strong pillars, is a square tower; in which were six musical bells, dedicated to

The Bleffed Virgin Mary, .
St. Andrew,
St. John, and other faints.

St. Mary's bell was the largest. It was commonly called, The Fray-bell, being never rung alone, but on occasion of fire, the approach of an enemy, to raise the Posse Comitatus, or Fray, as it was stilled.

St. Andrew's bell was the next in fize. It was called, The Haly bell, being used for funerals.

Eight new bells have for some time supplied their place.

The roof of the middle isle is lofty. It is lined with oak-pannels within, and covered with lead without. The side isles are arched with stone. The nave and cross-isles are supported by pillars. In the walls are two rows of galleries, one above the other. At the entrance into the quire is a gallery, in which stood the organ. The portraitures of our Bleffed Lord, and his Apoftles, and the Virgin Mary, are painted on the pannels. The quire is a fine fabric, the altar large, with a good light. The latter was repaired by the late Sir William Blackett; as was the whole church by a brief, 1725, towards which 1040 l. was collected. It still calls for farther affishance, and implores the charity of some benevolent and good patron. The floor is mostly covered with antient grave-stones. Many have been inlaid with brass, and others with croziers. They are very intire, after they have been trod under foot for so many ages.

(b) Collectan. Warburton. MS.

By the north door, at the entrance into the cross-isle, on the left hand, is the effigies in stone of Henry Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, a Knight Templer, taken prisoner and beheaded at Hexham by K. Edward IV. He is habited as usual, in a coat of mail, with a sword and scutcheon of arms, viz. or on a fez. az. three garbs proper. At his feet is a dog couched, an emblem of watchfulness. It has no inscription.

Near the fame door, on the right hand, is a flat funeral-stone, very antient. It has a crozier upon it, and this inscription.

HIC JACET THOMAS DE DIVILSTONE.

On the pavement of the fame floor, near the nave of the church, is a ftone-coffin, with a ftone-cover.

Under an arch, at the entrance of the north isle of the quire is an antient funeral monument, said to be the sepulture of Alf-wold, King of Northumberland, affassinated by Sigga, a factious Lord of his court, at Cilchester, now Walwick-Chesters, Sept. 23. 788:(c)

At the upper end of the north-east isle of the quire, near the altar-table, is a tomb with the effigies of a Religious, recumbent, and veiled; the arms of the priory at the top, viz. argent. a saltier, gules. Contiguous to it is a pillar on which is a helmet fixed. It is supposed that the person here interred had been of the military, before he was of the religious, order. By the arms, it is thought, he was the prior.

Opposite to it, on the other side of the quire, is another sepulchral memorial of a Knight Templer, with his essigies, and the usual symbols of his order, cut in stone. By the shield, it appears to have been one of the baronial-family of the Umfranvils, eminent benefactors to the priory; their arms, gules, a cinquefoil between eight cross mollins, 3. 2. 3.

On the fame fide of the quire, a little lower down, is a monument to the memory of Sir Robert Ogle, of Ogle-castle, with this inscription in a brass-plate, on black-marble.

Hic jacet Robertus Ogle, filius Eleanoræ Bertram, filiæ Roberti Bertram, militis, qui obiit in vigilia omnium fanctorum, Anno Domini, 1404. Cujus animæ propitietur deus.

In another brass-plate, are sculptured the arms of the two baronial houses of Bertram and Ogle, quartered; first, argent. a fess. between three crescents. gules. second, Or. an orle. az. the third as the second, the fourth as the first.

In the quire, near the reading-desk, is a flat funeral-stone of blue marble to the memory of the Rev. and learned George Rits-chel, a Bohemian by birth, lecturer of Hexham, with this inscription.

Vol. II. O Sub

Sub hoc marmore facræ reconduntur reliquiæ. Georgii Ritschel, patria Bohemi, Religione reformati: qui faviente in protestantes Ferdinando 2do omnibus gentilitis Hereditatibus exutus, fed Higentorati Lugduni Batavorum, aliarumque academiarum externum, spoliis onustus Quicquid eruditonis in istis florentissimis Musarum Emporiis viguit, secum Detulit Oxonium Anno Domini 1644. Qua celeberrima academia confummatis Studiis aliorum commodo studere cœpit. Et contemplationibus metaphyficis, Vindiciis ceremoniarum ecclesiæ Anglicanæ, Aliisque scriptis eruditissimis editis toto Orbe statim inclaruit. Tanta fama auctus, ecclesiam Augustaldensem, ad quam electus erat, Et cui præfuit annos plus minus 27, Magis Augustam, et tantum non Cathedralem, qualis olim fuit, reliquit. Natus Anno Domini, 1616. Denatus, 1683.

The book here alluded to, concerning the defence of the ceremonies of the church of England, is taken notice of by Bishop Kennet in his Historical Register. It is intitled, Dissertatio de Ceremoniis Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ, quâ usus earum licitus ostenditur, et a Superstitionis et Idolatræ crimine vindicatur. Authore Georgio Ritschel, Hexhamiæ, in Northumbria, Ministro. London. 1661.

This

This work of Mr. Ritschel's procured him the love and friendship of that eminently learned and good prelate, Bishop Cosins. He was both minister and lecturer of Hexham.

The lectureship was founded by the Mercer's company in London, who also founded another at Berwick upon Tweed. For the maintenance of the lecturers they purchased several tithes, according to the tenour of the will of Richard Fishborn, Esq; dated 30th March, 1625, which is as follows.

"Item, I give and bequeath to the wardens and commonalty " of the mystery of mercers, of the city of London, the sum of " 2800 l. therewith to buy and purchase two or more parsonages, "rectories, or church-livings, antiently appropriated to fome "abbey, monastry, or religious-house, or houses, and now com-"monly called impropriations, the fame to be in Lincolnshire. "Yorkshire, or some other northern county or counties of this land, " where the faid company of mercers shall best sit themselves " with fuch a purchase, and find most want of preaching of the " word of God to be. And the faid church-livings and impro-" priations fo purchased and had, my will is, shall be from time " to time, fuccessively, for ever, by the said wardens and com-"monalty of the mystery of the mercers of London after their " wonted custom of election by most votes at their general courts "conferred, bestowed, and conveyed upon two or more ministers "refpectively for and during fuch term or terms, and in fuch " manner and form, and with fuch cautil and provision, that if "they, or any of them, shall prove non-resident, or have any "other benefice or church-living with cure of fouls, then the " faid wardens and commonalty, and their successors, from time "to time, for ever, fhall and may remove displace, dismiss, de-O 2 " prive.

"prive, and eject them, or any of them, out of the faid impro"priations, or any of them, and elect and place another, or "others, in his or their room, according to their good discre"tion. And I heartily intreat the said wardens and commonalty,
"for God's sake, that they will be very careful from time to time "to make choice of such as be well known to be honest, discreet, "learned men, fearing God, and painful in their ministry, that
"by their life and doctrine they may win many souls to Christ" Jesus."

In 1628, the mercers company purchased of Sir John Fenwick, Bart. a messuage and an orchard in Hexham, all the great tithes arising in the town, parish, or fields of Little Swinburn, in Kepwick, Errington, Bing field, and Colwell. In 1631, they purchased the great tithes of Chollerton and Barwesford. They also purchased a moiety of the great tithes of Woodhorn, Widdrington, two Steeds, North Seaton, Cresswell, Horton, Horton-Demesses, Hirst, Hutton, Ellington, Lynton, and Lynmouth, all in this county.

They lately took off from the lectureship of Hexham 50 l. per annum, and applied it to the support of an alternate lectureship in the parish-church of Chollerton, and the chapels of St. Oswald and Bingsield, belonging to the church of St. John-lee.

In 1759, Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. gave 380 l. towards the augmentation of the living of Hexham, which generous donation was attended by another of 100 l. for the same end, from Sir Edward Blacket, Bart.

Mable Ord, a widow-gentlewoman, gave, 1634, a double gilt chalice and patin, weighing 32 ounces, to this church; also the altar-table cloath, and a cloath or pall for funerals. She also gave 100 l. to the poor of Hexbam; who had also the following benefactors.

John Tyson, of Hexham, yeoman, by his last will, dated 25th September, 1673, gave 10 l. to the poor of the parish of Hexham, the interest to be distributed amongst them at Christmas and Easter, annually, for ever.

James Cresswell of Hexham, tanner, by his last will, dated 28th October, 1675, gave an acre of land in Hexham-haugh, commonly called Reah's acre, the annual rent to be distributed to the poor of the town of Hexham, on the 3d of October, his birth-day.

Robert Farbridge, of Hackforth, in Hexhamshire, by his last will, dated 9th of March, 1677, gave 10 l. to the poor of the high and middle quarters of Hexhamshire; the interest to be distributed annually at Whitley-chapel upon All Saints day.

Madam Mary Fenwick, daughter of Sir George Selby, of Newcasile upon Tyne, Kt. and widow of Colonel John Fenwick of Hexhamabbey, slain at the battle of Marston-moor, July 2d 1644, by her last will, dated December 25th, 1679, gave 1001. to the town of Hexham, to bind poor children apprentices.

Mrs. Urfula Mountney, of Stonecroft, widow, by her last will, dated July 16th, 1680, gave an annuity of 12 l. per annum to different parishes; 3 l. per annum of which to be distributed to the poor of the parish of Hexbam.

Thomas Craig, of Hexham, skinner and glover, by his last will, dated 28th December, 1681, gave 201. the interest to be distributed buted annually to poor widows and orphans of Hexham, on St. Thomas's day.

Robert Forster, of the upper Eshells, in Hexhamshire, by will, dated 14th July, 1684, gave 10 l. to the poor of Hexhamshire; the interest to be distributed annually at Easter.

Henry Simpson, of the hole-house, in the low quarter of Hexhamshire, by will, dated 1684, gave 10 l. to the poor of Hexhamshire, and 10 l. to the poor of the parish of Slealey, but dying before it was executed, his son-in-law, Thomas Wadeson, of Thimbleyhill, in the Bishoprick of Durham, gave 10 l. to the free-school of Hexham.

Thomas Gibson, of Hexham, cordwainer, by will, 1686, gave 201. to the poor, out of a certain close in Hexham-fields.

Madam Elizabeth Ratcliff widow of Sir Edward Ratcliff, of Dilfton, Bart. by her last will, dated 18th December, 1688, gave 4.1. per annum to the poor Roman Catholics in Hexham, to be distributed on St. Luke's day, or thereabout.

Anthony Farbridge, of Newcastle upon Tyne, born at Hackforth, in Hexhamshire, by will, dated 3d November, 1690, gave 141. to the poor of the high and middle quarters of Hexhamshire; the interest to be distributed annually on Good Friday at Whitley-church.

John Coulson, of Hexham, tanner, by will, dated 26th September, 1692, gave 201. to the free-school, and 201. to the poor of the town of Hexham.

Margaret Broadley, of Hexham, widow, by will, dated 30th October, 1693, gave 10 l. to the poor; the interest to be distributed annually, 11th November; provided it was not claimed by the friends of one William Wilkinson, within the term of seven years, which it was not.

Richard Walton, of Peacock-house in Hexhamshire, by will, dated 18th April, 1695, gave 3 l. towards the having a minister at Whit-ley-chapel, and in case a minister could not be had, the interest to be distributed to the poor in the high quarter of Hexhamshire.

Henry Dixon, of the Staples, gave 20 l. to the poor of the high, low, and middle quarters of Hexhamshire, 10th October, 1700; the interest to be distributed annually at Christmas.

Madam Anne Ratcliff, of Dilston, fister to the Earl of Derwent-water, by will, gave 10 l. per annum to the poor in the parish of Hexbam, to be distributed 13th of June.

Mrs. Margaret Allgood, widow of Lancelot Allgood, of Newcastle upon Tyne, attorney at law, by will, dated 8th June, 1707, gave 100 l. to the poor of the town of Hexham, of which her husband was a native; the interest to be distributed annually on Christmasday, after evening service by the principal inhabitants, with the advice of the minister.

Mrs. Mary Allgood, daughter of Mr. Thomas Allgood, bailiss of Hexham, by a nuncupative will, (a little before her death, which happened, 5th November, 1709) gave 40 l. to the poor of the town of Hexham; the interest whereof hath since been distributed amongst them. Her brother, the Rev. Mr. James Allgood, rector of Ingram, her administrator, promised to confirm and make it perpetual.

Nicholas Ridley, of Newcastle upon Tyne, Esq; and an alderman of that corporation, by will, dated 7th December, 1710, gave 201. to the poor of the town of Hexham; the interest to be distributed annually to the more aged and insirm, eight days before Christmas.

Mrs. Dorothy Allgood, eldest daughter of the above-mentioned Mr. Thomas Allgood, bailiff of Hexham (who died 6th September, 1712), some time before her death assigned and made over her fortune to her brother, the Rev. Mr. James Allgood, before mentioned, on condition that if she died unmarried, the interest of 40 l. should be annually distributed to the poor of the town of Hexham, which he agreed to perform.

Elizabeth Cibson, of Hexham, widow, by will, dated 29th December, 1712, gave 201. to the poor of the town of Hxham; the interest to be distributed annually (d).

At the west end of the church of St. Andrew, are the remains of the antient Priory. It has been a spacious and noble building, quadrangular, with a large cloister; the ambulatories very conspicuous on the west side of the garden a few years ago; also an oratory at the south-east corner of the garden, the roof vaulted with stone, and supported with sour Ionic columns.

It was burnt by the Scots, 24 K. Edward I. 1296, together with the west end of the church, and the school-house. In another hostile visit the year following, they lodged in the town, and mal-treated the religious, after letters of protection granted for one whole year to the prior and his convent, with liberty to pass and repass at pleasure for one canon, one squire, and two servants; signed by their leaders, the Earl of Murrey, and Sir William Wallace. They burnt the town of Ryton in their way eastward. Newcastle was too strong for them (e).

(d) Mr. Rit. b. ll's Account of the charities in Tynedale, 1713. News. small 8vo. p. 29.

It was pillaged by David, King of Scots, 20 K. Edward III. 1346. He entered the borders by Liddel-castle, with 40,000 men. They marched to the abbey of Lanercost, Naward-castle, and Redpeth, to this town. They stayed three days. They had determined not to burn this, and three other towns, viz. Corbridge, Durham, and Darlington. They saved them for their convenience, to lay up stores and provisions, for their support. They marched from hence to Ebchester, and after committing many ravages and barbarities, were defeated by the English at Nevil's cross, near Durham (f).

John de Hexham, and Richard de Hexham, two eminent historians, both presided over this monastery. Prior John made an addition of twenty-sive years to the history of Simeon of Durham; from the 9th of K. Henry II. to the 1st of K. Richard.

Prior Richard drew up a short chronicle from Adam to Henry the Emperor. He also wrote the history of K. Stephen and Henry III. But the chief of his historical writings is, An Account of the State and Bishops of the church of Hexham, which make a part of the valuable edition of the Decem Scriptores.

(e) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 299, and p. 300.

(f) ---- Vol. i. p. 240-1.

Part of the priory was repaired by Sir Reginald Carnaby, whose coat armorial is over the coach-house, built by him. It was lately repaired by the present lord of the manour, Sir Walter Calverley, Blacket, Bart. who made a handsome gravel-walk round a large field, on the west side, watered by Hextold's little stream, and on the higher part of it planted small clumps of forest-trees, at agreeable distances.

On the east side of the Market-place, is an antient stone-building, with a clock in it, which was the town-hall, or town-court belonging to the bishops and priors of Hexham. It is still put to the same use. The lord of the manour holds his court in it. It is also the sessions-hall.

Some have imagined, that it was the palace of the Bishops of Hexham, which is a mistake. The Bishops lived in the monastery, over which they presided.

At a finall distance from it is an old tower. It was antiently the town-jail. It is still used for the same purpose.

A little farther castward is a grammar-school, founded by Q. Elizabeth; her letters patent dated 25th June, in the 41st year of her reign, 1598 (g). The master's salary is 20 l. and the usher's 4 l. per annum. The school, and a convenient dwelling for the master, were built at the expence of the town and neighbourhood, 1684. They cost 150 l. They stand upon the brink of an eminence, which forms a fine natural terrace, commanding a most agreeable prospect of the river Tyne, and the neighbouring seats and villas upon its banks.

(g) Ritschell's Account of the Charities in Tynedale.

was

The civil government of the town is by a Bailiff. He is appointed by the lord of the manour, and is commonly continued for life. He is an officer of great antiquity. He has the fame power within his jurisdiction, as the mayor of a city, or a justice of peace, within the county.

In Hexbamsbire, on the plains, called the Levels, by the rivulet of Divil (b), a bloody battle was fought between the two houses of Lancaster and York, 1463; and a decisive victory obtained by the General of the latter, the Marquis of Montacute, who forced the intrenchments. Of the victorious party, were the Ogle's, and the Manners's, of this county. Of the vanquished were the Percy's, the Roos's, the Nevill's, the Tailboys's and the Grey's. The unfortunate K. Henry rode full speed out of the field. His attendants were many of them taken in the purfuit; the furniture of their horses of blue velvet. Upon one of them was found the high cap of flate called Abacot, adorned with two rich crowns, which was prefented to the victorious Edward at York, May 4. His competitors, Henry and his Queen, and some of their partizans, were abandoned to extreme mifery. Single and alone, the Queen wandered with her little fon in her arms, exposed to dangers, and the affaults of robbers, till she reached France, her native land. The duke of Exeter, their friend, became an exile in Burgundy, where he had neither shoes or stockings to put on, and begged his bread from door to door (i). The Duke of Somerfet

(b) Dowill. Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 666, 667.
Dowell. Drayton's Poly-Olbion, p. 154.

(i) During the civil wars between the two houses of Lancofer and York, were fought in Englana seven or eight cruel battles, and in them slain three or fourscore princes and lords of the blood royal. The rest that escaped being all young lords, whose satisfies above P 2 mentioned, was inflantaneously executed at Hexham, after the battle; being a changling and a deferter from Edward. His tomb is in Hexhamchurch, as before-mentioned. A field near the scene of action, called Dux-field, is supposed to take its name from him. Sir William Tailboys, Sir Humphry Nevil, and Sir Ralph Grey, knight of the most noble order of the garter, and captain of the castles of Roxborough and Bambrough, were all three beheaded; Sir Ralph being first degraded of his high honour, by cutting off his gilt spurs, mentioned, lived as banished men in the Duke of Burgundy's court, who received them as his kinsmen of the house of Lancaster, before his marriage with King Edward's sister. I have seen them in so great misery before they came to the Duke's knowledge, that those that beg from door to door were not in poorer state than they: for I once saw the Duke of Exeter ("Henry Holland") run on foot and bare legged after the Duke of Burgundy's train, begging his bread for God's sake, but he uttered not his name. He was the nearest of the house of Lancaster, and had married King Edward's sister, but when he was known, the Duke gave him a small pension to maintain his estate. They of the house of Somerset, and divers others, were there in like manner, who died all afterwards in the wars.

There were three things that contributed to K. Edward IVth's success: First the gentlemen that were in the sanctuaries, and the new born prince: The second, the great debts the king owed in the metropolis; in respect whereof the merchants, to whom he was indebted, thought it their best way to take part with him: The third, a great many women of honour, and rich merchants wives, with whom in times past he had been familiar, perfuaded their husbands and friends to incline to him.

After he was quiet in his realm, he received yearly out of France fifty thousand crowns, paid him in the Tower of London, and was grown so rich, that richer he could not be.

He was the beautifullest prince in the world. He gave himself wholly to pleasures, as to dames, seasting, banquetting, and hunting, after he had vanquished his enemies. He seared no man, but sed marvellously sat, by means whereof in the slower of his age diseases grew upon him, so that he died in a manner suddenly of an apoplexy.

Philip de Cumine's (fecretary to Lewis XI, and to Charles VIII,) invaluable Memoirs, translated by Danet, small fol. p. 63: And Uvedale's translation, with Sleidan's notes, Vol. 1. p. 240.

defacing his coat armorial, and breaking his fword over his head. The Marquis of Montacute was made Earl of Northumberland for his fervice.

Opposite to Hexham, on the north margin of the Tyne, is the Hermitage, formerly belonging to the priory of that town. It was then called Hameshalg (k), i. e. the hamlet in the Halg, haugh, or vale. It was furrounded with wood, and was the favourite recess of St. John of Beverley, to whom the church on the hill behind it is dedicated. On the diffolution of that monaflery, it came to the crown, and was not granted away 10 Q. Elizabeth (1). It was in the possession of John Coatsworth, Esq; 1724; then high sheriff of Northumberland, on whose death it descended to his eldeft fon, Edward, who, dying fome years after, left it by will to his brother Michael and his heirs, and failing them to Dr. Jurin and his heirs. Michael dying without heirs, 1754, it came to James Jurin, Esq; son and heir of Dr. James Jurin, fellow of Trinity College, in Cambridge, 1711, and afterwards an eminent physician in London, well known and esteemed in the learned world for his curious experiments and indefatigable pains in promoting natural knowledge. He was editor of Varenius's geography (m), and author of many learned differtations in the Philosophical.

(k) Heddius. Pr. Ric.

<sup>(1)</sup> Domina Regina Elizabetha suit seisita de certis terris in Hexham, villamque Dalton, Echwick, Halyden, Warden, Carraw, Bingsield, Todderley, Grotington, Acome, Sandhow, Wall, Hermitage, Chantry-close, West-wood, Chollerton, Kirk Heton, Gunnerton, ut de possessionibus monasterii de Hexham.—— Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

(m) In 2 vol. 8vo. Lond. 1711. published at the request of Dr. Bentley, to which is added an appendix, containing the discoveries since that author lived.

ransactions. His dissertation de Potentia Cordis, in No. 358, and epittle in defence of it, in No. 362, both addressed to Dr. Mead, e written in an elegant Latin stile, and his conduct towards his becalled adverfary, Dr. Keil, is genteel and handsome, wherein Acred the fermonum bonos, and vivax gratia, fo much defired Frany conteils (n). He was fellow of the College of Phyand of the Royal Society, also their fecretary on the refig-Dr. Halley, 1721, and their prefident fome months before physician of Guys's hospital, governor of St. Thomas's, und filled by Voltaire, in the Journal de Sçavans, the famous Jurin. He died, 22 March, 1749-50, in the 66th year of his age. His fon, James Jurin, Efq; was educated at the fame college, in Cambridge, and in the latter end of the year 1756, was chosen fellow of the Royal Society. In September, 1757, he married the daughter of John Simpson, Efq; and alderman of Newcostle upon Tyne, whose mother was one of the daughters and coheirs of the antient family of the Andersons, merchants of, and representatives in parliament for, that corporation, from the 7th of K. Edward VI, 1552-3, to the 16th of K. Charles I, 1640; two of whom, Sir Henry and Sir Francis, were knights; their country feat was at Bradley, in the bishoprick of Durham, now in the possession of Mr. Simplon, and lately rebuilt by him after a handsome manner.

Mr. Jurin died in July, 1762. His feat of the Hermitage is now in the possession of his widow, Mrs. Jurin. The front of it was built by the late Mr. Coatsworth; of white freestone, and hewnwork; the back-part and the offices by Mr. Jurin, to whom the whole place is indebted for its present genteel appearance. To the east of the house is a small, but neat garden, sheltered by a clump of tall forest-trees. Before it is a grass-lawn, adorned with fmall clumps of young trees, and extending to a terraced road by the margin of the trout-streams of the river Tync. the north-west is a small pendant copse, or natural grove, thro' which is a terrace-walk, and at the top of it a feat to rest on. Here the melody and harmony of the birds, the whiftling winds through the trees, the voice of falling waters, and the fight of the town of Hexbam, and of that venerable dome, the church of St. Andrew, form a most beautiful scene.

(n) See Ph. Tr. No. 355, 356. 358, 359. 361, 362, 363. 369. 373. 379. 453. 472. 476.

Differtationes Physico-Mathematicæ, 8vo. Lond. 1732. pp. 127.

At the termination of the terrace-walk, is the church of St. John-lee, confishing at prefent only of one ifle, in the jurifdiction of the fee of York.

A little farther eastward, on the brow of a hill, shaded with wood, is

Beau-front, i. e. bellus Locus, the feat of David Carnaby, Esq; 10 Q. Elizabeth (0); and lately of Thomas Errington, Esq; and now of his fon, John Errington, Esq; of the antient house of the Erringtons, of Errington, by Erring-Burn, on the north fide of the Roman wall, from which he derives his name. His ancestor, William de Errington, was high sheriff of Northumberland, 47 K. Edward III (p). Another of the family, Sir Thomas de Errington, was one of the conservators of the borders, 12 K. Henry VI (q). Sir Gilbert de Errington, Knt. was of the party of K. Edward IV, against the house of Lancaster; by whom, and Sir John Manners, of Etall, at the head of 400 men, Queen Margaret, of Anjou, was hindered from landing with her company at Bambrough, and forced to take shelter at Berwick upon Tweed. Nicholas de Errington died in the beginning of the reign of Q. Elizabeth, possessed of Errington, &c. (r); now in the possession of Mr. Errington of Beaufront.

(o) David Carnaby fuit seisitus de et in uno capitali messuagio de Beufront, Gib-7-v. Beumont, Conck-riding, cum certis terris in Port-Yet, et Hexham. Escaet, de anno

(p) Escaet. de anno 47 Ed. III. n. 84, (q) Bp. Nicholson's Border-Law.

The fituation of Beaufront is generally admired, having both fun and fhade, and a delightful vale and river prospect.

From the 18th mile-stone on the military road, on the left hand, we have a fine view of Haly-den, i. e. the Holy Den or Vale, famous for the victory obtained by Ofwald, King of Northumberland, over the British usurper, Cedwall, who had slain his apostate brother, Ansred, King of Bernicia, in a pitched battle, and made a terrible slaughter of his little army. Oswald, to revenge his brother's death, and save his country from destruction, boldly marched at the head of a few brave troops to oppose the tyrant. He chose a convenient camp which he fortified, and relying not on his own arm or his own strength, but on the goodness of his cause, and the protection of heaven, erected a cross before it. Then he and his army on their knees implored a blessing on their arms. The enemy trusting to their numbers, advanced in full considence of victory. Cedwall in imagination reckoning the day his own, and transported with the thought of having full vengeance on the humble Oswald, in person attacked his intrenchments. An arrow met him, and struck him dead. Terrrified at his fall, his men in confusion began to retire. King Ofwald feizing the happy moment, rushed upon them in their fright with his brave followers, and put them entirely to the rout. His fuccess was so much above all human expectation, that the field of battle was called Hefenfelth, i. c. Heaven's Field (r), and Halyden (s). It is watered by Erring-burn, called by Bede, Denisburne, i. e. the Burn in the Den or Valley, on whose banks, he affures us, the battle was fought. A church was afterwards built by the convent of Hexham, and dedicated to St. Ofwald, on the top of the hill by the public road, to commemorate the bleffings of that day, and to put paffengers and others in mind of it, and of their own particular obligations to heaven for the daily mercies they receive. It is ftill ftanding, and was lately repaired, being an appendage to the church of St. John-lee. A large filver coin of St. Ofwald's was found near the place where it was built. His head is represented on one side, sceptered, and the cross on the other. It was for a long time used by the convent at Durham as their common feal, in honour of him. There is a good print of it in the appendix of the learned Dr. Smith's edition of Bede's Church-History (t). In the same vale is a village called Halyton, and Hallington (u), i. e. the Holy Town; in the demesnes of which is a neat modern structure of white freestone, called,

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

(r) Heredes Nichol. Errington fuerunt seisiti de et in Errington, Cockley, Fallowsield, Kepwick, Wharneley, Wharneley-Hill, cum terris in Acome, Hexham, Stonecroft, Prior-House, Hill-House, Nakedale, Ha-plow-field, et Umbres.

Halyton-'Mesnes*, the seat of Ralph Soulsby, Esq; eldest brother of Christopher Reed, of Chipchace, Esq; and brother-in-law to William Fenwick, of Bywell, Esq. Before it is a grass area extending (r) Bede. (s) Lel. Itin. vol. 7. p 58.

<sup>(1)</sup> Append. p. 221.

(u) Ibid. Rotulisq; Northumb.

* Hallyden-Mains, Rot. 10 Eliz. insta citat.

to the brink of a deep gill, wherein is a small stream, which falls a little below into Erring-burn.

A mile and a half east from Halyton, is a hill with a square intrenchment, and a hearth-stone in the center, trenched round, called the Mote-law, i. e. the hill for observing the motions of an enemy, and giving an alarm by fire on any imminent danger. Both it and Halyton are in view from the 18th mile-stone on the military road. From the same place we have also a view of Little Bavington, the feat of the antient family of the Shaftoes; of William Shaftoe, 33 K. Edward I (t); of William Shaftoe, 47 K. Edward III (u); of William Shaftoe, 16 K. Richard II (v); of Alexander Shaftoe, 5 K. Henry V (w); of William Shaftoe, 5 K. Edward IV (x); of John Shaftoe, 6 K. Edward VI (y); and in the beginning of the reign of Q. Elizabeth (z); of William Shaftoe, 19 K. Charles I, 1643 (a); also of William Shaftoe, 1 K. George I. It is now the feat of George Shaftoe Delaval, Esq; high sheriff of Northum-

- (t) Escaet. de anno 33 Ed. I. n. 79.
- (u) _____ 47 Ed. III. n. 84.
- (v) _____ 16 Ric. II.
- (w) _____ 5 Hen. 5. n. 31.
- (x) 5 Ed. IV.
- (y) Bp. Nicholfon's border-laws, p. 214, and p. 332.
- (2) Johannes Shaftoe fuit seisitus de et in parva Bavington, Thockrington, West Harle, et Halliden-Mains, cum tertia parte de Brenckley, ac certis terris in Benwell, magna Bavington, Buteland, et Kirk-Heton.

  Escaet, de anno 10 Eliz.
  - (a) See Parliament. Hist. of Engl. vol. 12. p. 233.

berland, 1740, and a representative for it in the present parliament. By raising plantations, hedge-rows, and buildings, he hath given a kind of new form to it, exceedingly agreeable: To the south-west is an artificial ruin on an eminence; a large and beautiful piece of water to the south, under a bank planted with forest-trees, and a Tempiato at the top; all in view from the south front; a serpentine walk leading to the latter, edged with flowering shrubs. It is in the chapelry of Thockrington (a), a peculiar of the church of York, which was impropriated to it by Richard Bishop of Durham, 1204. It is a prebend, and the lowest in that cathedral; the first fruits, 21. 17 s. 1d. The chapel was lately repaired. It stands on an eminence, and is in view from St. Ofwald's chapel, and the 18th mile-stone; from which we pass on to

Port-gate, near the 17th mile-stone; so called from its giving a passage through it. On a hill by it is a farm-house which takes its name, and was in the possession of Odonell de Carnaby, 10th Q. Elizabeth (b), and lately of William Errington, Esq; and now of his nephew, Henry Errington, Esq; of Sandhoe, younger brother to John Errington, Esq; of Beaufront. By its high situation, and one or two forest-trees by it, it is distinguished at a great distance. The very foundations of the Roman wall, and foss, have been digged up, plowed, and sown with corn.

(a) Tockrington. Browne Willis's Survey of the Cathedr. vol. i. p. 168; where is a lift of the prebends.

(b) Odone!! de Carnaby fuit seisitus de et uno capitali messuagio vocat. Port-Yet.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

A little below Port-gate, we come to the Hermen-ftreet, fo called from Hermes, Mercurius, the god of the high ways, and Cuftos Manium. It is more generally known by the name of Watling ftreet (c). It croffes the Tyne at the Roman flation, Cor-chester (d) by the ostium of the streamlet Cor, famous for the Roman curiosities and antiquities found at it. It is not mentioned in the Notitia, and therefore is thought to have been abandoned before that description of the Roman empire was penned. It contains several acres. A small space within it is called Corbow, supposed to have been the Pratorium.

The Romans had a bridge of arches over the Tyne at this station, as well as at Cilchester, the fabric of which must have been very curious, where the current is rapid and formidable after heavy rains, and sudden thaws of snow from the mountains and hills. The arches of their bridges were usually wide over such rivers, formed with the greatest geometrical nicety, the pillars multangular, the base of each secured by horizontal arches gradually contracted, every stone in them of a vast length and wedge-like,

- (e) See Mr. Horsley's Britann. Roman. on the four grand Roman ways in Britain, p. 387. Estay on the same in Mr. Tho. Herne's Lel. Itin.
- (d) Corstopitum. Antoninus. Dean Gale. Camden. Corstopilum. Burton. Hen. Surita.
  Corstopilum. Rich. of Cirencester.
  Cor-chester.

The Curia or Coria Ottadinorum of Ptolomey affigned to this station by Camden, is referred to Scotland, to the Gadeni, by the Hon. Baron Clerk, the ornament of his country, and of learning. His judgment is confirmed by the monastic antiquary, Ric. of Cirencester, and by Dr. Stukely, the latter placing it at Corston-law in Lothian,—the Coria of the Gadeni, their metropolis.

laid level with the water. Such stones are now lying in the river by both these stations, with iron-cramps in them. In the upper part of the pillars were apertures or openings to give a passage to impetuous and raging sloods (e).

An abundance of Roman coins of the later empire have been turned up by the plow; now in the cabinet of the Rev. Mr. Walton, vicar of Corbridge.

The Roman moneys were often notoriously adulterated, as appears from some coining molds of their's found about the year 1697, in delving a field near Thorp on the hill, by Wakefield, in Yorkshire, and described by Mr. Thoresby (f). In later times there have been counterfeits, for the sake of the high price they bore.

Many feals of Roman work are in the possession of Mr. Walton, found at this and the neighbouring stations; but none of them antiques; all of the lower empire, engraved on carnelians, and stones of the lower class. They are all entaglios, not one cameo among them. Greek and Roman antiques were always of the most exquisite workmanship; engravings on gems, pebbles, and stones of the first order for beauty and lustre. The beril, the chalcedony, the emerald, hyacinth, the topaz or modern chrysolite, and the garnet, were favourites. The chrystal pebble, and the amethyst, were also esteemed. They also used the onyx, the fardonyx, the agate-onyx, the jasper, the hæmachates, or blood-stone, which they valued for cameos. Other kinds were not used by the Romans till the lower empire, when the arts were upon the decline. Then carnelians, and stones of an inferior class, were introduced. Of this order and species are the intaglios, found at our Roman stations, hardly worthy of a description, having neither crudition, good workmanship, beauty and politure, which constitute the merit of antiques, and recommend them to the notice and esteem of the curious.

(e) See the figure of a Roman bridge in the Ph. Tr. No. 160.

(f) Ph. Tr. No. 234.

The Greek masters excelled the Romans in the art of sculpture and engraving, who resigned their genius more to occonomical and political refinements. This is allowed by a great Roman.

Excudent alii spirantia mollius æra,
Credo equidem; vivos ducent de marmore vultus;
Orabunt causas melius; cælique meatus
Describent radio, et surgentia sidera dicent.
Tu regere imperio populos, Romane, memento;
Hæ tibi erunt artes, pacisque imponere morem,
Parcere subjectis, et debellare superbos.

Virg. Æn. vi. ver. 847, &c.

The fubject nations with a happier grace,
From the rude stone may call the mimic face,
Or with new life inform the breathing brass:
Shine at the bar, describe the stars on high,
The motions, laws, and regions of the sky:
Be this your nobler praise, in times to come,
These your imperial arts, ye sons of Rome!
O'er distant nations to stretch your awful swey,
To bid those nations tremble and obey.
To crush the proud, the suppliant soe to rear,
To give mankind a peace, or shake the world with war.

Pitt.

About a quarter of a mile east from Cor-chester, is Cor-bridge, an antient borough on the north banks of the Tyne, croffed by a bridge of feven arches; the manour of which was granted by the crown, 6 K. John, to Robert, fon of Roger de Clavering, baron of Warkworth, to hold, with all its regalities, in feefarm, by the annual fervice of 40 l. with the privilege of a weekly market, and an annual fair on the eve, day, and day after the festival of St. John the Baptist (g). It had also the privilege of fending two members to parliament, which privilege was difused on the account of the burthen of the members expences; the names of two of whom are on record, viz. Adam Fitz-Alan, and Hugh Fitz-Hugh, 23 K. Edward I (h). John, the last Baron Clavering, granted the reversion of his honour of Warkworth, and of this and his other manours in this county, to the crown, 6 K. Edward I (i); which were given by K. Edward III, to Henry Lord Percy (k); and are now in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Northumberland.

(g) Testibus P. Dunelm. episc. Data per manum Jocelini de Welles, apud Eboracum, 8to die Marcii, anno. R. Johannes sexto.

Rot. Claus. de an. 6to R. Johannis, m. 14.

Robertus filius Rogeri tenet in capite de domino rege villam de Corbrigge cum omnibus ferviciis pertinent. ad feod. ferm. quam dom. rex ei dedit ad fermam, et per chartam suam confirmavit, reddendo inde annuatim ad scaccarium dom. regis xxx. lib. de vet. feosfam. et nunc de increm. per ann. xl. lib.

Testa de Nevill.

Johannes filius Roberti tenet in capite de domino rege Corbrigg, et est burgus ad seodi sermam per ann. xl. lib. solv. tamen dom. rex talliat burgenses ejusdem vil'æ cum dominicis suis comitatus.

Certificat. Hug. de Bolbeck, vice-comitis Northumbr.

Of this manour, and the crown-rent, 3 K. John, see Madox's Ferma Burgi, cap. iii. p. 54.

- (h) Browne Willis's Notitia Parliamentaria.
- (i) Rot. Clauf. de anno 6 Ed. I. m. 2.
- (k) Pat. de anno 2 Ed. iii. p. 1. m. 20.

See Warkworth.

Cor-

Cor-bridge is a large, populous, well-built-village. The church is an antient structure, dedicated to St. Andrew. Under an arch, at the end of the north isle, is a grave-stone with the following inscription.

hic тасот и токків aslivi filius hugo.

K. Henry I, gave the impropriation and advowson of this church and of the churches of Warkworth, Whittingham, and Rothbury, to his chaplain, Richard de Aurea Valle, and after his death to the church and canons of St. Mary in Carlisse (1).

To the poor of this parish, Madam Elizabeth Ratcliff, widow of Sir Edward Ratcliff, of Dilston, Bart. and mother of Francis, Earl of Derwentwater, by will, dated, 18th December, 1668, gave, out of an annuity or rent-charge of 20 l. per annum, which she then had of Mr. Francis Sutton of Green-Crost, 10 l. to the poor of this parish; to be distributed annually on St. Lucio's day, or thereabout.

Mrs. Ursula Mountney left 20 s. per annum, for the same use.

Mrs. Anne Swinburn, of Dilfton, by will, gave 46 l. to the poor of this parifh, to be distributed at Dilfton, upon St. Thomas's day before Christmas.

(1) Henr. Rex Anglia Ran. Dunelm. Episcopo & Rogero Picoto & omnibus fidelibus suis Francis & Anglis & ministris de Northumberland, salutem. Sciatis me dedisse Ricardo de Aurea Valle Capellano meo, quatuor ecclesias de quatuor meis maneriis; scilicet Wereheorda, & Colebruge, & in Witingham, & in Rodeberia, tam in terris quam in decimis & in hominibus quæ ad terras harum ecclesiarum pertinent, cum Seca & Soca, & Tol & Tean & Infanzeneteph, cum omnibus suis consuetudinibus volo ut ipse habeat & teneat: tu vero Rogere Picot. . . . cum inde, aut Aiuricus de Colebruge, aut Hamo Balistarius præpositus, aut Ernewinus præpositus. T. Roberto Episcopo Lincoln. & Willielmo de Werlewast, & Eurardo silio comitis, & Thoma capellano apud Circestriam, in natale S. Joh. Bastistæ.

Carta Regis Henrici I. Monast. Angl. Vol. ii. p. 73.

Madam

Madam Ann Ratcliff, of Dilfton, Sister to Francis Earl of Derwent-water, gave to the poor of this parish 10 l. per annum; also 30 l. per annum, to bind apprentices.

The Rev. Mr. Robert Troutbeck, vicar of this parish, by will, without date, made in the time of health, and declared and published to be his will, 12th May, 1706, gave to the poor of the parish of Corbridge and chapelry of Halton, a certain messuage and lands in Corbridge which cost him 100 l. the annual rent to be distributed to them by one of the name of Troutbeck, or by the minister and churchwardens for the time being. He also gave 50 l. to the poor of the parish of Dacre in Cumberland, where he was born; and another 50 l. to the parish of Bownesse in the same county.

On the fouth fide of the church, is an old tower, which was the town-gaol; and near it is the market-crofs, now diffused.

A large piece of Roman plate was found in the bottom of an enclosure on the fouth side of the town, by the river Tyne, in March, 1735. It was found in a boggy place by a little girl belonging to a Smith, as she was at play with two or three other children. The close belonged to Richard Carnaby. The sine raised work, and sculptures upon it, induced the children to carry it home to the Smith's to play with. The Smith soon discovered it to be worth his care. He took it privately to Newcastle, and sold it to Mr. Cookson, a Goldsmith, in that town; with whom it did not remain long, before it came to the knowlege of his Grace the Duke of Somerset, who claiming it as Lord of the manour, it was sent to him; and is now in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Northumberland. It weighs 148 ounces. It is in shape Vol. II.

like a tea-board, twenty inches long, and fifteen broad, hollowed about an inch deep, with a flat brim an inch and a quarter broad, nearly flowered with a vine full of grapes, &c. Under the middle of it was a low frame, about feven inches long, four broad, and one and a half deep. This was broken off by the Smith. The following curious account of the fculptures, and of the use of it, was given in a letter to Mr. Cay of Newcastle, by that learned and eminent antiquary, Roger Gale, Esq.

"I shall begin from the right hand of the plate as you look at "it, where Apollo, the principal figure in the whole plate, is "placed under a fmall Temple, or Fanum, supported by two " wreathed columns with flowered capitals, almost naked, hav-" ing only a Pallium hanging down from his left shoulder over "his back: In the fame hand is his bow, which he holds up to-" wards the top of the column on that fide; his right is extended "downwards with a branch in it, perhaps of laurel, cross the "other pillar; against which rifes a pyrimidical pile of eleven " pieces, beside the top; for what it is intended I must confess " my ignorance. Against the basis of the left hand-column rests "a Lyre, whose form is truly antique: beneath it grows a plant "with three spreading flowers upon its three extremities, de-"figned, as I believe, for a Heliotrope, and close by it couches a " Griffin with its wings elevated over its back. The antients had " a high opinion of the fagacity of this fictitious animal, and "therefore confecrated it to their God of Wisdom. In Bergerus's "Thefaurus Palatin. is a medal of Commodus, the reverse whereof " is Apollo drawn in a chariot by two Griffins, and the poet Clau-" dian alludes to his manner of riding thus in the following " diftich.

- "At si Phœbus adest, et frenis Grypha jugalem
  - "Riphæo, Tripodos repetens, detorsit ab exis, &c.
- "Close to the right hand column, and this pyramidal pile, it fits a woman upon a square four-footed stool, though no more than two of its legs are visible; she looks backwards over her left shoulder towards Apollo, is wrapt up in a long garment, or Stola, from head to foot, and veiled: by this dress and attire, and an altar with the eternal fire burning upon it just by her, which was brought with her from Troy, I take her to be Vesta.
  - " Manibus vittas, vestamque potentem,
  - " Æternumque Adytis effert penetralibus ignem. Virg.
  - " Et vos virgineâ lucentis semper in arâ
  - " Laomidontiæ Trojana Altaria flammæ. Sil. Ital.
- "The next is a woman erect, her hair gathered up, and tied with a knot behind; upon her forehead rifes a Tutulus, and she is habited in a Stola from the shoulders to the ground. Her right arm is wrapt up cross her breast in her garb, only the hand appearing out of it; in her left she holds a spear, the shaft twisted, the iron of it something obtuse. This seems to be the only human sigure in the company; but a very learned gentleman of my acquaintance thinks it may be designed for Juno, who is often thus accoutred with a spear. If so, it must be the effigies of the Juno Curis, or Juno bastata; we have it from Ovid,
  - " --- Quod hasta curis priscis est dicta Sabinis.
- "She was the same with Juno Pronuba. "Celebri hasta nubentis "caput comebatur, vel quia Junonis Curitis in tutela esset, vel ut R 2 " fortes

- "fortes viros ominaretur"; but as there is no Peacock, or any other attributes of her divinity attending her, and her appearance no ways majestic, nor adequate to the
  - " --- Divum Regina, Jovisque
  - " Et foror et conjux-
- "I cannot be entirely of his opinion, especially as she follows, and seems to be an attendant of the next figure, which is
- "Pallas, Galea effulgens et Gorgone savâ, the head of that monster, as usually, being fixt upon her breast. In her lest hand she holds a sharp pointed spear, her right is extended towards "Diana, with whom she seems engaged in a very earnest discourse, to which also that other Goddess is very attentive." She is
- "The last figure of the group, (though called a man in all the accounts I have seen of this table) and represented here as the Diana Venatrix by the seminine dress of her head, tucked up with a knot behind like the hair of the third sigure; by the bow in her lest, and arrow in her right hand; her short Tunica, which reaches down a little more than to the middle of her thighs, and her buskins that come up no higher than the calf of her leg, have occasioned this mistake of her sex; but Ovid tells us,
  - "Talia succincta pinguntur crura Diana "Cum sequiter fortes, fortior ipsa, feras."
- "Between the two figures of Pallas and Diana rifes a tall flender tree, with a crooked waving flem, the branches of which are displayed

"displayed at the top almost over  $\frac{2}{3}$  of the plate. On the main branch is perched an Eagle, with one wing expanded. This is of raised solid work like the rest of the figures, but there are feveral small birds sitting among the boughs that are only punched, or cut in with a tool, as are also several sessions hanging down from the tree, and other little shrubs and slowers interspersed all over the area of the table. The great bird sitting directly over the head of Pallas, and the attendance of the little birds about it, made me think it was her Owl, till I had seen the original, which convinced me, that it can be designed for nothing but an Eagle.

"Under this tree stands an Altar, and so close to Diana, that she holds her left hand and bow over it. It is but a small one, and has nothing upon it but a small globular body, perhaps a mass of the Libanina ex Farre, Melle, et Oleo.

"I should have told you, that below the feet of Pallas grows a plant that seems to bear two ears of corn upon the stalk, but cannot say what it is, or how it belongs to her: beneath the tree, and the little altar, stands a thin-gutted dog, like a Grey-hound, his nose turned up in a howling or barking posture, as often exhibited with this goddess on medals, and in other representations of her, some

" ---- acutæ vocis Hylactor

"Under her, in the very corner of the plate, rifes a Rock, upon which she fets her left foot, and against the side of it lies an "Urn, with its mouth downwards, discharging a plentiful stream of

&quot; Aut fubstricta gerens Sicyonius Ilia Ludon.— Ovid.

- "of water. As the flands upon this rock, or hill, and to near to this fpreading tree, I cannot but think of Horace's address to her—
  - " Montium custos, nemorumque, Virgo.
- "The whole table is encompassed with a border, raised near an inch high, and ornamented with a creeping vine; the grape and leaves are in relievo, but the stalk only tooled.
- "The work of this curious piece is neither of the best nor worst of times; the figure of Vesta particularly is extremely well executed, the posture very free, the drapery soft and easy; and what is very remarkable, the Instita or border, an ornament of the Stola appropriated to the Roman ladies of quality,

" Quarum fubsuta talos tegit instita veste,

Hor.

"is neatly worked all round this our Vesta: nor is the next figure much inferior. I cannot, nor any body else that has seen it, discover that the plan has any relation to any story in the Heathen Mythology, but seems only an assemblage of the Deities it represents. This may be some argument of its antiquity, for had a modern workman had the designing of it, he would, in all probability, have taken some known piece of history for his fubject: to which I may add, that all the symbols are genuine, and truly adapted to their owners.

"I once thought it might have been the cover of an Acerra, but the foot, which supports it, puts an end to that surmise. "We do not well know what the Anclabris was; the definition of it is in Festus," Mensa divinis ministeriis apta, dicebantur autem

- "Anclabria et Anclabris, ab anculare, quod erat ministrare."
- "This is big enough to contain the Exta of a sheep, and other
- " fmall victims, which feems to me the likelieft employment for
- "it: and that it was one of those facrificing utenfils that Virgil
- " more than once calls Lances.
  - "Lancibus et pandis fumantia reddimus exta.
    - " ____ Lancesque et liba feremus.
    - "Dona ferunt, cumulantque oneratis lancibus aras.
- "The Lances were both round and square; the Discus, used in
- "facrifices for the fame purpose, seems to have been always "round."

A print of it was published by Mr. William Shaftoe.

Two famous altars, with Greek inscriptions, were found in . Corbridge church-yard; one in honour of the Tyrian Hercules, dedicated to Diodora the priestess; large, hollow at the top, as usual . for incense.

Η Ε Ρ Α Κ Λ Ε Ι ΤΥ Ρ Ι Ω Δ Ι Ο Δ Ω Ρ Α Α Ρ Χ Ι Ε Ρ Ε Α.

The other is in honour of the Syrian Goddess, Astarte, and thus read by the learned Stukeley (1).

ACTAPTHC
BΩMONM.
ECOPACT
TOYAXEPM
ANEΘΗΚΕΝ.

(1) Caraus. Vol. ii. p. 161.

Marcus.

Marcus Esorast, the son of Acherm, dedicates this altar to Astarte. He supposes these names to be Syrian, Arabic, or Punic: Marcus, the Prenomen to be adoptive, to romanize him; and that he is the priest, who set up the altar.

That of Hercules was published by Mr. Horsley, who reputed it one of the greatest curiosities of the kind in Britain. It is now in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Northumberland. The other is in the possession of Mr. Walton*. The honourable Mr. Baron Legge gave the inscription to the Royal Society, and it has been elaborately explained by one of their learned members, Mr. Bowman.

Hercules was the fymbol of the Sun. Julian informs us (m), that magnificent fports were celebrated at the conclusion of the year  $\sqrt[4]{\lambda} \log \frac{1}{\mu} \sqrt{m} \sqrt{\pi} \omega$ , to the invincible Sun. And the inscription, Soli invicto, is found upon the medals of many of the Roman Emperors.

Divine honours were paid to him in open temples and groves, the inflitution of which is very antient.

Primusque Potitius auctor, Et domus Herculei custos pinaria sacri Hanc aram luco statuit, quæ maxima semper Dicetur nobis, et erit quæ maxima semper.

Virg. Æn. viii. ver. 269, &c.

* Since dead, and his collection of Roman and other antiquities fold by his executors to the Hon. and Rev. Mr. Graham, of Netherby, in Cumberland.

(m) Orat. iv.

See Maundrell's Travels, or Journey from Aleppo to Jerusalem, p. 21.

Potitius

Potitius first, his gratitude to prove,
Ador'd Alcides in the facred grove;
And, with the old Pinarian facred line,
These altars rais'd, and paid the rites divine,
Rites, which our sons for ever shall maintain;
And ever sacred shall the grove remain.

Pitt.

Aftarte was the fymbol of the Moon, being worshipped by moon-light in open temples and groves, first with pure, and afterwards with impure, rites. In the facred writings she is stilled Ashtaroth, also the Deity and abomination of the Sidonians (n); a mercantile people, to whom a curious author ascribes the first invention of building long ships of war, and the contrivance of silling them with oars, in such a manner that no void spaces might be left (o). The Prophet complains, that Solomon went after Ashtaroth, the Goddess of the Sidonians. Jezabel sirst paid her divine honours in Israel; the most antient Temple that of Ascalon; 400 Prophets attending her.

Her altar here is thought to have been made by a marine legion, raised by Hadrian in Syria, called, The Ulpian legion; which in Maximian's time followed the fortunes of Caraufius.

She is represented on coins as cloathed in a short garment, nuda genu. On the reverse of a medal of Antoninus Pius, struck at Orothofia, a maritime town in Syria, we have her treading on a river (p). That antient city and Corbridge have in one respect a similar situation, being both built on a rising ground, and on the northern banks of a river (q).

(n) Judg. 2. 13. (o) M. Meilomii de Fabrica Triremium, Lib. 4to. Anst. 1671.

(p) Stukeley's Caraus. (q) Dr. Shaw's Travels.

In fight from Corbridge, on the other fide of the Tyne, is Dilston, a contraction of Devilstone, so called from its situation on the eastern banks of the stony brook Devil; the villa, manour, and seat of the antient family of the Devilstone's; of Sir Thomas de Devilstone, in the reign of King Henry III (r); and of Sir Simon de Devilstone, in the reigns of King Edward I. II (s). It was afterwards successively possessed by the Tynedales (t), the Crasters (u), the Claxtons (v), and the Ratcliss. It was in the possession of Sir George Ratcliss, of the antient house of the Ratcliss of Car-

- - (5) Escaet. de anno 18 Ed. I. et de anno 11 Ed. II.

Certificat. Hug. de Bolbeek. Vice-comit. Northumbr. Simonus de Devilstone tenet in capite de Dom. Rege villam suam de Devilstone per tertiam partem unius Feod. Milit. vet. Feoffam. Esc. de anno 1 Ed. I.

- (t) Escaet. de anno I Ri. II.
- (u) ____ Crawster obiit seisitus de et in manerio de Devilstone, cum advocatione unius Gant. Sanctæ Mariæ Magdalen. infra idem manerium. ___ Escaet. de anno 1 Hen. IV.

Richardus Crawcester tenet manerium de Devilstone cum pertinen. in comit. Northumbr. de rege in capite per servic. tertiæ partis unius seodi militis.

Trin. Fin. de anno 13 Hin. IV. Et Escaet. de anno 4 Hen. V.

(v) Gulielmus Claxton, certus filius Willielmi Claxton, filii Edvardi Claxton, filii Dionisia, fororis Willielmi de Tynedale, patris Willielmi, Emmæ nuper uxoris Richardi Crawcester, confanguin, et hær, ejustem Emmæ tenet manerium de Devilstone in comit. Northumbr, de rege in capite per servic, tertiæ partis unius seodi militis.———

Mich: Fin. de anno 2 Hen. VI.

tington, 10 Q. Elizabeth (w); and of Sir Edward Ratcliff, Bart. whose estate was sequestred by the parliament, 4 K. Charles II. 1652; and whose fon and heir, Sir Francis Rateliff, Bart. married the Lady Mary Tudor, natural daughter of that King, by Mrs. Mary Davis, and was created Baron of Dilfton, Viscount Langley, and Earl of Derwentwater, 3 K. James II, 1687. He was succeeded by his fon, James Earl of Derwentwater, who married Mary-Anne, the daughter of Sir John Webb, of Dorfetsbire, Bart. His Lordship being under attainder, 1715, this and his other effaces (x) were forfeited to the crown, and given to Greenwich-hospital. His relict, Lady Derwentwater, died on the 19th of August, 1723, of the fmall pox at Bruffels, aged about 30 years. Her corpfe was carried the day after she died to Louvain, to be interred there in the church of the English regular canonesses of St. Austin. In December 1731, the young Lord Derwentwater died; whose fister, a fortune of 30,000, married the Lord Petre, 2d May, 1732.

Half a mile east of the 16th mile-stone on the military road, on the right hand, by a small cottage, is the Roman station, Hunnum, or Halton-Chefters, at the head of a pleafant flope (y). As fome labourers were turning up its foundations for the fake of the flones to mend the road, they met with a centurial flone with the following infcription, within a civic garland, the creft of the imperial eagle at each end.

(w) Georgius Rateliff, miles, fuit seisitus de et in manerio de Devilssone, de et in manerio, castro, et villa, de Cartington, cum medietate villæ de Throckley, et certis terris in Sniter, et in Thrompton.——Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

(x) See the Rental in the Append. published by Order of the Parliament.

(y) Harfley's Britan. Roman.

LEG. II. AVG.

F.

It is now in the custody of Sir Edward Blacket, Bart. They also found one of those instruments, called, Extispicia, used by the Auspices in examining the bowels of animals. It was in the form of a pencil, or Roman Stylus (z), of wood, very hard.

They found another centurial stone, broken off at one corner, inscribed,

LEG. XX. VV. HORTENS. PROCUL.

This legion performed an annual folemn facrifice of a hog or boar to Ops, the Earth, and to Ceres, after harvest, in grateful return for it (a).

An abundance of stag's horns, lying by heaps of muscle-shells, were digged up at the same time; also some small copper-coins of Constantine, and his two sons, and of the two usurpers, Magnentius and Decentius (b).

A filver coin of Nero's was found at or near this station, which came into the possession of Mr. Walton.

- (z) Baron Clerk's Differtation, de stylis veterum, et diversis chartarum generibus, Ph. Tr. No. 420.
  - (a) Stukeley's Caraus. Vol. i. p. 198.
  - (b) Of which, see Thoresby's Topogr. of Leeds, from p. 326, to p. 131; and p. 336.

Many urns, both of fine and coarse pottery, have been digged up, but all broken by the incautious workmen.

A little below this station, and in fight, is Halton-Tower, the feat and manour of the antient family of the Haltons; of John de Halton, in the reign of K. Henry III (c), and part of the reign of K. Edward I (d); and of his fon, William de Halton, of Denum, 17 K. Edward I (d), high sheriff of Northumberland, 25 of the same reign (e); on whose death a mediety of it came to his sister, Margaret, who was succeeded by her kinsman, Robert de Lowther (f); the other mediety being possessed by a branch of the Carnaby's, of Carnaby, near Bridlington, in Yorkshire, by marrying another sister and coheir. On the death of Robert de Lowther, in the beginning of the reign of K. Richard II (g), the samily of Carnaby had the whole manour, by whom it was

- (c) Johannes de Halton tenet in capite de dom. rege Halton, Clarewood, et Weittington, in Dringagium, et reddit dom. regi per ann. x. et debet talliari cum dominicis regis, ac debet Heriotam, et Merchet.

  Certificat. Hug. de Bolbeck, vice-comit. Northumbr.

Willielmus de Halton, silius et hæres Johannes de Halton, dat regi vi Marc. pro relevio suo, pro sex annis quas solvit regi pro manerio de Halton.

Mich. Fin. de ann. 16, et 17 Ed. I.

- (e) Dugd. Monast. Angl. vol. ii. p. 92.
- (f) Robertus de Lowther, consanguines et hæres Margaritæ siliæ Johannis de Halton, tenet medietatem manerii de Halton et Clarewood de rege in capite, pro sidelitate, per servicium xxxviii. in Dringugio, et vii. ad Cornagium, per annum, pro omnibus serviciis.

Trin. Fin. de anno 38 Ed. III.

(g) Escaet. de anno 10 Ric. II.

possessed for many generations; by William Carnaby, 9 K. Hen. IV, 6 K. Hen. V, and 7 K. Hen. VI, then high sheriff of Northumberland (b); by Sir John Carnaby, 35 K. Henry VI, and 4 K. Edward IV (i); by Sir Reginald Carnaby, high sheriff of Northumberland, 33 ...K. Henry VIII (k); by Sir Cuthbert Carnaby, high sheriff of Northumberland, 9, and 15 Queen Elizabeth (1); by Sir William Carnaby, knt. who was a representative in parliament for Morpeth, 21 K. James I, 1623, and for Northumberland, 3 K. Charles I, 1628; of which he was high sheriff, 11th of the same reign. He was a member for Morpeth again, 16 K. Charles I, 1640, and was expelled the house, 26 August, 1642, for refusing to attend it, and raising forces for his majesty. He was at the battle of Marston-moor, in the Northumberland-regiment commanded by the Marquis of Newcastle, with whom he retired beyond feas after the battle. Serjeant-major Carnaby was taken prisoner by the parliament-forces at the battle of Wakefield, 21 May, 19 K. Charles I, 1642.

In one of the rooms joining on to the tower, is preferved an old fword of the Carnaby's, 64 inches long.

Such fwords as this were used by the Gauls in their wars with the Romans; as a defence against which, the Roman general, Camillus, contrived a shield or buckler, of iron-work, of the Parma-

- (h) Escaet. de anno 9 Hen. IV. 6 Hen. V. No. 37. 7 Hen. VI. Puller's Worthies.
- (i) Escaet. de anno 35 Hen. VI. - 4 Ed. IV. (k) Fuller.

<sup>(1)</sup> Cuthbertus Carnaby fuit seisitus de et in manerio de Halton, Halton-sheels, Clarewood, Lyham, et Satlingstones, de et in medietate villæ de Magn. Whittington, cum terris in Newbiggen, ac de in White-house, Ayden-Hall, et Carr-Houses, cum terris in Harnham, et Morylee. Escaet, de anno 10 Eliz.

kind, of a round form, and adorned with study of brass. Mars Bellator or Gradious, not Quirinus, is usually described with such a shield. It was part of the Armatura Equitum, and carried in the left hand. The ingenious and humane antiquary, Mr. Ralph Thoresby, of Leeds, was possessed of one, of which he published a description, and a neat print, with a learned differention (m).

At the time that this country was infested with those thieves, called Moss-Troopers, one of this family had a commission to apprehend and try them. Whilst he was deeply engaged on the trial of some of them, a very notorious and desperate villain was seized by his son, who asked his father what he should do with him; Do with him, said the father! Why, hang him. As soon as the trial was ended, he ordered the man to be brought before him, but was told he was hanged instantly, according to his order. On complaint being made to the crown, a fine of 4 l. per ann. was laid upon Halton-estate, which is still paid.

It was purchased by John Douglas, of Newcastle upon Tyne, Esq; who, 1706, set forward the rebuilding of the old parochial-chapel, towards which he gave 146 l. 17 s. 2 d. and the freeholders of Whittington gave 78 l. 1s. 1 d.. It stands at a small distance from the tower, on the east side. Divine service is performed at it every third Sunday in the forenoon by the minister of Corbridge.

John Douglas, Esq; was succeeded in this and his other estates by his son, Oley Douglas, Esq; a representative in parliament for Morpeth, 1713, whose only daughter and heir marrying Sir Edward Blacket, Bart. they are now in his possession.

Halton-Tower is small, and square, having four speculating turrets at top, and is covered with lead. It stands on the east side of a small stream, above a bank of tall forest-trees. About a mile south from it, is Ayden-Castle, so called from its situation on the brink of a high or steep den or gill; the borderers pronouncing high, Ay. It was the feat of Emma de Ayden, a rich heirefs, 1 K. Edward I, who was disposed of in marriage by that King to Peter de Walles (n), who had it for the term of his own life. He also had Burneton, i. e. the town by the burn, or brook, and Little Whittington, for the fame term (o). His name was local, from Walles in France, the castle and vill of Sir Richard de Walles, 34 K. Henry II, 1187, fituated between Erie and Gifors; whose fon, Ralph de Walles, was flain, and many of his father's fervants wounded, in an encounter with Henry Vere, constable of Gifors, under the English general, William Earl of Albermarle, in the defence of his workmen, fortifying his castle of Walles. One of the three itinerant judges appointed by K. Henry I, 1176, for the northern counties, was Robert de Walles (p). The orthography of the name of the celebrated Scotch patriot, Sir William de Walles, or Wallase, and that of Peter and Robert de Walles, are alike in our old annals (q); and it is not improbable, but that Sir William was derived from the fame flock; and that their ancestors came into Britain at the Norman conquest.

(9) Id.

(n) Emma de Ayden suit seissta de Aiden, cum Castro; est de dono dom. regis, et marriata est Petro de Walles.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

(o) Petrus de Walles tenet Ayden, cum castro, Burneton, et parva Whittington. 1d.

(p) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 98; and p. 103.

The manour, castle, and half of the village of Ayden, came afterwards to the antient family of the Raymes's, of Bolham; and were in the possession of William de Raymes, 43 K. Edward III (r), high sheriff of Northumberland, 16 K. Richard II (s); alive, 3 K. Henry IV (t); of Edward de Raymes, 35 K. Henry VI (u). We find a medicty of them possessed by Robert de Raymes, 10 Q. Elizabeth (v), high sheriff of Northumberland the year following (w); and by Henry de Raymes, in the reign of K. Charles I (x); the other medicty of the manour and castle of Ayden being in the possession of the Carnaby's of Halton (y).

Ayden-Castle, with the manour of Ayden, was purchased by John Douglas, Esq; and is now in the possession of Sir Edward Blacket, Bart. The castle stands on the west side of the den, watered by a small stream, above a precipice, the east end of which, being the steepest, is called Jack's Leap, from a young man's casting

- (r) Willielmus de Raymes obiit seisitus de et in manerio de Ayden, medietate villæ de Ayden, medietate manerii de Bolham, et una placea in Cramlington. Escaet. de ann. 43 Ed. III.
  - (s) Escaet. de anno 16 Ric. II.
  - (t) _____ 3 Hen. IV. n. 21.
  - (u) --- 35 Hen. VI.
- (v) Robertus Raymes fuit seisitus de et in medietate manerii de Bolham, cum villa, et de et in Short-flat, South Middleton, cum medietate de Ayden, Witton, et certis terris in Hawkwell, et Stamfordham.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.
  - (w) Fuller's Worthies.
- (x) Henricus Raymes, arm. confanguin. et hæres Roberti, tenet in capite medietatem hamlet. et maner. cum castro, de Ayden, et sex messivag. et terras ibidem.

Ex Lib. feod. Pet. Ofborne, Militis.

(y) Vid. Halton.

himself headlong from it. It has been a large and strong building, but most of it is now in ruins. It is encompassed with a high stone-wall, pierced with arrow-holes; within which is a stable built entirely of stone, without any timber, the roof of arch-work, and the mangers of stone. It has a fine prospect of Hexham, of Beaufront, and the river Tyne.

Between the 14th and 13th mile-stones, on the military road, a neat road branches off from a handsome gate on the left hand. to West Matsen, which in the reigns of K. John and Henry III, was the manour of Philip de Ulcote, who held it by grand Sergancy, by the fervice of keeping the pleas of the crown (z). He was joined in commission with Hugh de Baliol, 17 K. John, 1216, to hold. the castle and town of Berwick upon Tweed against the barons (a). He was high sheriff of Northumberland, 16, 17 K. John (b), and 1, 2, 3, 4 K. Henry III (c). He died, 15th of the last reign. He was fucceeded in this and his other estates by his five fisters, viz. Alice, Margaret, Juliana, Isabell, and Constance, as was found by an inquifition in that year (d).

It

Alice de Ulcote, Hameline de Buggthorp and Margaret his wife, Alured de Barneby and Juliana his wife, Thomas de Stratton and Isabell his wife, and Daniel Nicholfen and Constance his wife,

(z) Philippus de Ulcote tenet West Matsen et Nafferton per sezjanc. pro servicio custodiendi Testa de Nevill. placita coronæ.

(a) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 189.

(b) Escaet. de annis, 16, 17 Joh.

(c). _____ 1, 2, 3, 4 Hen. III.

(d) de anno 5 Hen. III.

It was afterward in the possession of the Feltons; of Sir William de Felton (e), high sheriff of Northumberland, 5, 6, 7, 8 K. Edward II (f); and 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 K. Edward III (g); also a representative for it in parliament with Sir Robert de Manners of Etall, 14 K. Edward III, 1340; who were allowed by the county, 23 l. 4s. for their expences (b): of Sir John de Felton, 42 K. Edward III (i); of his son, Sir John de Felton, high sheriff of Northumberland, wife, gave fourfcore thanks, that they might have the land of Nafferton and Matsen, and two messuages in the town of Newcastle upon Tyne, which late were of Philip de Ulcot, together with the custody of the king's coronership and forestership in the county of Northumberland, belonging to the said lands: which lands, together with the said custody, do belong to the said Alice, Margaret, Juliana, Isabella, and Constance, sisters and coheirs of the said Philip de Ulcot. And the said Alice, Hameline, Margaret, and others, attorned the said Daniel and Constance by their consent, to render the said fine, and to answer to the king for the said custody.

Madox's Hist. of the Exchequer, p. 320.

- (e) See Mitford-Castle.
- (f) Escaet. de annis, 5, 6, 7, 8 Ed. II.
- (g) _____ 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 Ed. III.
- (h) Madox's History of the Exchequer.

Willielmus de Felton tenens terras (in Matsen et Nafferton) quæ suerunt Thomæsilii Roberti de Blythe, dat regi v. pro relevio ipsius Thomæ, pro lxv acris terræ, sex acris prati, et sex villanis:

Rot. Mich. Fin. anno 2 Ed. 10.

Willielmus de Felton tenens terram quæ fuerat Richardi filii et hæredis Johannis de Bromferton, dat regi x. pro relevio dicti Richardi, pro quibusdam tenementis in Matsen, in comit.
Northumbr. Tenet de rege in capite per servicium x. per annum dom regi.

Rot. Mich. Fin. anno 7 Ed II.

Willielmus de Felton obiit seisitus de et in manerio de West Matsen, &c.

Escaet. de anno 33 Ed. III.

(i) Johannes de Felton obiit seisitus de et in manerio de West Matsen, &c.

Escaet, de anno 42 Ed. III.

14 K. Richard II (k). He died, 4 K. Henry IV. He left one daughter, Elizabeth, married to Sir Edward de Haftings (l), who at her mother's death, 10 K. Henry V, succeeded to this manour and other lands, according to a deed of settlement made by the above-mentioned Sir William de Felton (m). She, and her husband, Sir Edward, had a considerable estate in Matsen and Nasserton, 8 K. Henry IV (n). He was high sheriff of Northumberland, 6 K. Henry, V (o). He was succeeded by his son, John de Hastings.

(k) Escaet. de anno 14 Ric. II.

(1) Dicunt juratores super sacrum suum, (viz. Thomas Heron, senr. de Melden, Nichalous Turpin, de Whitchester, Johannes de la vale, de Benwell, et alii) quod Johannes silius Johannis de Felton, chr. obiit Die Mercurii proxime ante sestum Purisicationis beatæ Mariæ ult. præter. Et quod Eizabetha silia prædicti Johannis Felton, chr. uxor Edvardi Haysings, chr. est hæres prædicti Johannis propinquior, virtute cujusdem donationis quam Willielmus de Felton secit patri prædicti Johannis de Felton, chr. et hæredibus de corpore suo exeuntibus, viz. silio prædicti Johannis de Felton, chr. sthæredibus de corpore suo exeuntibus, viz. silio prædicti Johannis de Felton, chr. silii prædicti Willielmi, cui dicta donatio in seodo talliato sacta suit.

(m) Dicunt juratores super sacrum suum (viz. Thomas Lilburn, Willielmv. H.) gge, Willielmus Bednell, et alii) quod Elizabetha, quæ suit uxor Johannis Felton, desuncti, tenuit die quo obiit manerium de Matsen West, &c. et quod Johannis Hastings est rectus et propinquior hæres dicti Johannis Felton, viz. silius et hæres Elizabethæ, silæ et hæredis ejustem Johannis Felton.

Inquisit. capta apud Morpath Die Sabbati proxime post Ascensionem dom. 10 Hen. V. ex bundello escaetr. turri Lond. n. 23.

- (n) Edvardus Hassings, chr. et Eiiz. uxor ejus, filia et hæres Johannis de Felton, tenent sexaginta acras terræ, sex acras prati et sex villanas in Matsen et Nasserton, in comit. Northumbr. de dom. rege in capite, &c.

  Rot. Hillar. Fin. turr. Lond. anno 8 Hen. IV.
  - (o) Escaet. de anno 6 Hen. V.

In 10 Q. Elizabeth, this manour was in the possession of Sir Ralph Lawson, of Biker (p); who was succeeded by his nephew and heir, Henry Lawson, Esq; ancestor of the present Sir Harry Lawson, of Brough, near Richmond, in Yorkshire, Bart.

It was afterwards in the possession of a branch of the Fenwicks, of Fenwick-tower; also of John and Oley Douglas, Esq; and now of Sir Edward Blacket, Bart. high sheriff of Northumberland, 1757. Sir Edward's feat is a neat stone-building, on a rising ground; a grass-slope before it by the rivulet of Pont, crossed by a small bridge; a vista extending from it for two miles to the military road; tall forest-trees on each side of the slope for shelter and ornament; a walk of a considerable length to the east, with borders of slowers and slowering shrubs.

In a field, on the east side of the vista, about three quarters of mile from the house, is a circular mount, with a round cavity in the middle, of the form of the Celtic tumuli, or temples; an upright stone pillar standing by it, of a great size, nine feet high above ground, with slat sides, three feet broad, and a foot and a half thick. This stone now bears the name of the Stob-stone, and gives its name to a farm-house hard by. The mount is composed of earth and numerous masses of stone of the coarse ragkind, many of which have been digged up for the use of this farm, and among them were discovered two stone-chests or coffins, consisting of sour slags set edge-ways, with a bottom-stone, and a stone-cover, containing the asses of the dead, appearing like a white dust.

Temples and funeral memorials like this, with cepititious or stone-altars, and an upright pillar, untouched by the chiffel, are the most antient of any in the world, were raised in Judea, and all over the Holy Land, by the eastern princes and patriarchs, by whom they were called Bethels, and Elbethels. The manner of confecration was with oil poured on the pillar. One of thefe pillars was erected by Jacob, and he called it the House of God. --" Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that "he had put for his pillows, and fet it up for a pillar, and pour-" ed oyl upon the top of it. And he called the name of that place "Bethel: but the name of that city was called Luz at the first. "And he faid, this stone which I have set up for a pillar, shall "be God's House (p).--Jacob came to Luz, which is in the land " of Canaan (that is, Bethel) he and all the people that were with "him. And he built there an altar, and called the place Elbe-" thel (q).—And Jacob fet up a pillar in the place where he talked "with God, even a pillar of stone, and he poured a drink-offer-"ing thereon, and he poured oyl thereon. And Jacob called the " name of the place where God spake with him Bethel (r)."

The making of the altars of earth, or of natural stone as formed in the earth, was by the direction of God to Moses.——" An "altar of earth thou shalt make unto me. And if thou wilt 'make me an altar of stone, thou shalt not build it of hewn "stone: for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, thou hast polluted "it (s)."

These temples were generally erected on the higher ground, such as were most conspicuous and obvious to sight. Thus one was built by Moses (t), and another by Joshua, on

(p) Gen. xxviii. ver. 18, 19. 22.

(s) Exod. xx. ver. 24, 25.

(q) --- xxxv. ver. 6, 7.

(t) Deut. xxvii. ver. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

(r) - xiv. 15.

mount Ebal, composed of whole natural stones, or pillars plaistered with plaister, whereon they wrote the divine laws, in a great and general assembly of all Israel, of all the princes, great officers, judges, and people of every rank and quality, strangers and others, old and young (u).

Single pillars were also erected by these holy men over the graves of the illustrious dead by some public and much frequented road, to have their memories preserved, and to put the traveller in mind of their exemplary virtue and piety, of his own short continuance on the stage of life, and to sit and make himself worthy of such another honourable memorial at his death, and of an eternal diadem. Thus Jacob buried Rachel, the solace and partner of his cares, who died with the birth of their son Benjamin.——"Rachel died and was buried in the way to "Ephrath, which is Bethlehem. And Jacob set a pillar on her "grave: that is the pillar of Rachel's grave unto this day (v)."

Persons of inferior condition and figure were buried under the shady oaks that flourished at the bottom of the mounts on which the Bethels or temples stood. They were called the Oaks of Weeping,—" Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, died, and she was buried bemeath Bethel, under an oak: and the name of it was called Al-"lon-backuth (w)."

Heaps of stones, rudely cast together, were the tombs they assigned to infidel-enemies after execution, even crowned heads, in avenues and places of great concourse, to be warnings to the rest of mankind, how they rose up against the God of Israel, dis-honoured his Bethel, or holy temple. Such a memorial had the king of Ai, executed by Joshuah.——"As soon as the sun was "down, Joshuah commanded that they should take his carcase "down from the tree, and cast it at the entering of the gate of "the city, and raise thereon a great heap of stones, that remain—"eth unto this day (x)."

(u) Jos. viii. ver. 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35.

(v) Gen. xxxv. ver. 19, 20.

, (w) Gen. xxxv. ver. 8.

Such a memorial likewise had Achan and his family, whose bodies were first burnt to ashes, with all their treasure and wealth (y).

Hence the open temples, the pillars, the obelifks, the confecrated groves of oak, the heaps of flones, reared by the pagans to their false gods, and to the memory of the dead. Hence the  $\mathcal{E}_{gyptian}$  pyramid. Hence the fair column of the Greeks(z), of the Romans, and of the several nations taught and ruled by the Druids; the primitive religious rites accompanying mankind upon their grand dispersion at the tower of Babel, about the 400th year after the flood, according to the Samaritan computation (a).

A road branches off from the 14th mile-stone, on the right, hand, to

(x) Jos. viii. ver. 29.

(y) Jos. vii. ver. 24, &c.

(z) Hom. Odyss. lib. 1. Clemens Alexandrin. lib. 1. Herod. lib. 5. Paufan. in Barot. et in Ach. Arnob. contra Gentes, lib. 1.

(a) Borlase's Antiq. of Cornwall, p. 6, 7.

See Stukeley's STONEHENGE, and ABURY.

Bywell, the barony of Hugh de Baliol in the reign of K. Henry III (b), high sheriff of Northumberland for ten years together (a); of John de Baliol, in the latter part of the same reign, and 1 K. Edward I (c); one of the twelve great lords, chosen by the barons, to treat in the three parliaments, 42 K. Henry III, 1258, with the king's council, for all the commons, upon public business; no more being chosen to make a parliament, or to represent the community, to save, says the record, the public charges, the members expences being defrayed by their respective constituents.

It was afterwards in the possession of the Nevills, Lords of Raby and Bolbeck; of Sir John Nevill, 1, and 12 K. Richard II (d); of Sir Ralph Nevill, created Earl of Westmorland, 21st of the same reign; and earl marshal of England by K. Henry IV; his patent, dated 30th September, 1399, at Westminster (e); father of Richard Movill, his second son, who married Alice, only daughter and sole heir

(e) Rym. Fæd. Angl. tom. viii. p. 89. Acta Regia, vol. ii. 8vo. p. 69.

(b) Fuller's Worthies.

(c) Johannes de Baliel tenet in capite de domino rege Newlygyne; Woodhorne, cum Lynmouth et Hirst, membris suis; Halywell, Lynton; Ellington, cum Cresswell et Aidon, membris; Bitchfield, Heddon nig. Stamfordham, cum Ulkston, membr. Nuton et Nuton, Acomb, Stelling, Ovington, Eltringham, Mickley, Whetinslaw, Faldershaw, Bromeley, et medietatem de Bywell, per quinta seoda vet. seossamenti.— Escaet. de anno 1 Edvardi I.

(d) Dugdale's Summons to Parliament.

Escaet. de anno 12 Ricardi II.

of Thomas Montacute, Earl of Salisbury, stain at the siege of Orleans in France, 7 K. Henry VI. 1428; lamented throughout England, the glory of its arms declining in France from that period; favouring the prediction of K. Henry V, in the 9th year of his reign, at the siege of St. Maur in France, That Henry of Windsor should lose all that Henry of Monmouth had won, alluding to his own, and his son's, nativity. This Richard, whose feat was at the castle of Middleham, in Yorkshire, was created Earl of Salisbury, in right of his lady, by whom he had three sons, Richard, John, and George. Richard married Ann, sister and heir of Henry Beauchamp, Earl, and afterwards Duke, of Rerwick, in whose right he was created Earl of Warwick. John was the samous Marquis of Montacute, who commanded the forces of the house of York at the battle of Hexbam, before mentioned. George was Archbishop of York, famous for his installation-feast.

The old Eurl of Westmorland, their grandfather, was living in the glorious reign of K. Henry V, and was then high warden of the marches towards Scotland, and eminently distinguished by his eloquence in the British senate (f). He had his education in Italy. His successors, Earls of Westmorland, were all named Ralph, in honour of him, till the time of Henry, Earl of Westmorland, summoned to parliament, 1 Q. Mary, 1553; and 1 Q. Elizabeth, 1558; one of the lords who, 2 Q. Mary, carried before her, and her confort, Philip of Spain, one of the swords of state to the parliament, in their robes of state, on horseback.

Henry was fucceeded by Charles, Earl of Westmorland, one of the eleven lords who protested against the act declaring the validity of English ordinations, 9 Q. Elizabeth, 1566. He was in arms against the Queen, 12th of her reign, 1569, for which his honour of Bywell, and all his other honours and lands, his seat of Bramspeth-castle, near Durham, where his followers resorted to him, were forseited by a bill of attainder, 15 May, 1571. He escaped beyond sea, where he died (g).

<sup>(1)</sup> See his speech in the Parliamentary History of England, vol. xi.

The following furvey was taken, among his other honours and estates, of the baronies of Bywell and Bolbeck, by Edmond Hall, and William Homberston, by her majesty's commission, bearing date 18th March, 1569, and 12th of her reign.

" Bywell and Bolbeck are two antient baronies, and are fituate in "the extreme fouth part of Northumberland, between the rivers of "Tyne and Derwent; and albeit they be joined and mixed toge-"ther, yet are the rents and tenants fevered and known the one " from the others. And to the barony of Bywell belongeth a fo-" rest of red deer, well replenished with game, which extendeth "also into the barony of Bolbeck, and the faid two baronies or "lordships are thus abuttaled. That is to fay, the lordship of "Hexham on the west, and the lordships of Prudhow and Chipwell " on the east, the river of Tyne for the most part on the north, and " the river of Derwent on the fouth, and containeth in compass "twenty two miles; that is to fay, in length from the east to the west fix miles, and in breadth from the river of Tyne to the ri-" ver of Derwent five miles; within which two baronies are many "gentlemen and freeholders who hold their lands of the faid "baronies by feveral fervices, and are always attendant upon "the lords of the faid baronies in time of fervice, when

(g) Camden in Kennet.

" they shall be thereto commanded: And the farms and tenements " in the faid baronies are well planted with coppice woods for the " preservation of the red deer; and in the wastes are divers woods," " and very fair courfing with greyhounds; whereof one wood is "called Highley wood, growing difperfed one mile and a half "from the town of Bywell towards the west, planted with oaks, " and part old birches of 80 and 100 years growing, containeth " 100 acres. One other wood, called Bailiff wood, on the fouth " part of the town of Bywell, and well fet with birches of 50 and " 60 years growth, disposed in divers parts, containeth 80 acres. " And one other wood, called Through-Deane, in Eastwood, which " was a large wood, containing by estimation 140 acres, and was " all old birch and fallen about 30 years past, and never inclosed, "by reason whereof the spring was utterly destroyed; yet is "there birch fprung up again, of the very nature of the foil, in " great plenty, fo as in the process of time there will be a wood " of birch again.

"The town of Bywell is builded in length all of one street upon the river or water of Tyne, on the north and west part of the fame; and is divided into two several parishes, and inhabited with handicraftsmen, whose trade is all in iron-work for the horsemen and borderers of that country, as in making bitts, stirrups, buckles, and such others, wherein they are very expert and cunning, and are subject to the incursions of the thieves of Tynedale, and compelled winter and summer to bring all their cattle and sheep into the street in the night-season, and watch both ends of the street, and when the enemy approached the raise huy and cry, whereupon all the town prepareth for rescue of their goods, which is very populous, by reason of their trade, and stout and hardy by continual practice against the enemy.

"To the barony of Bywell belongeth the fishing of Salmon of the water of Tyne, in length three miles, which is a great commodity, and great plenty of falmon taken, and a dam or bay over the river, made very strong of late years for the prefervation of the said fishing.

"Also in Bywell town, on the north side of the river of Tyn;
"the ancestors of the Earl of Westmorland builded a fair tower or "gate-house, all of stone, and covered with lead, meaning to "have proceeded farther, as the foundations declare, being the "height of a man above the ground, which were never sinished,
"and the said tower is a good defence for the town, and will
"foon decay, if it be not maintained.

"The barony of Bywell extendeth into the towns and hamlets of Bywell St. Peter, Bywell St. Andrew, Acomb, Nuton, Ovington, Mickley, Bromley, Newlands, Ridley nova, Styford, Shyryden, and Eyfunghope; and the barony of Bolbeck extendeth into the towns and hamlets of Brome-haugh, Ryding, Heley, Shotley, Slaley, Mynfreacers; all which towns and hamlets are inhabited with men of good fervice, and have very good farms, and able to keep much cattle, and get plenty of corn and hay, were it not for the continual robberies and incursions of the thieves of Tynedale, which so continually assault them in the night, as they can keep no more cattle than they are able to lodge either in house or like safety in the night; and all the tenants hold their lands by indenture for term of years, which are very fineable when their leases are expired.

"The lord of the faid baronies hath the leet within all the limits of the fame, and all waifes, estrays, felons goods, and amer-

"amerciaments, and all other royalties, cafualties, and profits, "rifing or growing by reason of the leet." (b)

Bywell, after its forfeiture to the crown, was purchased by a branch of the antient family of the Fenwicks, of Fenwick-Tower (i); and was in the possession of William Fenwick, Esq; high sherist of Northumberland, 12 Q. Anne, 1713; and of the late John Fenwick, Esq; high sherist of Northumberland, 2 K. George II. 1728; and a representative of it in several parliaments till the time of his death; father of the present possessor of Bywell, William Fenwick, Esq; who married Margaret, sister to John Bacon, of Newton-Cap, in the Bishoprick of Durham, Esq; (k); and was high sherist of Northumberland, 1752.

His feat is at the west end of the village. It is a modern, genteel structure, after a design in Mr. Pain's architecture, of white freeslone, and hewn work. It is in a bounded, low, but delightful situation, beautifully rural, by the banks of the river Tyne, having a grass-lawn before it to the fouth, with a dwarf-wall, and a high road between it and the river, the south borders of which are adorned with stately oaks, and other forest-trees, and some pieces of statuary, which on a sunny day are sinely imaged by the water. To the east it has in view not only a pleamant garden, noted for early productions, but also two churches within so small a distance almost as a stone's-cast from each other, a salmon-weir, two pillars of stone in the river which formerly supported a bridge, the ruin of the old baronial-castle, and another of the domestic chapel, facing it, on the southern margin of the river.

(h) MS. penes Gulielmum Fenwick, de Bywell, Arm.

(i) See Fenwick-Tower.

A perspective view was published of this villa some years ago, before Mr. Fenwick rebuilt his seat, and made all the other agreeable improvements about it.

One of the churches is dedicated to St. Peter, to the poor of which parish, Madam Elizabeth Rateliss, of Dilson, widow, by will, dated 18 December, 1668, gave 4 l. per annum out of an annuity or rent-charge; to be distributed annually on St. Lucie's Day.

Joseph Teasdale, of Bromley, by will, dated 16th Feb. 1699, gave to the poor of the same parish, 1 l. per annum.

Mr. Thomas Brown, of Newton-Hall, by will, dated 13th September, 1703, gave 10 l. to the poor of the same parish.

The other church is dedicated to St. Andrew; to the poor of which parish, Mr. Thomas Brown, by will, gave 5 l. One of its vicars, the Rev. Mr. Hutton, afterwards vicar of Warden, augmented the vicarage by the donation of a tenement in Bywell, called, Three-Quarter-Land, which he had bought for the term of fixty years, of which about forty were then remaining. His succeffor in this parish, the Rev. Mr. Hall, made it perpetual, by purchasing the same tenement of Sir John Fenwick, of Wallington, Bart. the indenture bearing date, 5th July, 1651. In 1713, it was valued at 8 l. per annum (1).

In the year 1760, as one Robinson, a mason, was angling in the river Tyne at Bywell, after a fall of rain, he took up a small silver cup, as it was rolling on the waves, full of earth, of Roman fabric; the following infcription round the brim,—

<sup>(1)</sup> Account of the Charities in Tynedale by the Rev. Mr. Ritschel, Minister of Hexham.

DESIDERI VIVAS.

He fold it to Mr. Longlands, a goldsmith in Newcastle upon Tyne, for 15 s. of whom it was claimed by William Fenwick, Esq; as Lord of the manour, who now has it. It was probably washed out of the banks about Corbridge, where other Roman vessels of silver are said to have been formerly turned out by the sloods.

The Romans were very curious in their drinking-cups. Some of them had the portraits of their friends in enamel-painting at the bottom, which they used in the hours of good fellowship to drink to their memories. This cup seems to have been for festivals, and birth-days, when it was customary—Genio indulgere. Desideri is the name of the person to whom it is inscribed.

On the other fide of the Tyne, near the river Derwent, is Bolbeck (m), the Barony of John de Bolbeck, in the reign of K. Henry III (n); and of Hugh de Bolbeck, I K. Edward I (o); who dying

- (n) Bolbeck.
  Bulbeck.
- (n) Johannes de Bolbeck tenet in capite de Dom. rege Baroniam suam de Bolbeck per servicium quinque seod. milit. Et omnes antecessores sui per eund. Servicium post tempus dom. regis Henrici primi tenuerunt, qui eos seossav. Et de tenemento illo nulla est alienario, &c. unde dom. rex minus habeat de servic. suo.

Testa de Nevill.

(0) Hugo de Bolbeck tenet in capite de dom. rege Bolbeck, Stiford cum Spereden membro suo, Brome-haugh, Heley, Shotley, Hedden super murum, Hedwyne west, Hedwyne east, Whitdying without iffue-male, it came to his four daughters and coheirs; viz. Margery, married to Nicholas Corbet, and afterwards to Ralph, fon of William, Lord Greyfock; Alice, to Walter de Huntercomb, Baron of Wooler; Philippa, to Roger de Lancaster; and Maud, to Hugh Baron of Delaval. Alice and Maud having no iffue, the whole Barony was divided between Nicholas Corbet, and Roger de Lancaster (p). We find a mediety of it in the possession of Robert de Whitchester cum Houghton membro suo, Thornton, Wallington, cum suis membris, viz. Camhoe, Farnilaws, et Fawnes; Benwell, Echwicke, Elswicke, Fenham, Hartburn, Angerton, Middleton south, Middleton north, Hugh, Burton, Berle, Fenwicke, Matsen east, Hawkwell, Harnham, Shastoe, Shortslat, Harterton-hall, Hawicke, Kirk-Harle, Rotheley, Newton-grange, Swethope, et medietatem de Bywell, per quinque seoda veteris feossamenti.

Escaet. de anno I Ed. I.

(p) Dicto Hugone desuncto ei quatuor filiæ cohæredes: quarum Margeria prima suit maritata Nicholas Corbet; Waltero de Huntercombe Alicia suit maritata; duæ aliæ sorores, una videlicet est maritata Rogero de Lancaster, et alia Hugoni de la vale. Et tota hæreditas ejus divisa suit inter eas. Postmòdum, Alicia quæ suit uxor Walteri de Huntercombe, et uxor Hugonis de la vale obierunt sine prole, et tunc iterata est partitio inter dict. Nicholaum Corbet et Margeriam uxorem ejus, et Rogerum de Lancaster et uxorem ejus, ut per cedulam quam Edvardus de Estet quondam Senescallus terrar. predict. conservavit, et huic rotulo gallicè conscriptam.

Seur account les fees et les fervices de le Baronie de Bolbeck a le purpartie Nichol Cotbet et margere fe feme en allowance del autres fees et fervices allotes a le purpartie Roger de Lancastre et se feme, et le autres personers super la mort Hughe Jadys Baron de Bolbeck.

Le fervice Robert de Raymes de fee de Shortslat. Item, les service Johan. de Fawdon du fee de Echewyke. Item, les service Johannis de la Vale de see de Benwell: les service Willielmi de Seton de see de Proudehewland. Item, les service Johannis de Weltdene; et Nichol. de Loun de see de Thornburgh. Des services, subditt. les anantditez Nichol. et Marger, suerunt sessez. Rog. de Lancaster y mort qr. estat Monsieur Robert de Herle clayme anoire.

La moyte de la purpartie Hugh de le vale et se seme allotz de les purpartie seiseitz en valoue des autres services allotes de la purpartie l'ananditez Rog. et se seme, de la moyte de la Vol. II.

de Herle, of Kirk Herle, heir of Roger de Lancaster, 24 K. Edward III (q); in which he was succeeded by Sir Ralph de Hastings, his nephew, by his sister Margaret (r); the other mediety belonging to William Lord Greystock (s).

The Barony or Lordship of Bolbeck, called the Barony of Kyrkland in the record subjoined, was in the crown, 12 Q. Elizabeth, 1569, when a survey of it was taken, as before-mentioned (t). It now belongs to George Baker, of Ellemere-Hall, in the Bishop-rick of Durham, Esq; allied to George Baker, Esq; the founder of six exhibitions, in St. John's College, Cambridge; and to Thomas Baker, B. D. Fellow of the same college, a celebrated antiquarian, author of the reslections on learning, and who left many MS. volumes in solio to the public library of that university.

By the river Derwent, near Bolbeck, is the abbey of quartie partie le Barone de Kyrkland; 1 d. ob. de Nichol. de Skyrmynton; 1 s. 2 d. ob. de Abbe Blaunchland de Byrkynsyde, &c. &c.

Les services allotes a la purpartie Monsieur Rauf Fitzwilliam et la ananditez Margerie se seme, &c. per brief de Roye direct, ad escaetor, comit. Northumbr, per evident, de eis fact, et retorn, en la Chauncellarie.

- (q) Robertus de Harle, filius et hæres Willielmi de Harle, dat regi 51 Marc. pro relevio suo, pro medietate Baroniæ de Bolbeck.———Paschæ Fin. 24 Ed. III.
- (r) Radulphus de Hastings, miles, filius Margarita, sororis et hæredis Roberti de Harle, militis, tenet de rege in capite medietatem Baroniæ et Bolbeck in comit. Northumbriæ.

Paschæ Fin. 40 Ed. III.

- (s) Willielmus de Greyslock, Baro de Greyslock, tenet alteram medietatem Baroniæ de Bolbeck.——Ibid.
  - (t) See Bywell.

Blanchland (u), founded by Walter de Bolbeck, 1175, and dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, for twelve Premonstratensian canons, with liberty to exceed that number, with the consent of the Bishop of Durham. He gave it the Lordship, and demesnes, and advowson of the church of Blanchland, the appropriations and advowsons of the churches of Herelaw and Bywell, of Stisord, of Shotley, of Apperley, and of the church of Heddon on the Wall, dedicated to St. Andrew; the tithes of the village of Wulwardhope, and ten sishes for their table out of his sishery of Stisord, in lieu of tithe-sishes (v).

The abbot was summoned to parliament, 23, 24 K. Edward I. At the suppression it had fourteen canons. Its annual revenues were then valued at 40 l. 0 s. 9 d. Dugd. 44 l. 9 s. 1 d. Speed. It was granted to John Bellow and John Broxholm, 37 K. Henry VIII. It came afterwards into the possession of Sir John Forster, knight-baneret, and of Sir Claudius Forster, created a Baronet, 17 K. James I, March 7th 1619. It was forseited to the crown by the attainder of Thomas Forster, junior, Esq; in 1715; and purchased by the - (u) Blanca-Landa.

  Abba-Landa.
- (v) Tanner's Notitia Monast. fo. p. 393.

Vid. in Mon. Angl. Vol. ii. p. 611, 612, Cart. 54 Hen. III. m. 13. per inspex. recit. Cartas duas Walt. de Bolbeck fundatoris, unam de situ, fundatione, et donationibus suis Abbatiæ; alteram de ecclesia de Heddon; cartam Hugonis de Bolbeck, de diversis terris et pasturis juxta slumen Derwent, &c. concessis.

Confirmat. Cart. Abbat. de Blanca Landa, 11 Ed. II. n. 72. Claus. 31 Ed. III. m. 36. de advocatione abbatiæ.

Stev. Append. p. 5.

Bourne's Hist. of Newt. p. 142, of a House in Newcastle.

Right Honourable and Rev. Lord Crew, Bishop of Durham, his uncle, who left it to charitable uses (w).

Between the 12th and 11th mile-stones, on the right hand, by Welton-burn, a road branches off to Welton-Tower, a corruption of Wall-Town, i, e. the Town by the Wall (x), where Sigebert, King of the East Saxons, and Penda, King of the Mercians, with all his great Lords and attendants, were baptized by Finan, Bishop of Lindisfarn (y). It was the seat of the antient family of the Welton's; of Simon de Welton, 10 K. Henry IV (z), 9, 10 K. Henry V (a), and 14 K. Henry VI (b); of Thomas de Welton, 25, 35 K. Henry VI (c); of Simon de Welton, 5 K. Edward IV (d); of Michael Welton, 19 K. Charles I, 1643, who was then one of the parliament-commissioners for sequestring lands in Northumberland, an act being passed the year before, in June, that this and the other northern counties should be on the same footing as Ireland, and the lands and estates of many great families shared among such as would advance money to bring them under their power.

(b) _____ 14 Hen. VI. n. 34.

(c) 25, et 35 Hen. VI. (d) 5 Ed. IV. n. 30.

The

The tower is on a rifing ground, and in fight together with the village, from the Wall, being only a field's length from it.

At the restoration, the Rev. Mr. John Davis, fellow of Magdalen college, in Cambridge, and minister of Bywell, being displaced for not complying with the act of uniformity, retired to this village. He died in 1670 (e).

A road branches off by Welton-burn, on the right hand, to Fenwick-Tower (f); the feat of the antient family of the Fenwicks; of Thomas de Fenwick, in the reign of K. Henry III, a benefactor to Hexham-priory, to which he gave fix messuages, and three plow-lands in East Matsen (g); of Robert de Fenwick, 33 K. Edward I (h); of John de Fenwick, high sheriff of Northumberland, 32 K. Richard II (i), who married Mary the youngest daughter and coheir of William de Strother in the reign of K. Henry IV (k), with whom he had the estate of Wallington (l); which, with this of Fenwick-Tower, continued in his family till the beginning of the reign of K. William III, when they were both fold to Sir William.

- (e) Bp. Kennet's Histor. Regist. p. 892.

  Dr. Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, Part II. p. 151.
- (f) Fenwyke-Pile. Pile. Lel. Itin. Vol. 7. Fenwick-Hall. Camden's Britan. p. 855.
- (g) See Hexham-Priory.
- (b) Escaet. de anno 33 Ed. I. n. 79.
- (i) _____ 22 Ric. II.
- (k) _____ 3 Hen. IV. n. 20.

(1) See Wallington.

Blacket, of Newcastle, Bart. by Sir John Fenwick, Bart. son-in-law to the Right Honourable Charles Howard, Earl of Carlisle.

The tower is now in ruins, on the west side of a small stream, in a low situation, the grounds on the south side to the banks of the river Pont watry and fenny, from which the village obtained the name of Fen-wick.

A mile east from Fenwick-Tower, is

Stamfordham, a pleasant, well-built village on the banks of the Pont, the manour of which, with le Hugh, was granted by Sir William de Hilton, to Sir William de Swinburn, 23 K. Richard II. 1399 (m); and was given, with the same le Hugh, to John de Swinburn, of Nasserton, by his kinsman, Sir William de Swinburn, 21 K. Henry VII, 1506 (n) and is now, with the said le Hugh, in the possession of Sir Edward Swinburn, of Cap-Heaton, Bart.

- (m) Omnibus hoc scriptum, &c. Willielmus dominus de Hilton, miles, salutem, &c. remissse, &c. Willielmo de Swinburn, militi, &c. totum jus, &c. in Stamfordham, le Hugh, &c. Sigillat. His testibus, Roberto de Ogle, Roberto De la val, Johanne de Fenuick, militibus; Johanne de Musgrave, et aliis. Dat. apud Stamfordham, anno regni regis Richardi secundi post conquestum Angliæ vicessimo tertio.
- (n) Sciant, &c. quod ego Willielmus Swinburn, miles, dedi, &c. Johanni Swinburn, confanguineo meo (de Nafferton) et hæredibus de corpore suo legitime procreatis, omnes terras, &c. de le Hugh et Stamfordham, &c. et si contingat præsatum Johannem obire sine hæredibus, tunc revertere præsato Willielmo de Swinburn, et hæredibus suis in perpetuum. Ego vero dictus Willielmus, et hæredes mei omnia, &c. pæsato Johanni Swinburn, et hæredibus de corpore suo legitimè excunt. warrantizabimus et descudimus. Sigillat. his testibus, Roberto Ogle, Johanne Bartram, et Reberto Harbettle, militibus. dat. apud Hughe, Die Sabbati proximè ante sessum purificat. Beatæ Mariæ Virginis, anno regni regis Henrici Sept. post conquestum Angliæ vicessimo primo.

Cartæ penes dom. Edvardum Savinburn, de Cap-Heaton, Baron.

It is a well-built town, of one long and wide street, on a slope; a covered market-cross, nearly in the center; on a square pinacle at the top, on the east side, this inscription,— Erected by Sir John Swinburn, Bart. 1736. His coat armorial on the other fide.

It has an annual fair, April 21; and another on Holy Thurf-day; also one the Thursday after the 26th day of August.

Opposite to the market-cross, on the south side, is a free-school, founded by Sir Thomas Widdrington, Knt. 1663, who endowed it with the land at the Hugh, pleasantly situated at the east end of the town; sloping to the river Pont, valued, at that time, at 10 l. and in 1727, at 40 l. and now at 80 l. per annum.

On the west side of the market-cross, is the church. It has three isles, and a gallery at the west end. In the north wall of the chancel, in a nich, is the effigies in stone of a knight templer, in the usual habit and attitude, said to have been one of the Fenwicks, of Fenwick-Tower (0).

To the poor of this parish, Henry Paston, of Black Heddon, Gent. by a deed made, 14th March, 1698, gave 12 l. per annum, out of the rents of his estate at Black Heddon and Wallridge; to be distributed by the minister and church-wardens at four several terms, viz. 1st May, 1st August, 11th November, and 2d February (p).

On the fouth fide of the church, is the vicarage-house; lately repaired, with large additions, after an elegant manner, by the

<sup>(0)</sup> MS. penes Gulielm. Fenwick, de Bywell, Arm.

(p) Account of the Charities in Tynedale, by the Rev. Mr. Ritschel.

Rev. Thomas Dockwray, D. D. the prefent incumbent; over the fourth entrance, the following infcription.

ÆDES HASCE REFECIT THOMAS DOCKWRAY. MDCCLXII.

The house and gardens contain about five acres; the latter cast into a new and genteel form by Dr. Dockwray; a slew-brick-wall in it of eighty feet; a fine terrace extending east and west before the house; a mount of slowers on an irregular grass-lawn below it; with borders of slowers and slowering-shrubs; encompassed for about two parts by the Pont; with a variety of walks, some of them under an evergreen-shade, to the west; a little island, formed by the Pont, to the east, crossed by a new slone-bridge of two arches; a grove of tall forest-trees on its southern banks; the small villa of Hawkwell behind them, partly discerned through the trees: the western vale-prospect bounded at the distance of four or sive miles by a semicircular ridge of hills; the villas of Ryal and Inghow visible through the clumps of trees in the meadows, both on eminences, the latter on limestone, with a chapel in it.

A short mile east from Stamfordham, on the south side of the Pont, is Cheesburn-Grange, the manour of which belonged to the priory of Hexham (q). It was the feat and estate of Gawen Swinburn, Esq; 10 Q. Elizabeth (r); and of Thomas Widdrington, Esq; of Grey's Inn, of Stamfordham-school, above-mentioned; brother-in-law to Thomas Lord Fairfax; for some time recorder of York; also Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, 1647, with a salary annexed of 1000 l. per annum; speaker to the parliament, 1656; and Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, 1658. He wrote the history of York, of the MS. copy of which the ingenious and learned Mr. Drake hath given us a particular account in the preface to his history and antiquities of that city (t). He left four daughters and coheirs, one of whom, Mary, married Sir Robert Markham, of Sedgebroke in Nottinghamslire, Bart. descended from the samous Judge Markham, displaced for his integrity by K. Edward IV. His estate and seat of Cheesburn-Grange are now in the possession of Ralph Riddel, Esq; brother to Thomas Riddel, of Swinburn-Castle, Esq.

(q) See Hexham-Priory.

(r) Gawinus Swynburn fuit seisitus de et in uno capitali messuagio, vocat. Cheesburn-Grange. — Escaet. 10 Eliz.

A mile and a half from Welton-burn, is

Harlow-Hill, corruptly for Hare-low or Here-low, that is the hill or flation of the army (u), a fmall village on an eminence; at the fouth-west end of which a road branches off to Ovingham, a village on the banks of the Tyne, where was a religious house of the foundation and endowment of —— Humfranvil, Baron of Prudhow, for three black canons, subordinate to the priory of Hexham. He gave it the appropriation and advowfon of Ovingham (v). At the diffolution, 26 K. Henry VIII, its annual revenues were valued at 11 L 2 s. 8 d. Sancroft (w); 13 L. 4 s. 8 d. Speed. The fituation is very pleasant, the river Tyne gliding under it, by a hanging garden, with three terraces, one above another, having the ruins of the castle of Prudhow, and of the chapel of our lady belonging to it, in full view. It came with the appropriated tithes, and the advowson, of Ovingham, with a sine glebe, into the possession of the Addisons, and was their seat for a long time. It now belongs, with the tithes, advowson, and glebe, to Thomas Charles Bigge, of Little Benton, Esq; the glebe of near the yearly value of 200 l. and with the tithes of Ovingham reputed worth 500 l. per annum.

(s) Thomas Widdrington, Arm. filius Lodovici, tenet in capite per servic. militare Cheesburn-Grange. Ex Lib. Food. Petri Osborns, militis.

(t) Initio. - See Wood's Athenæ Oxonienses.

(u) See Theresby's Topogr. of Leeds, p. 143.

Opposite to the house of Black canons, on the north side, is the church, in the cathedral-form, solemn and lofty within. In the tower are three bells, and near it a very neat vestry. On the north side of the chancel, is a beautiful tomb of black marble, whereon is cut the coat armorial of the Addisons, without any inscription.

On the fouth fide of the chancel, is a flat fepulchral flone, of blue marble, with the following infcription.

Here lies the corpfe of a rare man interr'd, On whom both wit and learning God conferr'd To his great good: for all his works did tend To God the object of his acts and end. His abstract was from a religious race, To which his proper virtue added grace.

(v) Pat. 1 Ric. II. p. 6. m. 28. pro eccles. de Ovingham approprianda, Priori de Hexham.

(w) MS. Valorum.

Was happy in his wife, his children feven:
Of which the prime did follow him to heav'n:
A virtuous girl, above her age was she,
Of sin's foul deeds, and vile contagion, free.
With credit great, whilst he Lord Percy serv'd*,
Of high, of low, of all he well deserv'd.
He could get wealth, but got, he cared not for it.
And to conclude, he us'd things transitory,
As means to bring him to eternal glory.

William Ourd, Esq; departed this life the 27th of April, 1630; and his daugher the 20th of December, 1631.

To the poor of this parish, Edward Fletcher, of Ovington, by will, dated 29th May, 1699, gave 2 l. per annum; one half to be distributed, 1st March, his birth-day; the other half, 13th June, the day of his death.

John Blacket, of Wylam, Esq. by will, dated 19th September, 1707, gave 6 l. per annum, to be paid out of his lands in West Denton, to the poor of this parish, to be distributed by the minister and churchwardens on All Saint's Day.

On the fouth fide of the Tyne, and on the brow of a hill, oppofite to Ovingham, is Prudhow-Castle (x), the Barony of the antient family of the Humfranvils (y), in which Robert de Humfranvil was infeoffed by

- * A surveyor and commissioner of all the honours and estates of the Right Honourable Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, in the reign of King James I.
  - (x) Prudo. Lel. Itin. Vol. vii. p. 50. Prudhow. Camden. p. 855.
  - (y) Umfranvil. Camd. Madox.

    Humfrevile. Hol. Chron.

K. Henry I, who also gave him the Lordship and forest, together with the royal privileges and franchises, of Reeds-dale, and the cassies of Otterburn and Harbottle, to hold by the service of defending them from thieves and wolves; by which fervice they were held by his fuccessors; viz. Odonel de Humfranvil, famous in our annals for his bravery, who with Bernard de Balial, and others, took William, King of Scots, prisoner at Alnwick, 20 K. Henry II, 1174, after his retreat from the fiege of the castle of Prudhow; by Riebard de Humfranvil, a benefactor to Hexham-priory, and who fortified the caftle of Harbottle in the beginning of the reign of K. Henry III, dying 11th of that reign; by Gilbert de Humfranvil, a right noble Baron and warden of the marches, fays the record, who held his Barony of Prudhow by the fervice of two knight's fees and a half (z), dying 30 K. Henry III. 1245; by Gilbert de Humfranvil, who was Earl of Angus, and fummoned to the parliament held at Carlifle, 35 K. Edward I, in the octaves of St. Hilary, Jan. 21, 1307 (a) and who founded a chantery in the chapel of our lady at his castle of Prudhow, and endowed it with two tofts, and 118 acres of land, and five acres of meadow, for the maintenance of two chaplains, to perform divine fervice daily, hold(z) Gilbertus de Humfranvil tenet in capite de dom, rege Baroniam de Prudhow, per servic. duor. Feod. milit. de dimid. Feod. Et omnes antecessores sui per eund. servic. tenuere post tempus regis Henrici primi. Et de illo tenemento nulla est alienat. vel donat. unde dom, rex minus habeat de servicio suo.

Testa de Nevill.

Certificat. de Baron. prædicti Gilberti, per Hugon, de Bolbeck, vice-comitem Northumbr.

Idem Gilbertus tenet in capite de dom. rege vallem de Riddisdale, per hoc servicium, ut custodiat vallem prædit. a latronibus et vulpibus.— Testa de Nevill.

Idem Gilbertus tenet in capite de dom. rege parv. Ryle, redditque inde dom. regi per annum xxs. Et omnes antecessores sui per eund servic. tenuerunt post tempus regis Henrici primi, &cc.

Testa de Nevill.

(a) Parliament, Hist, of Engl. Vol. i. p. 133.

ing his barony by the fame fervice as above-mentioned (b), dying I K. Edward II; by Gilbert de Humfranvil, who was fummoned to the parliament at Westminster, 15th July, 26 K. Edward III. 1352, and 1 K. Richard II. 1377 (c); by Gilbert de Humfranvil, 11th K. Henry IV. 1411 nephew to Sir Robert Humfranvil, Knight of the most noble order of the garter, and vice-admiral of England, whom he attended in that famous expedition into Scotland, when he acquired the nick-name mentioned by Camden (d) of Robin Mend-Market, from his felling them round penny-worths of their own goods, taken by pillage (e). He also attended K. Henry V, the glory of England in his expedition into France, 1419, by whom he was made governor of the castle of Gourniz for his bravery, also governor of Melun upon the river Seine in the same kingdom (f). He was flain on Easter-Even, in the same year, at a narrow pass, called Viel Bauge, or Baugie, in Anjou, with his general, the Duke of Clarence, and John Grey, Earl of Tankervil, who were decoyed thither by a fervant of the Duke's, corrupted by the enemy (g). He was fucceeded in his Lordship of Reedsdale, and castles of Harbottle and Otterburn, by his kinsman, Walter Tailtoys, who was in possession of them, 17 K. Henry VI (b). By the attainder

(c) Parliament. Hist. of Engl. p. 279. (d) Britannia, Ed. Opt.

(e) Hol. Chron. Vol. ii. p. 536, 537. ...

(f) _______ p. 578.

(g) ______ p. 579, 580.

(b) Gilbertus Humfranvil, dominus de Riddifdale, tenet de dom. rege in capite Prudhow, cum suis membris, viz. Hedley, Horsley, Whithill, Rouchester; Inghow, Heton magn. Heton parv. Bavington parv. Bavington magn. West Harle, parv. Harle, Whelpington, Chollerton, Barrwassorth, Chipches, Rea, Birtley, Thockrington, Harelaw et Welton, per duo Feod. milit. et dimid. veteri Feossamento.——Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

(h) Walter Tailboys, confanguineus et hæres Gilberti Umfranvil, nuper comes de Angus, tenet castrum de Harbottle, et manerium de Harbottle, et manerium de Otterburn, de leg nin capite, attainder of Sir William Tailboys, after the battle of Hexham-field, 3 K. Edward IV. 1463, they came to the crown. This castle and Lordship of Prudhow were given to John Duke of Bedford, and afterwards to Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, and are now in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Northumberland.

The castle is now in ruins; as is the chapel of our lady, at the foot of the hill.

By the 9th mile-stone, a road branches off, on the right hand, to Wylam, a populous village, which belonged to the priory of Tynemouth(i), and was in the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth(k). At the west end of it, is Wylam-Hall, which was the feat of John Blacket, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1692; and of his son, John Blacket, Esq; 1714, son-in-law to John Bacon, of Staward-Peel, Esq. It is now the seat of John Blacket, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1729.

Mr. Blacket hath made a handsome road for a mile in length on the west side of his house, leading from Ovingham, like a terrace, exceedingly pleasant and romantic, a bank of wood on one side, and the river Tyne on the other.

Between the 9th and 8th mile stones, on the right hand, is the Roman station capite, per servicium custodiendi vallem et libertatem de Riddisdale, ubi dict. castr. et maner. situantur, a lupis et latronibus.

Mich. Fin. 17 Hen. VI:

(i) See Tynemouth.

(k) Escaet, de anno 10 Eliz.

Vindobala (1), or Rouchester (m). A sculpture of Hercules, in stone, of the rag-kind, was digged up at it by some labourers a few years ago, by whose carelessness it had the missfortune to lose both the head and seet. Mr. Brown, of Throckley-Fell, saved it from farther harm by having it carried to his house. In 1761, it was removed to London by a curious antiquary, Mr. Duane, a gentleman, says Dr. Stükeley, who judiciously indulges a taste for the elegances of these learned curiosities, in the midst of the confinement and business of the law (n).

The festival of Hercules and Bellona was observed, 3d June.

Two Roman Fibulæ have been also digged up, both of silver. One of them was in the possession of the Rev. Mr. Walton, of Corbridge, and the other of the late Mrs. Roberts, of Hexham.

In passing by this station, 11th December, 1761, I had a Roman brick and two coins from some labourers who turned them up from among the ruins the day before. The coins were of copper, and of the later empire. Upon the brick is the following inscription done with a stamp, the letters large and fair.

LEGVIV

In the beginning of the year 1766, two poor men being employed in digging up the foundation of a fence near this station,

- (1) Horsley's Brit. Romana.
- (m) Rouchester. Escaetr. Northumbr.

  Routchester. Canden.
- (n) Dr. Stukeley's Caraus. Vol. i. p. 187. Vid. Hercules Ethnicorum, ex variis Antiq. Relig. delin. &c. Bejero, cum 38 Fig. fol. 105.

found

found a large quantity of Roman coins in a small urn, which they disposed of to different people in and about Newcastle for their weight of our own money, which coming to the knowlege of the Lord of the manour, William Archdeacon, Esq; he claimed them as treasure-trove, and recovered near five hundred silver, and sixteen gold, coins; almost a compleat series of those of the higher empire; among them several Otho's; most of them in sine preservation.

In June, in the same year, a cossin hewn out of a rock was discovered in digging near the same place by some labourers, about twelve seet long, sour broad, and two deep; a hole close to the bottom at one end; a transverse partition of stone and lime about three seet from the other end; many decayed bones, teeth, and vertebræ in it; supposed by their shape and size to be the remains of some animal, sacrificed, perhaps, to Hercules.

At the foot of the station, is

Rouchester-Tower, the seat and manour of Robert de Rouchester, t K. Edward I (0); and of Gawen de Rotherforth, 10 Q. Elizabeth (p); now in the possession of William Archdeacon, Esq; above-mentioned.

By the 7th mile-stone is the village of Heddon on the Wall, on the south-west side of which we have a good view of

Close-House, the seat of Robert Bewick, Esq; high sheriss of Nor-thumberland, 1695; and of Robert Bewick, Esq; high sheriss of

- (0) Robertus de Rouchester tenet Rouchester per dimid. seod. vet. Feoffam. Baren de Prud-
- (1) Gawon Rotherforth suit seisitus de et in Rouchester, et Pacoston, eum certis terris in Barmore.

  Escaet, de anno 10 Eliz.

Northumberland, 1726; also of Sir Robert Bewick, high sheriff of Northumberland, 1760, who received the honour of knighthood on presenting the Northumberland-address to his present Majesty on his accession to the throne.

It stands on the side of a shady hill, having an antient chapel at the east end, and a tower at the other. Before it is a sloping lawn, and near it an islet with two or three tall oaks upon it. The river Tyne, the inclosures, the clumps of trees prettily dispersed, the handsome seat of John Simpson, Esq; at Bradley, the villa and church of Newburn, are all in sight; but the greatest beauty in view, is a slexure in the river, above which the spire of Ryton-church appears like a stately gothic column or obelisk.

Between the 5th and 4th mile-stone, a road branches off, on the right hand, to Newburn, an antient borough on the banks of the Tyne, the manour of which, with all its regalities, was given by K. John to Robert, fon of Roger, de Clavering, Baron of Warkworth (9).

(q) Robertus, filius Rogeri, tenet in capite de dom. rege manerium de Newburn, cum pertinentibus, servicioque Roberti de Throckley, et hæred. su. per servic. unius seodi milit, quam dom. Rex Johannes ei dedit, et charta sua confirmavit. Et de tenemento illo nulla est alienatio, &c. unde dom. rex minus habeat de servicio suo. Testa de Nevill.

Testibus H. Sarum, et Phil. Dunelm. Episc. Data per manum S. Cicestrensis electi apud Porcestre, quinto Maii, anno regni nostri quinto.

Cartæ antiquæ, litera z. n°. 2.

Dominus Johannes rex dedit Roberto, filio Rogeri, Newburn cum pertin. per servicium unius feodi milit. cumque servicio et homagio ac consuetudine Roberti de Throckley de tenemento ipsius Roberti de Throckley; salvo tamen dom. regi reddit. xls. per annum. Atque ipse Robertus tallietur cum dominicis dom. regis.

Certificat. Hugen. de Bolbeck, vice-comit. Northumbr.

170

John, the last Lord Clavering, granting the reversion of it to the crown, 6 K. Edward I (r), it was given to Henry Lord Percy, 2 K. Edward III (s); and is now in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Northumberland.

It is a fmall village, inhabited chiefly by persons employed in coal-works, and in carrying timber and goods down the river inboats; the tides flowing a little above it.

The church is at the north-west end, on a rising ground, in the form of a cross, with a small tower. King Henry I. gave the impropriation and advowson of it, and of the church of St. Nicholas in Newcastle upon Tyne, to the church and canons of St. Mary in Carlifle (t). In the chancel, on the north fide of the altar, and against the wall, is a tomb of blue marble, with the following infcription.

Here lieth Sir John Delaval, of North Dissington, Knt. who died the 12th of August, 1652. Also Robert Delaval, Esq; his son and heir, who died the 6th of February, 1666, and gave to the poor of this parish 5 l. to be paid by the lands of North Dissington, the Thursday before Easter yearly for ever. Also William Delaval, buried August the 20th, 1684. George Delaval buried March the

- (r) Ex Rot. Claus. de anno 6 Ed. 1.
- (s) Pat. de anno 2 Ed. III. p. 1, m. 20.

The appurtenances or members of this manour of Newburn, mentioned in the records, are Wailbottle, Duley, Butterley, Whorleton, and Throckley .- Escaet de anno I Ed. I.

Of the crown-rent paid by the tenants of Newburn, 3 K. John, see Madox's Firma Burgi, Ch. 3. p. 54.

(t) See St. Nicholas's Church, in Newcostle.

18th, 1694. Mary, wife of Edward Delaval, Esq; daughter of Sir Francis Blake, of Ford-Castle, buried Dec. 7th, 1711, aged 17. The aforesaid Edward, eldest of George Delaval, Esqr.'s sons, who died August the 3d, 1744, aged 80 years, and left 50 l. to be distributed amongst the poor inhabitants of the sour following parishes, to Newburn 20 l. to Heddon on the wall 10 l. to Stamfordham 10 l. and to Pont-Eland 10 l.

Copsi, one of the favourite Lords of K. William I, was slain as he entered this church, by Osulf, his competitor for the government of Northumberland, who was soon after run through with a spear and killed by a thief, as he was endeavouring to seize him; which shews how speedily murder is often punished by a just providence, and by the meanest instruments (u).

The living of this parish being represented to Dr. Smith, Bishop of Carlisse after the restoration, as an insufficient maintenance for a minister, his Lordship, among his other excellent charities, augmented it 25 l. per annum (v).

At this village, Lord Conway, at the head of 1200 horse and 2000 foot, opposed the passage of the Scots over the river Tyne under General Lesley, 27th August, 16 K. Charles I, 1640. The foot by a smart sire from under a breast-work forced 300 Scotch troopers to repass the river, but on the playing of nine pieces of ordnance, concealed the night before by Lesley in some brushwood, they cast down their arms, and ran away, leaving the horse under commissary-general Wilmot, and many gentlemen of rank with him, exposed to the fury of the enemy's cannon and cavalry, who flood their ground, firm and intrepid, till the impetuolity of numbers forced them to a precipitate retreat, with the loss of 300 killed or taken prisoners. Lord Clarendon calls this defeat of Conway's an irreparable rout. Whitlock fays, "his con-"duct was enquired into on his return to York, to tell the flory " of his defeat to the king, where he was accused of cowardice " or treachery, that he used his best art and flourishes to vindi-" cate himself: yet something stuck upon him (t)."

(u) See an account of this charitable and good prelate in Browne Willis's Survey of the Cathedr. Vol. I. p. 301.

(v) Hol. Chron. Vol. ii. p. 13.

Near the 2d mile-stone, on the right hand, is the Roman station

Condercum, or Benwell (u). A Roman fudatory was discovered a few years ago by the curious and observing Robert Shaftoe, Esq; in a field. east of his house. The pavement was not in chequer-work or mofaic, but in unequal irregular figures, red and white; a composition: of calx viva, and broken brick; refembling a pebble-marble. Of the true musive or mosaic, I have not heard of any being yet discovered in the Roman structures of this or the other stations with. us; though I make no question but the Romans of quality had. them here, as well as in the more fouthern stations of Britain. They are of great antiquity, invented by the luxurious Ahatics, the builders of Babylon, of Palmyra, of Persapolis, of the famous pyramids of Memphis, the just wonders of the world. At Sufa, they had a royal banquet on a Lithostraton, composed of rich and curious stones (v). At Jerusalem our Saviour had his sentence passed on him by Pilate from a throne in a place called by way of eminence, The Pavement (w). From Asia, these Lithostrata passed into Greece; from Greece to Rome (x), and from Rome to Britain, into the palaces of princes, the state-rooms and tents of generals, the sacred temples, magnificent thermæ, and other places of elegance and pleasure. The Balneum and Lithostroton, according to Varro (y), made a compleat and elegant villa. Baths and shady piazzas were first introduced here by Agricola (z).

(t) Whitl. Memor. p. 34.

(u) Horf. Brit. Rom. (v) Esther. ch. i. v. 6.

(w) John, ch. xix, v. 13.

Mr. Shaftoe hath two fmall Roman mill-stones found at this station, one of rag-stone, the other factitious, of potters work, of a bluish-ash colour. The Romans, as well as the leastern nations, the Ægyptians and Jews, put their captives and slaves to the employ of grinding corn, who were placed post molas (a).

A finall gulosum sietile, or drinking-cup, of Roman pottery, was also digged up, and in possession of Mr. Shaftoe, but now lost.

The neck and handle of a cruise, of brown pottery, unglazed, was found at the same time.

Mr. Horfley has taken notice of a fine urn found in that part of the station, called Chapel-hill (b); where large foundations of buildings have lately been turned up for the sake of the stones, but no more urns or curiosities of value found.

Though the Roman urns were deposited by their temples and military ways in cespititious mounts, yet they were not placed at any great depth below the surface.

- (x) The first at Rome in the Temple of Fortune, laid by Sylla, 170 years before our Savies our. Spon's Reserves curieuses.
  - (y) De Re Rustica. lib. 3.

(z) Tacit. Agricola. c. 21.

(a) Therefby's Topogr.

(b) Brit. Rom. p. 213.

Dii majorum umbris tenuem et sine pondere terram, Spirantesque crocos, et in urna perpetuum ver!

Juv. Sat. vii.

A mediety of the village of Benwell belonged to Richard de Benwell, and the other mediety to Robert de Whitchester, and Henry de Delaval, I K. Edward I; held of the barony of Bolbeck (c). The Delaval-lands were possessed by John de Delaval, 3 K. Henry IV (d), and 10 K. Henry V (e); and by William de Delaval, 14 K. Henry VI (f).

Robert Shaftoe, of Little Bavington, Efq; had lands in Benwell, 10 Q. Elizabeth (g); which, with the antient tower and capital manfion-house, were in the possession of Mark Shaftoe, Esq; a representative in parliament for Newcastle upon Tyne, 1659, a younger branch of that antient family; ancestor of Robert Shaftoe, of Benwell, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 8 K. William III, 1696; and of Robert Shaftoe, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 4 K. George I, 1718; also of Robert Shaftoe, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 27 K. George II, 1754, the present possessor, lord of the manour.

His feat, built on to the old tower, stands at the east end of the village, on a sloping eminence; pleasure and profit disfused round

(c) Richard de Benwell tenet medietatem de Benwell per quartam partem unius feodi milit. baron. de Bolbeck.

Robertus de Witchester et Henricus de Delaval tenent alteram mediet. de Bywell per quartem partem, &c. Esc. de anno 1 Ed. I.

- (d) Escaet. de anno 3 Henry IV.
- (e) _____ 10 Hen. V. n. 28.
- (f) ----- 14 Hen. VI.

(g) See Little Bavington.

it, mixed with judgment; to the east is a park-like inclosure, with small clumps of trees; to the west, a winding walk through a shrubbery and plantation to a Chinese cottage, and near it a tempiato, from which is a fine view of the vale below, and of the river Tyne, and of the little island formed by it, called the King's Meadows, and of the handsome seat of Sir Thomas Clavering, of Axwell-park, Bart. on the side of a shady hill. Before the south front is a grass-area, from which the towering pyramid rising through the trees of Gibside, above the banks of the river Derwent, is in view, a beautiful object!

We now pass on to Benwell-hill, where the military road goes through the station, and on the left hand is that part of it called Chapel-hill, lately digged up for the sake of the stones, as beforementioned; a little beyond which a road branches off, on the same side, to Fenham, the manour of which, with the manour and lands of Threpewood, near Hayden-bridge, belonged to the priory of the knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem (h); remarkable for acquiring by an act of parliament, 18 K. Edward II, 1324, the large possessions of the knights Templers, dissolved 2d of that reign (i). It was also dissolved by an act of parliament, 31 K.

(b) As appears by a receipt from the prior to the corporation of Newcastle upon Tyne for the coal-mines within the manour of Fenham, mentioned by their late chorographer, Mr. Bourne.—Prior hospitalis sancti Johannis tenet Threpewood de manerio de Langley, pro homagio et fidelitate, et secta curiæ.

Inquisitio capta apud Langley in Tynedale, in comit Northumbr. Die Jovis ante sessum S. Andr. apostoli, 42 Ed. III, coram Jehanne Henderskelf, escaetor. dom. regis in comit. prædicto.—Ex bundello escaet. No. 37. Turri Londinensi.

(i) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. -p. 335.

Henry VIII, 1540. The prior, Sir William Weston, died of grief. The priory-lands were annexed to the crown, except 600 marks per annum given to four knights and two gentlemen for their valour; 100 marks to each, with a dwelling-house, for ever. Their names were Sir John Dudley, Sir Thomas Seimour, Sir Thomas Poinings, Sir George Carew, Anthony Kingston, and Richard Cromwell (k).

Fenham was afterwards in the possession of the antient family of the Riddels, ancestors of Thomas Riddel, of Swinburn-Castle, Esq; (1).

It is now the manour and seat of William Ord, Esq; high sherist of Northumberland, 1747. His seat is a modern structure, large and handsome. From the east front is a fine prospect of the river Tyne, of the ships in the river, of the church (m) and villa of Girwy, famous for its monastery, the residence of venerable Bede, of the villa of Chirton, and the admired ruin of the priory-church of Tynemouth, on a clear day.

(k) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 351.

(1) See Swinburn-castle.

(m) Built in the reign of K. Egfrid, as attested by the following inscription in the church-wall.

DEDICATIO BASILICAE
SCI PAVLI VIIII KL MAI ANNO XV EGFRIDI REG
CEOLFRIDI ABB EIUSDEM
Q. ECCLES DO AUCTORE
CONDITORIS ANNO IIII

Thus read,

Dedicatio Basilicae Sancti Pauli 9no Kal. Maii Anno 15 Egfridi regis. Cleofridi Abbatis ejusdem Ecclesiae, Deo Auctore, Conditoris Anno (Electionis, scilt.) 4to.

By the turnpike-gate, and near the 1st mile-stone, a handsome road branches off, on the right hand, to Elswick, a small vill on a pleasant slope, which belonged to the priory of Tynemouth (n), and after the reformation was in the possession of the Jennison's; of William Jennison, Esq; an alderman of Newcastle upon Tyne, and a representative in parliament for that corporation from 31 Q. Elizabeth, 1571, to the 44th of the same reign, 1601; of Ralph Jennison, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1717, and a representative of it in parliament for many years together.

It is now the feat and lordship of John Hodgson, Esq; whose father purchased it of Mr. Jennison. His seat is an old structure. Before the south front is a terrace of a considerable length, extending east and west, with a dwarf-wall; the admired pinnacle of St. Nicholas's steeple of Newcastle, the artificial ruin on the hill at Biker, the church and town of Gateshead, in view to the east; the grounds beautifully sloping to the river Tyne to the south, beyond which is a fine opening into the inclosed and shady vale of Lamesley in the bishoprick of Durham, gradually enlarged, the castles of Ravensworth and Lumley in sight.

After passing through the turnpike-gate, we come by a short and easy descent to Newcastle upon Tyne, a town of great antiquity. Two late curious antiquaries were of opinion, that it was a Roman villa; its name Pons Ælii, from the Roman emperor, Ælius Hadrianus; gar-

(n) Pat. 16, Ric.-II. p. 1. m. 6. pro manerio de Elfwick. See the Priory of Tynemouth.

Vol. II. A a risoned

178

risoned by the Cohors Cornoviorum (a). They observed some remains of a military way leading to it from Chester-le-street, which was carried over the Tyne by a bridge of arches, where the prefent bridge stands. The fagacious Dr. Stukeley imagines it is the Ad Murum of Richard of Cirencester in his map of Roman-Britain (b). The Picts wall goes through the vicarage-garden, and St. Nicholas's church-yard. Part of a turret upon it is still visible by the gate at the foot of the royal Saxon villa of Pampeden; also a tower on an eminence in the fame villa, called The Wall-Knowl, or Carpenter's tower, hereafter described. No other Roman building, no forts, palaces, temples, baths, fepulchralia, or fepultures, altars, medals, or coins, of any value or curiofity, have hitherto been discovered. Those valuable treasures were undoubtedly destroyed by the northern emigrants, the martial, unlettered Saxons and Danes, who generally built upon Roman foundations, and retained part of their old names, as Castrum, Chester, or Chesters, Burgos, or Brough, importing their being places of strength, fafety and fecurity. On their being converts to Christianity, it was usual with them, in the impetu of religious zeal, to efface and break to pieces every thing that carried the image and features of ethnicifm; Roman curiofity, and Roman grandeur, meeting with no protection. On their fettling in communities, they built this town, and gave it the name of Monk-Chefter, for its being a fafe and secure retreat to the professors of a monastic life. It retained this name till the Norman conquest by K. William I; whose fon, Robert Curtoife, thinking it a fit place for a garrison to restrain the martial, indomitable fpirit in the North, built a citadel on an eminence, commanding the river, and called the town, Newcastle upon Tyne, to distinguish it from the old monastic castle, situated in the same place, and said to have been of a round sigure (c).

(a) Dr. Hunter, and Mr. Horsley. Brit. Rom. p. 104.

(b) Dr. Stukeley's Account of Richard and his Map, 4to. Lond: 1757. p. 48.

The geographers place it in 21 degrees, and 30 minutes longitude; and 54 degrees, and 57 minutes of north latitude. It is encompassed with a strong stone-wall, ditch, and rampier of earth; has seven gates or ports, with many round towers, and square turrets, built at different times, and by different persons, some of them still retaining the names of their sounders. Their names are,

CLOSE-GATE;

White Frier Tower;

White Frier Gate;

Nevil-Tower;

West Spital-Tower;

Stank-Tower;

Gunner-Tower;

Pink-Tower;

WEST-GATE;

Durham-Tower;

Heber-Tower;

Black Frier-Gate;

Morden-Tower;

Eure-Tower;

Andrew-Tower;

NEW-GATE;

Bertram Monboucher-Tower;

Ficket-Tower:

PILGRIM-STREET-GATE;

Carliol-Tower;

Pampeden-Gate;

Wall-Knowl-Tower:

Habkin-Tower;

SAND-GATE;

BRIDGE-GATE.

CLOSE-GATE is fituated at the west end of a narrow street of the same name, on the margin of the river Tyne. It hath two good rooms in it, of freestone, and hewn work.

The White Frier-tower is on the extremity of an eminence, of a circular form, well paved, and feated at the top. The access to it from the Clofe-gate is by 140 stone-steps, steep and difficult, called Break-Neck-Stairs. It affords one of the finest and most varied prospects about the town. It was built by the Fratres Cameli Monte, or White Friers, opposite to their monastery. It is now the hall of the company of masons.

(c) Lib. de Rebus Novi Castri, citat. per Bourne.

The White-Frier-gate was built by the same religious fraternity. It was a postern, or private passage, convenient for their pleasure in walking into the fields in time of peace, and for their defence in time of war.

Nevill-Tower was built by the Nevills, Earls of Westmorland, for the fecurity of their house in West-gate. It is also called Denton-tower, from its having in ward, as is thought, Denton-chare. It is now the hall of the masons, bricklayers, and plaisterers. They repaired it in 1711; Richard Fletcher and William Johnson, wardens.

West-Spital-tower, or St. Mary's tower, was built by the master. and brethren of St. Mary's hospital, to which it is very near.

A Postern was made beyond the two next towers, for a communication between the Forth and West-gate, 1705; Thomas Wasse, Esq. mayor; Matthew Matfen, Esq; sheriff.

WEST-GATE is a strong building, of stone, and hewn work, with a port-cullice, iron-gates, &c. at the west end of a spacious, . well-built and handsome street of the same name. It was built by that eminent patron of Newcastle, Roger Thornton, Esq. It is now the hall of the house-carpenters who lately repaired it.

Heber-Tower, next neighbour to Durham-tower, is the hall of armourers, curriers, and felt-makers, who were incorporated, or made one fellowship, 36 K. Henry VIII.

The Black-Frier-gate was built by the Fratres Pradicatores, or Black Friers, for a passage from their monastery to their garden, by licence from K. Edward I (d).

Morden-Tower is the hall of the plumbers, glaziers, &c. who had a grant of it in 1619, and repaired it in 1700. They were made one fellowship in 1536.

Eure-Tower was built by the antient family of Eure, Lords of Kirkley, by the river Blyth, and barons of Witton, in the bishop-rick of Durham. It is now the hall of the colliers, waggoners, and pavers.

Andrew-tower owes it name to its fituation, by St. Andrew's church.

NEW-GATE is fituated at the north end of a broad, well-inhabited street of the same name. It exceeds all the other gates for firength, and is supposed to be the most antient. On the north side of it, in a nich, is the stone effigies of K. Charles II. crowned, with a scepter in his hand; the nich adorned with a pediment, entablature, and chartoons; below, the arms of England, and the arms of the corporation; which are, gules, three castles argent; the crest, out of the battlements of a castle, argent, a demi-lyon issuing; the supporters, two sea-horses, argent (e). Two new wings have been added on the south side; one in 1702; William Ramsay, Esq; mayor, William Boutstower, Esq; sherisf; the other in 1706; Sir Ralph Carr, mayor, William Ellison, Esq; sherisf. It has been for many years the town-jail for debtors and felons.

(d) Evardus Dei gratia rex Angliæ, dominus Hiberniæ, dux Aquitaniæ, omnibus ad quos presentes literæ pervenerint, salutem. Sciatis quod de nostra gratia speciali concessimus dilectibus nostris fratribus prædicatoribus de Novo Costro super Tynam, quod per medium novum murum circumagentem villam prædictam, quem per medium gardini prædictorum fratrum sieri oportebit, ut dicti sacere possint quandam strictam portam ad ingressum in gardinum suum, habend. portam sust. sibi et successoribus suis tenere in perpetuum. Dum tamen porta illa ad voluntatem nostram, vice-comitis Northumbriæ ad constabuli nostri ibid. qui pro tempore suerit, obstruatur. In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras sieri patentes; teste meipso apud Dunelm. decimo-octavo dei Septembris, anno regni nostri octavo.

Bertram Monboucher-tower owes its name to its founder, Bertram Monboucher, high sheriff of Northumberland, 49 K. Edward III. and 1, 2, 3 K. Richard II.

PILERIM-STREET-GATE is at the north end of a spacious, handsome, pleasant street of the same name; so called from the great resort and entertainment of pilgrims in it, in the monastic times, in their way to perform their devotions at the shrine of the Blessed Virgin in the neighbouring villa of Jesmont. It is a strong gate, slat-roofed, and embattled; has a port-culice, irongates, &c. It is the hall of the company of joiners, who repaired it in 1716; Thomas French, and Paul Cook, wardens.

Carliol-tower owes its name to the antient family of the Carliols, eminent merchants of this town, of which Nicholas de Carliol was mayor, 2 K. Edward II *. A field near it also bears their name, called Carliol-Croft; through which is an agreeable walk, prefenting a prospect of many hanging gardens. This tower is the hall of the company of weavers, who repaired it in 1682.

Placita coram baron. 2 Ed. II. Ret. 16. a. Madon's Firma Burgi, p. 96.

(e) Browne Willis.

* Against whom, and the rest of the burgesses of the merchants gild, the poor burgesses of Newcostle recovered 501. damages in the exchequer.

Austin-tower was built by the friers of St. Austin, for the security of their monastery, which stood opposite to it. It is now the hall of the ropers, who repaired it in 1698; John Longlands, and John Dawson, wardens.

Pampeden-gate is at the foot of an antient villa of the fame name, at the north-east of the town. It has folding iron-gates, but no port-cullice. It is ascended to the top by a pair of stone-stairs, two yards wide. In the opinion of a judicious antiquary (f), it was part of the Picts wall. The remains of a Roman turret are still conspicuous. The gate gives its name, and the wall a passage, to a streamlet, called Pampeden, or Panden-burn.

Wall-Knowl-tower is on an eminence in the fame villa. It was Roman. It is now the hall of the carpenters, who, in 1716, erected a handsome quadrangular tower on the under-part of it, adorned at the angles with four fair turrets in the form of a lanthorn. Under it is an antient postern-gate, for access to a field, enclosed, and laid out in gardens. It belongs to Matthew Ridley, of Heaton, Esq.

SAND-GATE receives its name from its fituation by the shore of the river Tyne. It is arched at top, but has no tower or castellated building upon it. There were many openings or passages through the wall next the river, for the conveniency of trade. It was lately pulled down, and part of the key railed with iron-rails, which gives a fine view of the river.

BRIDGE-GATE has its name from its situation at the north end of a stately bridge over the Tyne.

Between most of the towers on the wall were two quadrangular, speculating turrets, with stone effigies, at the angles, of the speculatores or watchmen; with square vacant spaces to annoy the enemy (g).

The north part of the wall is thought, from the stile of the masonry being different from the rest, to have been first built, and to be as antient as the time of K. John (h). That part of it which extends from Sand-gate to the gate of Pampeden, and from thence to the Austin-Friers, is said to have been built in the reign of K. Edward I, by one of the burghers of spirit and fortune, whom the Scots had surprized in one of their prædatory expeditions, and extorted a large sum from him for his liberty (i). K. Edward III. granted the corporation the duties and customs of the town for the term of seven years to compleat the whole, which being neglected, he seized their franchises, and would not restore them till they agreed to do it at their own charge (k). It was so much

(g) MS. of Mr. John Milbank, cited by Bourne, p. 17.

(b) Grey's Chorograph. inter Miscell. Oxfordiana, vol. iii. 4to. (i) Camden.

(k) De consuetudinibus, de rebus venialibus ibidem capiendis pro termino 7 annorum in auxilium villæ Novi castri claudendæ, &c.

Pat. 1 R. Ed. III. p. 1. m. 3. 7.

the object of attention of future kings, that in the reign of K. Henry VIII, it is faid by the most eminent antiquary of that age, to have out-done, both for the strength and magnificence of the masonry, all the walls of the cities of England, and most of the towns of Europe (1).

Novi Castri super Tynam villa capta in manum regis, et jam restituitur burgensibus ibid. quod ipsi assumpterunt coram rege desectus murorum villæ prædictæ ad sumptus suos reparationem facere.

Escaet. 16 R. Ed. III. m. 22. et Fin. 18 R. Ed. III. m. 2.

The custody of the town was granted to Henry de Percy, Ralph de Nevill, John de Fenwyk, Walter de Creyk, and Robert de Fenwyk, high sheriff of Northumberland, who accounted to the exchequer for the profits, customs, and liberties of it, and were allowed 40 l. per annum during their commission; as attested by the following record.

De custodia villæ Novi Castri super Tynam commissa. Edvardus Dei gratia rex Angliæ et Franciæ et dominus Hiberniæ, dilecto sibi Roberto de Tughale salutem. Sciatis quod cum nuper affignaverimus dilectos et fideles nostros, Henricum de Percy, Radulphum de Nevill, Johannem de Fenwyk, Walterum de Creyk, et Robertum de Fenwyk vice [comitem] Northumbr [iæ] ad libertates villæ Novi Castri super Tynam, pro quibusdam contemptibus & inobedientiis nobis per majorem & communitatem dictæ villæ factis, in manum nostrum capiendas, & ad dictam villam cum omnibus ad eam spectantibus salvo & secure custodiendam, quousque aliud inde duxerimus ordinandum : Ac iidem Henricus, Radulphus, Johannes, Walterus, et Robertus, vos loco ipforum, ad libertates et villam prædictas in forma prædicta custodiendas substituerint ut accepimus : Nos de fidelitate et circumspectione vestris plenius confidentes, commismus vobis custodiam villæ prædictæ ac libertatem ejusdem; habendum quamdiu nobis placuerit; ita quod de exitibus de villa & libertatibus prædictis, a tempore captionis earundem in manum nostram provenientibus, nobis respondeatis ad scaccarium nostrum; percipiendo pro custodia illa quadraginta libras per annum, quamdiu custodiam habueritis antedictam. ideo vobis mandamus, quod circa præmissa intendatis, & de salva & secura custodia ejustem villæ taliter disponatis, quod eidem villæ dampnum vel periculum nen eveniat ullo modo. Damus autem universis & singulis villæ prædictæ tenore præsentium in mandatis, quod vobis in omnibus quæ ad custodiam villæ prædictæ pertinent intendentes fint & respondentes. In cujus, &c. Teste meipso apud Westm. xxvio die Januarii, anno regni nostri Angliæ decimo nono, regni vero nostri Franciæ sexto.

Originale, 19 Ed. III. Rot. 1. Madox's Firma Burgi, p. 258,

(1) Lel. Itin. vol. v. p. 108.

Vol. II. Bb From

From the antiquity, fituation, and fortifications of Newcastle, proceed we to its charters, privileges, civil government, and commerce.

King Henry II. granted it by charter great franchises and liberties (m).

King John, his son, in the third year of his reign, consirmed them, on the payment of 100 marks, and two palfreys (n). He enlarged them by charter in the fourteenth year of his reign, on the annual payment of 100 l. in two equal portions, at Easter and Michaelmas, reserving to himself the rents, prizes, assizes, and leases in it. In compensation for the losses sustained by the inhabitants on taking down their houses for making a foss or ditch under the castle, next the river, he granted them an annual rent of 100 l. 10 s. 6 d. of Escaet, to be paid by him and his heirs, in proportion to their several damages (o). He also granted it, Mag. Rot. 3 Joh. Rot. 18. a. Tit. Northumberland. Madox's Firma Burgi, p. 54.

Lib. Cart. p. 1.

(m) Gardiner, Ch. ii. p. 7.

(n) Homines de novo castello super Tinam [debent] 100 Marcas et 2 Palessidos, pro habenda villa de novo castello super Tinam in manu sua, per veterem sirmam, scilicet 50 l. & 10 l. de cremento, & pro habenda confirmatione de libertatibus suis quas habent per cartam Henrici regis patrem; sed postea mandatum est per breve regis, quod est in sorulo Marescalli, quod nec prædicta sirma neque crementum ab eis exigatur; quia rex concessit vice-comiti ut respondeat de sirma ejustlem villæ, sicut consuevit antequam-crementum esset postetum, per prædictum breve.

<sup>(0)</sup> Præterea concessimus eis, et carta nostra confirmamus pro nobis et hæredibus nostris centum et decem solid. &c. ad dividendum et assignandum illis qui redditus suos amiserunt occasione sossatione sossationis sacra subter castrum versus aquam, &c.

for its loyalty and faithful services, as the record expresses it, exemption from the power of the sheriff and constables in matters relating to themselves; and that no burgess should be arrested out of it for any debt, unless he was the capital debtor.

King Henry III, by his charter made it a Major-Town, 1251 (p); being governed before by four bailiffs; and to his other royal favours, added this gracious one, a grant, during pleasure, of all the demesn-lands belonging to the castle, called, The Castle-Field (q), containing 850 acres, for free pasture, with liberty to dig coals, and stones, and to dispose of them for their use to the best advantage, upon payment of 205. into the Exchequer; the bounds and limits of it taken upon inquest, 31 Q. Elizabeth (r). His bounty did not stop here. He gave them a field, called, The Forth, adjoining to the other, for the same uses, containing 11 acres, as surveyed by order of the parliament, 1649, and then valued at 121 per annum; for which they were to pay 405 into the exchequer (i). It was also provided by his charter, that no Jew should reside among them.

King Edward I. directed a writ of fummons to Newcastle in the tenth year of his reign, 1282, to send two members to parliament; which is the earliest upon record for Boroughs to send any, or for the Commons to sit, except that summoned under Montfort's

(p) Browne Willis.

(q) Bourne.

(r) Inquisitio de metis et bunderiis in terra Novi Castri super Tynam, vocata Castle-field, et terra prioris de Tynemouth, 31 R. Eliz. n. 56. Tom. 4. Rot. turri Londinensi.

(s) Gardiner, Ch. iii. p. 91

usurpation in the name of the King's father, King Henry III (t). He annexed to it the villa of Pampeden (u).

By

(t) Rex majori, civibus, et vicecomitibus Londin. Vobis mandamus, quod duos de sapientioribus et aptioribus civibus prædictæ civitatis eligi faciatis, et eos ad nos mittatis, itaquod sint ad nos apud Salopiam in Crastino Sancti Michaelis proximo suturo nobiscum super hoc et aliis locuturi, et hoc nullatenus omittatis.

Teste rege apud Rotheland, 28 Die Junii.

Eodem modo mandatum est omnibus subscriptis.

Majori et civibus Winton.

Majori et Ballivis villæ Novi Castri super Tynam.

Majori et civibus Eborum.

Majori et Ballivis Bristol.

Majori et civibus Exon.

Majori et civibus Lincoln.

Majori et civibus Cantuar.

Majori et civibus Karleol.

Ballivis Norwici.

Majori et probis hominibus Northampton.

Ballivis Nottingham.

Ballivis de Scardeburgh.

Majori et Ballivis de Grimesby.

Majori et Ballivis de Linn.

Ballivis de Colecester.

Ballivis et probis hominibus de Yarmouth

Majori et probis hominibus de Hereford.

Majori et probis hominibus Cestria.

Ballivis et probis hominibus Salop.

Majori et probis hominibus Wyghorn.

Sub forma prædicta mandatum est universis et singulis vicecomitibus per Angliam, quod in quolibet comitatu eligi faciant duo milites de discretioribus et aptioribus comitatus illius ad regem pro communitate ejusdem comitatus venturos; ita quod sint ad regem in Crastino Sancti Michaelis prædicto, apud Salopiam, cum rege super his et aliis locuturi: Et hoc nullatenus omittatis.

By antient custom, the real estates of the freemen were confidered as chattels, and they disposed of them by will at their discretion as such, which upon an inquisition was allowed and confirmed, 4 K. Edward I (v).

King Edward III, confirmed the franchises of Newcastle, and granted it the perpetuity of the moor and lands, called Castle-moor, and Castle-fields, to hold of him and his heirs, by the payment of 40 s. annually into the exchequer (w). He exempted it from the jurisdiction of the admiralty of England, &c. (x); gave leave for Itèm, sub eadem forma, mandatum est omnibus subscriptis, quod sint ad regem, ed diem prædictum, cum rege his et aliis locuturi. Richardo de Holebrok, &c. judicibus.

Rym. Feed. tom. ii. p. 247. &c.

(u) Sciatis quod dedimus et concessimus, et hac carta nostra confirmavimus, pro nobis et hæredibus nostris, dilectis burgensibus, et probis hominibus nostris, villæ Novi Costri super Tynam, omnes terras et tenementa, cum pertinentibus, in Pampeden, in Biker, juxta prædictam villam Novi Castri, &c. Et quod prædicta villa Novi Castri, et terræ et tenem. prædict. in Pampeden unica villa de cet. sunt, et unus Burgus, ad uniend. et concludend. dictam villam Novi Castri in emendationem et augmentationem ejus villæ.

Lib. Cart.

(u) Consuetud. fact. in Novo Castro quemlibet burgensem tenementa sua, in manu suo, tanquam catella sua posse legare, &c. de inquirend. Pat. 3 R. Ed. I. m. 24. in dorso.

Burgenses Novi Castri super Tynam possint legare terras et tenementa sua tanquam catella cui voluerint, &c. Pat. 4. R. Ed. I. m. 24. Tom. 4. Rot. Turri Londinensi.

- (w) Novo Castro super Tynam licentia fodiendi carbones et Petras extra muros civitatis in loco vocato le Castle-sield, Pat. 24 R. Ed. III. p. 3. m. 6. et anno 31. p. 1. m. 5. Dorso: Et commiss. tangentem eand. mater. m. 25. Tom. 4. Rot. Turri Lond.
- (x) Villa novi castri super Tynam libera sit a jurisdictione, &c. constabuli matshall. et Admirall. Angliæ, et custod. marchio. vocat. Earle. Pat. 6. 22 R. Ed. III. n. 39. ibid.

purchasing lands to a certain value (y); confirmed several bylaws of the magistrates for well-governing and improving it (z); and issued an order for the manner of electing the mayor, magistrates, and other officers (a); and another concerning the measure to be used by the venders of coals (b).

King Richard II, confirmed its charters in the first year of his reign, 1378. He afterwards granted some pieces of ground for the conveniency of making high-ways, and a bridge (c). For its greater honour, he also granted, 1390, that a sword, the ensign of royal state and authority, should be carried before the mayor.

King Henry IV, on his accession to the throne, granted it farther privileges and immunities; that it should be a town and county of itself, independent of the county of Northumberland; that it should have a sheriff, instead of bailiffs, who should hold a court, account before the Barons by their attorney, and have the return of all writs, &c. that it should have six aldermen, to be elected from among the burgesses, with power to act as justices

- (y) Pro statuitate novo castro super Tynam facta ad terras acquirendas. Pat. 37 R. Ed. III. p. 1. m. 2. Ibid.
- (z) Confirmatio ordinationis factæ pro melioratione et tranquillo regimine villæ et incolarum novi castri, Pat. 16 R. Ed. III. p. 3. m. 5. Ibid.
- (a) Ordinatio facta de modo majorum, et alior. offic. Novi Castri eligend. Pat. 38 R. Ed. III. p. 2. m. 34. Ibid.
- (b) Nov. Cast. super Tynam de carbonibus maritimis mensurandis. Pat. 38 R. Ed. III. p. 2. m. 34. Ibid.
- (c) De quibusdum placeis terræ in novo castro super Tynam, burgensibus ibidem concessis, pro pome et viis construend. Pat. 18 R. Ric. II. p. 2. m. 27. et 40. Ibid.

of the peace within their jurisdiction; that it should have the royalties of the river Tyne, from Sparrow-Hawk to Hedwin-streams; with a prohibition for any ship to load or unload any fort of goods in any part of the river within those limits, except at New-castle (d).

K. Edward VI, on the diffolution of the bishoprick of Durham by act of parliament, 20 March, 1552, granted to this corporation the town and liberties of Gates-head (e). He also designed to have erected a bishoprick at Newcastle, and another at Durham, out of its revenues. The preamble to the act sets forth,

That this bishoprick being then void of a prelate, the gift thereof was in the king's pleasure, and the compass of it being so large as to extend itself into several shires far distant, it could not be sufficiently served by one bishop; and since the king by his godly disposition, was desirous to have God's Holy Word preached in those parts, which were wild and barbarous for lack of good preaching, and good searching; therefore he intendeth to have two bishopricks for that diocese; the one at Durham, which should have 2000 marks yearly revenue, and another at Newcastle with 1000; and also found a cathedral church at the latter place, with a deanery and chapter, out of the revenues of the said bisshoprick. Therefore the bishoprick of Durham is utterly extinguished and dissolved; and authority given for letters patents to rerect the two new bishopricks, together with a deanery and chapter at Newcastle; with a proviso, that the rights of the deanery, chapter, and cathedral of Durham, should suffer nothing by this act (f).

(d) Novi castri super Tynam burg, quod sit comitatus per se, et alias habeat libertates.

Cart. 1 Hen. IV. p. 1. n. 8. Tom. 4. Rot. Turri Londinens. Northumbr.

(e) Stat. 7 Ed. VI. Bourne, vol. ii. p. 172.

The king's death defeated this design. An act of parliament passed, 1 Q. Mary, 1554, for restoring the bishoprick of Durham to its antient state, after much opposition from this corporation, and warm debates in the House of Commons, by a great majority, 201 against 120. The preamble to the bill sets forth,

That certain ambitious persons taking advantage of the late king's minority, made an interest by finister practice to procure the dissolution of the bishoprick; that it was done out of mercenary views, to enrich themselves, and their friends, by seizing the lands of that See, rather than upon just occasion or godly zeal. That Tunstal, Bishop of Durham, was deprived upon untrue furmises, and false accusations, and that process against him was foul and illegal. That upon a full examination of the matter, by the queen's commissioners, the sentence of deprivation was declared void, as may be feen at large by an authentic inftrument. That the queen had new founded the bishoprick by her letters patents, and restored all the lands in her possession. But, that neither the fentence of deprivation, nor the queen's letters patent, were of fufficient force to recover the honours, lands, &c. to the See of Durham. Therefore to restore the bishoprick to its former interest, privileges, and revenues, the two disfolution-statutes of the last reign were hereby repealed (g).

(f) Stripe's Memorials, Vol. ii. p. 396.

(g) Statutes at large, 1 Mary. chap. 3.
Acta Regia, vol. iii. 8vo. p. 387, 388.
Collier's Eccles. Hist. p. 366.

Queen Elizabeth confirmed to the town of Newcastle the favours of her progenitors, and added new ones, by her charter, bearing date, 22d March, and 42d year of her reign (b).

So much for the royal Charters and Privileges granted to New-castle. Next, of its Civil Government. This is admirable, and does honour to it, in its minutest branches. For the administration of justice, it hath feveral courts;

The Mayor's Court; Sheriff's Court; Court of Confcience; Admiralty-Court;

Court of Common-Council;

Ward-Moot;

Pycpowder-Court;

and,

Three gilds, annually.

The Mayor's Court is held every Monday at the west end of the Guild-hall in the Exchange. It is a court of record, and of great covered importance. It preserves the rights, laws, franchises, and customs of the corporation. In it are tried all actions for debt, trespasses, accounts, covenants, broken attachments, sequestrations, or other matters arising within the town and liberties, to any value whatsoever. No attorneys are allowed to plead in it, but such as are free of the corporation, who are sworn at their admission. It hath six sergeants at mace to attend it. If the clerk of this court takes insufficient bail, and the defendant absconds, the plaintiff, upon judgment obtained, may oblige the clerk to pay the debt or damage, by petition to the court.

An

(b) See an abstract of it, and other charters and grants to the corporation, in Gardiner, 4to. Lond. with many cuts, and a map of the river Tyne, Pages 204.

An action commenced in it, may be brought to trial for 30 s. but will cost more money and time in the sheriff's court, out of which an action may be removed into the mayor's at any time before a jury is sworn, but not out of the mayor's into the sheriff's.

An action entered in it, will for ever remain in force, though no process be thereupon.

The juries of this, and the sheriff's court, are the same. They are returned every Christmas by the several wards of the corporation, at their ward-moot-inquest; where particular wards appoint persons to serve as jury-men for every month in the year. They are entered in a book by the town-clerk, of whom the officers of those courts receive copies.

Upon a cause being removed out of the sheriff's court into this, and it appearing to the mayor that a verdict hath been obtained against the plaintiff for more than his just debt, the mayor may remit the cause to judgment for the just debt only. The recorder for the time being is judge hereof, but the mayor and aldermen may sit as judges with him, if they please.

The Sheriff's Court is a court of record, held on Wednesdays and Fridays in the same place, for trials, and entering proceedings, as rules, appearances, judgments, pleas, &c. The attorneys who plead in it are appointed by the mayor and court of aldermen. They are allowed three sees in every cause; viz. one for the Appearance, another at issue, and a third upon summons for trial; or to have a see on every summons, if the cause be summoned more than once. The sees for trial are,

ANTIQUITIES	OF	NORTHUMBERLAND.
•

195

s .	d.	s.,	à.
Attorney's fee I	8	The fupena 2	0
The action o	4	Council, at least - 5	0
Arrest 1	0	Jury's verdict 4	6
Declaration, if general - 1	4	Judgment 2	6
Court-fees thereon - o	8	Execution 1	4
Deletur o	4	Prothonotary's fee, if ]
The issue and attorney's fee 4	Ö	the declaration be fpe-	ò
Summons of the jury?	8	cial, every sheet draw-	0
and attorney's fee	•	ing and engroffing.

The defendant's fees are,

	5.	d.
The attorney's fee for appearance, and the court fees,
The copy of the declaration per sheet	0	4
Iffue, and attorney's fee	3	8
Attorney's fee upon the fummons.		8

The defendant may (after the verdict is given, and before judgment is entered) stop judgment, by taking the cause before the mayor, for time to pay the money recovered.

In this court may be tried actions of debt, trespasses, accompts, covenants, broken attachments, and sequestrations. If either party cannot stay in town till the day of trial, his testimony in writing will be allowed for good evidence. The sheriff, if he pleases, may sit upon all trials with the recorder, who is also judge here.

The Court of Conscience is established by act of parliament, and kept in the same place. It is so called, because all debts under C c a 40 s. are recoverable in it, upon the creditors making oath, that the same is a just debt to him. The mayor and commissioner are judges. They administer oaths, and commit to prison offenders. They proceed first by summons. This costs but three-pence. If the defendant appears, there is no farther charge. If he does not, they proceed to attachment and execution. All persons, whether free or not, if within the freedom, may prosecute, or be prosecuted in this court. Freemen may be prosecuted though they live out of the liberty.

The Court of Admiralty is held before the mayor for the prefervation of the river Tyne, at fuch times as he shall direct. His deputy, the water-bailiss, gives notice of all offences committed contrary to the orders made for the preservation of the brood of sishes, and takes effectual care that they may be proceeded against according to law.

The Court of Common Council is after the model of the fupreme council of the nation. It confifts of two houses. One is for the mayor and aldermen. The other is for the commoners. They make all by-lays for the benefit of the corporation. In this court are recorded all deeds and evidences. The mayor can call and adjourn it at pleasure.

In the court, called the Ward-moot-Court, are chosen the officers for the government of each particular ward, as common council-men, constables, &c.

The Court of Pyepowder is held at the time of the fairs and Lammas and St. Luke, for examining and trying all fuits brought for petty differences and offences committed contrary to the following proclamation, made on the first day of each fair.

"The Right worshipful ———— mayor of the town and county of Newcastle upon Tyne, and his worshipful brethren, the aldermen of the said corporation, streightly charge and command on behalf of our sovereign Lord the King, that all manner of persons of whatsoever estate, degree, or condition they be, having recourse to this fair, keep the peace of our faid Sovereign Lord the King.

"That no manner of perfons make any congregations, con"venticles, or affrays, by which the faid peace may be broken "or diffurbed, upon pain of imprisonment, and fine to be made,
"after the discretion of the mayor and aldermen.

"Also that all manner of sellers of wine, or beer, sell by mea-"fure, sealed, as by gallon, pottle, quart, pint, &c. upon pain "that will fail thereof.

"And that no person sell any bread, but if it keep the affize, "and that it be good and wholesome for man's body, upon pain "that will fail thereof.

¶ And that no manner of cook, pye-baker, nor huckster, sell, or put to sale, any manner of victual, but it may be good and wholesome for man's body, upon pain that will fail thereof.

"And that no manner of persons buy, or sell, but with true weights and measures, sealed according to the statute in that behalf made, upon pain that will fail thereof.

"And that no manner of person, or persons, take upon him or them within this fair to make any manner of arrest, attachment, summons, or execution, but if it be done by the officers

" officers of this corporation, thereunto affigned, upon pain that " will fail thereof.

"And that no manner of person or persons, whatsoever within the limits and bounds of this fair presume to break the Lord's day in felling, shewing, or offering to fale; or in buying, or offering to buy, any commodities whatsoever; or in sitting, tipling, or drinking, in any tavern, inn, or ale-house, tipling-house, or cook's house, or in doing any other thing that may tend to the breach hereof, upon the pains and penalties contained in several acts of parliament, which will be severely inselfected upon the breakers thereof.

"And, finally, that what perfons foever find themselves grieved, injured, or wronged, by any manner of person in this fair, that they come with their plaints before the stewards in this fair, assigned to hear and determine pleas, and they will administer to all parties justice according to the laws of this land, and the customs of this corporation."

Besides these courts, the mayor holds

Three Gilds annually, for the enrolling and turning over apprentices, and making others free who have performed the obligations in their indentures; and for hearing and determining differences between masters and their apprentices. Any master refusing to make his apprentice free when he ought, on complaint thereof to the mayor, he will summon the master before him, and if he shew no good cause to the contrary, the mayor will make him free.

If a master misuse his apprentice, either by beating him, neglecting to instruct him, or to find him necessaries, the mayor will summon fummon the master before him, and relieve the servant, or direct him to take his remedy in the mayor's court.

If a freeman refuse to appear before the mayor upon summons, the mayor and recorder will grant a warrant to oblige him to appear. This will cost 1 s.

If any apprentice be disobedient, or disorderly, &c. the mayor will send one of his officers for such apprentice, and send him to the house of correction at West-Gate, or otherwise punish him, as the offence deserves.

When an apprentice is to be turned over to another mafter of the fame trade, it cannot be done before he is turned over before the company where he was bound. If he be turned over by the company only, it is no obligation on the fecond mafter to keep fuch apprentice, nor is the apprentice obliged to ferve fuch fecond mafter. He may leave his fervice at pleasure, and sue out his indenture against his first master. Therefore it is necessary, that all apprentices be turned over before the mayor. This discharges the first master, and obliges the second, and also the apprentice to serve him the full term specified in the indentures.

On any difference arising between a master and an apprentice, it is the interest of both to refer it to the mayor. He will hear both parties, and decide the controversy, for this small charge, viz. for the summons one shilling, and two shillings to the clerk for the order.

If any apprentice shall omit to take his freedom within convenient time, he is liable to be fined by the mayor at his pleafure.

If a freeman shall privately turn his apprentice over to a foreigner, and let him ferve him, and testify to the mayor that the apprentice ferved a freemen, the master and fervant may both be disfranchifed, and fined at the pleasure o the recorder, and the mayor may cause the freeman's shop to be shut up.

If a master connive at his apprentice's servitude, and make him free too foon, they are both liable to be disfranchifed; the former acting contrary to the oath which he took, when he himfelf was made free, and which ought to govern all freemen afterwards. The oath is in the following terms.

"Ye shall swear that ye shall be good and true to our sove-"reign lord K. George III, and to the heirs of our fovereign lord "the king, obeyfant and obedient ye shall be to the mayor and " minifters of the corporation, the franchifes and customs thereof "ye shall maintain, and this town keep harmless in that That " you is.

- "Ye shall be contributary to all manner of charges within "this town, as fummons, watches, contributions, taxes, tallages, " lot and fcot, and to all other charges bearing your part as a " freeman ought to do.
- "Ye shall colour no foreign goods under or in your name, " whereby the king or this town might or may lose their customs " or advantages.
- "Ye shall know no foreigner to buy or sell any merchandize "with any other foreigner within this corporation or franchise " thereof, but ye shall warn the mayor thereof, or some minis-" tering under him.

"Ye shall implead or sue no freemen out of this town, whilst "you may have right and law within the same town.

"Ye shall take no apprentice but if he be free-born, that is to fay, no bondman's son, nor the child of an alien, and for no less term than for seven years, without fraud or deceit, and and within the first year ye shall cause him to be enrolled, or else pay such sine as shall reasonably be imposed upon you for omitting the same: and after his term's end, within convenient time (being required) ye shall make him free of the corporation, if he have well and truly served you. Ye shall also keep the king's peace in your own person.

"Ye shall know no gatherings, conventicles, nor conspiracies, against the king's peace, but ye shall warn the mayor thereof, or lett it to your power.

"All these points and articles ye shall well and truly keep, actroding to the laws and customs of this corporation, to your power. So, God you help!"

It must be remembered to the honour of the magistrates of Newcastle, that their attention and zeal has ever been conspicuous, unremitted and ardent, in maintaining harmony and good order among all ranks of people within their jurisdiction, and stigmatizing bold and impudent misdemeanours. Ever inclined to lenity, rather than rigour, and conscious how much some delinquents are more affected by being exposed to public shame and ignominy, than by any other fort of punishment, they had an antient custom of punishing drunkards and brawling women by causing them to pass in review through the streets, each in a machine, symbols of their notorious misconduct. A great bar-volume to the streets of their notorious misconduct.

rel or tub, with the fides open, and one end perforated, was put over the drunkard's head, which covered his shoulders and body to the small of his legs, where it was fastened. This was called, The New-fashioned Cloak. An iron-engine, in a crown-like form, enclosed the head and face of the semale brawler, an iron-tongue entering her mouth, and so contrived, that her face might be seen. This was called, The Branks (z).

For preferving peace, tranquillity, and order, in preventing accidents in the night-time, an act of parliament was obtained by the corporation, 1763, for having lamps and a night-watch. Thus distinguished is Newcastle for its good government. It is as eminent for its Commerce, trade, and revenue. It is the great Emporeum of' the north of England, and of a good part of Scotland. In the carly reign of K. Edward III, it was so powerful in shipping, that in his expedition against the French, it sent him an aid of 17 ships, and 314 men, as appears from the roll of his sleet before Calais, extant in the king's great wardrobe in London, and cited by Hakluyt in his English Voyages (a). That great king, for the encouragement of its trade, granted the merchants leave to carry their goods to any part of England toll or custom-free (b). It is in the list of the trading towns to which Sir Thomas White, lord mayor of London, 1 Q. Mary, 1553, gave 100 l. per annum

(z) Gardiner, p. 110, 111. where there is a print of a woman under this discipline, attended by an officer of the corporation; her name, Anne Bidlestone.

(a) Vol. i. p. 176.

<sup>(1)</sup> Homines Novi Castri super Tynam possint mercimonia sua in qualescunque partes regni transferre sine solutione subsidii. Claus. 20 R. Ed. III. p. 14 m. 16.

for ever, to be lent to four merchant-cloathiers for ten years without interest (c). It first received that bounty in the year 1599, and ever fince in its turn. The merchant adventurers have a governor, twelve affiftants, and a fecretary. They have a flately court, to the east of the town-chamber, built upon part of the antient hospital of St. Catharine. Great and generous effects have been lately made by the corporation to give life and vigour to the commercial arts. A bank has been established. A fund has been raifed for carrying on the herring and Greenland fisheries. But the chief trade of Newcastle is derived from the coal-mines. the Potofi of Northumberland, and Durham. This gives bread to fome thousands, and enriches individuals. The vail extent of it may be partly gueffed at, from the 1s. per chaldron granted by the corporation to Q. Elizabeth, in the lieu of an arrear of 2 d. per chaldron, fince given to the noble family of the Duke of Richmond, which amounts to about 14,000 l. per annum. The coal-fleets fometimes amount to 500 fail. Their flation is at Shields, and at the keys of Girwy or Jarrow, and Willington; the former on the fouth, and the latter on the north fide, of the Tyne. All that parcel of ground within the liberty of Willington. between high and low-water-mark, in length from east to west 1245 yards, and in breadth 120 yards, was granted by the corporation to Sir Francis Anderson, Knt. on a lease for 1000 years, with leave to erect keys, and cast ballast, on payment of 2 d. per ton, 9th Sept. 1665. Ships take in their loading of coals by the help of keels. It was enacted, 9 K. Hen. V. 1421, that the keels should be of the burthen of 20 chaldrons, and no more, according to custom; (some being of the burthen of 22, and some of 24 chaldrons, to defraud the king of his customs;) and that they should be fealed by the king's officers (d). Small ships, loaden with merchant goods, only come up to the key at Newcastle. It is esteemed one of the best keys in England. It is in length, from east to west, 103 rods.

(c) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 1092.

Great contests were antiently between this corporation, and the priors of Tynemouth, and the bishops of Durham, concerning the jurisdiction of the river Tyne. A decisive decree was obtained against the prior of Tynemouth, 34 K. Edward I (e); and another against the bishop of Durham, 8 K. Richard II (f).

A grant of the confervation of the river Tyne was given to John Earl of Hamftead, 12 K. Edward II; but was recalled in the fame year, on the king's being informed that it was an infringement of the liberties of the corporation (g).

The town is well supplied with provisions both by land and water. It hath two excellent weekly markets. They are held.

- (d) Novi Castri super Tynam de custuma regi debita pro quolibet quarterio carbonum maritimorum ibidem vendendo gentibus franchesiam non habentibus, et de vasis vocatis Keels ibidem mensurandis.

  Pat. 9 R. Hen. V. p. 2. m. 19. tom. 4. Rot. Turri Londin.
  - (e) Bourne, p. 161.
- (f) Quod gaudeant major et communitas Novi Castri super Tynam libertatibus et privilegiis concessis, præceptum est episc. Dunelm.

Clauf. 8 R. Ric. II. in initio Rotuli & in dorso. in 51. intus inter episc. p. 100. et in 42. dorso.

(g) Tyne aqua concessa Johanni de Hamsted. Pat. 12. R. Ed. II. p. 1. m. 2. 7.

De custodia aqua de Tyne concessa pridem Johanni de Hamsted, revocata, quia rex intelligit, quod commissarius prædictus agit in prejudicium libertatis burgensium Novi Castri.

Clauf. 12 Reg. Ed. II. m. 26.

on Tuesdays and Saturdays. It hath also two great and noted annual fairs. One is on the first of August, and continues eight days together. It was granted by K. John. The other is on St. Luke's day, in the same place. It was granted by K. Henry VII. On these two days they are also held on the town-moor. It has been before observed, that whilst they continue, the corporation have a court of pye-powder, which has all the privileges that a court-leet can have. The tolls, booths, stallage, picage, and courts of pye-powder, of each of the fairs, in the times of the usurpation, were valued at 12 l.

The revenue of the corporation of Newcastle, which they hold in their own right, is upwards of 8000 l. per annum. They have the royalties of the river Tyne from Sparrow-Hawk, by Tynemouth-Bar, to Hedwine-streams, above the village of Newburn; a space of 14 miles. The circumference of their boundaries is 10 miles, and 50 yards. The revenue for coals, falt, grindstones, ballast, &c. are received by eight chamberlains. They also keep the town-securities. Their office is in the exchange. They are commonly decayed merchants, eminent for their integrity, chosen annually. Twenty-sour auditors, chosen out of the twelve companies, examine their accounts once a year; and conjunctly with the mayor and aldermen see that the overplus of their annual revenue is put into the town-stock, or butch, as it is usually phrased. The chamberlains give daily attendance at their office.

Newcastle is not more eminent for its wealth and commerce, than for its zeal in cherishing religion. It is famous for its monasteries, its hospitals, alms-houses, and churches. The monasteries were,

St. Bartholomew's, The St. Austin's,
The Franciscans, The Domus Fratrum de Penitentia,
The Domus Fratrum Predication The Domus Fratrum Carmeli Monte.

St. Bartholomew's was founded by K. Henry I, for Benedictine Nuns. It was in Newgate-street. A back-gate leading to it still retains their name; as does their garden (h), which is in a square vale, and reaches to a place called High-Frier-Chare. Besides other pos-sessions, not now certainly known, they had the pleasant village of Stella on the southern banks of the river Tyne, in the bishop-rick of Durham, afterwards in the possession of Sir Nicholas Tempest, Bart. as attested by an antient writing, in the custody of the late humane and judicious antiquary, Dr. Hunter, of Durham (i). It is believed they had a very large property in Newcastle, in wastes and houses. The garden of the post-house was one of these wastes (k). A plot of ground adjoining to the town-moor was

(b) Bourne, p. 48, 49.

Smith in Not. Bed. 1. 3. c. 21.—Bourne, p. 213, 214, 215.

(i) 1 2mo die Septembris, anno 2do Caroli regis compertum post mortem Nicholai Tempest, de Stelley, in com. Dunelm. mil. et baronet. Quod suit seisitus de et in manerio de Stellingley, alias vocat. Stelley, situat. et exist. prope aquam de Tyne, in parochia de Ryton, in episcopatu Dunelm. cum suis juribus, membris et pertinentiis universis: Ac de omnibus terris arabilibus, pratis, pascuis, pasturis, boscis, subboscis, communiis, piscationibus, mineris, carbonum infra solum et sundum ibidem commoditatibus, prosicuis, emolumentis, et aliis idvantagiis, cidem manerio de Stellingley, alias Stelley, pertinentibus, vel ullo modo spectantibus, nuper parcello possessimo domus sive monasterii S. Bartholomei infra villam Novi Castri super Tynam dissoluti.

(k) Ubi nulla remanent antiqui monasterii Utani: Vestigia recentioris quidem, pulcherrimam videmus capellam vix adhuc ruinis succumbentem. Traditio est cellam sussitionantialium Novocastrentium, licet ejus historiam apud autores vix inveneris.

their's, and still carries their name, that of the Nun-Moor. monastery and chapel in Gateshead, called Gateshead-House, is faid to have been a cell to them, and paid an annual rent of 2 s. St. Mary's hospital, in Westgate-street, was also dependent upon them (1). Their annual revenue, 26 K. Henry VIII, was valued at 361. 10s. Dugd. 37 l. 4s. 2 d. Speed. They furrendered Jan. 3. 1540. The abbess was allowed a pension of 6 l. per ann. for life. Her name was Agnes Lawfon. The monastery came into the posfession of Lady Gaveere, of whom it was purchased by Mr. Robert Anderson, who, to diflodge itinerant, pedling traders, and ftrollers, (for whom it was become a kind of fettlement and a home, and a grievance to honest freemen and tradefinen of the town) pulled it down, cleared the garden of rubbish, and made it a very pleafant fpot, being reputed from corner to corner eleven fcore yards, which is now a meadow, and belongs to Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart (m).

The monastery of the Franciscans, Grey Friers, or Friers Minors, was founded in the reign of K. Henry III, by the Carliols, wealthy merchants in Newcastle (n), whose great estate went by marriage to the family of the Thurgills of the Wolds in Yorkshire (o). It was situated by a lane, now called High Frier Chare,—Vicus qui ducit

<sup>• (1)</sup> Henricus rex (II.) &c. Sciatis me concessisse, et charta confirmasse monialibus sancti Barthol mei de N vo Castello super Tynam omnes donationes quæ eis rationabiliter sactæ sunt : videlicet, ecclesiam Sancti Bartholomei, et hospitale de Sanctæ Marie de prædicto castello, et terram, &c. Et xx acras de scala, et ix tosta—Et duos solidos de Gatishead, et omnia alia quæ eis rationabiliter data sunt, vel dabuntur. Quare volo et sermiter precipio, &c. Test. Will. de Mandavilla, Reginald de Curtnay, Will. de Stuttevilla, Thomas de Bardulf, Robert, de Stuttevilla, Richard de Gosford.

(m) MS. of John Milbank, Esq; cited by Bourne.

(n) Bourne, p. 19.

<sup>(0)</sup> Lel. Itin. vol. 6. p. 55.

ad fratres minores; near Pilgrim-street-gate, and opposite to Ficket-Tower, in the garden of Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. (p). It consisted of a warden, eight friers, and two novices. It surrendered 9 Jan. 30 K. Henry VIII.

The Domus Fratrum Predicatorum, or the monastery of the Preaching Friers, Black Friers, or Dominicans, was founded in honour of St. Dominic, born at Cologna in Spain, by Sir Peter and Sir Nicholas Scott, father and son, both merchants in Newcastle, and owners of the lordship of Eshet, near Felton (q), on a piece of ground given by three sisters in Westgate (r), whose names are not now to be learnt from any records. Sir Peter was the sirst mayor of Newcastle, 1251. He was mayor three years. Sir Nicholas, his son, was one of its four bailists, 1254, 1257, and 1269. Its remains shew it to have been a very handsome structure. The grass-area is about 87 feet in length, and as many in breadth; on the east of which was a chapel, now the hall of the smiths company; and on the west, an antient well, called our Lady's Well; on the south, is the Cordwainer's hall, turned into apartments for three widows; on the north, were the gardens (s). It consisted of a prior, and

(p) MS. of John Milbank, Esq; (q) Lel. Itin. vol. 6. (r) IbiJ.

(s) Edwardus Dei gratia, rex Angliæ, dominus Hiberniæ, dux Aquitaniæ, omnibus ad quos presentes literæ perveniunt, salutem. Sciatis quod de nostra gratia speciali concessimus dilectis nobis fratribus predicatoribus de Nevo Castro super Tynam, quod per medium Nevum Murum circumagentem villam prædictam, quem per medium gardini prædictorum fratrum sieri oportebit, ut dichi sacere possint quandam strictam portam ad ingressum in gardinum suum habend. portam sust. sibi et successoribus suis tenere in perpetuum. Dum tamen porta ista ad voluntatem nostram, vicecomitis Nosthumbriæ aut constabuli nostri ibi d. qui pro tempore suerit, obstruatur.

Pat. 8 R. Ed. I.

Frațres Predicatores monasterii in Novo Castro super Tynam habent licentiam saciendi quendam pont m vergatilem ultra Novum Fossatum, &c. Pat 5 R. Ed. II. p. 2. m 5.

twelve brethren, dependent upon Tynemouth. They furrendered 10 Jan. 30, Henry VIII. Their annual revenue was then 2 l. 19s. 6d. The priory was granted to the corporation of Newcastle, in confideration of 53 l. 7s. 6d. In which gift are mentioned, besides the buildings, two gardens, a whole close within Westgate, another close adjoining to the north of the priory, a third containing three acres, and a house upon the same without the walls, and a house near Westgate, called The Gate-house; the king reserving to himself and successors the bells, lead, iron, and stone of the abbey-church, and other buildings. The priory is preserved from delapidations by several trades or companies of the corporation, who have their halls in it.

The monastery of St. Austin was founded by William Lord Ros, Baron of Wark upon Tweed (t). It was situated in the Manour-Chare, formerly called Cow-gate (u). It was a handsome edifice, adorned with cloisters, and had a curious chapel. It was sometimes the residence of the kings of England, in their expeditions against Scotland. It surrendered 9 Jan. 30 K. Henry VIII; and for some time was made use of by the government for a magazine and a storehouse, and was called by the townsmen, The Artillery-yard. K. James I, gave it to a Scotchman, who uncovered it, and

(t) Lel. Itin. vol. 5. p. 108.

(u) Fratr. Sancti Augustini in Novo Castro super Tynam confirmatio Cotæ Terræ quæ jacet in Cow-gate ibidem, concess. Pat. 2. R. Ed. II. p. 1. m. 23.

De messuag. in Novo Castro super Tynam, parcell. possession. Roberti le Middleton, attinsi, concessis per regem pro manso elargendo.

Pat. 2. R. Ed. II. p. 2. m 31.

Fratr. Sancti Augustini monasterii in Novo Castro super Tynam de quadam Placca Terræ ibidem continente 28 pedes in longitud. et 160 pedes in latitud. perquirenda de jo. Denton, pro manso elargendo.

Pat. 16. R. Ed. II. p. 2 m. 15.

fold the lead, which was cast away at sea before it reached a market, and sold some of the stones to Sir Peter Riddel, with which the south end of his sine house was built (v). Out of its ruins has since arose a work-house for the employment of the poor; a house of correction; a charity-school for the parish of All-Saints, and dwelling for the master built in 1723. The Surgeon's Hall, and two of the town's hospitals, stand on part of the ground which was the gardens belonging to it.

The Domus Fratrum de Penitentia I. Christi, or the Monastery of the Brethren of the Penance of Jesus Christ, was at the foot of Westgate, near the White Frier-Tower. K. Henry III, by the desire of Robert Bruce, gave it a place, called Stable-Garth (x), supposed by Sir John Fenwick to be in the close of the Domus Fratrum Carmeli Monte, or Monastery of White Friers (y); which was founded by K. Edward I. in honour of the Blessed Virgin, for a prior, seven brethren, and two novitiates; and surrendered 10th Jan. 30 K. Henry VIII; valued at 9 l. 11 s. 4 d. It was almost at the foot of Westgate, opposite to the White Frier Tower. The enclosure belonging to it, wherein was the Stable-Garth, came into the possession of Sir Ralph Delaval. It then had the name of Domus Fratrum de Penitentia (z).

The Carmelites had another monastery, situated on the Wall-Knowl; the founder, Laurentius de Acton (a), or Roger de Thorn-

- (v) MS. of John Milbank, Esq; cited by Bourne, p. 136, 137.
- (x) Nov. Castr. super Tynam fratres de penitentia Iesu Christi de quadam placea ibidem vocata Stable-Garth contigua claus. dictorum fratrum concessa ad placeam suam elargendam.

Pat. 51. R. Hen. III,

(y) MS. de rebus Novi Castri, cited by Bourne, p. 38.

(z) Ibidi

(a) Lel. Itin. vol. vi. p. 56.

ton (b); but, which of them is not known by the authority of any record that is decifive. It is certain, Roger de Thornton, the elder, was a benefactor to it. By his will heleft two fother of lead to repair the church or chapel belonging to it (c). It was dedicated to St. Michael, from whom, and the height of its fituation, it had the name of St. Michael's Mount. At the diffolution, K. Henry VIII, gave it, and its revenues, to Sir John Gresham, an alderman of the city of London, viz. The priory-house, garden, and orchard, about an acre of ground; an enclosure near the town-walls, about four acres; thirty-four messuages, three gardens, and one enclosure; also an enclosure called Cole-riggs, and four Les Rigges in the Shield-field. The priory, with a house, orchard, and garden, came afterwards into the possession of William Dent, an alderman of Newcastle, Esq; and his fon William, who conveyed them, 24 Q. Elizabeth, to William Jennison, Esq; then mayor, and Richard Hodgson, Esq; of that corporation (d).

Besides these monasteries, two others were intended to have been founded. A grant was obtained, 37 K. Edward III, for founding one in honour of the nativity and resurrection of our blessed Lord, which was repealed the year following (e). A grant was also obtained, 5 K. Henry IV, for founding another in honour of St. John the Baptist, and St. John the Evangelist (f).

- (b) Dugd. Baronag. in Familia de Lumley.
- (c) Bourne, p. 210, 211. (d) Id. sect. vi. p. 139, &c.
- (e) Pro fraternitate in Novo Castro super Tynam saciend. in honorem nativitatis et resurrectionis Iesu Christi.
  - Pat. 37. R. Ed. III. p. 2. m. 30. et anno 38. p. 2. m. 33. pro revocatione ejusdem, et m. 12. in dorso. et anno 39. p. 1. m. 24. tom. 4. Rot. Turri Londinensi, Northumbr.
- (f) De fraternitate Sancti Johannis Baptista, et Johannis Apostoli, in Novo Castro, facienda et sundanda.

  Pat. 5. R. Hen. IV. p. 2. m. 25. Ibid.

The

The hospitals were

St. Mary Magdalen's; The Holy Trinity;
The Bleffed Virgin's; The Maison Dieu, or St. Catharine's.

St. Mary Magdalen's hospital was founded by K. Henry I, for a master, brethren, and sisters, to receive leprous people. After that fickness abated, it was an afylum for the poor of the town in time of pestilence. Fourteen within the house were allowed every one a room, 8s. per month, and coals. Fifteen without the house had a different allowance: Some 8s. per month, some 5 s. and fome 2 s. 6 d. In the reign of K. Edward III, Laurentius Acton had the first fruits of it, amounting annually to 200 marks. John Bland, who was then master, paid him for his own right 40 marks. He is upon record for being a confiderable patron to it. He freed it foon after his accession to the mastership of two annual pensions; one paid to Richard Spereman, and the other to Hugh de Mitford. He built the confistory, and ornamented the chapel. He also raised some other buildings at his own charge. He died 48 K. Edward III, 1374, and was interred in his own chapel, near the high altar (g); after having prefided over the hospital five years. It was a donative, in the patronage of the corporation. It flood without Pilgrim-street-gate, near the Barrow's bridge, on the fummit of a hill, under which was a well of its own name, and feveral meadows about it, now called The Maidlin-meadows; one of which was the Barrow, or burialground, belonging to it, and gave its name to the bridge. Hard by, on the other fide of the bridge, was a chapel, dedicated to St. James; supposed to have been a chapel of ease to the parish of St. Andrew (h).

(g) Johannes de Bland obiit die mensis proximo ante sessum Sancti Michaelis archangeli, hora nona illius diei, A. D. 1374. Cujus corpus humatum est juxta summum altare ex parte boreali cancellarii, in capella Beatæ Mariæ Magdalenæ.

Lib. Cart.

The hospital of the Bleffed Virgin, or St. Mary's hospital, claims three foundations. But at what particular time any of them were founded, and by whom the first was, cannot be determined with precision. To the first Walter de Bolbeck was a benefactor (i). The latter, and the chapel belonging to it, were founded by a gentleman of Killingworth or Killinghowe, near Newcastle, of the name of Afelack, whose charter, which is without date, runs thus, "I Aselack of Killinghow have founded the hospital and "chapel of St. Mary the Virgin, upon my own land, for two bre-"thren to be regulars, and one chaplain, to ferve God, and take " care of the poor (k)." Though the very time of its foundation cannot be afcertained, yet that it was in being in the reign of K. Richard I, is certain from his confirmation of the charter, wherein Aselack is stilled, his burgess of Newcastle (1). The third foundation was by the corporation. It was to be a fort of an afylum to lodge the helpless stranger, and indigent traveller in, an eleemofynary for the fick and needy, and to give fepulture to fuch as died in it. It was allowed nine chaldrons of coals annually,

(b) Bourne, p. 151, 152, 153. (i) Camd. Brit. ed. opt. p. 855.

(k) Ego Melack de Killynghowe fundavi hospitale Sanctæ Mariæ virginis et capellam super terram meam in Novo Castello, super Tynam, et ibi posui duos fratres regulares, et unum capellanum, ad serviendum Deo, et pauperibus; reddidi meipsum Deo, et Bentæ Mariæ, et fratribus ejusdem hospitalis ibidem Deo servientibus, ad hospitandum pauperes, et egenos elericos, et pro salute animarum omnium hospitalis benefactorum.

Lib. Cart.

<sup>(1)</sup> Sciatis me dedisse et concessisse Domino et Sanctæ Mariæ, et sanctimonialibus de Novo Castello, pro salute animæ meæ, et antecessorum meorum, Aselack, burgeum meum de Novo Castello, &c.

Lib. Cart.

and had a chaplain to attend it; its yearly revenue, 33 l. 15 s. (m). K. Edward III, by letters patents granted it the fum of a hundred shillings, tam in feodo fuo quam in alieno, as a compensation for such losses as it had sustained by the incursion of the Scots. Richard de Bury, Bishop of Durham, confirmed to it all its lands, rents, rights, and immunities whatever, 8th Jan. 1335, the second year of his confectation, at Gateshead. In the mayoralty of William Harding, 1444, the following list was taken of the plate, facred vestments, and other things belonging to it.

Three chalices gilt with gold, one entire veftment of bloody velvet, woven about with golden fringe, with one cap, one cafule, three albs, for the principal feftivals.

A cap of cloath of gold, of a red colour, wrought with golden images, with one cafule, three albs.

A cap of a black colour, woven with dragons, and birds, in gold.

A fingle veftment wrought in with peacocks, with a corporal belonging to the fame.

A fingle vestment for the priest, white, bordered with roses, with a corporal belonging to it.

A fingle vestment for the presbyter, of a bloody colour, with a corporal belonging to the same.

Another vestment for the presbyter, of cloath of gold.

215

Another vestment of cloath of gold, interwoven with leopards and birds.

A hood or cap; one cafule, one alb, with a ftole.

A cover of bloody velvet for a fepulchre.

Two cafules, the middle part of them white.

A hood of a red colour, an ornament for the altar of St. Nicholas.

Two linen cloaths of a red colour for the fide-ornament of the altar.

A frontale of fattin, of a bloody colour, woven with golden figures for the altar.

A quadrigefimal vale, of linen cloath, white, with a white crofs below in the fame.

A table fet apart as an ornament for the linen of the altar.

A table gilt, with the image of the Bleffed Virgin Mary.

Two tables with the Pax, one of them gilt, and adorned with precious stones, &c. &c.

A charter was obtained by the corporation for this hospital, 9 K. James I. There is a lift both of its benefactors and masters in their late chorographer (n), but no regular series. In the chapel belonging to it, is the essigns of the Virgin Mary, with the Holy Jesus upon her knees. It was converted to a grammar-series!

(n) Bourne, p. 30, to p. 35.

The veftry, at the east end of it, is used for the election of the mayor, aldermen, sheriff, and other officers of the corporation. The master of the grammar-school is generally master of the hospital. A writing-master has a school, and an apartment in it, supported by the corporation. It is situated in the pleasant street of Westgate, and is now called, the West Spittle (o).

The hospital of the Holy Trinity was founded 37 K. Edward III, 1363, by William de Acton, mayor of this corporation in 1366, 1367, 1368. It stood on the Wall-Knowl. The first master of it was William Wakefield, chosen on the dissolution of a house of the same order in Berwick upon Tweed by Anthony Beck, Bishop of Durham, over which he also presided (q). It surrendered 10 Jan. 30 K. Henry VIII.

The hospital of St. Catharine was founded in the reign of K. Henry IV, by that great patron of Newcastle, Roger Thornton, the elder (r). It was situated on the south side of the Sand-hill. The chaplain

(0) Ibid. (q) Lel. Itin. Vol. viii. p. 23.

(r) Rex Henricus IV. &c. salutem. Sciatis quod de gratia nostra speciali et consideratione cujusdam summæ pecuniæ nobis in camera nostra, per dilectum nobis Rogerum nuper solutæ, concessimus et licentia dedimus, &c. præsato Rogero, quod ipse quoddam hospitale in honore Sanctæ Katharinæ, in quodam messuagio suo per ipsum Rogerum in parte nuper edificato in quodam loco vocato Le Sand-hill, in villa nostra novi castri super Tynam, continente C. pedes in longitudine, xl. pedes in latitudine, de uno capellano divina instra hospitale prædictum pro salubri statu ipsius Rogeri dum vixerit, et pro anima sua cum ab hac luce migraverit, ac animabus patris et matris ipsius Rogeri, et Agnetis nuper uxoris ejus; nec non antecessorum et liberorum suorum, ac omnium sidelium defunctorum, singulis diebus celebraturo; ac de novem viris et quatuor sceminis pauperibus in eodem hospitale continuo residentibus juxta ordinationem ipsius Rogeri, vel executorum suorum in hac parte faciendam, de novo sacere, creare, sundare, et stabilire possit in perpetuum: et quod hospitale illud, hospitale per se privatum et incorporatum existat in perpetuum: et quod hospitale illud, hospitale prædicti, chaplain prefided over it, and had the care of nine poor men, and four poor women. The corporation, 34 K. Henry VI, had the use qui pro tempore fuerit, sit custos ejusdem hospitalis; ac quod idem capellanus custos, et prædicti viri, et sæminæ, fratres et sorores hospitalis Sanctæ Katharinæ, vocati Thornton's Hospital, in Novo Castro super Tynam, nuncupatur quodque custos, fratres, et sorores, et eorum fuccessores, per nomen custodis, fratrum, et sororum hospitalis Sanctæ Katharinæ, vocati Thornton's Hospital, in Novo Castro super Tynam, fint personae capaces et habiles ad omnimoda, terras tenementa, redditus, et servicia, ac alias possessiones quascunque de quibusdam personis adquirendas, capiendas, et recipiendas, tenendas sibi et successoribus suis, custodibus, fratribus, et sororibus, hospitalis prædicti in perpetuum, licentia regia inde primitus obtenta. Nec non quod idem custos, &c. fint personæ habiles ad alios implaciandos, et ab aliis implacitari, et ad defendendum in quibuscunque placitis et querelis per nomen custodis, fratrum, et fororum hospitalis Sanctæ Katharinæ, vocati Thornton's Hospital, in Novo Gastro super Tynam. Et quod licet unum commune figillum pro negotiis et agendis ejusdem hospitalis deserviturum in perpetuum; et ulterius, &c. Licentiam dedimus, &c. præfato Rogero quod ipse quandam cantariam de uno capellano divina ad altare Beati Petri in capella Omnium Sanctorum in villa prædicta pro statu et animabus prædictis singulis diebus celebratur juxta ordinationem ipfius Rogeri, vel executorum suorum, in hac parte faciendam, scilicet, facere, fundare, et stabilire possit in perpetuum. Concessimus etiam, &c. præfato Rogero quod ipse meffuagium suum prædictum, cum pertinentiis, quod de nobis teneat in burgagio, postquam hospitale prædictum sic factum, fundatum, et stabilitum fuerit, dare possit et assignare præfatis, custodi, fratribus, et sororibus, hospitalis predicti habendum et tenendum sibi et succefforibus suis, tam pro inhabitatione sua, quam in auxilium sustentationis suæ in perpetuum concessimus insuper, &c. eidem Rogero quod ipse, heredes assignati, vel executores sui, terras, tenementa, et redditus, cum pertinentibus, ad valorem XL. per annum, tam ea quæ de nobis tenentur in burgagio, quam ea quæ de nobis non tenentur, acquirere et præfatis, custodi, fratribus, et sororibus, hospitalis prædicti, ac capellano cantariæ, cum sic sacta, sundata, et stabilita fuerit, juxta discretionem et limitationem suam divisam, et proportionabiliter dare, affignare, et concedere possint, habend. &c. Teste rege apud Westm. x. Junii.

Cart. R. Hen. IV.

Novi Castri super Tynam major, et communit, de quadam pecia terræ ipsis concessa per Rogerum Thornton ad ædificand, certis paup, personis in domo dei ibidem.

Pat. 4 R. Hene IV. p 2. m. 38.

the of the hall and kitchen by leave of the founder for a very charitable and laudable purpose, viz. for young married people to have their wedding-entertainment in it, and receive the offerings and gifts of their friends (s). For some years the sons of the clergy had their annual feast in it. The hall is adorned with the arms of several generous benefactors, and some very curious carvings in wood. In 1620, Sir Richard Lumley, for 100 l. sold to the corporation that part of the hospital standing to the east of the town-chamber, on the edge of the river, sixteen yards in length, and covered with lead, over which was erected the stately court of the merchant-adventurers of the old staple, beforementioned, first resident at Antwerp, in Brabant, and since in the more northern provinces under the states (t).

To these eminent houses of charity, I shall add two others of inferior note, commonly called after their founders, Christopher Brigham, and John Ward, merchants of this corporation,

The first stood near the monastry of the Franciscans; the latter in the Manour-Chare, at the bottom of the garden belonging to Mat-

Pro fundatione hospitalis vocati hospitale Sanctæ Katharinæ, in loco vocato Le Sand hill, in Novo Castro super Tynam; et pro cantaria ibidem ad altare Sancti Petri in capella Omnium Sanctorum.

Pat. 13 R. Hen. IV. p. 2. m. 14.

- (5) MS. of John Milbank, Esq; cited by Bourne, p. 124.
- (1) Greg's Chorographia: inter collectanea Oxfordiana, 4to. Vol. iii.

thew Waters, Esq; to which the mills at Panden-Gate are said to have paid 11. per annum, to find it in coals (u).

These are all the charitable foundations which claim any regard from their Antiquity. Such as are modern, I shall be less particular upon, as they are known to every body. I shall give them a place after the churches and schools, among the Public Buildings.

The parochial churches are,

St. Nicholas's, with

Gosforth,

St. Thomas's, and Cramlington Chapels.

All Saints, with

St. Ann's Chapel.

St. Andrew's.

St. John's.

St. Nicholas's has the pre-eminence. It is a vicarage; the impropriator and patron, the Bishop of Carlisle; given to the church and canons of St. Mary in that city, together with the church of Newburn, by K. Henry I. (v). The other churches are dependent upon it,

- (u) MS. of John Milbank, Esq; cited by Bourne, p. 138.
- (v) Henricus rex Angliæ, Archiepiscopo Ebor. et Episcopo Dunelm. et vicecomiti de Northumberlanda, salutem. Sciatis me dedisse et concessisse Deo et Sanctæ Mariæ de Cairlelia et canonicis ejusdem loci, ecclesiam de Novo Castello super Tynam, et ecclesiam de Newburna, et ecclesias quas Richardus de aurea Valle de me tenet, post obitum ejus, et Richardus, et clerici qui ipsis ecclesiis deserviunt, recognoscant de canonicis ipsius, et faciant eis servitium quod mihi sacere solebant, et post obitum eorum redigantur ecclesiæ in manus canonicorum, ita quod clerici qui eis deserviant, habeant inde necessaria, et canonici habeant reliquum.

Carta Hen. I. Monast. Angl. Tom. ii. p. 73. Cart. 8 Ed. II. n. 25. Et Cart. 6 Ed. III. n. 10. per Inspex.

and yet they are three diffinct parishes. The vicar receives dues from them all. It is faid to have been founded in 1091. In the grant to the church of Carlifle, mention is made of a fuitable maintenance to be given to the minister, but it is not specified what it was. This was fixed in the reign of King Stephen, 24 Jan. 1194. by Hugh Pudsey, Bishop of Durham, with the approbation of the prior and convent of Carlifle(x); who affigned him all the fruits, annual profits, oblations, and obventions whatfoever, belonging to his church of St. Nicholas, except the great tithes. It flands in an advantageous elevated fituation, almost in the center of the town; its length 79 yards two feet, and three quarters; its breadth 24 yards, two feet and three quarters; of a proportionable height. Four stone-images, at full length, adorn each corner of a fquare tower; out of which rifes a curious steeple; in height 64 yards, one foot, three quarters; decorated with 13 pinacles; two bold stone-arches supporting a large and beautiful lanthorn, on which is a tall and flately spire; the whole much

(x) Hugo dei gratia Dunelm. episcopus omnibus sanctæ matris ecclesæ silis ad quos literæ istæ pervenerint salutem. Noverit universitas vestra quod nos anno dom. 1194, pridie ante conversionem Sancti Pauli, vicariam ecclesæ Beati Nicholai de Novo Castello super Tynam, nostræ dioces, alias in eadem ordinatam de unanimi consensu dilectorum filiorum nostrorum prioris et conventus Karliol, dictam ecclesam Beati Nicholai in usus suos canonicè obtinentium, portionem infra scriptam pro sustentatione vicarii ejusdem, qui est, et pro tempore erit in eadem ex nostri pastoralis officii debito taxamus, statuimus et ordinamus; viz. quod quilibet vicarius illius ecclesiæ qui pro tempore suerit, pro sustentatione sua et portione congrua percipiat et habeat omnes sructus, proventus, oblationes, obventiones, quascunque ad dictam ecclesiam qualitercunque pertinentes de quibuscunque rebus existentes, decimis garbarum dictæ ecclesiæ duntaxet exceptis. In quarum inspectionis et compertionis testimonium sigillum nostrum secimus his apponi. Dat. in manerio nostro de Auckland, sexto die Junii, A. D. 1360. et nostræ consecrationis 15.

Ordinat. Vicar B. Nicholai, de Novo Castro.

Vicar. Eccles. Sancti Nicholai in Novo Castro redditus 13s. 4 d. exeund. de quibusdam messuag. in eadem villa.

Pat. 10 Ric. II. p. 2. m. 21.

admired. It has eight musical bells. It had antiently but five. The other three were added by the corporation, who had the old great bell new-cast at Colchester. It weighed 3129 lb. The church is well illuminated. The east or altar-window was antiently adorned with curious paintings in glass, of the twelve Apostles, and the Seven Deeds of Charity, done at the expence of the pious and muniscent Roger Thornton, the elder, who built the window, in which was this inscription, Orati pro anima Rogeri de Thornton, et pro animabus Filiorum et filiarum (y).

In the organ-gallery is a double organ; the present organist, the ingenious Mr. Avison, author of a late Essay on musical expression. On the north side of the organ is a porch called St. George's porch (z). It is vaulted underneath, and sealed above; and was antiently adorned with curious carvings in wood, and the windows with paintings in glass; some of the latter still remaining in the east-window, particularly the portraiture of St. Laurence. It is supposed to have been one of the antient chanteries, and to have been built by one of our English monarchs (a).

Nine chanteries were found in this church, in honour of St. John the Baptist; The Blessed Virgin;

St. John the Evangelist; St. Margaret;
St. Catharine, two; St. Cuthbert;
St. Peter and St. Paul; St. Lyra.

St. Thomas;

- (y) Grey's Chorographia, inter collectan. Oxfordiana. Vol. iii.
- (z) Bourne's Newcastle.
- (a) Ibid.

The chantery of St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist stood on the north side of the church (b). Its original foundation was by Laurence prior of Durham, 14 K. Stephen, 1149. It was refounded, 6 K. Edward III, by Richard de Emeldon, for three chaplains. By an injunction of Richard Bishop of Durham, in the third year of his confectation, 1335, they were obliged to distribute, after divine service, on the eve of the anniversary of his death, the sum of six shillings and eightpence to 160 poor people (c). It was founded again in the reign of K. Henry VI, by Robert de Rhodes and his wife Agnes, for one chaplain; the annual value 7 l. 7 s. 10 d. besides a house given by the corporation for the chaplain to live in (d).

One of the chanteries of St. Catharine was founded by Alan de Durham. It was re-founded in the reign of K. Edward III, by William Johnson and his wife Isabell, for one chaplain; the annual value, 6 l. 15 s.

The other chantery of St. Catharine was founded by Nicholas and John Elliker; the annual value 3 l. 14 s. 8 d. arising out of some houses in the Castle-mote, in the Side, in the Close, and in Sandgate.

The chantery of St. Peter and St. Paul was founded by Adam de Fenrother and Alan Hilton in the reign of K. Henry IV; the annual value, 4l. 13s. 4d. which arose out of some houses in Westgate, in the side, and in the Close.

(b) In ecclesia Sancti Nicholai de villa Novi-castri ad altare boreale Johannis Baptistæ, et Johannis Apost. et Evangel.

Lib. Cart. p. 121.

(c) Confirmatio ordinationis factæ per episcopum Dunelm. in cantaria fundata in eccles. Sancti Nicholai apud Nevum-castrum per Richardum de Emeldon.

Pat. R. Ed. III. p. 1, m. 15.

(d) Bourne, p. 59.

. The chantery of St. Thomas was founded by John Thapecape in the reign of K. Edward III; the annual value 4 l. 12 s. 6 d.

The chantery of the Bleffed Virgin claims as high a foundation as the reign of K. Edward I. at least, but how much earlier, and by whom, is unknown, the deed of foundation being lost. It stood on the fourth side of the church, being a large porch; the annual value, 51. 168. Nicholas de Carliol, capital bailiss of the corporation, 1328, and Peter Graper, mayor of it, 1305, paid each 28. per ann. to it (e).

The chantery of St. Margaret was founded by Stephen Whitgray and his wife, Mary, 17 K. Richard II, 1394. It flood on the fouth fide of the church, near the porch-door, of a fquare figure; the annual value 10 marks; the chaplain chosen by the vicar, the mayor and bailiffs of the corporation, and four creditable parishioners of St. Nicholas, after the death of the founders (f).

The chantery of St. Cuthbert was founded by Thomas de Errington and William Redmarshal in the reign of K. Richard II; the annual value, 7l. 3s. 2d. raised out of some houses in the Side, the Sandhill, and the Close. Thomas de Errington was one of the witnesses to the foundation-deed of St. Margaret's chantery.

The chantery of St. Lyra was founded by Robert Castell in the reign of K. Edward III; the annual value 41. 10s. which arose

(e) Lib. Cart. p. 48, &c.

(f) Pro cantaria facienda ad altare Sanctæ Margaritæ in parte australi in ecclesia Sancti Nicholai in Novo Castro super Tynam, et pro x. Marc. Redd.

Pat. 17. R. Rie. II. p. 1. m. 36. et Pat. 3 R. Hen. IV. p. 1. m. 12.

224

from certain tenements in the Close, in Westgate, and from a field without the west-gate, called, The Goose-green-close.

In the north ifle is a large gallery, defigned principally for the boys of the grammar school. The east end was enlarged by one of its lecturers, the late Dr. Thomlinson, for the accommodation of himself, and his successors. The vestry is on the south side of the chancel, above which is a library, to which the fame pious and worthy lecturer at his death gave a large and valuable collection of books. The annual income of 251. per ann. for ever, has been fettled on a librarian by Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. The corporation make the vicar an annual compliment of 90 l. and the first curate another of 401. per annum, who also receives 41. per annum, from the vicar, and 61. 16s. 8d. per annum from the crown, and the usual fees of the church. He is stilled in an antient writing, The parish priest, absque impedimento vicarii aut presbyteri parochialis. It was customary till the year 1724, to have two parishclerks, when one of them dying, another curate was appointed, whose annual income arises out of the clerk's fees. The lecturer receives annually from the corporation 100 l. for preaching every Sunday in the afternoon, and 201. for preaching on holidays. The prefent lecturer is the Rev. Thomas Dockwray, D. D. late fellow of St. John's college in Cambridge, and vicar of Stamfordham; who was promoted by the corporation to this lectureship on the refignation of his uncle, of his own name; and to his vicarage by the crown, on the refignation of the Rev. Dr. Baker. Here are prayers twice a day; a catechetical lecture in every week when there are no holidays; and a fermon twice a week, on every Wednesday and Friday, in Advent and Lent, preached by all the clergy of the town in their turn. There are many funeral monuments, both mural and others, in this and the other churches, and many benefactions left to the parish-poor, which are minutely enumerated by the late chorographer of Newcastle, to whom I refer. The church-yard of St. Nicholas was enclosed by subscription, 1761, with stone, and wooden pales, neat and handsome. The vicarage-house stands at the west end of St. John's church-yard in the well-built and pleasant street of West-gate, on the north side of it; the garden to the west, open and airy; remarkable for having had the Roman wall pass through the middle of it. The house is supposed to have been built by the corporation. It was repaired by the Rev. Dr. Ellison, 1694, then vicar; and by the Rev. Dr. Brown, 1762.

Gosforth-chapel is at a fmall village, about a mile north from the town, on the east fide of the great post-road; nothing about it remarkable. It is supplied by the vicar.

The chapel of St. Thomas is at the north-east end of Tyne-bridge. It is commonly called, The Bridge-End chapel, from its situation. For the keeping it, and the bridge, in repair, several rents were settled upon it (g). It had also an annual rent of 20 s. from the noble family of Percy, Earls of Northumberland, for their house in Newcastle, called, Earl's Inn (b). Two chanteries were founded in it, in honour of St. Ann, and St. Mary, the Bleffed Virgin.

- (g) De diversis redditibus Novo Castro pertinentibus, reparatione pontis et capellæ Sancli Thomæ, Escaet. 43 R. Ed. III. Pt. 2. n. 56. Tom. 4. Rot. Turri Londinensi, Northumbr.
- (b) Tenementum in Neve Costro super Tynam, vocatum, Earl's Inn of Northumberland, tenetur in Burgag, et redd. per ann. liberè capellæ Sancti Thomæ martyris custod. super pontem aquæ de Tynæ, 20s. post mortem Johannis ducis de Bedford; Escaet. 14 R. Hen. VI. n. 36.

St. Ann's was founded by William Heron, who endowed it with an annual rent of fix marks, out of some tenements on the Sand-bill (i); valued, at the dissolution, at 41. 17s.

St. Mary's was endowed with an annual rent of five marks, out of five messuages in the Close and Side; the founder unknown (k); valued, at the dissolution, at 41. 3s. 6d.

Another chantery was founded in honour of St. Mary, by George Carr, merchant of this town, but never licenced. He fettled an annual rent upon it out of fome houses on the Sand-hill, and the Side; valued, at the dissolution, at 51. 6 s. 8 d (l).

There are three cellars under the chapel. Gilbert de Mitford, a burgess of Newcastle, paid annually for the middle one 14s. at the feast of St. Martin, in the winter. It was confirmed to him 21 K. Edward III, 1347, by charter from William Spyn, then chaplain, and guardian of the alms for the support of Tyne-bridge, with the confent of the corporation; sealed with their seal, and signed by Peter Grasser, mayor, William de Acton, Hugh de Angerton, Hugh de Carliol, and John de Emildon, bailiss (m).

- (i) De cantaria facienda in capella Beati Thomæ in Novo Castro super Tynam, et de 6 Marcis redditus ibidem, concess. per Williel. Heron, Pat. 2 R. Ed. III. p. 2. m. 26.
- (k) De 5 messuag. in Novo Castro dimissis ad firmam Thomæ Creindon pro termino annorum per capellanum cantariæ Beati Thomæ ibidem redd. per annum 5 Marc. Pat. 13 R. Ric. II. p. 2. m. 32.
- (1) See the Survey of the Chanteries, and the names of the patrons, 26 K. Hen. VIII.
  - (m) Bourne's Hist. of Newcastle, p. 131.

.

St. Mary Magdalen's hospital has been annexed to it, which confists of a master and three poor brethren, free burgesses of Newcastle; each brother allowed 31. 6s. 3d. per annum; the curate for reading prayers, and one sermon annually, 41. 6s. 8d. the collector of the rents about 11. 17s. 6d. the whole rental, 29l. 7s. 8d (n).

It was made a chapel of ease to St. Nicholas, 10th Sept. 1732, by the corporation; at whose expence it was then repaired, who allow very handsomely to a morning and afternoon preacher (0).

Cramlington-chapel is fix or feven miles north-east from New-castle; nothing about it remarkable.

All Saints church is at the foot of Pilgrim-street, on an eminence; its length, 55 yards, one foot; its breadth, 25 yards, two feet; a low fquare tower at the west end, with one spire rifing from it; adorned with a clock, and fix good bells, cast out of the statue of K. James II, standing formerly on the Sand-hill. In some of the windows were antiently feveral curious pourtraitures, painted on glass; one of our Blessed Lord, at full length, in the fouth-east window, at the east end of the chancel; his twelve Apostles, in the window next the porch-door, but one; the pious family of Roger Thornton, two fons, and three daughters. kneeling at altars, in the window above the fouth door, leading into the quire, towards the porch. Most of these were taken away, or defaced, in the late civil wars. At the west end of it is a handsome gallery, built in 1712; an organ in the middle; the north end accommodating the children of the charity-school. At the east end is another for the use of the Butchers. There is also one for the sailors in the north isle, built by the Trinity-House, 1618, John Holburne then master; beautisted with paintings, 1720, representing our Blessed Saviour asleep in the storm;—his taking St. Peter by the hand when he was sinking in the waves;—Jonah vomited up upon the dry land.

(n) Ib.

(0) Ib.

The chancel stands upon a large vault, of a square sigure, and spacious; a strong pillar in it, the support of eight large stonearches; the entrance on the north side of the church-yard. The altar-table is of marble, the donation of a person unknown. On the south side of it, is a Protheses, or side-altar. The chancel is adorned with wainscot-stalls, after the cathedral manner.

Seven chanteries were founded in this church, in honour of

St. Thomas;

St. John the Baptist;

St. Mary, the Bleffed Virgin;

St. Catharine;

St. John the Evangelist;

St. Lyra.

St. Peter.

St. Thomas's was founded by John Puthore, clerk; the annual value, 41.8 s. 4 d.

St. Mary's was founded by ----; the annual value, 41. 58. 10 d.

St. John the Evangelist's was founded by Richard Willisty and Richard Fishlake; the annual value, 41. 158. 4d.

St. Peter's was founded by Roger de Thornton; the royal licence granted, 13 K. Henry IV. (p) the annual value, 61. It was in the vacancy above the vestry, opposite to the founder's sepulchral monument.

(p) Pro cantaria ad altare Sancti Petri in capella omnium fanctorum, Nova Castro super Tynam; Pat. 13 R. Hen. IV. p. 2. m. 14.

St. Catharine's had the same pious founder, the annual value, 51. 3 s. 8 d (q).

St. John the Baptist's was founded by John Ward; the annual value, 71. 158. 8d.

St. Lyra's was founded in the reign of K. Edward III. by Richard Pickering, the annual value, 31. 8s. 4d.

The minister of this church is paid 41. per annum by the vicar, and 51. per annum by the crown. The rest of his income arises from the surplice-sees, register, &c. To lessen the weight of his parochial cares, an affistant was appointed, 1708, on the death

(q) Cantaria Sanctæ Gatharinæ, vocat. Thornton's Chantery, in ecclesia Omnium Sanctorum in Novo Castro, pro quibusdam messuag. et terris in eadem villa, Pat. 20 R. Ric. II. p. 3. m. 12. et pro 2 messuag. ibidem, Pat. 5 R. Hen. IV. p. 1. m. 8. Tom. 4. Rot. Turri Londinensi.

From the authority of an old vestry-book, Mr. Bourne gives the honour of the foundation of it to Robert de Chirton and his wife. See p. 92.

Vide Pat. subscript.

Cantaria in ecclesia omnium Sanctorum Novo Castro, concess. per Hen. Petlyng, Pat. 42 R. Ed. III. p. 2. m. q.

Et cantaria in ecclesia omnium sanctorum ibidem, pro tenem. in eadem villa, Pat. 44 R. Ed. III. p. 2. m. 7.

Et cantaria in capella omnium sanctorum ibidem, concessa per R. D. Pat. 42 R. Ed. III. p. 2. m. 22. et pro ten. ibidem, anno 43. p. 1. m. 2.

Et pro cantaria in ecclesia omnium sanctorum ibidem, et terris in eadem villa, Pat. 39 R. Ed. Ed. III. p. 1. m. 4. Tom. 4. Rot. Turri Londinensi. Northambr.

of John Pinkney, one of the parish-clerks; it being then customary to have two. He is allowed the clerk's fees for weddings, burials, christnings, &c. reputed about 50 l. per annum. Here are also two lecturers, allowed each 100 l. per annum by the corporation. On the high festival of Easter, they antiently presented this church with 21 gallons of wine. The sacrament is administred every second Sunday in the month; prayers every day, at ten o'clock in the morning, and sour in the afternoon.

St. Ann's chapel stands in the suburbs of Sand-gate, on the slope of a hill. After the reformation it was neglected and fell into decay. It was repaired, 1682. A lecturer was then appointed. He was to preach every Sunday-morning, and expound the catechism in the afternoon, for which he was allowed 301. per ann. At present, it has two lecturers; one allowed 401. and the other 501. per annum, by the corporation; by whom it was lately rebuilt, after an elegant design.

In the same suburbs was antiently another chapel, dedicated to St. Laurence. It is faid to have been built by one of the Earls of Northumberland. It was dependent upon the priory of St. John of Jerusalem. In consideration of 1441. 13 s. 4d. it was granted, among other things, to the corporation, 3 K. Edward VI (r). Out of the ruins of it, arose St. Laurence's bottle glass-house.

(r)	The rental, as follows, 1558.		1.	5.	d.
	St. Laurence held by lease, by John Laverock,	-	7	10	o .
	The fishery of St. Laurence, leased by Mitford,	- '	I	13	4
	A close, called, St. Ann's close,		0 -	12	Q
	A close, called, The coney-close,		1 .	13.	4
	A cottage in Killingworth, in the possession of John de Killingworth,	and ce	rtair	ı lan	ıds
	77 00 111111111111111111111111111111111	* # 48 * W	PK 1		- in Heton, juxta Nov. Castrum, belonging to St. Laurence. Lib. Cart. 44

St. Andrew's church stands near New-gate, on the west side of the street. From the stile of the architecture, and its situation, where old Monk-chester chiesly stood, it claims priority to the rest for antiquity. The old bells were taken down, 1726, and six new ones put in their place, by a contribution among the inhabitants, the corporation giving 50 l. A new porch was built at the same time. At the west end is a handsome gallery, erected, 1711, at the expence of the parish.

Three chanteries were founded in it, in honour of St. Mary, the Bleffed Virgin; The Holy Trinity; St. Thomas.

St. Mary's was founded by — the annual value, 6 l. 12 s. 10 d.

The Holy Trinity is faid to have been founded by Sir Adam de Atholl, Knt. whose remains, and the remains of his Lady, are interred in it; their funeral-monument bearing their effigies, and this inscription—Hic jacent Dominus Adamarus de Atholl, miles, & D'na Maria, uxor ejus, quæ obiit quarto decimo die mensis—anno Domini millesimo tricentessimo—animarum propitietur. The annual value of Sir Adam's chantery was 4 l. 2 s. 10 d.

St. Thomas's was founded by—— the annual value uncertain; a small part of its revenue in the possession of Sir Robert Brandling, at the dissolution.

The minister of this church receives annually from the vicar, 3 l. from the crown, 5 l. 2 s. 6 d. and from the corporation, for being being lecturer, 100 l. The facrament is administered every fourth Sunday in the month; prayers twice a week, on Wednesday and Friday, in the morning. The corporation formerly gave 10 gallons of wine to this church at the festival of Easter.

St. John's church is in the pleasant street of Westgate, by the vicarage-house. Some of its chief ornaments are derived from the liberal spirit of a pious tradesman, one of its parishioners, Mr. Robert Percival. He beautisted the altar, 1710. He built, at the same time, the north gallery for thirty-three persons. On the taking down the three old bells, 1707, and procuring six new ones by subscription, he gave 3 l. This was his liberality in his life-time. At his death, Feb. 8, 1729, he closed it with the donation of a house, in the wool-market, to his beloved parish, let at 20 l. per annum. He was only a pin-maker by profession, but these benefactions reslect a lustre upon his memory, and shew, that he had an elevated soul, though he was of an inferior sigure in the world.

The communion-plate was the gift of another of its pious friends, Mr. Robert Rymer. He gave a large flaggon, a chalice, and a falver, valued at 60 l. 1722.

At the west end of the church is another gallery. It had an organ in 1570, which being a long time perished, a new one was lately erected at the expence of the inhabitants.

Three chanteries were founded in this church, in honour of St. Thomas the Martyr;

St. Mary, the Bleffed Virgin;
The Holy Trinity.

233

St. Thomas's was founded in the reign of King Edward II, by Adam de Durham, a burgess of this town; the foundation-charter fealed with his feal, and signed by Richard de Emeldon, mayor; Thomas de Frismarisco, Richard de Acton, William de Burneton, Gilbert de Hankyn, Sir Nicholas Scot, Knt. Nicholas de Carliol, Peter Graper, &c. bailiss; the annual value 4 l. 3 s. arising from some tenements in the Sand-hill, and in Westgate (s).

St. Mary's was founded in the reign of K. Edward III, by Edward Scot; the annual value 4 l. 4 s. 4 d.

The Holy Trinity was founded by John Dalton, William Akinshawe, and Andrew Acliffe, clerks; the annual value 5 l. 13 s. 4 d.

The minister of this church receives annually from the vicar, 3 l, from the crown, 5 l. and from the corporation, for being

(s) Sciant presentes, &c. Quod ego Adam de Dunelm. Burgensis villæ Novi Castri super Tynam, &c. pro salute animæ meæ, et pro animabus Rogeri patris mei, &c. hac presenti carta mea confirmavi Domino Rogero de Burneto, capellano, singulis diebus ad altare beati Thomæ, martyris, in ecclesia parochiali Sancti Johannis de Novo Castro divina celebraturo totum illud messuagium, &c. Et volo quod post decessum meum, major et ballivi prædictæ villæ Novi Castri, quicunque pro tempore suo suerint, habeant jus patronatus dictæ cantariæ, et quod ipsi una cum quatuor de probioribus et discretioribus hominibus parochiæ prædictæ ad hoc electis possint ad dictam cantariam, quotiescunque ipsam vacatam contingat, virum capellanum honestum & discretum eligere & instituere.

Vid. Pat. subscript.

De cantaria in ecclesia sancti Johannis Baptistæ, Pat. 12. R. Ed. II. p. 1. m. 16.

De cantaria in eadem ecclesia Sancti Johannis, et de 1 mess. cum pertinen. 2 tost. 1 acr. terræ, et 10 s. redd. in eadem villa, Pat. 15. R. Ric. II. p. 2. m. 6.

Et pro cantaria fac. in ecclesia Sancti Johannis in Novo Castro super Tynam, et pro 3 mess. et 1 tost, ibidem, Pat. 16. R. Ric. II. p. 1. m. 12.

Et de cantaria facienda in ecclesia Sancti Johannis in Novo Castro super Tynam, et tenem. in eadem villa, Pat. 51. R. Ed. III. p. 1. m. 34. et anno 4. R. Hen. IV. p. 1. m. 22:

Vol. II. Hh lecturer, lecturer, 90 l. The facrament is administered every third Sunday in the month; prayers three times a week, on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday. At Easter, the corporation formerly gave 15 gallons of wine to this church.

The church-yard was inclosed by subscription, 1762, with stone, and a wooden pales, very neat; and planted round, in the inside, with young lime and elm trees. The church tower is adorned with a clock.

I have only to observe, before I conclude this account of the churches in Newcastle, that four ministers placed in them by the parliament, conformed to the church of England at the Restoration, viz. Mr. Cole, Mr. Richard Prideaux, Mr. Ashburnham, and Dr. Knightsbridge; and that a fifth, Mr. George Long, A. M. for not conforming, was silenced, and ejected from his fellowship in Trinity-college, Cambridge (t).

The principal schools established in Newcastle, are

A free Grammar-School, and Four parochial Charity-Schools.

The grammar-school was originally founded by Thomas Horsley, mayor of Newcastle in 1525. He left to it by will his lands in the town, in perpetuum, after his own and his wife's death. It was refounded by Q. Elizabeth, as attested by her charter. The impropriated or great tithes of the parish of Bolham belong to it. The mastership of St. Mary's hospital was usually annexed to it by the corporation, who are the patrons. The masters have convenient apartments to live in, in the hospital, commonly called, The West Spitle, from its situation in West-gate.

(t) Bishop Kennet's Historical Register, p. 906. 923.

The charity-school belonging to the parish of St. Nicholas, was founded by Mrs. Eleanor Allen, a widow-gentlewoman of Newcaftle. By a deed of gift, bearing date Feb. 20, 1705, the affigned a farm-hold and tenant-right in the parish of Walls-End, held under the dean and chapter of Durham, of above the annual value of 60 l. for the education of 40 boys and 20 girls of this parish, and the chapelry of St. John. The school was opened 1709. Another gentlewoman, the widow of the Rev. Mr. Chifholm, vicar of Wooler, at her death gave 500 l. to this generous and useful charity. By a parochial subscription, begun 1718, they are annually cloathed, May 1. The boys are instructed in reading, writing, and accompts, and then put to some honest business; receiving each a Bible and a Common-prayer-book, the Whole Duty of Man, Lewis's Exposition of the Church-Catechism, and 21. The girls are taught reading, fewing, and knitting, and are put out to reputable fervices, or trades. They are prefented with the fame good books, and 11. The school-master is allowed 25%. per annum, and 1 l. for coals; the school-mistress, 10 l. per annum, and 10s. for coals.

The charity-school belonging to the parish of All Saints is supported by subscription, begun 1709. It is conducted on the same plan, receiving 41 boys, and 17 girls.

The charity-school belonging to the parish of St. Andrew, was founded by Sir William Blacket, Bart. for 30 boys; opened in January, 1707-8; the school-master allowed 20 l. per annum, paying school-rent.

The charity-school belonging to the parish of St. John, was founded, 1705, by John Ord, Esq; for 44 boys. He settled upon it a large field without Pilgrim-street-gate, called Magdalen-close, and held by lease of St. Mary Magdalen's hospital. Mrs. Margaret Allgood, a widow-gentlewoman, gave to this excellent charity 1001. her will bearing date, 15th July, 1707. They are cloathed annually at midsummer, by subscription. The school-master is allowed 241. per annum, and for learning them to sing, 21. and for pens, ink, and paper, 16s. per annum.

The public buildings of note in this town, are

The Caftle;

The Bridge over the Tyne;

The Town-Court;

The Trinity-House;

The State-house of the Corporation;

The Freemen's Hospital;

The Hospital for Merchant's

Widows, &c.

The Barber-Surgeon's Hall;

The Hospital for poor Maidens, &c.

The Keelmen's Hospital;

The Infirmary.

The castle belongs to the county of Northumberland. Several tenements and lands in the county were held by keeping it in repair (u). It stands on an eminence; was antiently strong and stately; the principal entrance to the fouth; encompassed with two walls of great strength and height; in the exterior wall, 4 gates; one large, with two port-cullices; the ground within

(u) Diversæ terræ et tenemen. in comitat. Northumlr. onerat. existunt ad reparand. et sustentand. nonnulla ædificia infra castrum in Novo Castro super Tynam, Claus. 6. R. Ed. I. Dorso. tom. 4. Rot. Turri Londinensi.

Inquisitio de reparatione castri de Novo Castro super Tynam ad diversas personas pertinen. et de usurpationibus sactis super motum et solum regis, escaet. 9. R. Ed. III. No. 68. Ibid.

this wall, 3 acres, and one rod. In the castle was a well of a considerable depth; and a chapel of a handsome Gothic architecture. The great Barons, Heron, Delaval, Clavering, Bolbeck, Bertram of Bothal, Ros, Gaugy, Clifford, and Dilston, had each a house within its liberties for its defence. The government of it was generally committed to the high sheriff of Northumberland. At the accession of K. James I, one third of it was almost taken away; the lead and covering embezzled and carried off; the square, old tower miserably decayed and fractured; the malesactors confined in it in danger of perishing by the weather; the expence of repairing it computed at 809 l. 15 s. The poor remains of it are decently kept, and serve for the county-jail, and for holding the annual assizes.

The Bridge over the Tyne is of great antiquity. From the veftigies of a military way leading to it from Chefter-le-street, it is believed to have been originally Roman. It had the misfortune to be destroyed by fire, 33 K. Henry III; being then of wood. It was rebuilt of stone by contribution; for which indulgences were granted by Sewald, Archbishop of York, Walter Bishop of Durham, Walter Bishop of Rochester, &c. some giving lands, as Adam de Jesmont; the witnesses to the grant, Gilbert Delaval, Adam de Plessy, Gilbert de Ogle, William de Byker, &c. It had twelve bold arches. It has now only nine; the rest, on building the key, were turned into cellars or store-rooms. Several tradesmen have their houses and shops on each side of it. About the middle of it is an old tower, used by the magistrates for the confinement of disorderly persons and offenders, beyond which is a blue stone, the boundary between Newcastle and Gateshead; and at the other end is another tower, where has been a draw-bridge. That part of it, to the fouth of the blue stone, was recovered from the corporation, 4 K. Henry V, 1416, by Thomas Langley, bishop of Durham, as attested attested by a letter of attorney made by his lordship to several perfons commissioned to take possession of it; which was done in the prefence of feveral gentlemen, worthy to be remembered for the fake of their posterity, being persons of good credit and antiquity, viz. " John Lumlie, Ralph Eure, Robert Hilton, Wil-"liam Fulthrop, William Tempest, Thomas Surtees, Robert Co-"niers, William Claxton, Sheriff of Durham; Robert de Ogle, " John Bertram, John Widdrington, and John Middleton, knights. " of Northumberland; Christopher Horsley, William Osmunder-"low, knights, of Westmorland; and also in the presence of these " Esquires, Robert Hilton, Robert Eure, William Bowes, John "Coniers, William Lambton the elder, John de Morden, William "Lambton the younger, Hugh Burunghill, John Britly, Wil-"liam Bellingham, Robert Bellasis, Henry Tailbois; Thomas "Garbois, John de Hutton, Thomas Cooke of Fishburne, and " five others (v)."

(v) Thomas Dei gratia episcopus Dunelmensis omnibus ad quos presentes literæ pervenerint. salutem. Sciatis quod affignavimus & deputavimus dilectos et fideles nostros Radulphum de Eure, Chr. Seneschallum nostrum Dunelmiæ, Willielmum Chanceler, cancellarium infra comitatum & libertatem Dunelniæ, conjunctim et divisim, ad plenam et pacificam seisinam, de duabus partibus medietatis cujusdam pontis vocati Tyne-Bridge, in villa nostra Gatesbead, infra comitatum et libertat im Dunelmiæ existentis. Quæ quidem duæ partes medictatis prædictæ continent & faciunt tertiam partem ejussem pontis usque austrum in prædicta villa de Gateshead. Super quas duas partes nuper mayor et communitas villæ Novi Castri super Tinam quandam turrim de novo ædificare cæperunt, & quas quidem duas partes cum franchesiis, jurisdictionibus, et juribus regalibus, super easdem duas partes medietatis prædictæ, nuper in curia domini regis versus majorem & communitatem dictæ villæ N.vi Ca/lri recuperavimus nobis et successoribus nostris episcopis Dunelmiæ, et in jure ecclesiæ nostræ sancti Cuthberti possidendas de vicecomiti Westmerlandiæ, pretextu ejusdem brevis dicti domini regis sibi directi nomine nostro recipiendas; & turrim prædictam ad opus nostrum salvo & securè custodiendam. Ratum & gratum habiturus quicquid idem Radulphus, Willielmus, &c. Nomine nostro secerint in premissis. In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras fieri secimus patentes. Datum Dunelmiæ per manus cancellarii nostri 26 Octobris, anno pontificatus nostri undecimo.

Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 532-3.

This part of the bridge was repaired by Thomas Ruthal, Bishop of Durham, famous in the reigns of K. Henrys VII, VIII; not only for being the richest subject then in Britain, but for the unfortunate mistake he made in delivering the book of his own private affairs to the aspiring cardinal Wolfey, instead of one he had wrote on the state of the kingdom by the defire of his fovereign, whereby the cardinal effected his ruin, and stept into his bishoprick. A misfortune this, worthy of notice, and shews how God Almighty, by the flightest means, does punish us, when we are less faithful and diligent in his service, than that of men, and more concerned how to get rich and great in this world, than to discharge our duty. For this Bishop Ruthal, being a privy counfellor to K. Henry VIII, was fo studious of obliging that king, and fo affiduously attendant on the court, that he could find but little time to attend on the weighty affairs of his bishoprick; fo when he most needed felf-recollection, and presence of mind (divine gifts!) God left him to his own strength, and gave his bishoprick to another (w).

The Town-Court is on the fouth fide of the Sand-hill, on the banks of the Tyne. Its original foundation was by that munificent patron of Newcastle, Roger de Thornton. It was rebuilt by the corporation, 1658, after a design suitable to the dignity of that opulent body. It cost upwards of 10,000 l. besides 1200 l. the donation of one of the magistrates (x). The effigies of K. James II, on horse-back, placed in the area before it, cost 1700 l. It was of copper, large as the life; the horse standing upon his hind-feet, raised upon a pedestal of white marble, encompassed with iron-rails; pulled down 1688.

(w) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 796.

(x) Alderman Weimouth.

The Trinity-House belonging to the mariners of Newcastle' is a monastic-like building, of a square figure, accommodated with a neat chapel, and with chambers for 14 persons, allowed each eight shillings a month, coals and cloathing. The hall in it is large and flately. It was antiently called Dalton's Place. It was purchased by this society, 20 K. Henry VII, of Ralph Hebburn, of Hebburn-Tower, in Northumberland, Esq; and was confirmed to them by his fon, Thomas Hebburn, Efq; paying to him and his heirs for ever the compliment of a bottle of wine annually, if demanded, in June, on the eve of St. Peter and St. Paul. He was also to be made a member, to be intitled to their privileges, and to have the usual funeral-honours at his death. The writing was fealed with the town-feal, and figned by the mayor, and the rest of the magistrates. The society keep it in repair, at their own charge. It stands very convenient for seamen, near the key, in the upper end of a well-built street, called The Broad Chare.

The mariners of Newcastle are distinguished in our annals for their bravery by sea, and their gallant behaviour in the national service. In the reign of K. Edward III, 1335, they were called out on a naval expedition to Scotland, and burnt the town of Dundee (y). In company with the mariners of Hull, 4 K. Richard II, 1380, they took a Scotch pirate; the goods in the ship valued at 7000 marks (z).

They were honoured with a charter, 3 K. James I; with another, 17th Oct. 16 K. Charles II, 1664; with a third, 26th July, 3 K. James II, 1687.

The State-House of the corporation is on the edge of the Tyne, above the bridge, in a street called The Close. It is a modern building, very handsome, with an area or court before it, entered by a flight of steps; within, not only convenient, but elegant, corresponding with the grandeur and hospitality kept in it.

(y) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 351.

(z) Id. p. 428.

The Freeman's Hospital, commonly called The Town's Hospital in the Manours, is on the north side of a pleasant sield. It was founded by the corporation, 1681, and dedicated to the Holy Jesus; for a master, and 39 poor freemen or their widows; the master allowed 1 l. 10s. and the rest 1 l. a quarter each. It stands upon piazzas, the entrance in the middle, with a handsome fountain before it. Near the foot of the same field, is

The Hospital for the relief of six widows of merchants and clergymen, built by the corporation, 1725, and endowed by Mrs. Ann Davison, the relief of Mr. Benjamin Davison, merchant.

The Hall belonging to the Barber-Surgeons is on the east side of the same field. It was rebuilt after a neat design, 1730. It stands upon tall piazzas, with a garden before it, adorned with some pieces of statuary, the effigies of those antient fathers of medicine, Esculapius, Hippocrates, Galen, and Paracelsus. Hard by is

The Hospital for fix poor maiden-women, and fix poor men, built by the corporation, 1753, after receiving a donation of 1200 l. of Thomas Davidson, of Ferry-Hill, in the bishoprick of Durham, Esq; and his two sisters; and the like sum from Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. for its endowment.

The Keelmen's Hospital is between the Carpenter's tower and Sandgate. It was built, 1701, at their own charge, by contribution, paying, each man, 1 penny a tide. It is a large, square struc-Vol. II. I i ture, ture, containing upwards of 50 chambers; but is at prefent neglected, to the great misfortune of the aged among that numerous and laborious people.

The Infirmary is behind the fireet of West-gate. It was built by subscription for the benefit of the town and county of Newcastle, and the two counties of Northumberland and Durham. It had a donation of 1000 l. from Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. 1759; by whose appointment the annual interest of 10 l. is given to a clergyman to attend it. It is a large handsome building, in a pleasant airy situation, in a field, called The Forth; said to have been given to the corporation by K. Edward III (a), containing eleven acres, as surveyed by order of parliament, 1649, and then valued at 12 l. per annum; part of which is a square bowling-green, terraced round, and shaded with tall elms, much resorted to in the hours of leisure by the admirers of rural objects.

Subscriptions have been lately set on foot for the support of a Lying-in-hospital, and of an Hospital for Lunatics; which will undoubtedly meet with a generous encouragement, in a country thus distinguished by acts of humanity and beneficence.

Besides these public structures, there are some private ones revered for their antiquity, remarkable for having been the palaces or temporary residence of persons of royal or baronial dignity. In Panden is a house, called,

Panden-Hall, which was the palace of the kings of Northumberland under the Saxon heptarchy. In that part of the town, called The Side, is an antient house, an appendix to the castle, which was the palace of the kings of England, in which they refided in their expeditions against Scotland (b). It is now called,

(a) Grey's Chorographian

Lumley-place, from its being afterwards the residence of the Lords Lumley, of Lumley-castle. In Newgate-street is an antient house, called,

The Scotch Inn, from its being the quarters of the kings and nobility of Scotland, in the time of truce with that kingdom; also, The Earl's Inn, from its belonging to the Earls of Northumberland (c). In the street, called The Close, on the banks of the Tyne, is an antient house, with a great gate before it, called,

Northumberland-House, from its being formerly the property and occasional residence of the Earls of Northumberland. In Westgate, near St. Mary's Hospital, is a house, called,

Westmorland-Place, which belonged to the Nevills, Earls of The morland. In Pilgrim-street is a house, called,

The Pilgrim's Inn, from the great crowd of religious devotees which frequented it, in their way to the shrine of the Virgin Mary in the village of Jef-mont, i. e. the Mount of Jesus. In the same street, at the upper end, and on the west side, is

The house of Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. an antient building, the remains of the Franciscan priory, to which have been added two new wings. A large print of it, and of part of the town, was published some years ago.

(b) Escaet. 14 Hen. VI. n. 36.

(c) Rym. Foed. vol. ii. p. 593. p. 600.

Thus much of the principal buildings in Newcastle. I shall now take notice of the most remarkable State-transactions and Occurrences in it.

John Baliol did homage for his crown of Scotland to K. Edward I, in the great hall of his palace on the Side in this town, above-mentioned, December 26, 1292, with great folemnity; and by the advice of the parliament at Westminster, K. Edward fixed the fees, for want of a precedent, at 20 l. sterling, for his vassalage, double the sum paid by an earl on the like account (d).

K. Edward II, for the prefervation of his minion, Pierce Gaveflow, retired with him to this town, 1310, from which, on the approach of the incenfed Barons, under the Earl of Lancafter, called Contrariants and Ordainers, they took shipping at Tynemouth for Scarbrough, where Gaveston surrendered himself to Lord Percy (e), and not to the Earl of Pembroke, as affirmed in many of our histories.

A peace was concluded at Newcastle, 1323, about Ascension-day, by the commissioners of K. Edward II, and of Robert Bruce, King of Scotland, for 13 years; the names of the English commissioners, Adomar Earl of Pembroke, and Hugh de Spenser, junr. lord high chamberlain, &c. of the Scots, the Bishop of St. Andrews, the Earl of Murrey, &c. (f).

. .

(d) Apud Novum Castrum super Tynam, in aula palatii ipsius domini regis infra castrum, &c. Rym. Fæd. vol. ii. p. 593. p. 600. Acta Regia, vol. i. 8vo. p. 72, 73.

(e) Rym. Fæd. vol. iii. p. 334. Acta Regia, vol. i. 8vo. p. 110, &c. Brady's Append. to his History of England.

(f) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 334.

The whole militia of England, by the advice of the parliament held at Lincoln, were ordered to rendezvous at Newcastle, 8 K. Edward II, 1315, fifteen days after midsummer; every village in the kingdom sending one stout man, (cities and boroughs not excepted) furnished with armour, swords, bows, arrows, slings, lances, &c. and with travelling-money, and wages at 4d. a day, during the expedition, which was then directed against the Scots (g).

K. Edward III, kept his Whitfuntide at Newcastle with great state and magnificence, 1333, where, June following, Edward Baliol did homage to him for his crown of Scotland in the presence of a splendid circle of lords and gentlemen of the two nations, to hold it for ever of the English crown; making a formal surrender at the same time of part of his kingdom bordering upon England, viz. Berwick, Roxbrough, Pebles, Haddington, Edenburgh, Jedworth with the castle and forest, and the forests of Selkirk and Etherick (h); the instrument bearing date, 12 June.

The two kings were both at Newcastle, about Midsummer, 1334, at the head of a powerful army, in their march for Scotland; the English monarch taking the rout of Carlisle, and Edward Barliol the rout to Berwick, with his kinsmen, the Earl of Surrey and Arundel, and Lord Henry Percy, a Baron, says the record, of great might and power (i).

K. Edward III. came to Newcastle, 1336, in his way to Scotland, big with the thoughts of conquest, both of the Scots, and the

(g) Daniel in Bishop Kennet.

(h) Rym. Fœd. vol. iv. p. 1616—17. Acta Regia, vol. i. 8vo. p. 701. Hel. Chron. vol. ii. 350.

(i) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 351.

French, their confederates, under Baliol, whom he met at St. John's Town, or Perth; first issuing out a writ, dated at this town, June 20, 1336, for the Archbishop of Canterbury, high chancellor of England, the Bishop of Lincoln, treasurer, the Earl of Cornwall, his brother, to hold the parliament at Northampton in his stead (k).

The conventions between the English and Scotch commissioners for the liberty of David Bruce, King of Scotland, were dated at Newcastle, 13 July, 1354 (1).

In the unhappy differences between K. Charles I. and his parliament, Newcastle was besieged by the Scots, under the command of General Lefley, 1643; the Marquis of Newcastle then governor for the King. The Marquis burnt 100 houses in the suburbs. He made a fally, but was repulfed, and one of the outworks was taken. It was hard pressed both on the north and fouth fide at once, the Scots dividing their army, 1500 of them croffing the Tyne. General Lefley retiring, it was befieged again the next year by the Scots under the command of the Earls of Calender and Leven, who got possession of the bridge, the inhabitants retiring to the high town for shelter; 3000 countrymen being summoned by General Leven to affish him with spades, mattocks, &c. It was taken by florm. The mayor, Sir John Merlay, retired to the castle, with three Scotch Lords, Crawford, Rea, and Maxwell, 500 men, and many women and children. He furrendered it on condition of faving their lives, Oct. 29. three Scotch Lords were fent into Scotland to take their trial. Most of the townsmen saved their effects by composition. An order came for the trial of the mayor by a council of war. Some of the aldermen were disfranchifed, the corporation was new modelled, not according to their charter, but as might best fuit the views of the parliament. Their member, Sir Henry Anderson, Kt. was expelled the house, for non-attendance, and joining the royal army. John Blakeston, Esq; was chosen in his room, who signed the warrant for beheading his fovereign. Robert Ellison, of Helbarne, Esq; was his fellow-member, chosen in the place of — Warmouth, Esq; not suffered to take his feat after his election. The plague was at the fame time in the town, and coals were at a high price by a parliamentary impost of 4s. per chaldron for the maintenance of the garrison, and shipping them off to the fick and flarving metropolis. For the relief of the town-poor, they ordered 500 l. to be raifed upon coals, 1645. They had the honour of the King's presence, 1646, who came from Lumleycastle, and lodged with the Scotch General Leven in the Franciscan abbey, where his faithful and loyal fubjects were not fuffered to approach him. A fermon was preached before him by the Scotch metropolitan, fays Lord Clarendon (m), who was fo little touched with the prefence of fuffering majefly, and had fo fmall a portion of the grace of modesty, that after his discourse was ended, he called for the 52d Pfalm, which begins, - Why dost thou, tyrant, boast thyself, thy wicked works to praise. His majesty that moment flood up, and called for the 56th Pfalm, which begins, Have mercy, Lord, on me, I pray, for men would me devour. The congregation fung his majesty's.

(k) Rymer's Foedera, vol. iv. p. 701.

<sup>(1)</sup> Id. vol. v. p. 793, 812. Acta Regia, vol. i. 8vo. p. 315.

Of the town, and the neighbouring counties, the Scots raised 8000 l. a month, before the arrival of his majesty, and 9000 l. a month afterwards, upon pain of military execution; which caused an abundance of the inhabitants to leave their homes. To engage the Scots to return to their native kingdom, the parliament agreed to give them 200,000 l. to be raised by the sale of the bishop's lands. One half was paid at Topcliff, and the other after their leaving Newcastle; except 40,000 l. stopt by their defection, and changing sides.

I have only two things more extraordinary on record to mention concerning Newcastle.

It was almost wholly confumed by Fire, 33 K. Henry III. 1249 (n).

It had a great misfortune by Water, 13 K. Edward III, 1339; being furprized in the still hours of the night with a rapid, impetuous flood, which made its way through the town-wall, bore down fix perches of it, and swept away above 120 persons, both men and women, who on their going to bed, had not the least expectation of any such disaster (0). These were alarming and astonishing accidents to this antient town, which might be intended by a wise providence to preserve their more valuable stores and acquisitions, to rouze and awaken the slumbering virtues of some, to keep alive and cherish those of others, and to make all intent upon internal excellence and persection, before the tinsel elegance, and fleeting embellishments of life.

We now pass through Panden-gate, by the course of the Pict's-wall on the right hand, over the hill and village of Panden, cross the Ouse-burn by a new stone-bridge of one arch, and entering the Shield's road, ascend the hill through the turnpike-gate for about a quarter of a mile, when a road branches off, on the left hand, from a porter's lodge, to

(n) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 241.

Heaton (p); a mediety of the manour of which was held of the Barony of Guagy, by Sir Ralph Lawson, Knt. 10 Q. Elizabeth (q), and now belongs to Sir Harry Lawson, Bart. The other mediety was in the possession of John Mitsord, of Seghill, Esq; 10 Q. Elizabeth (r), and of his son Robert Mitsord, Esq; 14 K. Charles I; and is now in the possession of Matthew Ridley, Esq; a younger branch of the antient family of the Ridleys of Willimoteswick (s), a representative in parliament for Newcastle upon Tyne, and father of Sir Matthew White Ridley, of Blaigdon, Bart. His seat is at the south end of the village, modern, and handsome. Before the south front is a large park-like enclosure, small clumps of young forest-trees, extending to the Shield's road, which is in sight; also an artificial ruin on the hill at Biker. On the south-west and west side, are shrubberies, slower-borders, and groves of trees, with a tempiato.

From the porter's lodge, we go by an easy ascent for a quarter of a mile to Biker-hill, where a road branches off to the village of

Biker, the manour of which was held by grand Serjancy, by carrying the king's Writs between the rivers Tyne and Coquet, and making distresses of goods for the king's debts, and keeping and disposing of them for his use; by which service it was held by

(p) Heton. Escaet. Northumbr. Heaton. Autographis recentior.

(q) Vid. Biker.

(r) Vid. Seghill.

(s) Ex informat. Matth. Ridley, Arm. de Heaton. See Willimoteswick.

Nicholas de Biker in the reign of K. Henry III (t); by Robert de Biker in the reign of K. Edward I (u); by John de Biker, 13 K. Edward III (v); and by Roger de Biker, 19th of the same reign (w). It belonged to the noble family of Percy in the reign of K. Henry VI. It was in the possession of the crown, 2 K. Edward IV (x); and was then given to the Duke of Clarence, the king's brother.

It came afterwards into the possession of the antient family of the Lawsons; and was possessed by Sir Ralph Lawson, Knt. 10 Q. Elizabeth (y); by his nephew Henry Lawson, Esq; in the same

(t) Nicholaus de Biker tenet Biker in capite de dom. rege per servicium serjancii; viz. portando brev. dom. regis inter Tynam et Cocket, et ad custodienda in parka de Byker avaria capta pro debitis dom. regis cum opus suerit, et ad saciend. attachament. coronæ, et alia attachament. quæ pertinent ad vice comitem, ubi vice-comes et servientes sive ballivi sui non possunt attingere.

Certificat. Hug. de Bolbeck, vice-com. Northumbr.

Nicholaus de Byker tenet Byker per serjanceam, per servicium portandi brevia dom. regis inter Tynam et Cocket, et facit districtiones de Warda Novi-castri.

Veredicta de comit. Northumbr.

- (u) Escaet. de anno Ed. I.
- (v) Johannes de Biker, frater et hæres Roberti de Biker, tenuit de rege in capite manerium de Biker, contin. Caricut. terræ, et centum Aer. Bosci, et xvii s. vii d. ob. anni reddit. partinen. per servic. solvendi regi per manum vice-comitis, qui pro tempore suerit, xl. per ann. ad Ward. castri Novi Castri super Tynam, et portandi brevia regis inter Tynam et Cocket, animalia capiend. pro debito regis, et vendend. eadem animalia pro dominicis deb. saciendis. Attachiamenta quæ pertinent ad vice-comitem, et servientes suos, non possunt atttingere.

  Rot. Turri Londinens. Paschæ Fin. 13 Ed. III.
  - (w) Escaet. de anno 19 Ed. III. n. 53.
  - (x) Pat. 2. Ed. IV. m. 3.
- (y) Radulthus Lawfon, miles, tenet in capite manerium de Byker et West Matsen, ac medietatem manerii sive Hamlet. in Heton, juxta Novum Castrum.

Escaet, de anno ro Eliz.

reign (z); who was succeeded by his son Roger Lawson, Esq; (a); in whose time we find a third part of it, with a capital messuage, and other tenements, in Biker, possessed by the family of the Dents; by Henry and Robert Dent, Esqrs; who had a sishery in the river Tyne, and a colliery, parcels of the manour of Biker (b).

It now belongs to Sir Harry Lawfon, Bart. and others. The village stands on an eminence; in which is an artificial, castellated ruin. It has a most extensive and beautiful prospect; of the town of Newcastle on one side, and of the shipping in the river Tyne on the other.

A mile from Biker, a road branches off, on the left hand, to Little Benton, one of the manours of the Barony of Heron' (c), of which it was held by Enface de Benton in the reign of K. Harry III, as was found by an inquisition, I. K. Edward I. (d)

It was the feat and estate of the late William Bigge, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1751; father of Thomas Charles Bigge,

- (2) Henricus Lawson, Arm. nepos et hæres Radulphi, militis, tenet in capite per servic. milit. manerium de Byker. Ex Lib. Feod. Petri Osoorne, militis.
  - (a) Roger Lawfon, Arm. filius H nrici, tenet in capite manerium de Byker .- Ib.
- (b) Henricus Dent, consanguin. et hæres Georgii Dent, tenet in capite per servic. milit. tertiam partem manerii de Byker, ac capitale messuag. et tenem. ibidem. Ib.

Robertus Dent, Arm. filius Henrici, tenet in capite per servic. milit. capitale messuag. vocat. Byker, ac diversa cottag. et tenem. ibidem, et piscarium in aqua de Tyne, ac carbonar. Parcell. manerii de Byker.—Ib.

- (c) See Ford-Caftle.
- (d) Hæredes Eustac. de Benton tenent parvam Benton per septimam partem unius seodi veteris Feossamenti.——Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

Esq; the present possessor, lately a student of Christ-Church, in Oxford. His seat is a modern brick-structure, after a genteel design; near it is another handsome seat, built by his uncle, Thomas Bizze, Esq; both on a-sine slope, in view from the Shield's road.

A mile north from Little Benton, on a hill, is Long Benton, a pleasant village, one of the manours of the Barrony of Morpeth (e). The church stands near a quarter of a mile north-east from it. It was given, with certain lands in the parish, to Baliol-college, in Oxford, by Sir Philip Somerville, of Wickmore, in Staffordsbire, for the perpetual maintenance of fix scholars.

We now leave the two Bentons, and continue our course on the Shield's road about a mile, when a neat winding road branches off on the right hand, to Carr-vill, once the feat of the Cosen's, the Ewbanks's, of Sir Wilfrid Lawson, of Braiton-Hall, in Cumberland, Bart. father of Sir Gilfrid, of Mr. Carr, brother of William Carr, of Etall, Esq; and now of Mrs. Proctor. It bore the name of Cosens's House, till newnamed Carr-vill, by Mr. Carr, who rebuilt it, to which Mrs. Proctor hath added new ornaments and conveniences.

In a field adjoining, to the east of it, sloping to the Tyne, called, The Well-Laws, belonging to Matthew Waters, of Lincoln's Inn. Esq; is the ruin of a Roman villa and fort; the latter in the usual form, a parallelogram; the last garrison the Romans had at this end of the wall; the river serving for a defence to Tynemouth, being navigable for their Naves lusoria, or light frigates, destined for scouring the coasts, and chastizing prædatory rovers. The eminent antiquaries, Roger Gale, Esq; Dr. Hunter, Gordon, and Horstey, have assigned it the name of Segedunum, garrifoned by the first cohort of the Lergi. It seems to be derived from the Roman Seges, corn, and the British Dunum, a hill, i. e. the fort or station on a high ground, furnished with magazines of corn, brought by sea from the more southern provinces, and landed here. I have frequently after high tides observed large, well-wrought, ashler stones lying on the shore of the river at the foot of this field, the scattered ruins probably of a key. By the large ruins of soundations discovered by the plow, it has been a station of eminence, bidding sairer for being a capital town, than Richard of Cirencester's northern alpine frontier of Rochester; better suited to the Roman taste and elegance; sitted for pleasure and commerce.

In the walls of the old feat of Carr-vill, fome Roman stones, with inscriptions, were discovered by Mr. Horsley, and published (f).

On the other fide of the Shield's road, nearly opposite to Carrvill, a road branches off to the village of Wall's-End, fo called from its fituation by the end of the Pict's Wall. It was given, with the village of Willington, on an eminence, a mile to the north-east of it, so the monks of Durham, 16 K. William I, 1082, by William de Carilepho, Bishop of that See (g).

(f) Brit. Rom. p. 104.

(g) Et ego monachis tradidi congregatis — Ultra amnem Tynam duas villas Wyllynton et Wallefend cum suis appendiciis. — Carta Willielmi de Carilepho Dunelm. Episc, super libertat. et possessionibus monachis concessis, facta A. D. 1082.

It is a well-built village; a large grass area in the center, with a neat raised causeway through it; two gentlemen's seats on each side, with excellent gardens; the most rural and romantic, those of James Moncaster, Esq; a winding streamlet taking its course between two terraced slopes, and forming a canal, with a bridge over it.

At the east end of the village, is a neat brick-structure, confisting of two large rooms; the lower one ferving for a school, and the other for a master to dwell in; the donation of the eldest sister of James Moncaster, Esq; to the parish.

The church is on an eminence, at a small distance from the village, to the north-east; the ascent to it steep, by stone-steps.

A mile east from it, a road branches off through a gate on the right hand, to Howden-Pans, a populous village in the fame parish, so called from the falt-pans in it, and its situation under a hill, in the Den or valley; How signifying a hill. It stands almost close to the river Tyne, on whose banks is a fine key for the shipping to heave their ballast, of near a quarter of a mile in length, commonly called Willington-key, from the Ostium of Willington-burn at the west end. A dock, a ropery, and a smithery, at this place, furnish employment for upwards of 100 people. The dock holds two ships.

Near three miles farther east, the Shields road makes a slexure on the right hand by a gradual descent to the town of North Shields (h), so called from its northern fituation by the river Tyne, and being a Shield or shelter for the shipping. In the days of K. Edward I, it was so finall, that it consisted only of six cottages, inhabited by sishermen. It is now so populous, that it refembles Wapping by the river Thames.

A little below it is a garrifon, called,

Clifford's Fort, which was taken by the Scots, 20 K. Charles I, 1644, and in it five pieces of ordnance, arms, powder, and some prisoners, nine Scotchmen killed on that occasion. It is a strong and handsome stone-building, well mounted with cannon; from which we ascend a hill by a large square building, of a late erection, called,

The Barracks, furnished with foldiers, and with artillery next the harbour; and come to the pleasant, marine villa of Tynemouth (i), famous for its monastery founded by Ofwald, King of Northumberland, and dedicated to the Blessed Virgin (k). It was plundered by the Danish rovers in three several descents or expeditions; first towards the end of the eighth century (1), and next under Hinguar and Hubba in the reign of K. Ethelred, and lastly in the reign of K. Athelstan. What made them the more intent upon ravaging the monasteries was, the most valuable ef-

- (h) Sheles. Autographis perantiquis.
- (i) Tynemouth. Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 59.

  Dunemuth. —— Collect. Vol. ii. 174. 297-
- (k) ____ Vol. iii. p. 43.
  - (1) _____ Vol. ii. 297. 388.

feets in the country were usually concealed in them on the approach of an enemy, for their better fecurity. But covetousness has no reverence for facred things. The poor defenceless monks, on the descent of the thievish and murdering troops of Hinguar and Hubba, sled in a fright to save themselves in their church. The merciless enemy set fire to it, and burnt them and it to the ground (m). A just providence, ever awake to the cries of innocent blood, did not let theirs go unpunished. Rouzed at the news of such an atrocious deed, their sovereign, K. Ethelred, and his father-in-law, Offa, King of Mercia, with their united forces drove them in consusion and hurry to their ships, and a storm arising, they were wrecked on the rocks, and almost all drowned.

This holy fabric laid in its ashes, unrepaired, forlorn, and defolate, till the reign of K. Edward the Confessor. Then Toston, Earl of Northumberland, from the motive of ambition, and not of piety, rebuilt and endowed it for Black Canons, to the honour of St. Mary, and St. Oswin, Bishop Aiden's favourite, whose remains had been searched for, and discovered, under its ruins.

That Earl being banished for his many murthers and outrages, after several very cruel adventures, burning and plundering the coast as an enemy's country, at length engaged Harold Harfagar, King of Norway, who was then pushing his conquests in the north of Scotland, to enter this harbour of Tynemouth, and make a bold push for the crown of his own brother, K. Harold II. Not awed by the fight of his new foundation of St. Mary and St. Ofwin, he in concert with the Norwegian, plundered and wasted the country on both sides the river Tyne. They then put to sea again, and entered the Humber. There they landed and committed horrid barbarities. A body of forces marched to oppose them under the Generals Edwin and Morchar. These they routed. At Stanfordbridge, near York, they were checked in their career by King Harold himself. The two armies were about equal, each reckoned 60,000, and two fuch great ones had never been feen to engage in England before. With fuch aftonishing ardour did the enemy contend for victory, that a fingle foldier for a confiderable while, defended the pass at the bridge against the whole English army. Thus animated by his valour, his countrymen fought most desperately, from seven in the morning till three in the afternoon, but their King and Toston falling, and the flower of their troops flain, King Harold obtained a compleat, but bloody victory. Of the whole army that entered the Tyne, under the facred walls of this monakery, in 500 ships, 20 vessels served to carry home the furvivors to Norway, with their young Prince Olaus, by leave from King Harold. On the credit of Adam Bremenfis, it is faid, that the spoil of the enemy consisted of as much gold, as twelve young men could with difficulty carry on their fhoclders.

(m) Lel. Collect. vol. ii. p. 297, 388.

From the time of its first foundation by King Ofwald, this religious house preserved its independency, till the time of Toston's brother-in-law, King William the Norman. He was then degraded to a cell. It was first made subject to Benedict Biscop's foundation at Girwy; next to Bishop Carilepho's at Durham; and lastly to St. Aban's in Hertfordshire (n). This was done by three governors or Earls of Northumberland, Walteof, Alberic, and Robert Mowbray (o).

Ll

(n) Vid. Matthew Paris, vitas abbatûm S. Albani, p. 51. 55. 115, 118, 119, 120, 198, 199.

Steven's Supplem. Vol. i. 234. Tanner's Notitia Monast. fo. p. 180.

<sup>(0)</sup> Dugd. Monast. Angl. Vol. i. p. 45.

Walteof pretended it was an unfit place for devotion, by its being - nimis religiosis horridus et incultus - situated on a frightful precipice, and a noify tumultuous shore; but in reality it was to erect a fortress within its precincts, by the order of his fovereign, who had no regard for religion. Robert Mowbray's motive was of a very low kind. He bore a grudge to the Bishop of Durham, and thought to mortify him by that arbitrary act (p). But he afterwards took fanctuary at that very altar, which he thus difhonoured, for treason, and under it, if I may so speak, interred all his honours, forfeiting by that rash act 280 fiefs, left him by his uncle the Bishop of Constance.

The prior and canons of Tynemouth had 27 villas in Northumberland belonging to them, with their royalties; viz. Tynemouth. Milnton, Shields, East Chirton, East Preston, Monkton, Whitley, Murton, Erefdon, Backworth, Seghill, Wolfington, Diffington, Elfwick, Wylam, Hertford, Cowpon, Bebfide, Welden, Hauxley, Ambell, Eglingham, Bewick, Lilburn, Flatworth, Middle Chirton. West Chirton. Within these lordships they returned the king's writs (q); and were exempt from cornage (r).

They had also the lands of Royeley and Denum.

They had the tithes of Corbridge, Ovington, Wylam, Newburn, Disfington, Callerton, Elswick, Bothall, Warkworth, Ambell, Rothbury,

- (b) Dugd. Mon. 1. c.
- (9) Prior de Tynemouth habet retorn. omnium brevium regis libertatem de Tynemouth tangentem.

Pat. in dorso, 6 Ed. II. p. 1. m. 10. Tom. 1. Rot. Northumb. Turri Londinensi.

(r) Claus. 6. Joh. m. 5. quod monachi sint quieti de cornagio.

and Wooler, in Northumberland; also the tithes of Hirtness in the Bishoprick of Durham, and of Middleton upon Tees, in Yorksbire.

They had the impropriations and advowsons of Tynemouth, Woodhorn, Whalton, Bolham, Bewick, Eglingham, Hartburn, Shilbottle (s), and Haltwesel (t), in Northumberland; and of Conscliff, in the Bishoprick of Durham.

They had feventeen messuages, and a close, called, Wardens-close, in Newcastle upon Tyne(u).

They had a weekly market at their town of Bewick(v); and an annual fair at Tynemouth(w); also a harbour, now called the Prior's harbour, much resorted unto in summer for bathing.

All which possessions were confirmed to them by royal charter (x).

- (s) Browne Willis's Survey, Vol. i.
- (t) Pat. 8 Ric. II. p. 1. m. 2. pro Eccles. de Hautwyssel in Tynedale approprianda.
- (u) Pat. 15 Ric. II. p. 1. m. 12. pro quibusdam messuagiis, et reddit. exeunt. de tenem. in villa Novi Castri super Tynam.
  - (v) Cart. 53 Hen. III. m. 2. pro mercat. apud Bewyke.
  - (w) Cart. 32 Ed. I. n. 14. pro feria de Tynemouth.
- (x) Vid. in Mon. Angl. Tom. i. p. 335, 336. Cartas duas Hen. I. et unam Johannis regis.

Confirmat. Cart. monasterii de Tynemouth, 55 Hen. III. m. 34. Et 7, 9. Ed. II. n. 39.

Confirmat. ampla Cart. et libertat. ejusdem monasterii, Pat. 3 Ric. II. p. 2. m. 14. Et 2 Hen. IV. p. 1. n. 4. Et 3 Ed. IV. p. 3. m. 12.

By a grant from John Lord Greystock, and Sir Robert Somervill, 24 K. Edward I, 1296, they had carriage-roads for themselves and their tenants through Benton-moors, with liberty of pasture for 24 beasts, of any kind; which grant was confirmed by Ralph Lord Greystock, 14 K. Richard II (y).

Ralph,

(y) Radulphus baro de Graistok omnibus ad quos presens scriptum autograffatum pervenerit, salutem. Inspeximus cartam quam Johannes de Graissok dominus de Morpath et Robertus de Somervill fecerunt Deo et Sancto Oswino priori et conventui de Tynemouth in hæc verba. Omnibus Christi sidelibus, quibus scriptum visuris vel audituris, Johannes de Graistok, dominus de Morpath, et Robertus de Somervill, salutem in Domino. Noveritis universitas vastra nos pro salute animarum nostrorum parentum et omnium benesactorum nostrorum dedisse concessisse et hac presenti carta nostra confirmasse Deo et Sancto Oswino priori et conventui de Tynemouth habere liberum introitum transitum et exitum in moris meis de Benton ad omnia necessaria sua carianda, ducenda, et portanda per se et servientes suos cum carris, carrettis, et aliis carragiis suis sine damno bladi et prati, salvo nobis tamen appornamento vasti juxta legem Angliæ. Et omnibus liceat dictis religiosis vias suas de terra et lapidibus dicarum morarum fine damno bladi et prati emendare. Item concedimus et dedimus iisdem religiosis essam pasturæ in dictis moris nostris cum quatuor-viginti animalibus cuiuscunque generis voluerint, ita pacificè et quietè ut nulla unquam distringantur, nec alio modo impedirentur, nisi inveniantur in damno bladi et prati, habend. et tenend. dictas vias et dictam pasturam sicut possidend. esse de nobis, hæredibus, vel assignatis nostris, dictis religiosis et corum successoribus libere, quiete, benè et in pace, sine aliquo impedimento in liberam, puram. et perpetuam elimosinam. Et nos, et hæredes nostri, vel nostri assignati, dictas vias, et dictam pasturam, ut permittitur, dictis religiosis et eorum successoribus, warrantizabimus et defendemus contra omnes homines in perpetuum. In cujus rei testimonium huic presenti cartæ nostræ sigilla nostra apposuimus, His testibus, dom. Roberto Bertram, Roberto De la vale, Hugoni De la vale, Johanne de Kirkeby, militibus; Johanne de Dudden, Nicholao de Vypons, et multis aliis. Dat. apud Tynemouth, die purificationis Beatæ Mariæ anno Domini milleso. CC. nonagefimo fexto. Quam quidem cartam nos prædictus Radulphus Baro de Graistok confirmamus, ratificamus, et pro nobis et hæredibus nostris prædictis viris religiosis. et corum successoribus, in perpetuum. Approbamus per presentes sigillo nostro signato alteri veri parti hujus indenturæ penes nos et hæredes nostros residenti, sigillum prioratus de Tynemouth est appens. His testibus Mattheo de Redemayne, Roberto de Ogle, Willielmo de la vale, Roberto de Euer, tunc vice-com. Northumbr. Johanne de Manners, militibus; JobanneRalph, fon of William, Lord Greystock, founded a chantery in their church of Tynemouth, 8 K. Edward II, 1315 (0).

John,

hanne de Wodrington, Thomas de Witton, Johanne de Mitford, Nicholao de Raymes, et aliis. Dat apud Tynemouth xxiv die mensis Novembris, anno milles. CCC nonagesimo primo Ricardi secundi post conquestum Angliæ quartodecimo.

Carta penes Ducem Northumbria.

(2) Omnibus Christi sidelibus ad quos presens scriptum pervenerit prior et conventus de Tynemouth, falutem in Domino sempiternam. Noveritis quod cum venerabilis prior noster Hugo Dei gratia abbas de Sancto Albano et ejustdem loci conventus concesserunt nobili viro domino Radulpho filio Willielmi baroni de Graystok pro beneficiis et honoribus diversis sibi et ecclesiæ suæ de Sancto Albano per ipsum Radulphum impens. ad inveniend, unum capellanum secularem, ydoneum, et honestum, et sufficientem infra prioratum nostrum antedictum divina celebraturum in perpetuum pro animabus dicti Radulphi, domini Johannis quondam baronis de Graistok cognati sui et omnium parentum dict. Radulphi et Johannis, nec non pro animabus omnium fidelium defunctorum. Nos honores et beneficia per præfatum Radulphum dicto domino abbati nostro et ecclesiæ suæ Sancti Albani exhibita, et in posterum exhibenda, plenius confiderantes, ac predictam cantariam in forma predicta fieri cupientes unanimi voluntate et affensu domini abbatis nostri antedicti voluimus et concedimus pronobis et successoribus nostris quod quotiescunque et quandocunque prædista cantaria temporibus futuris ut permittitur faciend. deficit, Ballivus dicti domini Radulphi et hæredum fuor. qui pro tempore fuerit in manerio suo de Morpeth, nos et successores nostri in maneriis nostris de Cowpon et Bobbesset [Bebside] pro subtractione dictæ cantariæ licitè valeat destringere quousque de servicio subtracto plenius suerit satisfactum, absque nostri vel successorum nostrorum contentione seu impedimento: Volumus insuper et concedimus quod Ballivus dicti domini Radulphi et hæredum fuorum apud manerium fuum de Morpath de nostro capellano qui ad predictam cantariam ut predictum est faciend, quoties per nos aut successores nostros affignari contigitur, per nos aut successores nostros toties ratificetur. In cujus rei testimonium figillum domini abbatis nostri antedicti, una cum figillo nosto capituli, et figillum predicti domini Radulphi, filii Willielmi, huic fcripto indentato alternatim funt impensa. His testibus domino Roberto de la vale, Adamo de Benton, Rogero Manduit, et Nicholao Scot, militibus; Thoma de Belsho, Bartholomeo Bennet, Henrico de Harden, Johanne de Bakworth, Gilberto de Whitley, et aliis. Dat. apud 'Tynemouth Die Mercurii proxime post festum Annunciationis beatæ Mariæ Virginis anno Domino millo. CCC. quintodecimo et anno regni regis Edvardi, filii regis Edvardi, octavo. Carta penes Ducem Northumbriæ.

John, fon of Sir Henry, de Harrington, gave to their vicar of Tyne-mouth, Alan Whitehead, lands in L. Benton; for which he did homage to the lord's court at L. Benton, 8 K. Richard II (p).

The same Alan Whitehead, and Thomas de Whalton, in consideration of their honourable support and maintenance in the priory, were benefactors (q). Alan Whitehead was also a benefactor to the priory of Newminster, near Morpeth (r).

In hac cantaria Thoma de Bulmer ante primam pestilenc. Gilbertus Willynson de Tynemouth, Robertus de Ambell, Johannes de Walsyngham, Johannes de Whalton, capellani. Carta penes eund. Ducem Northumbr.

- (p) Alanus Whitehead, vicarius ecclesse de Tynemouth, viiio. anno Richardi secundi, fecit homagium pro terris et tenem. suis, quondam Ingelrami de Umfranvill in Benton, quæ idem Alanus habuit ex dono et seossamento Johannis silii et hæredis Henrici de Harrington militis.—Postmodum Willielmus de Bellingham, capellanus, secit homagium pro iisdem terris.

  Carta penes Ducem Northumbriæ.
- (q) Dicunt juratores, quod non est damnum, nec prejudicium domino regi, nec aliis, si dominus rex concedat Alano Whitehead, vicario ecclesiæ de Tynemouth, et Thomæ de Whalton, quod ipsi quatuor cotagia, et quadraginta et octo acras terr. cum pertinen. in Tynemouth, Preston, Chirton, et Milneton, et eidem Alano quod ipse unum messuag. et 9 acr. terr. cum pertinen. in Tynemouth, Preston, Chirton, dare possint et assignare priori et conventui de Tynemouth in auxilium sustentationis suæ, et ad quædam onera juxta ordinationem ipsorum Alani et Thomæ in hac parte saciend. supportand. habend. et tenend. eidem priori et conventui, et successoribus suis, in perpetuum.

Dicunt etiam quod 4 cotag. 48 acr. terr. cum pertinen. in Tynemouth, Preston, et Chirton, tenentur de domino priore, per servicium redditus per annum, 7 s. et quod 9 acr. terr. cum pertinen. in Tynemouth, Preston, et Chirton, tenentur de dicto priore per servicium redditus per annum 4 s. &c.

Inquisit. Turri Londinens. capta coram escaetore dom. regis in comit. Northumbr. Die Sabbati in festum Sancti Bartholom. Apostoli, 16 Ric. II.

(r) See Newminster-Priory.

Their annual revenues, separate from St. Albans, were valued, 26 K. Henry VIII, at 396 l. 10s. 5d. ob. Dugd. 511 l. 4s. 1d. ob. Speed. The prior and 13 canons surrendered 12th January, 1539. They had all pensions. The site of the priory and most of the lands were granted, 5 K. Edward VI, to John Dudley, Duke of Northumberland (s); but by his attainder in the next reign reverted to the crown, in which they remained, 10 Q. Elizabeth (t).

The manour of Tynemouth is now in the possession of his Grace, Hugh, Duke of Northumberland.

The priory-church appears by its ruins to have been a most magnificent structure. At the east end is an oratory very entire, eighteen feet long, nine feet broad, and nine feet high; the roof arched with stone, with sculptures in relief of the Blessed Virgin, and the twelve apostles.

The gate-way, with a tower over it, belonging to the priory, is still standing.

It is so far from being an unfit place for devotion, that few can exceed it for presenting the mind with a variety of solemn objects, capable of raising it to an adoration and awful reverence of the Deity. The very precipice it stands on, lofty and almost perpendicular, whose semicircular base withstands the fury of the waves, must have inspired the religious with a firm reliance on him who is the Rock of ages. The calms, the fforms, the ships, must all by turns have furnished them with occasions to praife him, whose wonders are seen in the great deep.

(s) Tanner's Notitia Monast. fol. p. 390.

(t) Domina regina Elizabetha fuit seisita de et in castro et manerio de Tynemouth nuper monaster. Sheles, East Chirton, Preston, Monk-seton, Whitley, Murton, Eresdon, Backworth, Wolsington, South Dissington, Elswick, Benwell, Denton, Wylam, Hertsord, Cowpon, Hauxley, Ambell, Eglingham, Bewick, Lilburn, Flatworth, Middle Chirton, West Chirton, Billimill, Whittingham, et Framlington.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

On its being converted to a fortress, it was called Tynemouthcastle. It was besieged and taken by the Scots, 20 K. Charles I, Thirty-eight pieces of ordnance, and store of arms, ammunition, and provisions, fell into their hands. The garrison were allowed to march out with their baggage, and obliged to fubmit to all the injunctions of the parliament. Six prisoners made their escape by letting themselves down through a privyhouse with ropes and several sheets tied together, under the favour of a violent florm of wind. The fum of 5000 l. was ordered by the parliament to repair it, and the works at Newcastle. the town-walls, bridge, and garrifon. Golonel Henry Lilburn was made governor of it, who being weary of their fervice, declared, with the lieutenant-colonel, and most of the garrison, for the king; on the news of which at Newcastle, Sir Arthur Hezelrigge immediately marched against them from that town, of which he was governor, with a body of forces. For want of competent ladders, they entered the port-holes of the caftle in the face of the cannon playing upon them, and after a fmart encounter retook it. Colonel Lilburn, and many others, were flain. The rest received quarter.

On the north-east fide of the ruins of the priory-church, is a large house, built by Colonel Henry Villiers, governour of Tynemouth, by leave from the crown; who also had power to erect a light house, and to receive 13. for every English, and 6d. for every foreign ship, anchoring in the harbour of Shields, which brought brought him in an income of about 80 l. per annum. His funeral-monument is in the priory-church-yard, with the following infeription.

Hic sitæ sunt mortales Reliquiæ

Henrici Villiers, Armigeri,
Stirpe antiqua prognati.

Unici

Honoratissimi Comitis de Jersey
Fratris.

Nec non hujus presidii
Circiter viginti Annos,
Fidelis et perquam dilectus Præfectus.

Vixit Annos 49. obiit 18 Aug.
Anno Dom. MDCCVII.

Maicoum, King of Scots, and his fon, Prince Edward, flain on St. Brice's day, 7 K. William II, 1094, at Alnwick-castle, were buried at this church (u).

After the victory obtained over the Scots by K. Edward I, 1298, his majefty vifited the shrine of St Mary and St. Ofwin, at Tynemouth, and staid some time; as did his queen whilst he was in Scotland, 1303 (v).

John Wethamstede, abbot of St. Albans, a learned historian, was a canon of this priory, and after his high promotion presented it with a gold chalice of great weight (w).

- (u) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 20, 21.
- (w) Joan Wethamstede de Rebus Anglicis, edit. per Tho. Hearne.

Stev. Monast.

John de Tynemouth, an eminent facred biographer, was born at Tynemouth, and is faid to have been vicar of this church (x).

The present church of Tynemouth stands a mile west from it, near the slexure of the great road to Shields. It was consecrated, 20 K. Charles II, 1668, by Bishop Cosins.

(x) Cat. Libr. MS. in Bibl. Cotton. per Tha. Smith.

ANTIQUITIES

OF

NORTHUMBERLAND, &c.

JOURNEY II.

From Newcastle upon Tyne, through Morpeth, Alnwick, Belford, to Berwick upon Tweed, on the great Post-Road.

A MILE from Newcastle, a road branches off, on the right hand, to Jes'-mont, i. e. the Mount of Jesus, famous for its chapel and hospital, dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, which were granted, 3 K. Edward VI, to the corporation of Newcastle, and by the corporation the year following to Sir Robert Brandling, knight-banneret, and his heirs; the former now a stable, and the latter a dwelling-house.

The manour of Jes'-mont belonged to the barony of Guagy, of which it was held, I K. Edward I, by Adam de Jes'-mont (a), who,

after

(a) Adam de Jesmont tenet Jesmont et Hartlawe per unum seod. milit. vet. seoffam. Baron. de Guagy.

Escaet. de anno r Ed. I.

268

after the death of Adam de Guagy, 13th of the fame reign, put in his claim for half of the barony of Guagy (b).

Near the 4th mile-stone, a road branches off, on the right hand, to the villa of North Gosforth, which was held of the crown by the antient family of the Surtees's, from the time of K. Henry I, down to the latter end of K. Henry VI; by Richard Surtees, in the reign of K. Henry III (c); by Ralph Surtees, I K. Edward I (d); by Thomas Surtees, high sheriff of Northumberland, 47 K. Edward III, and 2 K. Richard II (e); also by Thomas Surtees, high sheriff of Northumberland, 8, 9 K. Henry V (f); their name local, from the river Tees, in the bishoprick of Durham, on whose banks they were seated.

It came afterwards into the possession of the knightly family of the Brandlings; of Sir Robert Brandling, created a knight-banneret, after the descat of the Scots near Musselburg, 1 K. Edward VI,

(b) In rotulo decimo tertio regis Edvardi primi continetur quod Adam de Jesmont orat de medietate baroniæ quæ quondam suit Adam de Guagy.

Rot. Turri Londin. Term. Finent. de anno 13 Ed. I.

- (c) Richardus Surtes tenet in capite de dom. rege villam de North Gosforth per servicium dimid. seod. milit. et omnes antecessores sui per eund. servicium tenuerunt post tempus regis Henrici primi qui eos seossav. ac de eo tenem. nulla est alienat. aut donat. unde dom. rex minus habeat de servicio suo.

  Testa de Nevill.
- (d) Radulphus super Tayse tenet in capite de dom, rege villam de North Gessorth per dimid. Escaet, de anno 1 Ed. I.
  - (e) Escaet. de ann. 47 Ed. III, et 2 Ric. II.
  - (f) _____ 8, 9 Hen. V.

in that year, also, 1, 2, 3 Q. Mary, and 5 Q. Elizabeth (h); of Sir Robert Brandling, Knt. high sheriff of Northumberland, 15 K. James I, and a representative in parliament for Morpeth, 18th of the same reign; of Sir Francis Brandling, Knt. a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 21 K. James I, 1620, and 1 K. Charles I, 1625, of which he was high sheriff, 6th of the same reign (i). It is now in the possession of Charles Brandling, Esq; whose seat is a mile north from it, on the same side of the road. It is a large, modern structure, of white freestone, and hewn work, after a design in Pain's architecture. It stands on a rising ground, from which the villa of Newbiggen, of Kenton, of Long Benton, and an opening between two distant hills into the bishoprick of Durham, are in view.

Three miles north-east from it is the villa of Seghill (k), supposed by Camden and others to have been the Roman station Segedunum, since fixed at Carr-vill. It was a seat and manour of a younger branch of the antient family of the Mitfords; of John Mitford, 6 K. Edward VI (l), and 10 Q. Eliza-

(g) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 991.

(b) Robertus Brandling, miles, fuit seisitus de et in villa de North Gosforth, Jesmont, et in villa de Hadston, Darres-Hall, et High Callerton.— Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

(i) Franciscus Brandling, miles, tenet in capite maneria de South Gosforth, et North Gosforth, et Hadston, &c.

Ex Lib. Feod. Petri Osborne, Militis.

Escaet. de ann. 21 Jac. I. et, 1, 6 Car. I.

(k) Seghill. Cand. Brit. p. 858. Sighall. Autograph. perantiq.

<sup>(1)</sup> Bp. Nicholson's Border-Laws, p. 332.

beth (m); of Robert Mitford, his fon and heir (n); of Robert Mitford, 25 K Charles II, 1673, who in that year built the mansionhouse on to the old tower; of Michael Mitford, in the reign of Q. Ann, who married one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir Francis Blake of Ford-Castle, Knt. It is now in the possession of Sir Lancelot Allgood, of Nunwick, Knt.

About a mile from it is

Cramlington, a pleasant villa on a rising ground, a mediety of which was held of the barony of Guagy by the antient family of the Cramlingtons; by John de Cramlington in the reign of K. Edward II; by Richard de Cramlington, 33 K. Edward III (0); by William de Cramlington, 16 K. Richard II (p), who dying without iffue-

- (m) Johannes Mitford fuit seisitus de et in Seghill et Branton, cum medietate de Heton, et Rybill, et Keisley, cum terris in Inghow, et villa de Brandon. Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.
- (n) Robertus Mitford, filius Johannis, arm. tenet de Rege, ut de baronia de Gaugy, unum capitale messuag. et terras in Heton juxta villam Novi Castri, ac terras in Rybill, de rege in Escaet. de ann. Jac. I. et 14 Car. I. capite, per fervic. milit.
- (o) Richardus de Cramlington, frater et hæres Johannis de Cramlington, dat. dom. regi xxys. pro terris cum pertinen, in Cramlington, in comit. Northumbr. ut cap. de corona, de Guagy, in manu regis exist, per servic, quart, partis unius feod, milit, et per servic, reddendi regi per annum, per manum vice-comitis Northumbr. qui pro tempore fuerit, iii . iv d. ad wardam castri Novi Castri super Tinam.

Rot. Mich. Fin. de anno 33 Ed. III.

(p) Willielmus de Cramlington tenet unum messuag. cent. acr. terræ, xxvii acr. prati et dimid. cum pertinen. in Cramlington in comit. Northumbr. de rege in capite, ut de baronia de Guagy, per servic. quart. partis unius feod. milit. et per servic. reddendi regi per ann. per manum vicecomitis Northumbr. qui pro tempore fuerit iii s. iv d. ad wardam castri Novi Caftri super Tinam. Rot. Trin. Fin. de anno 16 Ric. II.

male in the latter end of the reign of K. Henry V (q), he was fucceeded in his estate by his two daughters and coheirs, Agnes and Alice, who were found by an inquisition to be in possession of it, 3 K. Henry VI; the former first married to John Heselrigge, and afterwards to William Lawson; the latter to Nicholas Gobeford (r); the Lawsons afterwards having the whole mediety; William Lawson being possessed of it, 10 Q. Elizabeth (s); and Robert Lawson, Esq; 7 Q. Ann, 1708, then high sheriff of Northumberland.

About three miles from Cramlington, and a mile from the fea, is Delaval-Caftle (t) or Seaton Delaval, a principal manour of the barony of Delaval, in which Guy Delaval was infeoffed by K. Henry I. He married Dionisia, the second daughter of Robert Earl of Moreton, brother by the mother's side to K. William I (u). From this royal stem was descended

Gilbert

- (q) Escaet. de anno 8 Hen. V.
- (r) Gulielmus Lawson, et Agnes, uxor ejus, nuper uxor Johannis Heselrigge, et Alicia, uxor ejus, soror predict. Agn. siliæ et hæredes Willielmi Cramlington, tenent duas partes manerii de Cramlington, cum hamlet. suo de Whitlawe, in comit. Northumbr. de rege in capite per servic. quart. partis unius seodi militis.

  Rot. Mich. Fin. de anno 3 Hen. VI.
- (s) Willielmus Lawson fuit seisst. de et in medietate villæ de Cramlington, cum terris in Hartley.—

  Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.
  - (t) Delavale Castle, 4 miles from Tyne-mouthe, and within a mile of the shore.

    Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 59.
- (u) Robertus comes de Moreton, vel de Mortaing, frater uterinus Willielmi Conquestoris, habuit unicum filium Willielmum, qui ei successit, capt. apud Tenerichley anno 6to Hen. I. Idem Robertus habuit tres filias; una (Agnes) duxit Andr. de Vitre; secunda, (Dionisia) Guido. de Delavale; tertia, (Emma) comitem Tholosenum, expeditione Hierosolomitana occisium, et

Gilbert Delaval (c), one of the 25 barons who was fworn, and gusto concilio, to see the grand charters of British liberty confirmed by the Roman pontiss, called L'Estatute de Magna Charta, and Charta de Foresta, granted by K. John at Running-Mede, between Windsor and Stains. His successor

Hugh Delaval married Maud the youngest daughter and coheir of the great baron Hugh de Bolbeck, in the reign of K. Henry III; her mother Theophania then living at Angerton (d). He gave to the priory of Hexham a mansion-house and three acres of land in Benwell; to which Hubert de Delaval, and his mother, gave also half the manour of Echwick (e).

Hugh died without issue. His heir was Eustace Delaval, as was found by an inquisition, i King Ed-ward I. (f) ex ea habuit filiam nuptam Willielmo comiti Pistaviensi et Aquitaniæ duci, en qua Willielmus filius qui successit; pater suit Elianoræ reginæ Angliæ.

Ex vet. MS. remanente inter archiva Turri Londinen 7.

(c) Gilbertus Delavale tenet in capite de domino rege baroniam suam de Calverton per servicium duorum feodorum milit. et omnes sui antecessores per eund. servicium tenuerunt post conquestum Anglia. Et de illo tenemento nulla est alienatio, &c. unde dominus rex, &c.

Tefta de Nevill.

Hal. Chron. vol. ii. p. 186.

- (d) Escaet. 46 R. Hen. III. n. 25. Vid. Bolbeck.
- (e) Monast. Angl. vol. ii. p. 97.
- (f) Eustachius De la vale tenet in capite de dom. rege Black Callerton, cum Seaton membro suo, Newsham, et North Dissington, per duo seoda de vet, seostamento.

Efcaet, de anno 1 Ed. I.

Robert Delaval married Margaret the only daughter of William Lord Greystock, fon-in-law to Roger de Merlay, baron of Morpeth, in the reign of K. Edward I (g). He was cousin and heir to Margaret the wife of Andrew de Smethton. He paid 101. 7 K. Edward II, to be relieved of the two knight's fees due to the crown for his barony (b).

William Delaval was high sheriff of Northumberland, 48 K. Edward III (i). He married Christian, the daughter and coheir of Robert de Eslington (k). He was succeeded by

Sir Robert Delaval, Knt. who was upon an inquest at Newcastle upon Tyne, 2 K. Richard II (1). His successor was

Sir Henry Delaval, Knt. who dying without iffue, his barony descended to his fister, Alice, the wife of John de Whitchester, 18 K. Richard II (m), by whom she had

William de Whitchester, who dying without issue, a third part of the barony descended to his sister,

- (g) Esc. 13 R. Ed. I. n. 10.
- (b) Robertus Delavale, consanguineus et hæres Margaritæ, quæ suit uxor Andrew d Smethton, dat regi xli. pro relievio suo de duobus scedis milit. in Calverton, cum membris in comit. Northumbr. Rot. Turri Londinens, Mich. Fin. Northumbr. 7 R. Ed. II.
  - (i) Esc. Turri Londinensi, 48 R. Ed. III. n. 23.
  - (k) Rot. Turri Londinensi, Trin. Fin. Northumbr. 38 R. Ed. III.
  - (1) Efc. Turri Londinenfi, 2 R. Ric. II. n. 49.
- (m) Alicia quæ fuit uxor Johannis Whitchester, so or Henrici Delaval, chr. tenet villam de Calverdon, cum membris, in comit. Northumbr. de rege in capite, per servicium duorum seodorum milit.

  Rot. Turri Londinens, Mich. Fin. 18 R. Ric. II.

Elizabeth, he wife of John de Rouchester, 11 K. Henry VI (11), on whose death it came to William Delaval, who had the remainder (o). He was upon an inquest at Newcastle upon Tyne, 14 K. Henry VI (p).

Sir John Delaval, Knt. was high sheriff of Northumberland, 34 K. Henry VIII;—1 K. Edward VI;—1 Philip and Mary;—1, 13 Q. Elizabeth (q).

Sir Ralph Delaval, Knt. was also high sheriff of Northumberland, 17, 25, 34 Q. Elizabeth,—2, 19 K. James I.

Sir Ralph Delaval, Knt. fon of Sir Robert, married the daughter of Major General Lefley in the reign of K. Charles I. He was representative in parliament for Northumberland, 2 K. Charles II, and

(n) Jobannes Rouchester, et Eliz. uxor ejus, soror et hæres Willielmi Whitchester, silii Alicia, nuper uxoris Johannis Whitchester, sororis Henrici Delaval, cert. consanguin. et hæredis ejus-dem Henrici, tenent de domino rege in capite tertiam partem manerii de Seton Delavale, et North Dissington, et Callerton, una cum tertia parte unius messuag. et xii. acr. terræ, cum pertinentibus, in Halywell, et tertia parte exitus, per servicium sidelitat. sectæ curiæ et molendin. de Seton; nec non tertiam partem cujusdem anni redditus xxvis. viiid. viz. viiis. x<sup>d</sup>. recipiend. annuatim de omnibus terris et tenementis quondam Stephani le Scrope, chr. et Willielmi de Vescy, Willielmi de Halywell, parcell. dicti manerii de Seton, ac etiam partem medietatis de Hertlawe, cum pertinentibus, per servicium sextæ partis unius seodi militis.

Rot. Turri Londinensi, 11, 12, 13 R. Hen. VI.

(0) Escaet. 14 R. Hen. VI. n. 34.

(p) Ib. Vid. Benwell.

(q) Johannes Delaval fuit seisitus de et in manerio et villa de Seton Delaval, et de et in manerio de Black Callerton, et in villa de North Dissington, ac Brandon, et in medietate villæ de Bydlissen, et villa de Hartelay, cum certis terris in West Hedwyne, Dinnington, et S. Myddilton.

Escaet. 10 R. Eliz.

in the 12th of that reign was created a baronet, 29 June, 1660 (r). He was succeeded in honour and estate by his son, Sir John Delaval Bart. who leaving only one daughter, married to John Rogers, Esq; the title became extinct (s); and his estate and seat of Seaton-Delaval came into the possession of

George Delaval, Esq; an admiral in the British navy (t), a younger brother of Edward Delaval, of North Distinction, Esq; on whose death it devolved to his nephew, Francis Blake Delaval, Esq; grandfon to Sir Francis Blake, of Ford-Castle, Knt. (u). He was a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 4 K. George 1, 1717; and was father of

Sir Francis Blake Delaval, knight of the bath, the profest por of for of Seaton-Delaval; and of Sir John Hussey Delaval, of Ford-Castle, (r) Radulphus Delavale, confunguineus et hæres Radulphi Delaval, militis, tenet in capite per servicium militare manerium de Seton Delavale, ac manerium ac villam de Black Callerton, ac reversiones manerii de North Dissington. Ex Rot. Turri Londinensi, 14 R. Caroli I.

Radulphus Delavale, miles, filius Roberti, militis, tenet in capite per servicium militare manerium de Seton Delavale, capitale messuag. vocat. Whitrigg, diversa messuag. ac tenementa vocat. le South more, et West-more, ac terras in Broom-hill, Earnslow, Blackstone, Seghill-Border, Ersden-Burn, Horton-more, et watrenam Cumckley in le Linke, cum pertinentibus, in Seton Delavale, ac Whitrigg, ac manerium de Black Callerton, ac manerium de Dissington.

Ιb.

Radulphus Delavale, miles, et Robertus, arm. filius ejus, tenent in capite manerium de Seton Delavale, Hartley, Black Gallerton, ac North Dissington, ac medietatem rectoriæ de Tinmouth.

Ib.

Vid. Mag. Britan. Northumbr.

- (s) MS. Joh. Warburton, Arm.
- (t) Vid. vol. i. ch. xii. Of eminent Men.

(u) Vid. Ford-Cafile.

Bart; of the Lady of Sir William Stanhope, knight of the bath, and of two other fons, gemelli et pares, like the Daucian Twins described by the incomparable Mantuan, Thymber and Laris.

Æn. L. 10-

So like their features, that their parents look On either face, but each for each mistook. Puzzled, yet pleas'd, they gaz'd on either child, And fondly on the dear delusion smil'd.

Pitt:

Sir Francis was created knight of the bath, or of the Holy Trinity, as it was antiently called, at the coronation of his present Majesty, K. George III; being first made a knight batchelor, then knighted by the King with the sword of state, and presented with the red ribbon, and medal of three crowns, with the inscription on the exergue, Tria juncta in uno, in allusion to the union of the three kingdoms, England, Scotland, and Ireland; the old inscription, till the coronation of K. James I, being Tria numina juncta in uno, in allusion to the Holy Trinity. He is a representative in parliament for the borough of Andover. His seat of Seaton Delaval is modern, after a defign of Sir John Vanbrough's, the celebrated architect of Blenheim, in Oxfordshire; no remains of the old baronial castle now visible. When finished, it will be a perfect quadrangle, each side 220 feet. The main entrance is to the north, into a losty and stately hall, above which is a gallery.

lery. In the niches of the wall are fix handsome sculptured female figures, reprefenting the sciences, with their symbols, viz. astronomy, architecture, and sculpture, on one side; and on the other, geography, painting, and music; the sloor of the hall of black and white marble. Before the fouth front, is a grafs-lawn, edged with plantations; and beyond it, a spacious avenue, with fhady walks on each fide; a fwimming-bath about mid-way; terminated by an obelifk; the antient ruin of Tynemouth-priory, and the ocean being in fight. To the north, it has a profpect of about fixty miles, the mountain of Cheviot being visible on a clear day. To the east, through several openings in little groves, are feen pieces of flatuary; also a riding-house, large and spacious; and a garden, very handsome, with a conservatory or green-house; and that magnificent object the sea, every breaking wave of which is, if I may fo fpeak, a cafeade, uttering with its folemn voice the tremendous majefty, wisdom and power, of the great Tehovah. This gives Seaton-Delaval an air of dignity and grandeur, which Blenheim must ever despair of having for want of it. To the west, is an avenue, a mile and a quarter in length, and an obelifk about half-way. Hard by, is the family-chapel in a grove. By the entrance, on the right hand, is an effigies in stone of one of the family who made the crusade, recumbent, and in armour, his legs a-cross, his feet resting on a lyon, his hands elevated. Opposite to him, on the left hand, is another of a lady, recumbent also, and her hands elevated.

A mile from Seaton-Delaval is the fea-port and fishing-town of Hartley, which in the reign of King John was held of the Barony of Gaugy by Adam de Jesmont (x); and a mediety of it by Sir Henry Delaval, Knt. 12 K. Richard II, his family afterwards posseffing the whole (y); now belonging to Sir Francis. It is a well-built and improving marine villa, populous and industrious, on a bold and rocky shore; the harbour to the north of it, by a spacious sandy bay. Four great works are carrying on at it; a coalwork, a salt-work, a copperas-work, and a glass-work; the latter a handsome building, 220 feet in front, the side-walls to the roof 36 feet, the property of Thomas Delaval, Esq; fourth brother to Sir Francis and Sir John.

Near the 6th mile-stone, a road branches off, on the right hand to Bedlington, a large, well-built, and pleafant villa on an eminence, the manour of which belongs to the See of Durham, as part of the patrimony of St. Cuthbert, including all that space on the sea-coast between the rivers Blyth and Wansbeck, known by the name of Bedlingtonshire (a). Out of every plow-land in this manour, the hospital of St. Giles, near Durham, received a thrave of corn, for the relief of poor strangers and travellers, till it was agreed to pay nine shillings in lieu of it at a certain time, within sisteen days after the feast of St. Michael, and in case of failure to pay ten shillings (b).

When

Omnibus, &c. Willielmus Halcor, Robertus Cnowald, Willielmus Birilet, Thomas filius Rogeride Bedelynton, Walterus et Robertus filii Roberti de Nedderton, Adam et Elyas frater ejus de Chavynton, (y) Esc. 12 R. Ric. II. Esc. 10 R. Eliz.

(a) Spearman's enquiry into the antient and present state of the county Palatine of Durham, 4to. 1729. p. 2, 3.

(b) De novum solidis pro travis carucarum de Bedelynstonshire hospitali S. Egidii datis per inhabitantes ejusdem.

When the lands belonging to the See of Durham were put up to fale by the parliament, this manour, and Choppington farm, were purchased, 21 January, 1649, for 1296 l. 0s. 5 d. 1/2, by Robert Fenwick, Esq; a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 1654, 1656 (c).

It was affirmed in a small tract, published 1660 (d), that at the restoration the purchasers of church-lands offered the king the round sum of sive hundred thousand pounds to confirm their right for ninety-nine years, on the payment of the old rents to the bishops and clergy, which offer his majesty was so far from Chaventon, Thomas et Johannes de Slykburne, Alanus, Adam et Walterus Caritas de Cambhule, Edmundus filius Rogeri, et Laurentius filius Odardi, et Adam Serviens, et Ranulphus filius Petri. Robertus filius Henrici, et Robertus Palmere de parva Slykburne, falutem in domino. Cum antiqua constitutione venerabilium patrum, et dominorum nostrorum Dunelm. Episcoporum constitueretur, ut de fingulis carucis omnium dominiorum eorum daretur una trava bladi hospitali S. Egidii extra Dunelm. caritatis intuitû ad sustentationem pauperum et perigrinorum ibidem undecunque confluentium: Nos eorum constitutionem approbantes et devote accentantes, dedimus et concessimus, &c. pro salute animarum nostrarum patrum et matrum et omnium parentum nostrorum, deo et dicto hospitali St. Egidii extra Dunelm. spontanea voluntate nostra in puram et perpetuam elemosinam novem solidos pro travis carucarum noftrarum de Bedelynton-shire; ita quod tam nos quam hæredes nostri ad hanc elemosinam præstandam in perpetuum teneamur ad festum S. Michaelis solvendam; ita quod nisi infra xv dies proxime post festum S. Michaelis solventur, nos et hæredes nostri elapsis illis xv diebus pro novem folidis nomine penæ folvemus decem folidos. Et ut hæc nostra donatio rata & incussa futuris temporibus permaneat, præsens scriptum Sigillorum nostrorum appositione roboravimus, &c.

Pat. 4 Ric. II. p. 3. m. 20. per inspex. Mon. Angl. Vol. iii. p. 94.

- (c) See Whitlocke's Memorials, p. 291. See Brinkburn-Priory.
- (d) Printed at Lond, in three sheets, by the Author of a Book, intitled, The Pillar of Gratitude.

complying with, that he granted a commission for enquiry after all such purchases (e).

The village confifts of one long and wide street, and forms a kind of sloping avenue to the river Blyth, which is the southern boundary of the shire, and glides past it between two steep banks, in broken murmurs, and supplies a large iron-work with water. The church is a small structure, covered with lead, with an old tower. The Rev. Mr. Francis Woodmas, fellow of St. John's College, in Cambridge, and author of learned notes on St. Chryfostom, was vicar of it.

On the fouth fide of the river Blyth, and in fight, is Bebfide (f), the manour of which belonged to the priory of Tynemouth; which, with their manour of Cowpon, on the banks of the fame river, were affigned as fecurities to Ralph Lord Grey-flock for the performance of certain conditions on their part, on his lordship's founding a chantery in their church of Tynemouth, 8 K. Edward II, 1315 (g). It belonged to John Ogle, Esq; 10 Q.

(e) Printed at Lond. and intitled, His Majesty's Gracious Commission to divers of his loving subjects to search into and examine the pretended sales and purchasers of the honours manours, lands and hereditaments, of and belonging to his Majesty, his royal mother, the Archbishops, Bishops, Deans, and Chapters, Prebendaries, and other ecclesiastical persons; granting to the said commissioners such powers and authorities as are necessary for the ends, intents, and purposes, in and by the said commission specified and expressed. Witness ourselves at Westmisser, the seventh day of October, 1660, in the twelsth year of our reign.

(f) Bebset. Autographo perantiquo.

Bebbesset. Carta Fundat. Cant. de Tynemouth.

Bebside.

(g) Vid. Tynemouth-priory.

Elizabeth (b); and to John Johnson, Esq; 2 K. George I, 1715, then high sheriff of Northumberland. It is now the seat of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Fielding, relict of the late Captain Fielding, and aunt to the late Sir Matthew White, of Blaigdon, Bart.

Near it is

Newsham, which was the manour and seat of a younger branch of the Cramlingtons, of Cramlington; of Thomas Cramlington, 10 Q. Elizabeth (i); and of Robert Cramlington, in the reign of K. Charles I, whose estate was sequestred by the parliament, 18th November, 1652. It was afterwards purchased by the city of London, and sold to Colonel Thomas Ratcliff (k).

Two miles from it, is

South Blyth, a well built village and fea-port on the fouth fide of the river Blyth, from which it has its name; the Cramlingtons of Newsham its antient owners; purchased by a wealthy London-merchant, in expectation of great advantage; fold by him to Colonel Thomas Ratcliff, to whom also belonged the village of Plessis, Shotton, Nafferton-Hall, Whittle, &c. (1). S. Blyth is now in the possession of Matthew Ridley, of Heaton, near Newcastle, Esq.

A little beyond the 8th mile-stone, on the left hand, and in fight, is

(h) Johannes Ogle fuit seisitus de et in una villa vocat. Bebsyde.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

(i) Thomas Cramlington fuit seisitus de et in villa de Newsham.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

(k) MS. inter Collectan. Warburton.

(1) Ibid. .

VOL. II.

Oo

Blaigdon,

Blaigdon (m), one of the manours of the barony of Morpeth, of which it was held by John de Plessis, 1 K. Edward I (n), a benefactor to the priory of New-minster (o). It paid annually for cornage, on the feast of St. Cuthbert, in September, 1 s. 1 d. 1/2. It was the feat and manour of Matthew White, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1720, who built a handsome house, to which his son, the late Sir Matthew White, made some additions and ornaments. He was high sheriff of Northumberland, 1756, and in that year received the honour of knighthood, and was created a Baronet. It is now in the possession of his nephew, Sir Matthew White Ridley, Bart.

The post-road crosses the river Blyth, by a stone-bridge of one arch, and brings us to Stannington, an antient villa, another of the manours of the Barony of Morpeth. In the old rolls of the Barony, it stands distinguished under the name of Cook's-land. It paid annually for cornage 1s. 1d. 1, on St. Cuthbert's day, in September. The church stands on the north side of the village. The third Roger de Merlay, Baron of Morpeth, founded a chantery in it, in honour of the Blessed Virgin, for one chaplain, to be chosen by the Archdeacon of Northumberland, for the time being. He gave to it one

- (m) Blakeden. Rot. Cur. Baron de Morpeth.

  Blaigdon. Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

  Blagdon. Carta recentiori.
- (n) Pleffys.
  Pleffes.
  Pleffet.

Johannes Plesses tenet Shotton, Blaigdon, et North-Witslet, per quart. partem unius Feod. vet. Feoffamenti. Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

(0) See New-Minster-Priory.

toft and croft on the fouth fide of the church, with common of pasture for four cows, and thirty ews with their followers of one year old. He also gave to it ten acres of land, and half of a plough-land, in Clifton, and twenty acres of land in Coldwell, to hold of the priory of Hexham, by the annual rent of 1s. 6d. to be paid on the feast of St. Peter de Vincula, and answering to the prior's court. He gave to it three oxgangs of land in Coldwell, with common of pasture in Clifton and Coldwell, to hold of Gilbert de Coniers and his heirs by the annual rent of 1s. He gave to it a silver chalice, gilt within, of the value of 23s. also vestments for the use of the chaplain (q).

Roger

(a) Omnibus fanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis ad quos præsentes litteræ pervenerint, Roporus de Merlay tertius salutem in vero salutari. Noveritis universitas vestra me divinæ pietatis intuitu, et pro salute animæ meæ, antecessorum et successorum meorum omnium sidelium defunctorum, dediffe, concessisse, et hac præsenti carta mea confirmasse, in liberam, puram, et perpetuam elemofinam, ad sustentationem unius simplicis capellani qui divina celebrabit pro animabus omnium fidelium defunctorum in perpetuum ad altare Beatæ Mariæ in ecclefia de Stannyngton, unum toftum et croftum ex parte australi ecclesiæ de Stannyngton cum communa pasturæ et omnibus aisiamentis ad distam villam de Stannyngton pertinentibus ad quatuor vaccas et triginta oves matrices cum sequela unius anni : et decem acras terræ cum pertinentibus in villa de Clifton, quas habui ex dono prioris et conventus Hagusthaldensis; et viginti acras terræ cum pertinentibus in Cauldwell, quas habui ex dono dicti prioris et conventus: et præterea in liberam et perpetuam elemofinam dimidium caracutæ terræ cum pertinentibus in dicta villa de Clifton, quam habui ex dono fuperdicti prioris et conventus : et dimidium carucutæ terræ cum pertinentibus in eadem villa, quas habui ex dono Roberti de Cambon: Et tres boyatas terræ cum pertinentibus in villa de Cauldwell, quas habui ex dono Gilberti de Convers, cum communa pasturæ, et omnibus libertatibus et aisiamentis ad terras in villis de Clifton et Cauldwell pertinentibus, ficut in cartis donatorum plenius continetur. Et ego Rogerus de Merlay et hæredes mei idoneum capellanum ad celebranda divina in dicta ecclefia, ut Superdictum est, Archidiacono Northumbriæ, seu vices ejus gerenti, qui pro tempore suerit, in perpetuum fuccessive presentabimus. Et volo quod si ego vel hæredes mei infra tempus jure Statutum post cessionem vel decessium capellani qui pro tempore fuerit alium eidem successiurum presentare negleximus, liceat dicto Archidiacono Northumbriæ qui pro tempore suerit ad dictum officium explend, idoneum capellanum instituere, qui dictæ elemosinæ possit quidem honeste se gerere. Et ego Rogerus, et hæredes mei prædictas terras cum omnibus suis perti-

Roger de Somervill gave the advowson of the church to the priory of New-minster (r).

Near the 15th mile-stone, we come to nentibus contra omnes homines et feminas warrantizabimus in perpetuum et defendemus capellano qui pro tempore fuerit, salva mihi et hæredibus meis secta molendini mei de dicta terra. Et ipse capellanus faciet servic. contentum in cartis donatorum ordinatis, scilicet priori et conventui octodecem denarios ad vincula beati Petri, et Willielmo de Convers et hæredibus suis unum expernarum sorum vel duodecem denarios ad eundem terminum et saciend. forinficum fervicium quantum pertinet ad unam carucutam terræ in villa de Clifton. Et volo quod capellanus qui ibidem divina celebrabit, omnibus horis canonicis interfit, nifi parte ægritudine vel alia honesta causa suerit impeditus. Et si fortassis ob aliquam honestam caufam de licentia mea abfuerit, vel ægritudine diuturna ita debilitatus quod celebrare non poffit, alium capellanum inveniat idoneum de licentia dicti Archidiaconi qui pro tempore fuerit, qui interim dictum expleat officium. Singulis autem diebus dicat officium mortuorum, quod dicitur placeto dirige commendatio, ficut pro corpore presenti. Præterea dedi et assignavi ad dictum fervicium sustendandum unum calicem argenteum, intrinsecus deauratum, de pretio xxiiis, et duo paria bonorum vestimentorum, et quinque taullia benedicta, et unum bonum missale cum gradali et unum porhois, et duo troparia. Nec ista ornamenta poterit capellanus qui pro tempore fuerit fibi appropriare, vel alio modo alienare, et si vetustate desidint, vel alio modo perierint, ex propriis bonis restaurabit; et capellanus vero quicunque illuc divina, ut prædictum est, celebraturus accesserit etiam idoneam candelam unam oblat, domus sibi assignat. in bono statu sustentabit. Et ad istud opus officii faciend, in ecclesia tenetur capellanus qui pro tempore fuerit. Et idem capellanus dabit seipsum sidelitate rectori ecclesiæ de Stannyngton qui pro tempore fuerit, scilicet de indemnitate ejusdem ecclesiæ conservanda. Et in hujus rei testimonium huic cartæ chirograffatæ sigillum meum apposui. His testibus Hugone de Bolbeck, Eustachio De la Vale, Rogero Bertram de Bothall, Johanne de Plesses, Adam Barret. Johanne filio Simonis, Thoma de Ogle, Willielmo de Horsley, Richardo de Saltwick, Willielmo filio Radulphi, Adam de Plesses, Nicholao de Bekring, Walter de Witton, et aliis. Ista carta est chirograffata in quatuor partes. Unam partem habeo penes me et hæredes meos cum sigillo archidiaconi Northumbriæ. Aliam partem habet capellanus penes se sigillo meo signatum. Tertia pars apud Tynemoùth, est in custodia prioris et conventûs. Et quarta pars est in custodia prioris et conventus Dunelmiæ ecclesiæ.

(r) See New-minster Priory.

Morpeth, a well-built borough-town upon the river Wansbeck, a contraction of Woden's-Beck, encompassed almost with little pleafant hills, on whose brows are plantations of fir, beach, and elms. It is supposed to have its name from More-path, or the road through the More or Moor. Under the Saxons and Danes it made no figure. Under the first Normans it rose in dignity superior to a villa; being then erected into an honour, and stilled the Barony of Morpeth, or the Barony of Merlay, from its possessors. To Ralph, son of Roger, de Merlay, K. Henry I. gave in marriage Julian the daughter of Cospatric, Earl of Dunbar, with the Lordships and villas of Witton, Horsley, Stanton, Ritton, Windgetes, and Liverchild (s); which were consirmed by her brother Edgar (t).

- (s) Henricus rex Angliæ & dux Normanniæ justiciariis, vicecomitibus, ministris, & omnibus baronibus suis, Francis et Anglis, salutem. Notum sit omnibus vobis me dedisse Ranulpho de Merlay Julianam, siliam comit s Cospatricii, et per conventionem inter me et patrem suum, dedimus in liberum mariale, sibi atque hæredibus suis, scilicet Horsley, Stanton, Witten, Ritton, Wyndgates, et quandam villam ultra moras, tam libere quam aliquis potest liberius inter maria terram alicui dare, tenendo in suo dominico, et ex hoc precipio meis justiciariis ut videant quod nihil ei desit, et si aliquis ei contradicere voluerit, tunc præcipio justiciariis & vicecomitibus meis, de comitatu Northumbriæ, ut plenum rectum ei teneant. testib. Patricio silio Johanne Peverell de Baelcampo, Willielmo de Albunbuto, Henrico silio Johannis, Willielmo del pont. Willielmo Maltravers, Willielmo Manduit, apud Wodstok, &c.

He founded the abbey of New-Minster; on the north side of the chapel of which he was interred, with his lady, and their son Ostert (u). William de Merlay was a benefactor to an hospital in Morpeth, of his ancestors foundation (v). The three last Lords Merlay were all of the name of Roger; the first of whom, by paying a fine of twenty marks and two good palfreys, I. John, 1199, acquired for his borough of Morpeth a weekly market on Wednesdays, and an annual fair (w). He was interred at New-Minster (x). The second Roger Lord Merlay contributed much to (u) Ranulphus de Merlay, una cum Juliana uxor ejus, et Osberto filio ejus, sepulti sunt in borcali parte domus capituli Novi Monasterii quod condidit.

Ex Aut graphe perantiquo.

- (w) Johannes dei gratià rex Anglia, &c. Sciatis nos concessisse, et præsenti carta confirmasse, Rogero de Merlay et hæredibus suis quod habeant in perpetuum singulis annis unam Feriam apud Morpeth per unam diem duraturam, viz. in sesso Sanctæ Maria Magdalena, et singulis Ebdomadis unum mercatum in die Mercurii. Quare volumus et sirmiter præcipimus, quod prædictus Rogerus et hæredes sui post ipsum prædictam seriam et prædictum mercatum habeant bene et in pace sicut prædictum est in omnibus libertatibus et liberis consuetudinibus ad hujusmodi serias et mercata pertinentibus. Ita tamen quod non sint ad nocumentum vicinarum seriarum, aut vicinorum mercatorum. His testibus, Galfrido silio Petri com. de Essex, Willielmo Brewer, Hugone Bardon, Willielmo de Statvill, Roberto de Ros, &c.

Carta de anno 1 R. Johannis.

(x) Cum Rogerus de Merlay primus hæc et alia confilia complevisset, obdormivit in domino, et in domo capituli Novi Monasterii cum patre suo sepultus est. Et successit ei Rogerus filius, qui dicitur Rogerus de Merlay secundus.

Ex autographo perantiquo.

the prosperity of his borough of Morp th. He confirmed all its privileges. Under his patronage and influence an hospital was built at Catchburn. He was interred at the entrance of the priory-church at New-Minster (y).

By the charter of the third Roger Lord Merlay, the burgeffes of Morpeth, and their fuccessors, were freed from all taxes, subsidies, or contributions, except on the king's account, in military expeditions for the public defence, on the marriage of the lord's eldest fon or daughter, or for his own redemption out of prison. By the fame charter, the Prizes raifed by his officers and fervants, or those of his fuccessors, on bread and beer, and other things, were assigned to the creditors within the borough, to be paid within forty days. Such of them as were not paid within that time, were enjoined to remain eafy till they could be paid. The lord was at liberty, in the mean time, to make other Prizes, at his pleasure. His Prize for beer in the whole year was three gallons, valued at one penny. Their accustomed common-right, pasturage, and other conveniences, were confirmed to them and their fuccessors, and way-leave granted to and from the town, cornfields and meadows only excepted. He gave them liberty of pafture on his stubbles of Wenherlaw, to the west of the town, between New-Minster priory and the foss or ditch of the west park; reserving to himself and his heirs the eatage of them for 15 days after the corn was carried off. They had fuel from his turbaries within the manour of Morpeth, at his pleafure, for a penny a load. For every horned beaft, and for every horse, found feeding in his enclosed grounds, they paid a halfpenny, and the same for five sheep, as a compensation, for three several trespasses, as well without as within the enclosures; and for the fourth trespass of every horned beaft in his enclosed wood or boscage, they paid eight-pence, and four-pence for each taken without the enclofure, and afterwards taking only a halfpenny for a beaft trefpassing three times as at first. If their cattle were taken among corn or in the meadows, they made reparation according to the feafon of the year. He granted and confirmed to them and their fuccessors most of the unoccupied ground, which was their antient market-place, with an injunction to build stalls for the use of butchers and those that fold fishes; and a prohibition for any of their goods to be fold before the hour of nine o' clock, and in no other part of the town, except in grofs or by wholefale; his lordship reserving to himself and his successors a power to build upon any of his lands wherein he had granted a right of common to the corporation. He confined them to grind their corn at his mill of Morpeth, according to former usage (z).

Ex Autographo perantiquo.

(y) Rogerus de Merlay secundus burgum de Morpath decoravit, & multa alia opera caritativa, et post obitum suum sepultus est in claustro ad introitum domûs capituli Novi Monasterii. Hospitali de Catchburn tunc per ipsum promoto; cui successit Rogerus silius ejus.

His

Omnibus hanc cartam visuris vel audituris Rogerus de Merlay tertius, salutem. Noveritis me audisse cartâ Rogeri patris mei in hac verba. Omnibus hominibus has literas visuris, vel audituris, Rogerus de Merley, salutem. Sciatis quod ego Rogerus de Merlay dedi et concessi, et hac præsenti carta mea confirmavisse, meis liberis burgensibus de Morpeth, illis, et hæred.bus suis, tenend. et habend. in perpetuum de me et hæredibus meis, omnes libertates, et omnes liberas consuetudines, honorabiliter, et libere, et integre, sicuti carta domini regis purportat quam ego habeo de dono suo. His testibus, Willielmo de Merlay, Richardo de Plesses, &c. Quare volo, concedo, et consirmo, pro me, et hæredibus meis, prædictis burgensibus, et hæredibus suis, quod habeant omnes libertates prædictas sicut carta Rogeri de Merlay patris mei purportat et testatur. Et præterea concessi pro me et hæredibus meis quod præsati burgenses nec hæredes eorum tallientur nisi quando dominus rex talliabit burgenses suos et ad promogenitum meum milit. saciend. et ad primogenitam siliam meam maritandam, et ad corpus meum de prisona redimendum. Item concessi eisdem quod si ego vel hæredes mei priazs ferimus per servientes nostros de pane vel de cervissa, vel de ali-

Barret,

His market of Morpeth proved such a detriment to the neighbouring market of Mitford, that Roger de Bertram, Baron of Mitford, 34 K.

equa alia de re in dista villa de Morpath, illæ prizæ folvantur creditori infra quadraginta dies: creditor autem cui non solutum fuerit infra quadraginta dies de prizis ab eis factis maneat quietus ab omni priza post illas quadraginta dies quousque ei solutum suerit. Ita tamen quod bene licebit mihi et hæredibus meis alias prizas facere infra terminum illarum quadraginta Et sciendum quod priza mea cervisiæ erit in toto anno tres gallones pro uno denario. Concessi etiam eisdem burgensibus et hæredibus solitas communas pasturæ et aisiamenta confueta cum libero exitû et introitu ad eandem villam de Morpath pertin, exceptis bladis et pratis. Concessi etiam superdictis burgensibus et hæredibus eorum communam in stipulis meis eiusdem manerii mei de Morpath; scilicet de Wenherlawe versus occidentem usque ad divisas abbatis Novi Monasterii et usque ad fossatum parci occidentalis. Ita tamen quod herbagium earundem stipularum reservetur ad opus meum et hæredum meorum per quindecem dies postquam bladum meum fuerit cariatum. Et concessi eisdem burgensibus et hæredibus eorum, quod quando eis turbarias vendere voluero in turbariis meis de Morpath, et quantum eis vendere voluero, fingulas cariatas turbarii profingulis denariis. Et si contingat quod averia eorundem burgensium capiantur in defensis meis, pro quolibet averio dabunt unum obulum, et pro quolibet equo unum obulum, et pro quinque ovibus unum obulum per tres vices tam extra quam infra, et ad quartam vicem pro fingulis corum averiorum captis infra boscum dabunt octo denarios, et extra boscum quatuor denarios, et postea iterum incipiendo pro singulis averiorum obulum per tres vices, ut prædictum est. Et si averia corum capiantur in bladis, vel in pratis, faciant emendas fecundum tempus anni. Concessi insuper, et confirmavi præsatis burgensibus et corum hæredibus illam placeam quietam ubi forum corum esse solebat (excepto tamen tosto Alicia Hudde, et pistrina ejustem villæ, et excepta quadam fabrica, quam Philippus tenuit. In qua placea volo quod stalla eorum construnantur ubi carnes et pisces vendant usque in horam nonam. Et prohibeo super plenam forisfacturam mei et hæredum meorum ne quis prefumat vendere garnes nec pifces ante horam nonam, quoniam fervicii dict. stall. nifi in grosso. Et sciendum quod bene licebit mihi et hæredibus meis facere ædificia nostra ubicunque voluerimus in culturis nostris, in quibus eis concessimus communia sine impedimento vel contradictione dictorum burgenfium, vel hæredum corum, in perpetuum. Et sciendum quod dicti burgenses et hæredes eorum sequentur molendina mea de Morpath ad tertium decimum vas multuræ, ficut prius sequi consueverunt. Et ego Rogerus de Merlay et hæredes mei universa prænominata et concessa dictis burgensibus et corum hæredibus contra omnes gentes in perpetuum warrantizabimus. Et in hujus rei testimonium, unam partem hujus cartæ chi ographatæ quam dicti burgenses habent penes eos et hæredes eorum sigillo meo roberavi; et aliam partem habeo penes me et hæredes meos communi sigillo dictorum burgensium signatum. His testibus, Hugone Gubion, Willielmo de Merlay, Johanne de Plesses, Willielmo de Conyers, Ada Pp

Vol. II.

34 K. Henry III, 1250, commenced a fuit against him in the county-court of Northumberland, for damages, but was obliged to drop it by the interposition of the crown. He founded a chantery in the church of Stannington, as before mentioned (a). He died, 50 K. Henry III, 1265; and was interred at New-Minster, near his father (b). An inquisition was taken of his barony in the same reign (c); also, 1 K. Edward I (d); when it was found, that the burgesses paid annually for the see-farm of the town to his lord-ship, 10 l. that he received annually for felons goods, stallage, and a salmon-sishery in the river Wansbeck, 2 l. 6s. 8 d. that for the herbage in his wood, called Cotingwood, containing 284 acres, he had 3 l. 6s. 8 d. per annum; and for his park, called East Park, containing 418 acres, 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. per annum; and that he had Barret, Willielmo de Horsley, Willielmo filio Radulphi, Richardo de Saltwick, Richardo de Sancto Petro, Willielmo Spurnelow, Radulpho Grom, Thoraldo, Rogero Palmer, Waltero de Witton, clerico, et aliis.

Carta confirmationis et concessionis Rogeri de Merlay tertii de quibusd. libertatibus facta liberis burgensibus suis de Morpath.

- (a) Vid. Stannington.
- (b) Rogerus de Merlay tertius, qui contulit hominibus de Morpath plures libertates, in tempore suo ordinavit quandam canteriam perpetuam in ecclesia de Stannyngton. Cum hæc autem et multa alia elemosinarum opera complevisset, carente hærede masculo, post obitum suum sepultus est juxta Rogerum Patrem suum.

  Ex Autographo perantiquo.
- (c) Rogerus de Merlay tenet in capite de dom. rege baroniam de Morpath per servicium quatuor seod. milit. et omnes antecessores sui tenuerunt per eundem servicium post conquestum Angliæ; et de seodo illo nihil est vendidum, alienatum, vel datum, undè rex minus habeat de servicio suo.——

  Testa de Nevill.
- (d) Rogerus de Merlay tenet in capite de dom. rege Morpethe, cum Tranwell suo membro Ulgham, Hepscote, Shilvington, Twysse, Saltwicke, East Duddon, West Duddon, Cliston, Cauldwell, Stannington, Shotton, Blaigdon, Wetsket north, Wetslet south, Killingworth, Benton mag. et Walker per quatuor seoda vet. seossamenti.—

  Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

another park, called West Park, containing 142 acres, which he referved for his own convenience and pleasure (d). His barony came to his daughters and coheirs, Mary, and Johanna.

Mary married William Lord Greyflock, by whom she had two sons, and one daughter, viz. John, William, and Margaret.

Johanna married Robert de Somervill, by whom she had sive sons, and one daughter, viz. Robert, Roger, Adam, John, Philip, and Isabell. Her husband, and her son John, died 11th September, 25 K. Edward I, 1297. Her daughter, Isabell, died 15th February, 33d of the same reign, 1304. Her other sour sons all lived to possess her moiety of the barony of Morpeth, in their turn, and died without issue-male.

Morpeth fell to the lot of William Lord Greystock, to whom, and to his heirs, K. Edward I. granted, that the annual fair in the cet stallag. xlvi s. viii d.

(d) Burgenses Burgi pro firma burgi, x l.

Pro piscario salmonum in aqua de Wanspeck, cum felon.

Cotingwood, lxvis. viii d.

East Park, vil. xiiis. ivd.

West Park, in manû domini.

per annum.

(e) Cui Regero de Merlay tertio successerunt Maria et Johanna silize et hætedes and l'elmus Baro de Graissock Mariam cepit in uxorem, et suscitavit ex ea Johanne Robertus de Somervill duxit Johannem in uxorem, et genuit ex ea quinque silios, gerum, Adamum, Johannem, Philippum, et Isabellam siliam.

Robertus de Somervill, pater, obiit, cum Johanne filio suo, xiº. die mensis Septembra anno Dom. Mº. CCº. nonagesimo septimo. Isabella filia ipsius Roberti obiit xv die mensis Februarii, ann. Dom. Mº. CCCº. quarto. Post mortem vero Roberti de Somervill, patris, Roberti, Rogerus, Adamus, et Philippus, filii ejus superdicti, unusque post alium hæreditarie possent purpartem hæreditat. parentum suorum, et obierunt sine hærede masculo.

Ex Autographo perantiquo.

292

borough of Morpeth should hold for three days together, viz. on the eve, and on the feast of St. Mary Magdalen, and the day after (f). His lordship died 17th of the same reign, and was succeeded by his son,

John Lord Greystock, who was a benefactor to the abbeys of Tynemouth and New-Minster, and caused a division to be made of his grandfather Merlay's lands between him and his uncle, Robert de Somervill (g). His brother William being dead, and having no issue,

- (f) Edvardus Dei gratia tex Angliæ, &c. Sciatis nos concessisse et hac carta nostra confirmasse dilecto et sideli nostro Willielmo, silio Thomæ de Greistock, Johanni silio et hæredi suo et Mariæ quæ sui tuxor ejusdem Willielmi, quod ipse, et hæredes ipsus Johannis, loco Feriæ quæ ex concessione dom. Johannis quondam regis Angliæ avi nostri esse consuevit in manerio dictorum, Willielmi et Johannis, de Morpeth in com. Nos thumbr. singulis annis per unam diem duraturæ, viz. in sesto Sanctæ Mariæ Magdalenæ, de cetero habeant unam Feriam ibidem singulis annis per tres dies duraturam, viz. in vigilia, in die, et in crassino ejusdem sesti Sanctæ Mariæ Magdalenæ, niss feria illa sit ad nocumentum vicinarum feriarum. Quare volumus et sirmiter præcipimus pro nobis et hæredibus nostris quod prædictus Willielmus et Johannes, et hæredes ipsius Johannis in perpetuum habeant prædictam feriam apud manerium suum prædictum cum omnibus libertatibus et liberis consuetudinibus ad hujusmodi feriam spectantibus, &c.

  Carta, 9 Maii, anno 13 Ed. I.
- (g) Iste Johannes de Graistock, vir strenuus et corpulentus, secit partitionem fieri de omnibus terris et tenementis quæ suerunt Rogeri de Merlay avi sui inter se et Robertum de Somervill, avunculum; viz. in com. Northumbr. (Memorandum est quod Rogerus de Merlay, dum vixit, enuit in capite de dom. rege in Northumbr. quatuor seoda milit.) et partitio sacta est, videlicet, quod prædictus Johannes hæres prædictus tenebit tria seod. milit. videlicet Morpath, Shilvington, Heppescote, Shadsen, Duddon west, Duddon east, et Ulgham, pro duobus seod. milit. Item idem Johannes, hæres, Maneria tenebit de Stannyngton, Belassife, Tranwell, Saltwyck, Plesses, Shotton per dimid. seodi militaris. Et etiam quod prædictus Johannes, hæres, tenebit medietatem de magna Benton, Kyllyngworth, et Walker, per dimid. seod. milit.

Et quod Robertus de Somervill tenebit aliam medietatem de magna Benton, Kyllynworth, IVstissade north, et Weteslade south, per dimid. feodi militaris.

iffue, he fettled his moiety of them, and his other estates, at his death, 34 K. Edward I, 1307, on

Ralph Fitz William, his near relation, who affumed the name and title of Ralph Lord Greyfock (b). He married Margery, the widow of Nicholas Corbet, one of the daughters and coheirs of Hugh de Bolbeck, by which marriage he acquired a mediety of the barony of Bolbeck (i); and had two fons, William, and Ralph. His Lord-ship founded a chantery in the church of Tynemouth, as before mentioned (k). He lived to a great age. He died, 9 K. Edward II, 1316; and was interred at Newsham (l). His eldest fon William, and his wife Catharine, dying without iffue, he was succeeded by his younger son, Et sic Johannes de Graissock tenet tria seod. milit. in capite de dom. rege ibidem, et saciebit servicia tam in guerra quam in pace pro prædictis tribus seod. milit. et ad auxilium promogenitæ siliæ regis maritandæ, et primogeniti silii regis milit. saciend.

Et Robertus de Somervill pro uno feodo, &c. Præterea, prædictus Johannes et Robertus habuerunt in Chinagium, Horsley, Stanton, Witton, Ritton, et alteram Ritton, Wyndgates cum le Sheles, et Leverch.ld, quæ esceat. suerunt ad auxilium primogenitæ siliæ dom. regis maritandæ, et ad auxilium primogeniti sili sui milit. saciend. tenend. per unum seod. milit. viz. Horsley, Stanton, et Leverchild, pro dimid. seod. Witton, Ritton, Wyndgates, et Sheles, pro alio dimid. seodi.

Ex Autographo perantiquo.

(h) Postrèmo, Johannes de Graystock, carente hæsede mesculo, dedit Radulpho, filio Willielmi, consanguineo suo, omnes terras et tenementa sua, tam in com. Northumbr. quem alibi infra Angliam, habend. et tenend. disto Radulpho et hæredibus suis, secundum formam cartæ suæ indè disto Radulpho traditæ, et infra breve obiit.

Ex Autographo perantiquo.

(i) Vid. Bolbeck.

(k) Vid. Tynemouth.

(1) Cùm autem Radulphus, filius Willielmi, multa probè egisset, pensus magna senestute, citra sestum Omnium Sanctorum obdormivit in domino, et apud Newsham sepultus est Ann. Dom. Mo. CCCo. decimo sexto, et anno regni regis Edvardi, filii regis Edvardi, nono. Willielmus vero filius ejus et Catharina uxor ejus obierunt sine prole. Successit Robertus, filius, qui postmodum infra breve obiit, viz. anno regni regis Edvardi, filii regis Edvardi, decimo. Ex Autographo perantiquo.

Robert Lord Greystock, who died the year following, 10 K. Edward II, 1317, when an inquisition was taken of all his estates in this county (m). He was interred at Butterwick (n). His son and heir,

Ralph

(m) Inquisitio capta coram dom. Roberto de Cary, escaetore dom. regis, die proximè ante festum Pentecostes, anno 10 Edvardi secundi, super sacrum Ricardi de Ogle, Antonii de Errington, Petri de Eland, Johannes de Pleffes, Thomæ de Witten, Willielmi de Ingehow, Johannis Gray, Risardi de Cramlington, Willielmi de Cronton, Februais de Bakworth, Johannis de Matfen, ct Alani de Het fictes. Qui dicunt, super sacrum suum, Quod Dominus Robertus, filius Radulphi, obist seisstrus de jure in dominico suo, ut de seodo, de manerio de Morpath, quod solebat valere tempore pacis in omnibus exitibus, lxxxiv l. vs. Item de manerio de Ulgham, quod folebat valere tempore pacis in omnibus exitibus, xlviii l. xiii s. iv d. Et de villa de Herscotes, quæ solebat valere in tempore pacis in omnibus exitibus xx l. Et de medietate hamletti de Tranwell, quæ folebat valere tempore pacis in omnibus exitibus liv s. ix d. Et de quadam parte villæ de Horsley, quæ solebat valere tempore pacis x l. xvis. vi d. Et de medietate ville de Stannington, quæ folebat valere tempore pacis in omnibus exitibus, ix l. Et de medietate villæ de Binton, quæ folebat valere tempore pacis in omnibus exitibus, cum redditu libero de Kyllingworth, xviii l. xiii s. viii d. Et quod tenuit omnes prædictas terras, et tenementa prædicta, de dom. rege in capite per servic. feod. duorum milit. fed nunc nil reddunt præter x l. quod jacent vastæ. Item dicunt, Quod prædictus Robertus objit seisstus de jure in dominico suo, ut de scodo, de medietate manerii de Stiford et Heddon super Murum, Angerton, Dodington, cum medietate ipsorum hamlettorum eisdem maneriis pertinentibus de baronia de Bolbeck, et tenet dictam medietatem hamlettorum et maneriorum de dom. rege per servicium feod. duor. milit. et solebant valere per annum in omnibus exitibus tempore pacis lxxx l. fed nunc nihil reddunt, quod jacent vastæ. Et dicunt, Quod prædictus Robertus, et El zahetha uxor ejus, conjunctim feoffati de medictat. prædictorum maneriorum et hamlettorum, cum pertinentibus. Item dicunt, quod prædicus Radulphus filius it fius Ro-. berti, est propinquior hæres ipsius Roberti, et est ætatis xix annorum ad festum Assumptionis beatæ Mariæ Virginis proximè futurum. In cujus rei testimonium, &c.

Item, alia inquisitio capta est coram eòdem escaetore ut supra. Qui dicunt super sacrum, quod Catharina et Johanna filiæ et hæredes Ade Barret, tenent manerium de Walker de manerio de Morpath in capite per servicium seodi unius milit. et sectam curiæ de Morpath, et molendinum de Benton ad xiii vas. Et quod prædictum manerium de Walker solet valere per annum tempore pacis l merc. Et quod Elizabetha Conviers tenet manerium de Cliston de ma-

Ralph Lord Greystock, married Alice the daughter of Hugh Lord Audley. He met with an untimely fate. He died by poison at Gateshead, 17 K. Edward II, 1324; by the contrivance of the accomplices of Sir Gilbert de Middleton, whom his lordship had been the principal instrument of seizing in the castle of Mitsord for treafon. He was interred at Newcastle (0); and was succeeded by his son, nerio de Morpath in capite per servicium unius seod. milit. et sectam curiæ, et solebat valere tempore pacis x l. Ita hæredes Domini Hugonis Gubion tenent manerium de Shilvington de manerio de Morpath in capite per servicium medietatis unius seodi militis, et sectam curiæ de Morpath, et solebat valere tempore pacis xx l. Item Edvardus de Duddon tenet manerium de Duddon de manerio de Morpath per servicium tertiæ partis unius seod. milit. et sectam curiæ de Morpath, et valet per ann. tempore pacis xl. Item, Hugo Cocus de Stannyngton tenet terram suam in Etannyngton per servicium tertiæ partis unius seod. milit. et sectam curiæ apud Merpath, et valet per ann. tempore pacis x l. Item Adamus de Benton tenet terram suam in Hyrmyngfelde de dicto manerio de Merpath per servic. xiii d. ob. per ann. Item Wilielmus de Camera tenet terram fuam in Kyllyngworth, per homagium et sectam curiæ de Benton, et reddit per ann. vii d. 1/2. Item Willielmus Prudholme tenet terram suam de Kyllyngworth per redditum per ann. xv s. iii d. et sectam curiæ de Benton. Item Thomas Dryng tenet terram suam in Kyllyngworth per servicium xxx s. vii d. per annum, et sectam curiæ de Benton, et sectam molendino ejusdem villæ ad xiii vas. Item Robertus de ecclesia apud Morpath, tenet terram fuam apud Morpath per fervic. viii s. et sectam curiæ apud Morpath et molendino ad xiii vas. Item Johannes de Rukeby tenet terram suam quæ secit Nicholai de Parco in Morpath per servicium xii s. vi d. per ann. et sectam curiæ de Morpath. Item Rogerus de Horsley tenet terram suam in le Wbytwhome per servicium unius libri Cumini pro omni servicio. Item dicunt quod dictus Robertus filius Radulphi tenuit de jure die quo obiit in dominico suo, ut de feodo, advocationem ecclesiæ de Morpath, quæ valet per ann. in omnibus exitibus tempore pacis x 1. Item dicunt quod idem Robertus tenuit die quo obiit in dominico fuo, ut de feodo, advocationem ecclefiæ de Horsley, et quæ valet per annum tempore pacis in omnibus exitibus cum vicaria ejusdem, xx l. In cujus rei testimonium, &c.

William

- (n) Iste Robertus sepultus est apud Butterwyke.
- (0) Et successit in hæreditatem Radulphus silius ejus et hæres. Qui cum magno exercitu obsidisset Gilbertum Middilton et alios cum ipso in castello de Mitsord propter proditiones per

William Lord Greystock, who was summoned by writ to the parliament at Westminster, 15th July, 26 K. Edward III, 1352. He first married Lucy, the daughter of Lord Lucy; and afterwards married Johanna, the daughter of Henry Fitz Hugh, Lord Ravenstvath. He built the castles of Greystock and Morpeth. He died at Bramspath in the bishoprick of Durham, 32 K. Edward III, 1358, and was interred at Graystock, near his mother, Alice, Lady Newill (p). He was succeeded by his son, a minor, the third

Ralph Lord Greyflock, who was fummoned by writ to the parliament at Westminster, 1 K. Richard II, 1377; and 1st and 7th K. Hen. IV; and to the parliament at Leicester, 2 K. Henry V, 1414. He married Catharine, the daughter of Roger Lord Clissord. He had the direction of the military expedition against the Scots, 4 K. Richard II, when he was taken prisoner at Horsrige, in Glendale, by George Earl of Dunbar. His brother William went as an hostage for him to Dunbar, where he was taken ill of a dangerous fever, then raging in Scotland, of which he died, and was buried there, and afterwards removed and interred before the high altar which the burgesses of Morpeth paid 7 l. 13s. 10 d. (q). By the advice of his mother Johanna, he gave the impropriation and advowson of Long Horsley to the priory of Brinkburn, 8 K. Richard II; in consideration of which, the prior and convent agreed that her Ladyship and her heirs should have the perpetual right of presentation of one canon in their convent. The first canon presented by her was Alan, son of John de Prestwick (r). He was also a benefactor to the priory of New-Minster, 13th of the same reign (s). He died, 6 K. Henry V, 1417. An inquisition was then taken of his honours and estates, when it was found that he held the manour of Grimtherp and Helderskelf of the crown, under the honour of Chester, by the service of carrying the sword before the

(p) Cui successit nobilissimus baro Willielmus filius et hæres ipsius Radulphi; hic primus duxit in uxorem Luceam filiam domini de Lucy quæ divorcio seperata est, et mortua, apud Newsham sepulta est. Deinde consilio Aliciæ dominæ de Nevill, matris ejus, cepit in uxorem Johannam filiam Henrici Fitzbugh, Domini de Raveneswath, de qua suscitavit proles, Radulphum, Willielmum, Robertum, et Aieciam, quæ suit uxor Roberti de Harrington.

Iste Willielmus victoriosus et in omnibus hostitudiis gloriosus erat valde; et cum ædisicasset castellum de Graissok, et turrem de Morpath, et multa alia dignitatis opera, obiit apud Brampspeth, et apud Graissok sepultus est, uniente matre sua antedicta.

Ibid. Vid. Escaet. de anno 33 Ed. III. n. 43.

(q) Successit dicto Willielmo, Radulphus silius ejus, qui ratione minoris ætatis suit in custodia comitis Marchiæ Walliæ, ex concessione Dom. Edvardi tertii regis post conquestum Argliæ, et maritatus est Catharinæ siliæ Dom. Rogeri de Clissord. Deinde, viz. die veniente proxime post sestum nativitatis Sancti Johannis Baptislæ, anno Ricardi secundi quarto, apud Horfridge in Glendale dictus baro, cum Willielmo de Aton, et aliis militibus, et multis validis, infeliciter captus est per Georgium comitem de Dunbar; ob quod Willielmus frater ejusdem baronis missus in hostagio pro eo apud Dunbar, tactus morbo pestilentiali mortuus est, et sepultus sbidem; sed post duos annos completos corpus ejus integra carne et pelle transstum est, et coram summo altari in Nova Monasterio juxta Margeriam Dominam de Uzsham sepultum est.

(s) Vid. New-minster.

the Earl of Chester, for the time being (t). He was succeeded by John Lord Greyflock (u) who married Elizabeth the daughter and coheir of Robert Lord Wemme. He died, 14 K. Henry VI; and was fucceeded by his fon and heir,

Ralph Lord Greystock, who was summoned to parliament, 29th K. Henry VI, and 1 K. Edward IV; also 1 K. Richard III, and 1 K. Henry VII. He married Elizabeth the daughter of William Fitz-Hugh, Lord Ravenswath. He died, 2 K. Henry VII (v). His lord-ship

(1) Per scrutinium factum annotatur, quod Radulphus de Graystock, pater dom. Johannis, die quo obiit tenuit de rege in capite manerium de Thornton, per servicium quartæ partis seod. milit. ac manerium de Nidde de rege ut de honore — per servicium octavæ partis unius seodi militis; manerium de Grimthorpe et Helderskelf, de dom. rege in capite, ut de honore Cestriæ, per servicium portandi gladium coram comite Cestriæ qui pro tempore suerit in presentia sua, viz. prædictum manerium de Grymthorpe per servicium xl. partis unius seodi militis, et prædictum manerium de Helderskelf per servicium l. partis unius seodi militis.

Rot. Mich. Fin. de anno 6 Hen. V.

- (u) Johannes de Greystock certus filius et hæres Radulphi Baronis de Graystock, tenet de rege in capite manerium de Morpath, in com. Northumbr. per servicium medietatis unius Baroniæ, viz. Baroniæ de Merlay; manerium de Stiford, in com. prædicto, per servicium tertiæ partis medietatis unius Baroniæ, viz. Baroniæ de Bulbeck, &c.

  Ibidem.
- (v) In the 17th year of K. Henry VI, Ralph Greystock, son and heir of John de Greystock, Knt. and Chivaler, acknowledged in the court of Exchequer, that the said John, on the day of his death, held of the King in capite, the manour of Greystock by the service of one entire barony, to wit of the Barony of Merlay; the manour of Styford by the service of the third part of the moiety of one barony, to wit of the Barony of Bulbeck; the manour of Wemme (in the county of Salop), with the advowson of the church of Wemme, by homage and fealty, and by the service of the twelsth part of one entire barony; and divers other lands, as the manour of Thornton super Moram (in the county of York), by the south part of a Knight's see; and divers messuages and lands in Thyngden, in Northamptonshire, by the 20th part of a Knight's see:—nec non manerium de Grynthorp, cum suis pertinentiis, as manerium

• fhip had one fon, Robert, who married Elizabeth the daughter of Edmund Gray Duke of Kent, and died before him, I K. Edward V, leaving only one daughter, of her mother's name,

Elizabeth, baroness Greystock and Wemme. She married

Thomas Lord Dacre of Gilland. His Lordship died, 17 K. Henry VIII; and was succeeded by his son,

William Dacre, Baron of Gilfland, Greystock, and Wemme, who was fummoned to parliament, 28, 31 K. Henry VIII, and 1 K. Edward VI, and 1 Q. Mary. He married Elizabeth the daughter of the Earl of Shropshire. He died, 6 Q. Elizabeth; and was succeeded by Thomas Lord Dacre, who married Elizabeth the daughter of Sir James Leiburn, Knt. He died, 9 Q. Elizabeth. An inquisition was taken of his estate in this county the year following (w). He was succeeded by his son,

George Lord Dacre, who dying under age, his honours and estates came to his two sisters and coheirs, Ann, and Elizabeth. Ann married Philip, Earl of Arundel. Elizabeth married Lord de Henderskelf, cum suis pertinentiis, in com. Eboraci, de dom. rege ut de honore de cestriæ, per servicium portandi gladium, coram comitæ cestriæ qui pro tempore suerit, in prasentia sua, &c.

Madox. Bar. Angl. p. 58.

(w) Dominus Dacre fuit seisitus de et in maneria, castro, et villa de Morpeth, Stobhill, Catchburn, Hepscotte, Cliston, Netherton, Ulgham, Stobswood, Angerton, Commerton, et Killingworth, et Sostley, de medietate villæ de Stannington, Benton mag, et Horsley, de et in villa de Benrige, cum certis terris in Todburn, Bydlestone, Blindgappe, et Estree. Etiam suit seisitus de et in Newbyggen-house, juxta villam Novi Castri, Gybbone-house, et medietate villæ de Heddon super murum.

Milliam Howard, third fon of Thomas Duke of Norfolk. His Lordship had a large estate in this county (x). He resided at his castle of Naward, in Gilsland; wherein he had a good library, furnished with some valuable manuscripts of English history and heraldry.
He published an edition of Florence of Worcester. His grandson, Charles, was created Lord Dacre of Gilsland, Viscount Morpeth, and Earl of Carlisle. He was vice-admiral of the coasts of Northumberland, Cumberland, the Bishoprick of Durham, and the town and county of Newcastle upon Tyne. He was Lord Lieutenant of the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland. He was governor of Jamaica, privy counsellor to K. Charles II, and his ambassador extraordinary to the Czar of Muscovy, and the Kings of Sweden and Denmark, in the years 1663, 1664. He died 24th Feb. 1684, in the 56th year of his age; and was succeeded by

Edward Earl of Carlifle; whose fon and heir,

Charles Earl of Carlifle repaired the castle of Naward, and kept the library in good order; in which the manuscripts above-mentioned were remaining in his time. His Lordship had the pictures of all the Kings of England down from the Saxon times in his great hall, which were brought from Kirk-Ofwald castle. He was succeeded by his son, the late

Henry Earl of Carlifle, who was Knight of the most noble order of the garter. His Lordship first married Frances the only daughter of Charles Spencer Earl of Sunderland, by whom he had three fons, and two daughters. He afterwards married Isabella the daughter of William Lord Byron, by whom he had one fon, and four daughters. He died, 2d Sept. 1758, at his house in York, in the 64th year of his age. He was succeeded by his son, by his last Lady, the right honourable Frederic Earl of Carlisle.

(x) Dominus Willielmus Howard, tenet in capite Baroniam de Morpeth, ac maneria de Morpeth, Ulgham, Horsley, Angerton, Heddon super murum, Denton, Killingworth, et Stannington, ac forestam de Horsley, ac diversa tenementa in Morpeth, Netherton, Benridge, Todburn, Combton alias Newton, Hertburn, et Middilton-Morell, Newbiggen, Tinmouth, West Duddon, Stobhill, South-west Steed, Preston, Moreton, Stobbswood, et Knaresdale, et advocationem ecclesse de Morpeth.

Ex Libro feodario Petri Osborne, militis.

His Lordship's borough of Morpeth never sent members to parliament till, 1 Q. Mary, 1553. It is governed by two bailiffs, and feven burgesses, who are all elected annually out of the principal inhabitants paying scot and lot, who elect the members of parliament. These are about two hundred. The bailists are the returning officers. The town-arms are, argent, barry of six azure and gules, over all a castle tripple towered within a bordure, azure, semee de martlets (y).

It hath an excellent weekly market on Wednesdays, and two annual fairs, viz. on Holy Thursday, and St. Mary Magdalen's day.

The market-place is in the center of the town. It has a neat market-cross, on which is the following inscription.

The Hon. Philip Howard and Sir Henry Belofyse, Knt. the only benefactors of this cross, Anno Dom. 1699.

On the west side of the market-place is the town-hall. It is a handsome structure, of white freestone, and hewn work, with a piazza, and a tower at each end, erected in the year 1714, at the expence of the Right Honourable the Earl of Carlifle, whose court is kept in it, also the quarter-fessions for the county.

At a small distance from it, is a neat tower of white free-stone, wherein is a good ring of bells, and a large clock.

Between the town-hall and the bridge, is the county-gaol. It is a modern and decent structure.

At the north-east end of the bridge, is a small, but neat chapel, of modern erection, of white freestone, and hewn work. At the west end of it is a grammar-school, an antient building; which was founded by King Edward VI, and endowed with the lands of two dissolved chanteries in Morpeth, and one at Nether Witton.

The parochial church stands on the south side of the bridge, at a considerable distance from the town; on a hill, called Kirk-hill, in the west park, on the west side of the post-road. One of the chanteries in it just mentioned was sounded in honour of the Blessed Virgin, of which John Anderson was chaptain, 8 K. Henry VII (z). It has three good isses, a gallery at the west end, and another

(2) As appears from the following lease which he and others took in that year of John Lord Greystock, of the wood, called Gattingwood, near the town, containing 284 acres, according to an antient survey.

These indentures made at Morpeth, the xth dai of the month of October, the viith yeare of the reigne of our sovereign lord king Henry the viith wittnesseth, that John Lord of Graislock and Morpath hath divised & letten to farme to John Anderson, chaplain of the chantrie of our Lady in Morpath, John Reed, and Thomas Norton of the same towne, marchants, all the graffing and herbage that my servant, William Lancaster, late held of me within the wood of Cottingwood, to the said John Anderson, John Reed, and Thomas Norton, and to their assignes from the seast of St. Michael the Archangel last past to the end and terme of xx years next following the date hereof; giving yearly to the said Lord, his heirs, and his assignes xxxiiis. iv.d. at another between the pillars of the north isle, a vestry, and one bell. In the chancel is a flat sepulchral stone with this inscription.

In obitum Henrici Graii nuper de Novo monasterio, armig. qui obiit ultimo Die Martii, anno domini 1597; posuit Thomas Grey, filius primogenitus Pietatis ergo.

Underneath is the coat armorial of the Greys, of Chillingham, and on one fide this motto.

De bon Valoir.

Below are some verses in Latin.

two termes, Whitsontide and Martinmas by even portions. Moreover, the said John, chaplain, John Reed, and Thomas Norton, bind them, their executors, and assignes, to make and uphold a sufficient hedge about the said ground of Cotingwood, enduring the said xx years, whereunto the said lord granteth them by his officer of the said wood to assigne and deliver to them sufficient wood for hedging of the same. And to allow them for their labor of the hedging thereof at the sight and discretion of William Wardall, then auditor to the said lord. And according as have been accustomed to the tenants thereof afore time. In witness whereof, as well the said lord, as the said John, chaplain, John Reed, and Thomas Norton, to the parts of these indentures, interchangably, have set their seals, given the dai and yeare above said.

On the fould of the indenture by the labell is indorfed thus.

To the intent, that all the servants and tenants belonging to the said Lord within the said towne of Morpath shall have grasse to their horses within the said wood, and ilk man for his quantitie to paie as doth the said John Anderson, John Reed, and Thomas Norton, every one of them by himself. And for because that they that be of abilitie have or hath promised and granted themselves to finde horses to do service to the said lord.

Sub sigillis dictorum.

Johannis, Johannis, et Thomæ.

Conditus hic jaceo quartus genitore Radulpho Filius ex Graio milite fie jaceo.

Nupta fuit mihi Woddringtonia chara Maria, Militis ac clari nata Johannis ea.

Una dies partus nos, ut Baptifmata una, Junxit fic una lex hymenea toro.

Annos bis septem sociale federe juncti, Ruperunt tetrici vincula nostra dez, Bis binos pueros mihi, tresque Lucina puellas, Præbuit extincti pignora chara mei.

The rectory-house stands on the east side of the post-road, and is little better than a ruin.

The baronial castle is near the church, in the same park. It has been long in ruins. Only an old tower of it is standing, with part of two speculating turrets, on an eminence, commanding a sine view of the town, and of the winding course of the Wansbeck, crossed by a bridge of two arches, and edged with hanging woods.

Half a mile west from Morpeth, on the margin of the Wansbeck, is the abbey of

New-minster, founded by Ralph de Merlay, Baron of Morpeth, and his lady Julian, 3 K. Stephen, 1138, for Cistertian monks, from Fountains, in Normandy, in honour of the Blessed Virgin (a). They endowed it with the Lordship of Ritton, part of the woods of Witton, and all the vale between Morpeth and Hebre, by the brook of Fulbeck to its fall into Cotingburn, and by Cotingburn to its fall into Wansbeck, &c. (b); with several privileges, consirmed by their heirs, and successors, and royal charters. Margery, the Lady of the second Roger de Merlay, Baron of Morpeth, gave to it three sisheries in the river Tyne.

(a) Monast. Angl. Vol. i. p. 800.

William Bertram, Baron of Mitford, gave to it all the fine vale between it and his villa of Mitford. His great grandson, Roger Bertram, sold to them the granges of Eland, Horton, and part of Peterick, which his father and grandsather, both of his own name, had before granted them a lease of.

A clergyman, named Peter, fon of John, vicar of Mitford, gave them the grange of Aldworth, which was confirmed to them by their last mentioned patron.

Everard de Ros, Baron of Wark, gave them the grange of Sturton, and his fon, Robert de Ros, confirmed his donation.

Robert Bertram, Baron of Bothall, gave to them an effate, called, Forum. His grant was confirmed by his heirs, Richard and Robert Bertram.

Sir Gilbert de Humfranvil, Baron of Prudhow, fold to them the moors of Cheviot, and the granges of Felton and Tollard, which his ancestors, Odonel, William, Richard, and his own father and mother, Sir Gilbert and the Lady Matilda, had before granted to hold by lease, and given them Turf-hill pasture.

Sir Walter, Baron of Bolham, fold to them Newton-grange, which his father, Sir Gilbert, and his grandfather, Sir James de Bolham, had given them a leafe of. Sir Walter's daughter and heir, Alice, confirmed their title, as did Sir Walter, Baron of Bolbeck, and his fon of his own name.

(b) Monast. Angl. Vol. i. p. 801.

Hugh, Baron of Bolbeck, and his Lady Theophania, gave to them the villa of Rotheley.

John de Kestern sold to them the demesnes of Kestern and Werehill, of the manour and regalities of the former of which they were before possessed by the donation of Robert de Greystock (c).

Roger, Baron of Warkworth, ancestor of the Clavering-family, gave them a salt-work at Warkworth, and his son and heir, Robert, confirmed it to them.

Henry Coniers, and his wife Eda, gave to them Cauldwell, alias Scarplane-Grange, and an estate in Clifton. The first they exchanged for lands in the latter, with William Coniers.

They held Tritlington of the manour of Wark upon Tweed, by the fervice of Franc-Almaigne (d).

Sir Richard Gubion gave them the annual rent of xxs. out of his mill of Shilvington.

Sir Roger de Merlay, of Stanton, gave them as much out of his mill there.

Sir Robert de Fenwick gave them two parts of his villa of Irdington, in Cumberland, who died, 1372.

- (c) Cart. 18 Ed. I. n. 63. de lib. war. in Horton, Felton, Newton, West and East Ritton, Kestern, Ulgham, Rotheley, Northumbr.
  - (d) Rot. penes comit. de Tankervill.

Alan Whitehead, vicar of Tynemouth, and William Kell, gave them lands in Stannington, with the licence and approbation of the third Ralph Lord Greystock, 13 K. Richard II (e).

John de Plesses gave them the mills of Stannington, and the grounds belonging to the same mills, with their accustomed liberties (f), which had been granted to him by the third Roger de

- (e) Radulphus Baro de Graistok tertius omnibus ad quos præsentes literæ pervenerint, su-Noveritis quod nos dedimus et quantum in nobis est concedimus pro nobis et hæredibus nostris Alano Whitehead, vicario ecclesiæ de Tynemouth, et Willielmo Kell, licentiam et liberam potestatem quod ipsi dare possint concedere et assignare religiosis viris, abbati et conventui de Novo Monosterio omnes illas terras et tenementa cum pertinentibus, que pradictus Alanus et Willielmus habent ex dono et feoffamento Ade Roos, et Rizardi de Ankeland, in Stannyngton, quæ de nobis tenentur; habend. et tenend. omnes terras et tenementa prædict. abbati et conventui et eorum successoribus in seodo in perpetuum. Dedimus insuper dicto abbati et conventui licentiam tenore prædictorum omnes prædictas terras et tenementa cum pertinentibus de dicto Alano et Willielmo recipiend. et ingrediend. et habend. sibi et hæredibus suis, in perpetuum, de nobis et hæredibus nostris, libere, quiete, cum omnibus libertatibus et aisiamentis ad prædictas terras et tenementa spectantibus, faciendo nobis et hæredibus nostris fidelitatem et sectam curiæ ad tres capitales curias de Morpa h, selvendo quo. libet anno ad festum Sancii Jacebi, Apostoli, fexdecem denarios pro warda castri et cornagio ad festum Sancti Guthberti in Juncio, et si es capitum vel Hedepennys, quant. pertinent ad dictam terram, et ad festum Sancti Martini in hieme quolibet anno pro quodam aquæ cursu de Bradmyre habendo unum denarium et obulum fustentando unum pontem ultra eundem aquæ curfum ibidem in perpetuum, pro omni alio fervicio, exactione, vel demand. In Carta Radulph. Baron. de Greyflock, 3tii 13 Ric. II. cujus rei testimonium, &c.
- (f) Omnibus hanc cartam visuris d'audituris Jehannis de Pl seto, salutem. Sciatis me pro salute animæ meæ, et omnium antecessorum, et hæredum meorum, ded se, concessiste, et præsenti carta consirmasse Deo et Beatæ Mariæ, abhati et monachis Nivi Almasterii, in liberam, puram, et perpetuam elemosinam, molendina de Stanningson, cum omnibus pertinentibus suis; tenend. et habend. dictis, abbati et monachis adèo libere et quiete ab omnibus serviciis et rebus quæ ab aliquo tenemento exigi possunt, sicut aliqua elemosina melius et liberius dari potest vel possideri. Et ego Johannes et hæredes mei prædicta molendina cum omnibus pertinentibus suis sicut melius possidendum est prædictis, abbati et monachis contra omnes homines et seminas warrantizabimus, adquietabimus, et desendemus in perpetuum. His testibus, &c.

Merlay (g), and confirmed to him by a royal charter, 41 K. Henry III (b).

Fobn.

(g) Omnibus Christi fidelibus præsentem cartam visuris vel audituris, Rogerus de Merlay, tertius, salutem in domino. Sciatis me dedisse, concessisse, et hac mea præsenti carta confirmasse, Johanni de Plesse, et hæredibus suis, vel suis assignatis, molendina de Stannyngton et de Plesset, cum stagnis et aquis pertinentibus ad dicta molendina, et cum omnibus libertatibus et aissamentis ad dicta molendina pertinentibus tam in piscariis, quam in omnimodis ali s commodis, et totam sectam multuræ, scilicet ad tertium decimum vas de omnibus hominibus qui sectam plenius aliquo tempore solebant sacere dictis molendinis, exceptis de duabus bovatis terræ quas prior de Hextoldesham tenet in villa de Stannyngton.

Concessi etiam et dedi, et præsenti carta confirmavi, pro me et hæredibus meis, dicto Johanni et hæredibus suis, vel suis assignatis, totam terram quæ vocatur Mill-syde usque ad aquam de B'ye, et totam aquam de Blye a ponte de Stannyngton usque ad caput occident. stagni dicti molendini et illam placeam quæ est inter veterem cursum aquæ de Blye et ductum dicti molendini de Stannyngton, quæ quidem placea vocatur Milnhalgh; reddend. inde annuatim mihi et hæredibus meis dictus Johannes et hæredes sui, vel sui assignati, pro omnibus superdictis tantum unam papyram Carearum deauratarum ad sestum Sancti Cuthberti in Septembri pro omni servicio, consuetudine, exactione, et demandis.

Concessi insuper et dedi et præsenti carta mea consirmavi dicto Johanni et hæredibus suis, vel suis assignatis, totam scissionem aquæ quæ vadet per medium Yerhalgh usque ad terram meam solidam ex parte aquilone illius scissionis, et totam illam particulam de Yerhalgh quæ est ex parte australi dictæ scissionis, reddendo inde annuatim mihi et hæredibus meis unam libram Cumini ad natale domini, pro omni alio servicio, consuetudine, exactione, et demandis.

Concessi etiam et dedi, et præsenti carta consirmavi dicto Johanni, et hæredibus suis, vel suis assignatis, totam illam landam quæ vocatur Lynhalgh, quæ jacet ex parte aquilone aquæ de Blye, sicut est inclusa sossato, per ipsum sossatum et aquam de Blye quæ se jungit eidem landæ, quantum ipsa landa continet in longitudine; reddendo inde annuatim mihi, et hæredibus meis tantum unam libram Cumini ad sessum Sancti Cuthberti in Septembri, pro omni alio servicio, consuetudine, exactione, et demandis.

Et idem Johannes et hæredes sui, vel sui assignati, sacient omnimodum commodum suum de dichis molendinis, et stagnis, et de Mill-syde, et de aqua de Blye, et de Mill-halgh, et de scissione aquæ per medium Yerhalgh, et de illa particula de Yerhalgh, quæ est ex parte australi

dictæ

John de Mitford gave them lands in Echwick, 3 K. Henry VI.

They had a common-right at Stobbiford, and at Ulgham, which was taken from them by some of the heirs of their founder, dictæ scissionis de Lynhalgh, cum fossato, et de aqua de Blye quæ se jungit eidem landæ, et de omnibus superdictis, sicut plenius potioratum est quibuscunque et quotiescunque, et sicut melius sibi viderint expedire, sine contentione mei vel hæredum meorum, vel hominum meorum, vel aliorum, quicunque sucrint.

Ralph

Et ego Rogerus de Merlay, et hæredes mei, dicta molendina, cam omnibus pertinentibus fuis, et Mill-side, et Miln-balgh, et aquam de Blye, et scissionem aquæ in Yuhalgh, et illam particulam de Yerhalgh quæ est ex parte australi dictæ scissionis, et landam quæ vocatur Lyn-balgh, cum sossia set cum aqua de Blye se jungente cidem landæ, cum omnibus pertinentibus suis, et omnia sicut plenius prædicta sunt, cum omnimodis commodis, quæ in eis, et de eis, sieri poterint, dicto Johanni, et hæredibus suis, vel suis assignatis, warrantizabimus, adquietabimus, et desendemus, contra omnes homines per prædicta servicia tenend, in perpetuum. His testious, somino Ada abbate de Novo Monasterio, Hugone de Bolbeck, Wildelmo Heyron, tunc vice comite Northumbrice, Rogero Bertram de Bothall, Eustachio De la vale, Henrico fratre suo, Hugone de Norwyk, Johanne silio Simonis, Waltero Heyron, Roberto de Camboro, Johanne de Esselington, Johanne de Haulton, Rogero de Toggessa, Rogero Manduit, Thoma de Ogle, Recardo de Saltwyk, Rogero de Horsley, Bertholomeo de Windgates, Rolerto de Camera, Ada de Plesseto, Radulpho Gubion, Waltero de Witton, et aliis.

Carta Rogeri Merlay, tertii.

(h) Henricus, Dei gratia, rex Angliæ, dominus Hiberniæ, dux Normannix, Aquitain. et comes Audeg. Archiepiscopis, episcopis, abbatibus, prioribus, comitibus, baronibus, justiciariis, vice-propositis, ministris, et omnibus ballaivis, et sidelibus suis, salutem. Inspeximus cartam quam Rogerus de Merlay tertius secit dilecto et sideli Johanni de Plesseto de molendinis de Stannington et Plesseto, cum stagnis, aqua, et omnibus libertatibus, et aissamentis, ad ea pertinentibus, et de terris quæ vocantur Mill-syde et Milnhalgh et aqua de Blye, et scissione aquæ in Yerhalgh, et illa particula de Yerhalgh, quæ est ex parte australi dictæ scissionis, et de landa quæ vocatur Linhalgh, cum sossam de Blye jungente eidem landæ.

Nos autem donationem et concessionem prædictam ratam habentes, et gratam eam prædicto Johanni, hæredibus, vel assignatis suis, quantum ad nos pertinet, concedimus, et confirmamus in perpetuum, pro nobis, et hæredibus nostris, sicut præscripta carta prædicti Rogeri, quam dictus Johannes inde habet, rationabiliter testatur. His testibus, Petro de Sabaudia, Ralph Merlay, but were restored to them by John Lord Greystock, who also confirmed all their other common-rights by charter, 26 K. Edward I, 1297 (i).

Sir Roger de Somervill gave them the impropriation and advowfon of Stannington, as before mentioned (k).

bandia, Johanne Maunsell, Henrico de Bathon. Philippo Lovell, Archibaldo de Sancto Romane, Magistro Johanne Maunsell, Waltero de Merton, Walkelino de Ardery, Nicholao de Sancto Maure, et aliis. Datum per manum nostrum apud Wostmon. vicesimo quarto die Junii anno regni nostri quadragesimo primo.

Carta Regia, de anno 41 Hen. III.

(i) Omnibus hoc scriptum visuris vel audituris Johannes de Graystok, salutem. Quia Dominus Ranulphus de Merlay, antecchor meus, et fundator abbatiæ Novi Monafterii, dedit, concessit, et carta sua confirmavit, abbati et conventui dictæ domûs communam pasturæ totius tence suz; ac postea quidam hæredum prædicti Domini Ranulphi de Merlay prædictos religiofos de communa pafturæ fuæ de Stobbiford et alibi apud Ulgham per potentiam voluntarie ejeccrunt. Ego Johannes nolens anima mea, vel anima antecessorium, seu hæredum meorum, fint in pœna vel pericula pœnæ, perturbatione seu extortione prædictæ communæ pasturæ a præsatis religiosis injustè ablatæ, ad petitionem et instantiam dictorum religiosorum. et pro salute animæ meæ et omnium antecessorum et hæredum meorum, reddidi et concessi eisdem abbati et conventui in liberam, puram, et perpetuam elemosinam prædictam communam pasturæ ad omnia animalia sua, exceptis Capris, in Stobbiford, et alibi, tam in bosco, quam in plano, apud Ulgham ubi ex parte boreali de Lyne, exceptis bladis et pratis, et excepto le heye, fine impedimento mei, vel hæredum meorum, in perpetuum. Et si contingat quod animalia dictorum abbatis et conventus ex parte australi aquæ de Lyne antedictæ extra blada et prata, ut prædictum est, aliquo modo inveniantur infra terras de Ulgham, prædicta animalia absque inparcamento seu aliqua alia occasione rechaceabuntur.-Volo etiam et concedo, pro me et hæredibus meis, quod Porci abbatis et conventus fint quieti de pannagio in bosco meo de Ulgham.—Hanc vero redditionem et concessionem eisdem, abbati et conventui præsenti scripto meo confirmavi duraturam in perpetuum. In cujus rei testimonium, &c. Datum apud Ulgham M° CC° nonagesimo septimo.

Carta Johann. de Greystock, anno 26 Ed. I.

(k) Pat. 4 K. Ed. III. p. 2. Cart. 4 Ed. n. 85. Clauf. 4 Ed. III. m. 37. pro advo-cat. ecclef. de Stannington. Vid. Stannington.

They had also the impropriation and advowson of Kirk-Whel-pington (1).

Roger de Thornton gave them as much lead as covered the nave of the abbey-church.

The third Ralph Lord Greyftock gave them 20 l. to adorn it.

His fon, John Lord Greystock, gave them, 60 l. for the fame purpose.

Sir Ralph Nevill, at different times, gave them 100 marks.

They had some tenements in Thornton, Morpeth, and New-castle (m).

The abbot was fummoned to the parliament held at Carlifle, 21st Jan. 35 K. Edward I, 1307 (n).

Their revenues at the diffolution were valued at 100 l. 1 s. 1 d. Dugd. 140 l. 10 s. 4d. Speed. There were then about fifteen religious in the abbey. A confiderable part of the lands belonging to it were in the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (0). The fite of it was granted,

- (1) Pat. 8 Ed. III. p. 2. m. 18. pro eccles. de Whelpington.
- (m) Pat. 38 K. Ed. III. p. 2. m. 21. pro tenem. in Thornton, Morpeth, Stannington.

Pat. 16 Ric. II. p. 1. m. 1. pro tenem. in Nov. Castro.

Bourne's Hift. of Newcafile, p. 142.

- (n) Parliam. Hist. of Engl. vol. i. p. 135.
- (0) Dom. Regina Elizabetha fult seisita de et in manerio de New Minster, nuper monast. Whitehouse, East Ritton, Colepark, Highbyrkhead, Cote-yard, Nunneykirk, de medietat. de Heley et Greenlighton, de manerio de Felton-more, Carricotes, Toan, Kelley-quarter, Highley, granted, 7 K. James I, to Robert Brandling (p). It now belongs to William Ord, of Fenham, Eq. Its very foundations are erased and gone, and not a stone left to speak its antiquity, only a fragment or two remaining of the portal or gate-way leading to it. Cossins, both of lead and stone, have been turned up by some labourers in digging for limestone.

A mile west from New-Minster, on the shady banks of the same river, is Mitford (q), which at the Conquest by K. William I, was the villa and Lordship of Sir John Mitford, Knt. His only daughter and heir, Sibil, was given in marriage by that king to Sir Richard Bertram, Knt. (r), a Norman, by whom she had two sons, William and Roger. Her eldest son,

Sir William Bertram, Knt. inherited her manour of Mitford, with its appurtenances, which was erected into a barony by K. Henry I. He married Alice the daughter of Sir William Merlay, of Morpeth, Knt. by whom he had two fons, Roger and Robert, and was the

(p) Tanner's Notitia Monast. fol. p. 392.

(q) Mytford.

((r) Bertram.

Mydford.

Bartram.

Mitford.

Barthram.

founder of Brinkburn-priory (s). He was fucceeded in his barony by his eldest fon,

Sir Roger Bertram, who by paying fifty marks to the crown, 3 K. Henry II, acquired a weekly market at his villa of Mitford. He was fucceeded by his fon and heir,

Sir William Bertram, who died about the 8 K. John; and was fucceeded by his fon,

Sir Roger Bertram, to whom K. Henry III. granted, on the payment of ten marks, that his annual fair at Mitford should last eight days instead of four (t). He died, 26 K. Henry III. His son, the third

Roger Bertram, Baron of Mitford, being in the confederacy of the Barons against that King, his honour and castle of Mitford, and all his lands in this county, were seized for the king's use; of which an inquisition was taken in the same reign (u), and 1 K. Edward I (x). The castle, and part of the castle-demesses, and two

(s) Ex Autographo perantiquo.

(t) Rogerus de Bertram tenet de Dom. Rege in capite Baroniam suam de Mitsford per servic. v feod. milit. Et omnes antecessores sui per eund. servic. post conquestum Angliæ tenuerunt; ac nihil est alienatum, aut datum, unde Dom. Rex minus habeat de servicio suo.

Testa de Nevill.

- (u) Madox's Hist. of the Excheq. p. 286.
- (x) Rogerus Bertram tenet in capite de Dom. Rege villam de Mitford, cum suis membris, viz. Newton-Underwood, Throple, Benridge, Meldon, Edington, Pigdon, Aldworth, Espley, Grangium de Highley et Highley, Eland cum suis membris, viz. Merdessen, Kirkley, Vol. II.

  S f

  Calver-

two parts of the forest of Felton, were given by the queen dowager, mother of K. Edward I, to Eleanor Stanour, the wife of Robert de Stoteville, who died 34 K. Edward I; and was fucceeded by his fon and heir, at the age of 24, as was found by an inquisition then taken (v).

In the next reign, the entire barony of Mitford was in the poffession of

Adomar de Valence (w), Earl of Pembroke, who apprehended Sir William Wallase, of Cragy, the famous Patriot of Scotland, in February, 1305, Calverdon-Valens, High Callerton, Darre's Hall, Ovington, Brenkley, Prestwick, Barwick-Hill, Caldcote, North Milburn, South Milburn, Essehet, Bokensield, Horton-Grange, Felton cum membris, viz. Thriston, la Hazaunt, Swarland, Oversgares, parvam Felton, Acton, Glantley, Framlington, et parvam Framlington, per vi feod. et tres partes unius feodi, veteris feossamenti.

Escaet. de anno 1 K. Ed. I.

- (v) Robertus de Stoteville in com. Northumbr. die quo obiit apud Mitford, die Sabbati in vigilia Pentecostes, anno regni Edvardi tricessimo quarto, tenuit castrum de Mitford, et quinqueginta acras terræ arabilis in campo ejusdem, et duas partes forestæ de Felton, ratione Eleanoræ de Stanour, quæ suit uxor ejusdem, quæ quidem Eleanora dictum castrum, cum terra et soresta ejusdem, habet de dono Dominæ Eleanoræ quondam Reginæ Angliæ, matris regis Angliæ qui nunc est, tenend. sibi et hæredibus suis in capite, per servicium faciendi sectam ad com. Northumbr. Et idem castrum, cum terris arabilibus, et cum agestimentis past. duarum partium sorestæ prædictæ, valent per annum in omnibus exitibus 351. Filius prædicti Roberti et Eleanoræ est propinquior hæres prædictæ Eleanoræ de terris et tenementis prædictis, et est ætat. anno 24.
  - (w) Adomar.
    Odomare.
    Amer.

1305, by the treachery of Sir William's countrymen, Sir John Monteith, and others, his intimate friends (x).

Of

Adomarus de Valentia, nuper comes Pembrechiæ, tenuit die quo obiit in dominico suo, ut de seodo, manerium de Mitsurd in com. Northumbr. de Dom. Rege in capite, per servicium unius baroniæ, et per servicium reddendi ad cornagium castri regis de Novo Castro super Tyrava per annum xxxis. iv d ad duos sestos Sancti Cuthberti per equales portiones.

Est apud Mitford situs cujusdam castri, et valet per annum modo nihil, quod omnino est destructa et combusta.

Solebant esse ibidem diversi liberi tenentes, qui solebant tenere xxxvi acr. terræ, et reddere pro qualibet acr. per ann. iv d. ob. ad terminos sancti Martini et Pentecostis, per equales portiones; et modo nihil reddunt, quia prædictæ terræ omnino jacent vastæ et incultæ.

Item, sunt ibidem alii liberi tenentes, qui modo reddunt ii s. i d. ad terminos prædictos, et duas libras piperis, duas capones, et octo ferra equina.

Et solebant esse ibidem diversi burgi, qui tenuerunt diversa burgagia, et reddere per annum iv l. xs. et modo non reddunt in toto nisi xxxis, per annum, ad terminos prædictos.

Item, placita et perquista curiæ manerii prædicti et pertinen. solebant valere per annum tempore pacis vis, viiis. et modo nihil, propter inopiam tenentium, et destructionem Scatorum.

Inquisit. Turri Londin. capta apud Novum Castrum super Tynam, 13 Sept. 10 Ed. II.

Adomarus de Valentia, nuper Comes Pembrochiæ, suit seisstus in dominico suo, ut de seo lo, die quo obiit, de seodis et advocationibus subscriptis in com. Northumbr. viz. de serviciis Roberti de Estington, Aliciæ de Presson, Adami de Doxford, et hæsedum cujussibit qui tenuerunt villam de Framlington de præsato Adomaro, per servicium vi s. viii d. per annum, ad wardam castri de Mitsord; et dicta villa solebat valere tempore pacis xl marc. et modo nihil, pro destructione Scotorum.

Item, de servicis. . . . de Swethope, qui tenet villam de Betchsield de præsato Adomaro per servicium Prioris de Hextoldesham, qui tenet villam de North Milburn de præsato Adomaro per servicium vid. per ann. ad wardam dicti castri; et idem Prior tenet in perpetuam elemosimam.

Of this Adomar Valence, Earl of Pembroke, it is recorded, that from the time he fate in judgment, with other lords, on Thomas Earl of Lancaster, there was not one of his successors Earls of Pembroke, to the time of John de Hastings, Earl of Pembroke, 13 K. Richard II, 1390, who ever saw his father, nor yet any of their fathers who could rejoice at the sight of any of their sons, being taken away by death before the happy hour arrived (y).

The Lady Mary de Valence, the third wife of Adomar Earl of Pembroke, Baron of Mitford, was on the fame day, maid, wife, and widow; her husband, Adomar, being unfortunately killed on Item, obiit seisitus in dominico suo, ut de seodo, de advocatione hospitalis Sancti Leonardi juxta Mitsord, quæ valet annuatim tempore pacis lxv s. viii d. et modo nil valet per annum propter destructionem Scotorum.

Item, de advocatione capellæ Sancti Cuthberti apud le Cause, quæ valet per ann. tempore pacis lx s. et modo nihil propter destructionem Scotorum.

Escaet. de anno 17 Ed. II. n. 75. inter seod. milit. Turri Lond.

Adomarus de Valentia, nuper Comes Pembrochiæ defunct. tenuit in dominico suo, ut de seodo, die quo obiit, manerium de Mitsord, manerium de Felton, manerium de Pont Eland, manerium de Claverdon, manerium de Merdessen, cum pertinen. de Dom. Rege in capite.

Et dicunt juratores, quod manerium de Felton assignatum Mariæ, quæ suit uxor ejusdem Adonari, in dote.

Et quod quædam pars manerii de Pont Eland assignata est in dote Mariæ, quæ suit uxor prædicti Adomari desuncti.

Et dicunt, quod Johannes de Hastings, ætat. anno 30; Johanna uxor comitis de Atholl, ætat. anno 26; et Elizabetha Comin, soror ejusdem Johanna, ætat. anno 16, sunt consanguir. et propinquiores hæredes prædicti Adomari.

Inquisit. Turri Lond. capta apud Novum Castrum super Tynam coram Johanne de Halton, escaet. Dom. Regis ultra Trentam, die Martis xx. anno regni regis Ed. III. 500.

(x) Hol. Chron. vol. i. p. 214.

(y) ---- vol. i. p. 467.

their wedding-day, in a turnament. She was in her own right Barone's of Veisser and Montenact, daughter of Guy Chastillon, Earl of St. Paul, in France, and his wife Mary, the daughter of John the fecond Duke of Britany and Earl of Richmond, by his wife Beatrix, the daughter of K. Henry III. She was so affected with the loss of her husband, who made her joint executrix with others, that she refigned herself entirely to a religious and contemplative life, and bestowed most of her fortune on acts of piety and charity, raising her faithful friends above want and indigence, and erecting noble structures in honour of religion and learning, with liberal endowments; Denney-priory, in Cambridgeshire, for nuns, of the order of St. Clare, being of her foundation, endowed with the manour of Stroud, in Kent, and other lands; also Pembroke-Hall, in Cambridge, mostly finished about the year 1347, and endowed with lands for a warden and fellows, fome of whom the lived to fee preferred to the highest dignities in England in the course of forty years or upwards. She died 15th March, 51 K. Edward III, and was interred in her own priory of Denney, under a marble monument, between the two choirs of the nuns and feculars. She furvived her hufband 61 years; part of whose barony of Mitford was assigned to her for her life (z). His Lordship's heirs were John de Hastings, Johanna, the wife of David de Strabolgy, Earl of Atholl, and her fifter Elizaheth Cumin.

The Earl and Countess of Atholl had this barony, except that part of it which was held by Mary the countess downger of Pembroke, and St. Paul (a). The Earl died, 1 K. Edward III, and was fucceeded by his son and heir,

David

(z) Vid. Felton.

(a) David de Strabolgy, nuper Comes Atholl, tenuit die quo obiit ad terminum vitæ suæ per legem Angliæ de hæreditate Johannæ quondam uxoris ejus desunctæ, manerium de Mit-

David de Strabolgy, Earl of Atholl, at the age of eighteen; who granted to John de Mitford the manour and lands of Molliston, near Mitford, 43 K. Edward III; in which his Lordship died, and left two daughters, both in their minority, viz. Elizabeth, aged seven years, and Johanna, aged six years; afterwards married to Sir Thomas and Sir Ralph Percy, younger sons of the right honourable Henry Lord Percy (b). The younger sister having no heirs by Sir Ralph, the ford, cum pertinen. in com. Northumbr. de Dom. Rege in capite per servicium unius baroniæ, et per servicium reddendi ad cornagium castri regis de Novo Castro super Tynam xxxis. iv d. per ann. ad duo sesta Sancti Cuthberti, per equales portiones.

Est apud Mitford situs cujusdam castri, et nihil valet per annum, quod omnino est destructum et combustum per Scotos.

Item, sunt ibidem liberi tenentes, qui modo reddunt per ann. iii s. i d. ad terminos prædictos, et 2 libr. piperis, pretii iii s. et 2 capones pretii iv d. et viii ferra equina, pretii iv d.

Item dictus David tenuit dei quo obiit per legem Angliæ de hæreditate prædictæ Johannæ, ut prædictum est, terras et tenementa in Molleston, Eland parva, Calverdon, et Merssen, quæ sunt de pertinen. prædicti munerii, de Dom. Rege in capite, per servic. prædictum.

Et dicunt juratores, quod David est filius et hæres propinquior prædicti David de Strabilgy, nuper com. de Athill, et prædictæ Jihannæ, et suit ætat. anno xviii, ad sessum Purificationis beatæ Mariæ Virginis, ultimum præteritum.

Inquisit. capto apud Novum Costrum super Tynam coram Simone de Grimesby, escaet. Dom Regis ultra Trentam, die Martis xx, post Diem Dominicum, in Rumis Palmarum, anno regni regis Edvardi, filii Edvardi regis de Carnarvan, primo.

(b) David de Strabolgy, Comes de Atholl, tenuit de Dom. Rege in capite, die quo obiit, manerium et castrum de Mitford, duas partes manerii de Pont Eland, parva Eland, Mersfen, Melleston.

Et dicunt juratores, quod prædictus comes apud Newton-Hall, die Martis xx, ante sestum l'assima regni Dom. Edvardi Regis nunc xliii, seossavit Johannem de Mitsord de commbis terris et tenementis suis infra villam de Mollesson, tenendis dicto Johanne et hæredibus masculinis de corpore suo legitime procreatis de prædicto comite et heredibus suis, per servic. A dicto comiti et hæredibus suis per singulos annos solvend. ad sestum Pentecosses, the entire Barony of Mitford, and the Atholl-estate, came to her fister's fon by Sir Thomas, viz.

Sir Henry Percy, Lord of Atholl, who died, 11th K. Henry VI; and left two daughters and coheirs, viz. Elizabeth, aged 20 years, and Margaret, aged 17 years (c). The eldeft fifter, Elizabeth, first mar-

pro omnibus ferviciis et demandis quibuscunque. Et si contingat prædictum Johannem de Mitford obire sine hæredibus masculinis de corpore suo legitime procreatis, tune omnia prædicta tenementa et terræ infra villam de Molleston antedictam, integre dicto comiti et hæredibus suis remaneant, et remittentur.

In this lastified, capta apud Morfe's xx die Jan. 43 Ed. III. coram Thoma de Martin, escaet, dom. regis in com. Northumbr. Virtute brevis dicti regis.

Die nt juratores, Elizabetham, uxorem Thomæ de Percy, et Johannem uxorem Radulphi de Percy, certas filias David de Strabolgy, nuper comitis de Athill, filii David. et Johannæ uxoris ejus; confanguineæ et unius hæred. prædicti Adomari de Valentia, comitis Pembrochiæ. Et dicunt quod Elizabetha est ætat. ann. 17, et amplius; et dicta Johanna est ætat. ann. 14, et amplius.

Inquisit. capta apud Novum Costrum super Tynam, 31 die Maii, 51 Ed. III. coram. Johanne Bygott, escaet. dom. regis com. Northumbr. Virtute brevis dom. reg. prædicti.

Ex bundello escaetr. Turri Lond. n. 20.

(c) Henricus Percy de Atholl, milés, fuit seisitus in dominico suo, ut de seodo talliato, sibi et hæredibus suis de corpore suo exeuntibus, de castro et manerio de Mitsord, cum warda castri de Framlington, East Aldworth, North Milburn, et villis de Pont-Eland, parva Eland, Calverdon-Darreyne, Merdessen, et vi d. redditus in Molleston.

Et dicunt juratores, quod dictum castrum et manerium de Mitsord, nil valent per annum, ultra reprisas, quia ruinosa et vasta; et quod tenentur cum omnibus membris et pertinentibus de dom. rege in capite per servicium reddendi dom. regi per ann. pro cornagio xxxis. iv d. ad duo sesta Sancti Cuthberti, et pro servicium duorum seod. milit. integrè.

Et dicunt, quod Elizabetha, uxor Thomæ Burgh, una filiarum prædicti Henrici, et Margareta altera filiarum ejuschem Henrici, sunt propinquiores hæredes ipsius Henrici. Et dicunt, married Thomas Brough, Esq; by whom she had one son, Thomas. She afterwards married Sir William Lucy, Knt. She died 28th Sept. 34 K. Henry VI; and was succeeded in her mediety of the Barony of Mitsord by her son and heir Thomas Brough, Esq; at the age of 24 (d). The younger sister, Margaret, sirst married Sir Henry quod Elizabetha est ætat. ann. xx, et amplius; et quod dicta Margareta est ætat. ann. xvii, et amplius.

Inquisit. capta apud Novum Castrum super Tynam 10 die Octobris, 11 Hen. VI. coram Roberto de Whelpington, Escaet. dom regis in com. Northumbr.

Ex bundello Escaetr. Turri Lond. n. 376

(d) Elizabetha quæ fuit uxor Williemi Lucy, militis, obiit seisita in dominico suo, ut de seodo talliato, sibi et hæredibus suis de corpore suo exeuntibus, de medietate castri et manerii de Mitsord, cum pertinentibus, ex dom. Johanne Lincoln, et Walter Topelisse, sacta Elizabetha, nuper uxori Thomae Percy, junioris, et hæredibus de corpore ipsius Elizabethae exeuntibus; cujus quidem Elizabethae dicta Elizabetha Lucy suit consanguinea et una hæres de corpore ipsius Elizabethae Percy per prædictam Thomam Percy, legitime procreata, viz. una siliarum et hæredum dom. Henrici, silii et hæredis dictae Elizabethae Percy, hæredis prædicti Thomae legitime procreatæ.

Et dieunt juratores, quod dictum castrum integrum nihil valet ultra reprisas, quia ruinosum est et vastatum.

Et dicunt quod est in eodem manerio integro unum clausum, cum gardino, circa dictum castrum, quod valet per annum in herbagio, ultra reprisas, vi s. iv d.

Et dicunt quod sunt ibidem in eodem manerio integro xxvs. iv d. de reddit. burgag. Jobannis Mitford, solvend, ad sesta Pentecostis et Sancti Martini in hyeme æquis portionibus.

Et est ibidem in eodem manerio integro de libera serma Johannis Mitford, cum redditû suo vi d. per annum pro villa de Malleston, cum novo incremento xiii s. iv d. ob. solvend. ad cosdem terminos.

Item dicunt, quod prædicta Elizabetha obiit seissta de advocatione hospitalis Sancti Leonardi juxta Mitserd, quod valet per annum xx s. et de advocatione capellæ Sancti Cuthberti super Cause, quæ valet per annum xl s.

Henry Grey, Knt. Lord Grey, by whom she had one son, Henry. She afterwards married Sir Richard Veer, Knt. She died, 24 September, 4 Edward IV; and was succeeded in her mediety of the Barony of Mitsord by her son and heir, Sir Henry Grey, Knt. Lord Grey, at the age of 28 years (e).

Et dicunt quod dicta Elizabetha obiit xxviii die Septembris, ultimo præterito. Item dicunt, quod Thomas Burgh, arm. est filius et hæres propinquior dictæ Elizabethæ per Thomam Burgh, Arm. nuper virum suum, de corpore suo ligitime procreatus, et est ætat. anno xxiv, et amplius.

Inquisit. capta apud castrum dom. reg. apud Novum Castrum super Tynam, 29 die Octobris, anno 34 Hen. VI. coram Reberto de Belsey, escaet. dom. regis in com. Northumbr. Virtute brevis prædicti regis.

Ex bundello escaet. Turri Lond.

(e) Margareta, quæ fuit uxor Ricardi Veer, militis, et quondam uxor Henrici Grey, militis, obiit seisita in dominico suo, ut de seodo talliato, viz. sibi et hæredibus suis de corpore exeunt. de medietate castri et manerii de Mitsord, cum pertinentibus, ex dom. Johanne Lincoln, clerico, et Walter Topelisse, inde sacta Elizabethæ nuper uxori Thomæ Percy, junioris, hæredibus de corpore ipsus Elizabethæ exeuntibus, cujus quidem Elizabethæ Percy dicta Mirgareta suit consanguinea et una hæredum de corpore ipsus Elizabethæ Percy per prædictam Thomam Percy legitime procreata.

Et dicunt juratores, quod dictum castrum integrum nihil valet per annum, ultra reprisas, quia ruinosum et vastatum est. Et dicunt quod est in codem manerio integro unum clausum, cum gardino, circa dictum castrum, quod valet per annum in herbagio, ultra reprisas, iii s. iv d.

Item dicunt quod prædicta Margareta obiit seissta de advocatione hospitalis Sancti Leonardi de Mitford, quæ valet per annum xx s. et de advocatione capellæ Sancti Cuthberti super le Cause, quæ valet per annum xl s.

Item dicunt quod dicta Margareta obiit xxiv die Septembris, ultimi præteriti. Et dicunt quod Henricus Grey, miles, Dominus Grey, est silius et hæres propinquior prædictæ Margaretæ per Henricum Grey, militem, Dominum Grey, quondam virum prædictæ Margaretæ, de corpore suo legitime procreatus; et est ætat. anno xxviii, et amplius.

Inquisit. capta apud Morpeth, 5 die Julii, 5 Ed. IV. coram Simone de Welden, Escaet. dom. regis com. Northumbriæ. Ex bundello escaetr. Turri Lond. n. 30.

The castle and manour of Mitford were in the possession of Lord Brough, in the reign of K. Henry VIII. (f); and of William Lord Brough, 4 Q. Mary, who in that year granted to Cuthbert Mitford, and to his fon Robert, for ever, all his lands at Mitford, referving only to himself the site of the castle, and the royalties (g); which castle and royalties were in the crown in the reign of K. James I, who granted them to

James Murray, Earl of Annan (b); and being in the crown again in the reign of K. Charles II, they were granted by his majesty to

Robert Mitford, Esq; (i). He married Jane, the daughter of John Mitford of Seghill, Esq; by whom he had three sons, Cuthbert, John, and William; also sour daughters, viz. Barbara married to George Fenwick, of Long Shawes; Eleanor, to Daniel Collingwood, of Brampton; Margaret, to Nicholas Heron, of Meldon; Ifabell, to Richard Rowmotherley, — Esqrs. His son, William, was fellow of Clare-hall, in Cambridge, and afterwards rector of Kirby-over-carr, in Yorkshire. His second son, John, lived at Mitford. He was succeeded by his eldest son and heir, Cuthbert Mitford, Efq; who married Mary the daughter of Christopher Wharton, of Offerton, in the county of Durham, Efq; by whom he had one fon, Robert. They both died in one day at Mitford. Their fon and heir,

Robert Mitford, Esq; married Philadelphia one of the daughters of Humphrey Wharton, of Gillingwood, in Yorkshire, Esq; by whom

(f) Lel. Itin.

(g) Carta Dom. Gulielmi Brough.

(b) Carta Jac. I.

(i) Carta Car. II.

he had feven fons and fix daughters; viz. Humphrey, Cuthbert, John, Edward, Robert, William, Michael,—Barbara, Mary, Philadelphia, Ann, Eleanor, Elizabeth. He was fucceeded by his eldest fon and heir, Humphrey Mitford, Esq; who married Francis the daughter of Sir George Vane, of Long Newton, in the Bishoprick of Durham; by whom he had

Robert Mitford, Esq; who was high sheriff of Northumberland, 9 K. William III, 1697; and was succeeded by his son and heir, Robert Mitford, Esq; the present possessor of the castle and manour of Mitford, who was high sheriff of Northumberland, 9 K. George I, 1723 (k).

The castle stands in the park, on a mount, the work and labour scemingly of art. It was burnt, together with the village, by King John's choice spirits, the bucks, 7 January, 1216; so called from Walter Buck, and Falques de Brent, two commanders of his German troops. The last was a profligate facrilegious fellow, and afterwards banished the kingdom. The other, Walter Buck, had for his better manners, better fortune. He had lands given him by that King in Yorkshire, and Northamptonshire, where his posterity slourished down to John Buck, who was attainted in the reign of King Henry VII. Matthew Buck, Esq; was settled at Winterburn, in Gloucestershire, whose son, James Buck, inheriting the military spirit of his family, was in the service of King Charles I. in Ireland, and was honoured with a coat of arms, of which I have the original manuscript-grant, illuminated with painting.

(k) Vid. Molleston, alias Moseden.

It was fortified by Sir Gilbert de Middleton, and Walter Selby, 10 K. Edward II, 1317, then in arms against their fovereign, with the Scots. They were both seized in it, in that year, by the king's order, by Ralph Lord Greystock, Sir William Felton, and Sir Alan Heton, at the head of a large body of forces, who demolished it, and sent their two prisoners to London, where they were tried, and executed (1).

Mr. Mitford's feat is by the river, the ruin of the castle and park before it to the south, stored with deer. Near it is the church, the impropriation and advowson of which were granted by K. Edward I, May 17, and 35th year of his reign, 1289, to the priory of Laner-coast, in Cumberland (m). In the chancel is a large mural monument of freestone erected over the tomb of one of the Bertrams, with his coat of arms in a concave square molding, with

- (1) Hol. Chron. Vol. ii. p. 323. Lel. Itin. Vol. vii. p. 60.
- (m) Rex omnibus, &c. falutem. Sciatis quod ob devotionem specialem quam erga beatam Mariam gerimus et habemus, nec non et retentionem status prioratus de Laner-coast, qui in honore ejusdem Sanctæ in marchia regni nostri Angliæ, et tenuræ Scotiæ sundatus existit, et qui per combustionem domorum, et destructionem bonorum ejusdem prioratus per Scotas nuper inimicos, et rebelles nostros, ac etiam per diutinam moram quam in prioratu prædicto nuper secimus, adversa corporis valetudine, dedimus et concedimus dilecte in Christo priori et conventui prioratûs prædicti ecclesiam de Mitsord, in com. Northumbr. et eclesiam de Carleton, incom. Cumbr. prædicto de prioratu nostro habend. tenend. prædicto priori et conventui et successoribus suis in perpetuum; et concessimus iis pro nobis et hæredibus nostris quod ipsi ecclesias illas sibi et successoribus suis in proprias usus in perpetuum possidendas appropriare, et eas sic appropriatas tenere possent sibi et successoribus suis in perpetuum, sine molestatione vel impedimento nostrorum hæredum, nostrorum justiciar. escaetr. aut aliorum Balivor. ministror. nostrorum, quorum cujusque. In cujus rei testimon. prædictus rex apud Balio-lum, 17 die Maii.

Per ipsum regem munc Covent. et Ricardo episcopo. Pat. 35 Ed. I. m. 25.

this inscription below it, in capitals of a middle fize, fair, and well cut.

Here lyeth interred within this molde a generous and virtuous wight, whose dewe deserte cannot be told, from slender skil unto his right, He was descended from a race of Worshipful Antiquitie. Loved he was in his life-space, of high eke of low degree. Rest Bartram in this house of clay reuf'ley unto the latter day.

3

Underneath is his effigies cut on the flone-cover of his tomb, in relief; his hands lifted up, in a praying polture, and on the edge: of it these lines, in capitals.

Bartram to us fo dutiful a fon, if more were fit, it should for Thee be done, who deceased the 7 of October, Anno Domini, 1622.

The villa is parted by the river, and is croffed on the north fide, near the turnpike-gate, by a new stone-bridge, of one arch. It was antiently croffed by one higher up, leading to the church and castle, called, the South bridge, and Fousebrigg, for the watching of which on the eve and on the day of the Ascension of our Blessed Lord, Walter de Swinhowe held forty acres of land within the manour of Mitford, 51 K. Edward III (n).

Near the villa, on a hill, is

The Spital, which was antiently an hospital, called, Mitford-hospital; founded and endowed with lands for one chaplain, in honour of St. Leonard, by Sir William Bertram, Baron of Mitford, the founder of Brenkburn-Priory. It was found by an inquisition, 47 K. Edward III, that the lands belonging to it were in possession of the abbot of New-minster (0); but they were restored, I K. Edward II, by that king, who appointed John de Wendhugs, junr. to be chaplain of it (p).

At a small distance from Mitford, is the villa of

- (n) Dicunt juratores super sacrum, quod Walter de Swinhowe tenuit in manerio de Mitsord xl acras terræ per servicium custodiendi pontem australem de Mitsord, vocat. Fousebrigg, in vigilia et die Ascenscionis.

  Escaet. de anno 51 Ed. III. n. 20.
- (0) Dicunt juratores super sacrum, quod Dominus de Mitsord, qui de dom. rege tenuit in capite manerium de Mitsord, dedit et concessit diversas terras et pertinentes ibidem ad inveniendum unum capellanum divina celebraturum in capella ibidem; invenitur quod abstrahitur pro longo tempore. Et dicunt quod Abbas de Novo Monasterio occupat terram et pratum, et valent per annum xx s. &c.

Inquisit. capta apud Corbrige coram Willielmo de Errington, escaet. dom. regis in com.

Northumbr. 25 die Jun. 47 Ed. III. Ex bundello escaetr. Turri Lond. n. 84.

(p) Rex dedit et concessit dilecto clerico suo Johanni de Wendhugs, juniori, custodiam hospitalis de Mitsord, quod ad regem pertinet ratione custodiae terræ et hered. David. de Strabolgy, nuper comitis Atholl, defuncti, qui de dom. rege Edvardo, nuper rege Angliæ tenuit in capite, habendam ad totam vitam ipsius Johannis, cum suis juribus, et pertinentibus quibuscunque. In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras sieri seci per patentes; teste rege Ricardo secundo apud castrum suum de Wyndesore, xi die Augusti, anno regni nostro primo.

Septembre, de privato figillo.

Molleston (q), the manour of which was granted by the second David de Strabolgy, Earl of Atholl, and Baron of Mitsord, 43 K. Edward III, to Sir John de Mitsord, Knt. descended from Matthew de Mitsord, younger brother, of Sir John de Mitsord, whose only daughter and heir at the conquest married Sir Richard Bertram, before mentioned. He was high sheriff of Northumberland, 3 K. Henry IV (r). He died, 16 July, 11th of that reign; and was succeeded by his son,

William de Mitford (s), who married Margery the daughter of Sir Robert Lifle, Knt. and was high sheriff of Northumberland, 5, 6 K. Henry V (t). He died, 1 K. Henry VI; and was succeeded by his fon and heir, John de Mitford, at the age of 21 years, born 8 April, 30 K. Henry IV. 1402 (u). He was a benefactor to the abbey of New-minster.

- (q) Molleston. Mollesden. Moseden.
- (r) Escaet. de anno 3 Hen. IV. n. 21.
- (s) Johannes de Mitford, Chr. obiit seisitus in dominico suo, ut de seodo talliato, viz. sibi et hæredibus suis masculis de corpore suo legitime procreatis, de manerio de Mollesson, cum pertinentibus, et valet per annum centum solidos ultra reprisas.

Item dicunt juratores, super sacrum, quod idem Johannes obiit xvi die Julii, ultimi præteriti. Et dicunt quod Willielmus de Mitsord ost silius et hæres ejus propinquior, et est ætat. anno xl, et amplius.

Inquisit. capta apud Novum Castrum super Tynam, coram Roberto de Herbord, escaetore dom. regis in com. Northumbr. die Veneris xx, ante sestum Apostulorum Simonis, et Judæ, xi Hen. IV.

Ex bundello escaetr. Turri Lond. n. 26.

- (t) Escaet. de annis, 5, 6. Hen. V. n. 31, et n. 37.
- (u) Willielmus de Mitford, Arm. obiit. seisitus in dominico suo, ut de seodo talliato, viz. sibi et hæredibus masculis de corpore suo legitime procreatis, de manerio de Molleston, cum-minster. He gave certain tenements in Newcastle upon Tyne to the chantery of St. Thomas, in the church of St. Nicholas, in that town. He died, 6 May, 35 K. Henry VI; and was succeeded by his son and heir, John de Mitford, then 24 years of age (v). He was succeeded by pertinentibus, ex dono et feoffamento David de Strabolgy, nuper comitis de Atholl; in quo manerio est quoddum messuagium capitale, vocatum Molleston-Park, &c.

Et dicunt juratores super sacrum quod obiit seisitus quadam clausa, vocata Isehaugh, in Mitsord, continens in se xvi acras terræ, quarum quælibet acra valet per annum i d. et xxx acras terræ, vocatæ Cassle-Land, in eadem villa, quarum quælibet acra valet per ann. i d.

Et dicunt quod dictum manerium et terræ, tenentur de rege in capite per servicium xl partis unius seodi militis, et redditus Henrico de Percy, Domino de Mitsord, vi d. per ann.

Item dicunt, uxorem suam, Margeriam, filiam esse Roberti de Lisse, Chr. adhuc superstitem.

Et quod idem Willielmus obiit 7 die — ultimi præteriti, anno 1 Hen. VI. Et quod Johannes de Mitsord, filius dicti Willielmi et Margeriæ, est hæres propinquior; et suit ætat. anno 21, 8 die Aprilis ultimi præteriti; quia dicunt quod idem Johannes natus suit, 8 die Aprilis, anno dom. 1402, anno 30 Hen. IV.

Inquisit. capta apud Novum Costrum super Tynam, coram Johanne Chestre, escaetore dom. regis in com. Northumbr. 10 die Junii, anno I Hen. VI.

Ex bundello escaetr. 'Turri Lond. n. 40.

(v) Johannes de Mitford obiit scisstus in dominico suo, ut de seodo, de manerio de Mollesden, cum pertinentibus, com. Northumbr. &c. pro servicio xl partis unius seodi militis, et reddendo hæredibus Henrici Percy, Dom. de Mitford, defuncti, annuatim vi d.

Et dicunt juratores, super sacrum, quod dictus Johannes obiit seisitus in dominico suo, ut de seodo, de uno capitali messuagio in Mitsord, et xxviii alia messuagia, et de cviii acris terræ, et x acris prati, cum pertinentibus, quæ tenentur de hæredibus prædicti Henrici Percy in soccagio, viz. pro servicio et sidelitate tantum.

Et dicunt quod prædictus Johannes obiit 6 die Maii ultimi præteriti; et quod Johannes Mitford est silius dicti Johannis M tford, et hæres ejus propinquior, et est ætat. anno 24, et amplius.

Inquisit. capta apud Bywell, coram Ricards Corbrigg, escaetore dom. regis in com. Northumbr. die Jovis, 21 die Octobris.

Bertram

Bertram de Mitford, father of Gawen de Mitford, who married the fister of Sir Thomas Forster, of Etherston, Knt. He was succeeded by his son and heir, Cuthbert de Mitford, to whom John de Widdrington granted, 4 K. Edward VI, his tenement and lands in Mitford, called, our Lady's lands, from their being part of the possessions of New-minster abbey. He was one of the commissioners for enclosures upon the middle marches, 6th of the same reign (w). He was succeeded by his son and heir, Robert de Mitford (x), who acquired the castle and manour of Mitford by a grant from K. Charles II, as before mentioned (y).

About three miles to the east of Morpeth, is Bothall (z), which was the barony of a younger branch of the Bertrams, Barons of Mitford; of Sir Robert Bertram in the reign of

- (w) Bishop Nicholson's Border-Laws, p. 532.

  Cuthbertus Mitsord suit seisitus de et in Mitsord, Mosedon, et Espley, cum terris in Isehaugh, et High Callerton.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Esca.
- (x) Robertus Mitford, filius Cuthberti, tenet de rege, ut de manerio de Mitford, per servicium milit. iv messuagia et terras in Mitford, et Newton-Underwood, ac reversiones villarum de Mollesden, et Espley.

  Escaet. de anno 14 Car. I.
  - (y) Vide Mitford.
  - (z) Bothall.

    Bothell.

Vol. II. Uu K.

K. Henry III (a); of Sir Roger Bertram, i K. Edward I (b); and of another Sir Robert in the reign of K. Edward III, who by permiffion from that king built the castle of Botball. His daughter and heir, Eleanor, married Sir Robert Ogle, of Ogle, Knt. whose posterity enjoyed this barony through a long succession. In the contests between the two houses of York and Lancaster, Sir Robert Ogle, Knt. being an assiduous and zealous friend to the former, was created Lord Ogle; and the fourth in descent from him, Robert Lord Ogle, married Ann the daughter of Sir Thomas Lumley, Knt. by Elizabeth Plantagenet, daughter of K. Edward IV, by the Lady Elizabeth Lucy.

Cuthbert, the feventh and last Lord Ogle (c), was possessed of a large fortune in this county. He married Catharine the daughter and coheir of Sir Reginald Carnaby, Knt. by whom he had two daughters, Johanna and Catharine; the former married to Edward Talbot, Esq; younger son of the Earl of Shrewsbury; the latter to Sir Charles Cavendish of Wellbeck, in Nottinghamshire, Knt. and by let-

- (a) Robertus Bertram tenet in capite de dom. rege baroniam suam de Bothell per servicium trium seodor. milit. et omnes antecessores sui per eund. servicium tenuerunt de antiquo seoffamento; est mortuus, ac hæres cum fratre in manu regis. Et de illo tenemento nulla est alienatio, seu donatio, unde dom. rex minus habeat de servicio suo.

  Testa de Nevill.
- (b) Rogerus Bertram, de Bothell, tenet in capite de dom. rege Bothell, et advocationem ecclesiæ de Bothell et Shipwash, Whetworth, Nova Mora, Pigsworth, Hebburn, Cockley-Park, Fenrother, Tritlington, Erisden cum le forest, Calcey-Park, Langhirst, Old Moor, et Eshenden, per tria seoda milit. veteris seossamenti.

  Escaet. de anno I Ed. I.
- (c) Cuthbertus Dominus Ogle suit seisitus de et in castro et manerio de Bothell, et in manerio et villa de Heppel, de et in manerio et villa de Ogle, Shilvington, et Saltwick, de et in Shilbottle, Hirst, Long-hirst, Hebburn (juxta Morpeth), Fenrother, Erisden, Erisden-Forest, et Twysle (juxta Pont-Eland), ac de et in villa de Magna Tossen, et parva Tossen, cum medietate de Lowerbottle, et villa de North Middleton, cum turris in Sharperton, Warton, et tota villa de Fletterton.

  Escaet, de anno 10 Eliz.

ters patent was created Baroness of Ogle. Her son Sir William Cavendish, was made Knight of the Bath at the creation of Henry Prince of Wales, 8 K. James I, 1610; Baron Ogle, of Ogle, and Vifcount Mansfield, 18th of the same reign; Baron Bertram and Belfover, and Earl of Newcastle, 3 K. Charles I; Marquis of Newcastle, 19th of the fame reign; Earl of Ogle, and Duke of Newcastle, 16 K. Charles II, 1664; to whom he had the honour of being governor, and shewed himself worthy of royal favour, and of the friendship and confidence of a king. When so many were wanting in their duty to his old mafter, K. Charles I, he flood by him with his life and fortune, put Newcastle, and the castle and harbour of Tynemouth, in a flate of defence, raifed a regiment in Northumberland at his own charge, confifting of a 1000 men, the officers of the best families. He engaged and defeated the parliament forces under Lord Fairfax at Atherton-Moor, near Bradford, in Yorkshire, took all their artillery, 22 cannon, and many colours and flandards. Which victory fo frightened his majefty's enemies, that by an embaffy they invited and prevailed with the Scots to come into England and join them, in extreme frosty and snowy weather. At the battle of Marston-Moor, he was at the head of his Northumberland regiment, where he had the mortification to fee it deferted by the horse, yet such was their ardour, such their courage and magnanimity, that to a man they disdained either to fly from, or ask quarter of, the parliament-forces, but suffered themselves to be cut down by heaps, rank and file, as they flood. Their regimentals were white, which made them to be called, White-Coats. A colour worthy to distinguish such godlike souls!

After this battle, the Lord Marquis of Newcastle, his two fons, and his brave brother, Sir Charles Cavendish, who was a man, says my Lord Clarendon, of the noblest and largest mind, though the least and most inconvenient body that lived; General

King, Lord Falconbridge, Lord Widdrington, the Earl of Cornwath, the bishop of Londonderry, Sir Edward Widdrington, Colonel Carnaby, Colonel Basset, Colonel Mazen, Sir William Vavasour, Sir Francis Mackworth, and about eighty more royalists, determined to go beyond sea, and landed at Hamburgh.

The effates of the lord marquis were put under fequestration, and some of them sold, among which was the manour of Flawborough, in Nottinghamshire, 1647. He was one of the seven perfons excepted from pardon.

After the restoration, 13th K. Charles II, 1661, in May the marquis retired in full favour from court to his seat at Wellbeck, on which occasion he received the following very handsome congratulation, in an epistle dedicatory to a sermon, preached at Oxford on the 29th of the same month, by his chaplain, Mr. Clement Ellis (m).

"With much pleasure I have hearkened to you discoursing of that satisfaction you reaped from that sweet privacy and retirement his majesty is pleased to grant your lordship here in the country, where you live free from the noise and cumberance of court and city. Indeed, the greatest reward his majesty can possibly recompence your services withal, is thus to bestow yourself upon yourself, and I know you think it greater happiness to enjoy my lord marquis of Newcastle at Wellbeck, than all the offices and honours which your exemplary loyalty has merited. And there is all the reason in the world for it, that he who hath so nobly facrificed the fairest of his years, and the amplest of his fortunes, to the service of his king and country, (m) Printed at Oxford, 4to. 1661.

"fhould now have leave to confecrate the remainder to his "health and quiet."

At Wellbeck his lordship enjoyed the society and the labours of the wise and the learned. Robert Sheringham, the samous antiquarian, inscribed his book or differtation to him——De Anglorum Gentis Origine (n).

The Lord Clarendon has drawn his character in colours that cast a lustre on his name.

"He was a very fine gentleman, active and full of courage. "and most accomplished in those qualities of horsmanship, "dancing, and fencing, which accompany a good breeding, in " which his delight was. Befides that, he was amorous in poetry " and music, to which he indulged the greatest part of his time; "and nothing could have tempted him out of those paths of plea-"fure, which he enjoyed in a full and ample fortune, but ho-" nour and ambition to ferve the king when he faw him in dif-" trefs, and abandoned by most of those who were in the highest " degree obliged to him and by him. He loved monarchy, as it " was the foundation of his own greatness; and the church, as "it was well conflituted for the fplendour and fecurity of the "crown; and religion, as it cherished and maintained that or-"der and obedience that was necessary to both; without any " other passion for the particular opinions which were grown up " in it, and diffinguished it into parties, than as he detested what-" ever was like to diffurb the public peace."

His lordship's only daughter and heir married John Holles, duke of Newcastle, who died by a fall from his horse, 15th July, 1711.

(n) Cantabr. 8vo. 1670.

His Grace's only daughter and heir, the lady Henrietta Cavendish Holles, married the right honourable Edward Earl of Oxford and Mortimer on the last of August, 1713, with whom his lordship had a large personal fortune, besides the baronial honours and effates in this county, her mother's dowry, which devolved to their only daughter and heir, the Lady Margaret Cavendish Harley. married, 11th July, 1734, to his Grace William Duke of Portland. He was knight of the most noble order of the garter, granted only at the coronation of a king, or queen, or installation of one of the royal family, except on extraordinary occasions, as in the case of Thomas Nevill, Esq; speaker to the house of commons, brother to the Lord Abergavenny, who for his wife conduct and eminent fervices in that house, had that high honour conferred upon him in full parliament, 7 K. Henry VIII, 1516; no subject before him having it out of the common course (0). His Grace was fucceeded in honour and estate by his eldest son and heir. now the most noble Duke of Portland, owner of the baronial castle and Lordship of Bothall.

Only an old tower is now flanding of the castle, large and flately, through which has been the grand entrance. On the north front are the arms of its antient barons. On the fourth and fouth-east fronts are feveral plants, sempervious, ivy, wallflowers, also feaverfew, pellitory of the wall, and the fambucus or flowering elder. It flands on an agreeable mount, on the north fide of the winding trout-streams of the Wansbeck, gliding between pleafant meadows, and hanging woods.

Near it is the parochial church. It has three handsome isles; the pulpit well placed, against the north pillar, on entering the chancel; the lights neat, and part of them adorned with painting, and the walls very folemn with scripture-sentences, in neat black frames; the pews but indifferent. The roof is covered with lead. In a small sleeple are three bells, one of them cracked; and, hard by, is the vestry. At the east end of the south isle is a handsome tomb, within iron rails, of alabaster, over one of the barons of Ogle and Bothall, and his lady, recumbent; their hands and eyes elevated. His lordship's head and feet rest upon the supporters of his coat-armorial; a lyon under his feet; a chain of many links round his neck, with a pendent cross. Under her ladyship's head is a cushion, and another under her feet, with two cherub-like babes lying by her, one on each side at the end of the cushion, near her face, each holding in its hand a tassel of the cushion; the head of one broken off; a dog by her feet, with a chain about its neck, the emblem of watchfulness.

<sup>(0)</sup> Quod nemini mortalium, per ulla ante fecula, contigisse audivimus.

On the fouth fide of the chancel, is the following mural geneological table, in the old black character, of the Ogles, barons of Ogle and Bothall.

- "Humphrey Ogle, Efq; lived at Ogle-castle at the conquest, to whom "William the Conqueror, by his deed, without date, did confirm all "his liberties and royalties of his manour and his estate of Ogle, in "as ample a manner as any of his ancestors enjoyed the same be"fore the time of the Normans.
- "From Humphrey Ogle, Efq; did descend seven lords and thirty "knights.
- "Robert, the first Lord Ogle, married Isabel, daughter and heir of Alexander Kirkby, knight.

- "Owen, the fecond Lord Ogle, married the daughter of Sir William "Hilton, knight.
- "Ralph, the third Lord Ogle, married the daughter of Sir William Gascoign, knight (p).
- "Robert, the fourth Lord Ogle, married the daughter of Sir Tho-"mas Lumley, knight.
- "Robert, the fifth Lord Ogle, married Mary the daughter of Sir "Cuthbert Berthram, knight (q).
- "Robert, the fixth Lord Ogle, married Jane daughter and heir of "Sir Thomas Manners, knight, and died without iffue (r).
- "Cuthbert, the feventh Lord Ogle, married Katherine, one of the coheirs of Sir Reginald Carnaby, knight; (being brother to Robert the fixth Lord Ogle) who had two daughters, Joan and Katherine."

In a fluidy folitude on the banks of the Wansbeck, near Bothall, is the ruin of an antient chapel, dedicated to the Blessed Virgin. It was built by this illustrious family of Ogle, as appears by their coat armorial on the wall. The length of it is eight yards, the

- (p) Of Gawthorp, comit. Ebor.
- (q) The family-pedigree, communicated by the present Duke of Newcastle, affirms, that he first married Dorothy, daughter of Sir Henry Wordrington, Knt. and afterwards Jane, daughter of Sir Cuthbert Ratcliff, Knt.
- (r) In the same pedigree, it is said, that he married Jane, daughter and heir to Sir Thomas Melverer, Knt.

This mural pedigree feems to have been copied by an illiterate hand; I have therefore corrected the orthography.

breadth four, of well-wrought freestone; the roof of the same materials, after a curious manner; hardly visible for trees, which have taken root in the very foundations.

The rectory-house is about two miles lower down the river, at Shipwash; so called from its proximity to the shipping in the little harbour of Cambois, and the grounds washed by the tides; the situation solitary, under a shady hill; the garden extending to the river, crossed by a bridge of three arches; a road leading from it to Newcastle; the mother-church said to have been formerly at this place.

The last rector was his Grace the present archbishop of York, the honourable and right reverend Dr. Hay Drummond, brother to the right honourable the Earl of Kinnoul, whose progenitors were ennobled by their glorious military atchievements, recorded in the Scotch annals, and by a late ingenious antiquary of the same nation (s).

A mile east from Shipwash, is

Ashington, (t), which was one of the manours of the barony of Bothall, and now belongs to George Sandiford Crow, Eq. It flands on an eminence, well sheltered with tall forest-trees; a fine view from it of the sea, also of Seaton-Delaval, and Bebside, through the openings of the plantations; the grounds sloping regularly to a bank of oaks by the river Wansbeck, freestone rocks conspicuous through them, under which is a fine grass-area of a mile in length by the river, which for all that space forms a most beautiful serpentine canal, a bank of oaks on the opposite side. On the west side of a streamlet, called the Den-Burn, by a grindstone-quarry, the river Wansbeck makes a slexure, where is a beautiful slope, now in tillage, shaded by spreading oaks and other timber on all sides but to the south, the river making another slexure a little to the west of it, crossed by Shipwash-bridge, in sight; a boat in it for the use of a salmon-sishery. Mr. Crow's extent of ground by the river from within a small field's length of the bridge, or the rectory-glebe, west, to the Stake-ford, east, is about a mile and a half, measured; thus beautifully chequered with wood, rock, and river-scenery; a foot-walk by the river the whole length.

(s) Gordon's Itin. Sept.

(t) Eshenden.
Ashington.

About a quarter of a mile east from the grindstone-quarry, under a bank of oaks and other trees, close to a hedge, is a facred fountain, called St. Margaret's Well, pleasant and soft to the taste, many of the small fresh-water buccinæ at the bottom; the north side faced with stone, natural, and semicircular, coated with moss, and a thin crust of earth, in which the primrose and meadows weet have taken root, emitting their pleasant odours round it in their season of slowering.

By the Stake-ford, is a hamlet, called, the

The Black Close, belonging to his Grace the Duke of Portland, where is a coal-work, a steith, and a small fire-engine, so contrived as to fill a large bason with salt-water from a small refervoir below, overslowed by the tides, for the use of a salt-work, and also to draw off water from the colliery.

Two miles below the Stake-ford, is Cambois, a small hamlet on the southern banks, and at the oftium, of the Wansbeck, belonging to Matthew Ridley, Esq; Here the river is usually called Cambois-Water, and Cambois-Harbour. It is navigable to the Stake-ford for small vessels of about 30 tons burthen. There are two keys on the north side; one called the Low, and the other the High, Key; the latter on the estate of Sir Thomas Clavering, Bart. a great export of corn and grindstones from them, and a considerable import of Norway-timber and deals; and of limestone from Bednal, and Sunderland, in boats.

Near a mile north from the harbour's mouth, is a range of cliffs by the fea, called Hawk's-Hugh, from its being the recess of Hawks in the breeding-feason; ravens also and other birds frequenting it. Towards the north end, is a cavern, very large, with an aperture at the top, usually called by the mine-men Self-Opens; the refuge of foxes and badgers in their distress by the chace.

A little farther north, by a grindstone-quarry on the sea-banks, called the Spital-Quarry, an urn was found by the workmen in unroofing the quarry, placed between four stones set edge-ways, with a cover-stone, at the depth of three set from the surface; the urn of red earth, small, of the usual form, bellied, without any ornaments, left by the incurious finders among the rubbish.

About a quarter of a mile from the quarry, is Newbiggen, a marine villa, inhabited chiefly by fishermen; confisting of one long, irregular street; several granaries in it for export from one of the finest bays before it on the coast of this county, formed by two promontories of freestone-rocks, spacious, the bottom of fand; corn-ships, of about fixty tons burthen, coming up to the town; large ships, farther in, riding in five, six, or seven fathom water, in security from tempests, from the north, and north-east.

On the northern point of the bay, is the vestigies of an oldpier; many of the stones, and some of the piles of wood, conspicuous at low water.

On the north-east side of the harbour is the church, dedicated to St. Bartholomew; the middle isle and the spire only now remaining; a small gallery at the west end; at the east end, above the altar-table, is the King's-arms, cut in wood, in high relief, said to have been the stern of a ship cast away in a storm upon the rocks; one bell in the spire; the church-yard small; a delightful prospect from it.

On the north-east side of it, about 100 yards from the seabanks, in the cavity of a rock, is a fresh-water spring, called St. Mary's well, accessible only at ebb-tides.

Two miles north from Newbiggen, is Cresswell, one of the manours of the barony of Bywell (u), of which it was held by the antient family of the Cresswells; by Robert de Cresswell, and Simon de Cresswell, in the reigns of kings John and Henry III; by Roger de Cresswell, 21 K. Edward I (v); by Robert

(u) Vid. Bywell.

(v) Juratores dicunt super sacrum, quod quidam Robertus de Cresswell, avus prædicti Rosgeri de Cresswell, tenuit prædicta tenementa, de quibus visum secerunt, in suc sessi et inde obiit

Robert de Cresswell, in the reign of K. Edward II (w); by Alexander de Cresswell, who was upon an inquest at Newcastle upon Tyne, 12th February, 43 K. Edward III, with Thomas de Eslington, Robert de Eland, Robert de Middleton, Richard de Cramlington, and John de Killingworth, &c. and upon another at Morpeth, 20th January, 49th of the fame reign, with the fame gentlemen; also upon another at Corbridge, 25th June, 2 K. Richard II, with Robert de Lowther, William Shaftoe, John Lawson, Robert de Eland, and others (x); by John de Cresswell, 10 K. Richard II; by John de Cresswell, in the reign of K. Henry V; by George de Cresswell, in the reign of K. Henry VI; by Robert de Cresswell, in the reign of K. Henry VII, who married Elizabeth, the daughter of Thomas Lord Lumley, by Elizabeth Plantagenet, daughter of K. Edward IV, by the Lady Elizabeth Lucy; by Ofwin de Cresswell, in the beginning of the reign of Q. Elizabeth (y); by John de Cresswell, in the latter end of the same reign (z); by John de Cresswell, in the beginning of the reign of K. James I (a); by John de Cresswell, who had three sons, viz. Ephraim, Ofwald, and William, the last of whom purchased Cress-obiit seisitus; post cujus decessum Simon de Cresswell successit in eisdem tenementis, filius et hæres, et inde obiit seisitus: Et similiter dicunt, quod prædictus Rogerus post decessum prædicti Simonis, patris sui, introivit in prædict. tenemen. per successionem superdictorum, &c.

Escaet. de anno 21 Ed. I. .

(w) Robertus de Cresswell, inter nomina hominum in com. Northumbr. ad arma return.

17 Ed. II. 1324. Rot. in Bibliotheca Cottoniana, Claudius; c. ii. folio 72, b.

(x)	Escaet.	de	anno	43	Ed.	III.	p.	2.	n.	16.
			 	49	Ed.	Ш.	n	4.
•				2	Ric.	II.	n.	84	•

(y) Inquisit. post mortem, de anno 13 Eliz.

(z) 43 Eliz.

(a) _____ 4 Jac. L

well of his two brothers, who died without iffue (b). He was fucceeded by his fon, William Cresswell, Esq; father of the present possessor, William Cresswell, Esq; who hath one fon, John, and several daughters.

Mr. Cresswell has built a handsome house on to the old tower. It stands at a small distance from the village, which is close by the sea, and inhabited chiefly by hardy and industrious sishermen.

Two miles north from Cresswell, is

Widdrington-Castle (c), which was the seat of the antient family of the Widdringtons; of Gerard de Widdrington, I K. Edward I (d); of Sir Roger de Widdrington, high sherist of Northumberland, 36 K. Edward III (e), to whom John de Plessis sold the manour of Plessis, and the village of Shotton (f); of Sir John de Widdrington, his son

- (b) Ex informat. curiosi admodum viri Henrici Cresswell, de Windsor, arm. fratris Gulielmi Cresswell, de Cresswell, arm.
  - (c) Woodrington.
    Wodrington.
    Witherington. Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 60. Cand. Brit. p. 859.
    Widdrington.
- (d) Gerardus de Woodrington tenet Woodrington, cum Druridge membro suo, et medietatem de Burroden, per unum seodum veteris seossamenti, baronia de Whalton.

Escaet, de anno 1 Ed. I.

- (e) Escaet. de anno 36 Ed. III.

  Johannes de Plesseto alienavit Rogero de Wodrington manerium de Plesses et villam de Shotton.

  Inquisit. post Mortem.
- (f) Est Johannes de Wodrington silius et hæres Rogeri de Wodrington.

  Inquisit. prædict. de anno 22 Ric. II.

  Testibus, Johanne de Whitlawe de Hertford, Forster de Shotton, et aliis.

and heir, 22 K. Richard II (g), high sheriff of Northumberland, 11th K. Henry IV, and 4th and 8th of K. Henry VI; of Sir Roger de Widdrington, high sheriff of Northumberland, 10, 14, 21 of K. Henry VI (b); of Gerard de Widdrington, high sheriff of Northumberland, 5 K. Edward IV; of John de Widdrington, high sheriff of Northumberland, 12, 13, 14, K. Edward IV; of Sir John de Widdrington, high theriff of Northumberland, 32 K. Henry VIII, 6 K. Edward VI, and 1 Q. Elizabeth, of whose estate an inquisition was taken, 10th of the last reign (i). Sir John married Elizabeth, the daughter of Sir Hugh Trevannion, who furvived him, and married Sir Robert Cary, lord warden of the middle marches, afterwards created Earl of Monmouth, by whom she had two sons, and one daughter. Her eldest fon was made Knight of the Bath at the creation of Charles, prince of Wales, and married the daughter of Lionel Cranfield, afterwards Earl of Middlesex, and treasurer of England. Her daughter married the eccentric Duke of Wharton, as my Lord Orrery calls him. Her ladyship and the lord warden lived at Widdrington, which was her jointure, and at her death came to Sir Henry Widdrington, who was a deputy-warden of the middle marches under his lordship. His other deputy was Sir William Ferwick. To one he affigned the government of Reed's-dale, and to the other that of Lidd's-dale; with each fix horsemen to attend them; out of his own appointment, which was forty; the borders remarkably peaceable under their government, after a few examples being made of the boldest thieves (k). His deputy, Sir Henry Widdrington, was high sheriff of Northumberland, 21 Q. Elizabeth, and 3 K. James I; and a representative for it in parliament, 1, 12, 18, K. James I; and was succeeded by Sir William Widdrington, who was high sheriff of Northumberland, 12 K. Charles I; and a representative for it in parliament, 15th, 16th and 17th of the same reign, with Sir Henry Percy. He, and Sir William Carnaby, and Sir Patricius Curwen, were three of the 56 members who voted for saving the life of the Earl of Strafford. He, and his friend, Mr. Herbert Price, member for Brecon, in Wales, were committed to the Tower, for having candles brought into the house without a general order, 189 voices against 172. He was expelled the house, 26th August, 1642, for refusing to attend it, and raising forces in defence of his majesty, who created him baron Widdrington of Blankney, 10th November, 1643. After the battle of Marston-Moor, he retired beyond seas with his noble friend, the lord marquis of Newcastle, and others; and his estate was sequestred by the parliament (1).

(b) Rogerus de Woodrington obiit seisitus de et in manerio de Woodhorre, dominio, villa, et portû, de Newbiggen super mare.—— Escaet. de anno 22 Hen. VI.

(i) Johannes Woodrington, miles, fuit seisitus de et in castro, et manerio, ac villa de Woodrington, Druridge, Chibburn, Garret-lee, Coldwell, Whitsted-lawe, Swynburn magna, Shotton, Plessis, et Haughton, cum medietate villæ et manerii de Humshaugh, et certis terris in West Chevington, Bingsield, Stone-Hall, East Chevington, Swynburn parva, et in : Plaigdon, ac de villa de Woodhorn, Newbiggen, et in certis terris in Seaton, juxta mare.

On the march of his majesty, K. Charles II, to Worcester, his lordship staid behind at Wigan, in Lancashire, with the Earl of Derby, and many loyal gentlemen, about 200 horse, with a design of taking the country-volunteers along with them, where they were surprized by a party of the parliament-forces at the dawn of the morning, and after a gallant display of valour, were either slain or taken prisoners. Among the former was Lord Widdrington, who disdained to take quarter.

(k) Monmouth's Memoirs, published by Lord Orery.

<sup>(1)</sup> Whitlock's Memorials, p. 92, and p. 391.

"His Lordship," says my Lord Clarendon, "was one of the good"liest persons of that age, being near the head higher than most "tall men, and a gentleman of the best and most antient extrac"tion of the county of Northumberland, and of a very fair for"tune, and one of the four which the king made choice of to "be about the person of his son the prince, as gentleman of his "privy chamber, when he first settled his family. His affection
"to the king was always most remarkable. Asson as the war "broke out, he was of the first who raised both horse and foot
"at his own charge, and served eminently with them under the "marquis of Newcastle; with whom he had a particular and en"tire friendship. He was very nearly allied to the marquis, and
"by his testimony that he had performed many signal services,
"he was about the middle of the war made a peer of the king"dom (m)."

His lordship married Mary, the daughter and sole heir of Sir Anthony Thorald, of Blankney, in Lincolnshire, Knt. by whom he had

William Lord Widdrington, who was one of the council of flate upon the reftoration of the parliament by General Monk(n). He was fucceeded by his fon,

William Lord Widdrington, who by marriage acquired an additional estate of upwards of 1200 l. per annum. His lordship's real and personal estate, valued, as set forth in his petition to the liament, 4th December, 1722, at above 100,000 l. came to the crown by his attainder in 1715, and was fold for the public use. He did not fuffer with Lord Derwentwater, but was most gracioufly pardoned. He left one fon, Henry, now living; his feat at Stella, by the river Tyne, in the bishoprick of Durham.

(m) Clarend. Hist. vol. iii. part 2. 8vo. p. 404.

(n) Bp. Kennet's Hist. Regist. p. 66.

Widdrington-castle is now in the possession of Sir George Warner Knight of the Bath. It is about a mile and a half from the fea. on a pleafant fluidy eminence; from which is a distant prospect to the north-east of Coquet-Island, in which was a cell of Benedictine monks, subordinate to Tynemouth-priory (o). At the diffolution it was granted to John Earl of Warwick (p). It now belongs to his Grace the Duke of Northumberland. It was taken by the Scots, 19 K. Charles I, 1643. together with about 200 men, with their arms, feven pieces of ordnance, and provisions. They rescued and restored to the owners a great herd of cattle taken away by the king's forces. Colonel Grey, brother to William Lord Grey, came in to them with a regiment of horse, and took the covenant (q).

The island is about a mile in circumference, and a mile and a quarter from the main land, stored with rabbets. It hath pitcoal, as mentioned by Leland (r); also white free-stone, and

<sup>(0)</sup> Monacorum cætibus infignis. Bed. Hist. Eccles. 1. 4. c. 24. Lel. Collectan. vol. iii. p. 43. --- Itin. vol. vii. p. 55.

(p) Tanner's Notit. Monast. fol. p. 360.

(q) Whitlock's Memorials, p. 77.

(r) Lel. Itin. vol. vi. p. 60.

flates; the former of different fineness, the worst with some red Moleculæ; the latter usually about three quarters of an inch thick. On the west side have been falt-pans; about sixty yards from which are the ruins of the monastic cell and chapel; and just below them is a bank of factitious sand, of a remarkable brightness, the dissolution of silvery rag-stone, of which there are large strata on the shore between Warkworth and Alnmouth, often left bare, and in view, after storms, and high tides. Hard by, upon a rock, grows plenty of rape; probably first brought there by some shipwreck.

Having taken notice of the most remarkable places towards the fea near Morpeth, we now continue our course on the post-road for about six miles, when a neat road branches off on the left hand to Cawsey-Park (s), one of the manours of the Barony of Bothall (t), of which it was held by a younger branch of the noble family of Ogle, of Ogle-Castle; by — de Ogle, in the beginning of the reign of Q. Elizabeth (u); by John de Ogle, 31st of the same reign, the initial letters of whose name are on the old tower, with the date of its erection, 1589; and whose wife, Catharine, lies buried under a flat stone in Bothall-church, near a fine tomb of the Lords Ogle, with the following inscription,

Here lyeth Catharine the wife of John Ogle, of Cawfey-Park, Esquire, daughter of

- (s) Calci-Park.
  Cawfey-Park.
- (t) See Bothall.

(u) —— Ogle fuit seisitus de et in uno situ, sive capitali messuagio, vocat. Calci-Park, n Parka ibidem, et certis terris in Horsley. Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

Robert Woodrington, Esquire, by Margaret his wife, which Margaret was fifter to

Robert the 6th and to Cuthbert the 7th Lord Ogle,

She died May 23, 1609.

His fon, James Ogle, Esq; is interred in the chancel of St. Andrew's church, in Newcastle upon Tyne, near the altar, under a marble monument with this inscription.

Hic jacet Jacobus Ogle de Cawfey-Park, in comitatu Northumbr. Armiger. Antiquitate domûs, utpote ex prænobili Baronia Ogle, de Ogle, stirpe recta linea oriundus, verè clarus; sed invicta in perduelles, grassantibus nuperis civilibus bellis, animi magnitudine, constantia in regem, etiam in trississimo authoritatis deliquio sidelitate, in superiores observantia, in pares comitate, in inferiores benignitate, quæ omnia justissimo titulo sua vocare poterat, multo illustrior. obiit Dec. 4 die, annoque Dom. 1664.

The late Henry Ogle, of Causey-Park, Esq; was high sherist of Northumberland, 1737. He founded a school at Cawsey-park bridge, on the cast side of the post-road, and gave it the little field it stands in, and 300 l. for the education of 30 children in reading, writing, and accounts. He died without issue, and was succeeded by his brother, the present possessor, William Ogle, Esq. His seat is on a rising ground; the gardens on a sine slope, bounded on the sides and bottom with handsome pieces of water, stored with carp and tench, an opening between woods of tall oaks letting in a prospect of an enclosed and well cultivated country.

Near two miles north-west from Causey-Park, is Long Horsley, the manour of which was given by Cospatric, Earl of Dunbar, on the marriage of his daughter Julian, to Sir Ralph Merlay, Baron of Morpeth (v); whose successor, the third Roger de Merlay, in the reign of K. Henry III, granted lands in Long Horsley, and other places, to Adam de Plessis (w); and at the same time

(v) See Morpeth.

(w) Omnibus Christi fidelibus hanc cartam visuris vel audituris Rogerus de Merlay tertius. falutem in Domino. Sciatis me dedisse, concessisse, et hac mea præsenti carta confirmasse Adamo de Plesseto pro bomagio et servicio suo quinque bovatas terræ, cum pertinentibus suis, et tres tostas et unum cotagium in villa de Horsley et in Sheles, scilicet, illas duas bovatas terræ, cum tofto et crofto, cum pertinentibus, quas Ranulphus de Espeley et Osbertus tenuerunt in Todburn et in Horsley, et illam bovatam terræ, cum tosto et crosto, quas Ragerus de Thrasreston tenuit in Horsley, et illas duas bovatas terræ, cum tosto et crosto, cum pertinentibus, quas Robertus filius Matildæ, tenuit in Sheles, et illud cotagium cum pertinentibus . quod . . . . medicus tenuit in Horsley, et ad prædictorum meremium dedi et concessi eidem . Adamæ quandam landam de vasto meo juxta culturam suam de Todburn, quæ vocatur Swinley, ficut includitur fosseto ad colendum et admodum commodum sibi, faciend, habend, et tenend, de me, et hæredibus meis, prædicto Adamo, et hæredibus suis de corpore suo legitime procreatis, libere, quietè, folide et integre, cum libero introi:û et exitu, cum communa paffuræ, et liberationem ad ædificandum, ardendum, et fepem faciendum per vifum forestariorium meorum, et hæredum meorum, et cum omnibus aliis aisiamentis ad prædictam villam de Horsley pertinentibus, reddendo indè annuatim mihi et hæredibus meis tantum unam libram. Gumini vel duos denarios ad festum Sancti Cuthberti in Septembri, pro omni servicio, consuetudine, auxilio, et demanda, quæ ab aliquo vel aliquibus exigi possunt. Si autem contingat prædictum Adamum fine hærede de corpore fuo legitime proc; sato in fata decedese, volo quod tota terra prænominata cum toftis et vasto cum pertinentibus ad me et hæredes meos fine alicujus contradictione, vel impedimento, returnatura. Concedo etiam pro me et hæredibus meis eidem Adamo et hæredibus fuis, de se legitime exeuntibus, quod capiant marlam ad terram fuam de Todburn et Swynley-markland ubi infra folum meum videntur eis magis expedire. Et ego Rogerus de Merlay et hæredes mei præducto Adamo; et hæredibus suis, de corpore suo legitime procreatis totam terram prædictam cum toftis, vasto, et marla, cum pertinentibus contra omnes gentes in perpetuum warrantizabimus. In cujus rei testimonium, parti hujus cartæ in modum chirographi conscriptæ penes dictum Adamum residenti, figillum meum apposui; et alteræ parti, quæ penes met et hæredes meos reservata, dictus Adamus fignum .

his lordship compelled all the tenants within the manour to keep the ways and ditches round their grounds in good order, on pain of being whipped the day after his court was held (x).

Roger de Horsley, a witness to the antient deed subjoined, held also lands in Long Horsley, which continued in his family through a long succession; and was possessed by John de Horsley, 1 K. Edward III (y); by Richard de Horsley high sherist of Northumberland, 37, 43, 44, 45, of the same reign (z); by John de Horsley, in the reign of K. Henry VI (a); by Sir John Horsley, 1 K. Edward VI, 1547, who in that year was made a knight banneret, after the victory obtained over the Scots at Musselburg by the English army (b); by Cuthbert Horsley, Esq; a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 1 Q. Mary, and for the borough of Morpeth, 2d, 3d. of the same reign; by the late Edward Horsley Widdrington, of Felton, Esq; whose only daughter and heir married Thomas Ridell, of Swinburn-Castle, Esq; fignum suum impressit. His testibus, Domino Ad mo tunc abate de Novo Monasterio, Johanne silio Simonis, Adamo Barret, Johanne de Plesseto, Ricardo de Saltwyke, Rogero de Horsley, Beratholomeo de Wyndgates, Roberto de Camera, Andrea Coco, Waltero de Witton, et aliis.

Carta Rogeri de Merlay, tertii, Temp. Hen. III.

(x) Et iste est Rogerus, qui subditos suos in Horsley ad vias et sossata circa campos de Horsley bene conservandas et diligentur sustentandas, tractare statuit. Et quod quicunque convictus suerit de aliquo fragmento in sossata vel viis prædictis in campo suo, tenetur ibidem in crastino inventionis Sanctæ Crucis, et crastino Sancti Martini in hieme, et reddet domino suo pro quolibet delicto suo duas Virgas serveas quoties inde convictus suerit.

Ex Autographo perantiquo.

- (y) Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. III. n. 85. (z) Madex. Ferma Burgi, p. 67.
- (a) Escaet. de anno 14 Hen. VI. n. 34. Fuller's Worthies, p. 310.
- (b) Hol. Chron. Vol. ii. p. 991.

The church flands half a mile fouth-east from the village, the impropriation and advowson of which were given by the third Ralph Lord Greyslock to the abbey of Brinkburn, 8 K. Richard II (c).

From the hill by the 7th mile-stone, on the right hand we have a fine prospect of Warkworth-Castle, antiently the seat and barony of the noble family of the Claverings; their name local from their Barony of Clavering, in Essex; by descent from Roger Fitz-Richard, enseoffed in the Barony of Warkworth by King Henry II; to whose son, Robert, King John granted a weekly market to be kept on Monday at New-town, near Warkworth; and an annual fair there, to continue for three days; viz. the Even, and the day of St. Laurence, and the morrow of the said day; also the liberty of free warren in his barony of Warkworth (d).

John de Clavering, Baron of Warkworth and Clavering, was fummoned to the parliament held at Carlifle, 25 K. Edward I, 1307; and to the famous parliament held at Westminster, 23 October, 3 K. Edward III, 1329, which gave the king leave to assume the go-

- (c) See Morpeth.
- (d) Robertus filius Rogeri, tenet in capite de domino rege Baroniam de Warkworth, cum pertinen. per servic. unius seodi milit. Et Rogerus, filius Ricardi, patris ejus, tenuit per idem servic. post tempus Domini Henrici, patris domini regis Johannis, qui prædictum manerium cum pertinen. ei dedit in seodo. Et de seodo illo nulla est alienatio, &c. unde dominus rex minus habeat de servicio.

  Testa de Nevill.

Hæres filii Roberti tenet de domino rege in capite villam suam de Warkworth, Acklington cum Parka, Birling, cum Budleston superior. Membro suo, et quartam partem de Toggesden, per servicium unius seodi militis de veteri seossamento.

Escaet. de anno I Edvardi I.

vernment of his kingdom, though under age. He also sate in the next parliament at Westminster, called 12 March, 6 K. Edward III, 1332; remarkable for being the first time upon record for the commons of England making a distinct house from the Lords, though without a speaker; and it is believed, that from this period may be dated the first appointment of Justices of Peace, such as we have now.

His lordship had a grant of crown-lands, during his life, of the value of 405 l. per annum; the patent dated, 20th Nov. 6 K. Edward I; in consideration of making the crown his heir to his baronies of Warkworth and Rothbury, and his manours of Corbridge and Newburn (e); the reversion of which were given to Henry Lord

(e) Rex, &c. sciatis, quod cum dilectus et fidelis noster Johannes de Clavering concesserit nobis benevolè et gratantèr, quod ipse de castro suo de Warkworth, et maneriis suis de Roubury, Neuburn, et Corbrigg, cum pertinen. in com. Northumbr. et de manerio fuo de Eure cum pertinen. in com. Buck. quæ de nobis tenentur in capite, feoffavit Stephanum de Trafford; habend, eidem Stephano et hæredibus fois, de nobis et hæredibus nostris, per servicia inde debita et consucta in perpetuum: ita quod idem Stephanus habita inde plena et pacifica feifina de prædict. Castro et manerio de Roubury cum pertinen. refeoffet prædictum Johannem; habend, et tenend, ad totam vitam ejusdem Johannis; ita quod post mortem ipsius Johannis idem castrum et manerium de Reubury remancant nob's et hæredibus nostris in perpetuum: et de prædicto neanerio de Eure cum pertinen. refeosfet prædictum Johannem et Hawisam uxorem ejus; habend. et tenend. ad totam vitam ipfius Johannis et Hawifæ idem manerium de Eure cum pertinen, nobis et hæredibus nostris reman, in perpetuum : et de prædictis maneriis de Newburn et Corbrigg cum pertinen. refeoffet prædictum Johannem; habend. et tenend, fibi et hæredibus fuis masculis de corpore suo legitime procreatis de nobis et hæredibus nostris per servicia prædicta in perpetuum; reversione dictorum maneriorum de Newburn et Corbrigg, pro defectû talis exitus, reg. et hæred. fatis spectante. Quæ castra et maneria cum pertinen, ad valorem 700 l. per annum fe extendunt, unde finis levatus citra festum purificationis beatæ Mariæ proximo futurum. Nos in confideratione præmissorum concessimus eidem Johanni in valorem 400 l. terræ per annum, manerium nostrum de Cotesey, hundred noftra de Lodwing, Knavering, Holte, Depewade, Henstede, North Erpingham, South Erpingham, East Flegg, West Flegg, Happing, Waisham, Taverham, Blofeld, et Humherd, cum pertinen. Lord Percy, the patent dated, 2 March, 2 K. Edward III (f); now in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Northumberland.

The castle is on an eminence, above the village of Warkworth; the principal tower, and some other parts of the building, still remaining, magnificent in their ruins.

pertinen. in com. Suffol et manerium nostrum de Rodeston, cum pertinen. in com. Northampt. et manerium de Apethorp, cum pertinen. una cum xxviii s. reddit. de ferma terræ Oliveri Aspul, ibidem: quæ maneria et hundreda ad 405 li. 21 d. extenduntur per annum; habend. eidem Johanni ad totam vitam suam, &c. Teste rege apud Westminst. 20. Nov. per ipsum regem et consilium.

Ex Rot. Claus. de anno 6 Edvardi I. m. 11.

(f) Rex d'lecto et fideli suo Johanni de Clavering, salutem. Cum in quadam indentura inter nos et dilectum confanguineum et fidelem nostrum Henricum de Percy, super morâ sua nobifcum pro pace et pro guerra, pro certo numero hominum ad arma, ad totam vitam ipfius Henrici, contineatur, quod idem Henricus caperet a nobis per annum pro feodo suo quingintas marcas tempore pacis et guerræ, concesserimus pro nobis et hæredibus nostris, quod castrum de Werkworth, et omnes alias terras, et tenem. cum pertinen. in com. Northumbr. quæ vos tenetis ad terminum vitæ vestræ, et quæ post mostem vestram ad nos et hæredes nostros reverti deberent, post descessium vestrum; ac etiam omnia alia, terr. et tenementa. cum pertinen, in eodem comit. quæ vos tenetis vobis et hæredibus masculis de corpore vestro exeuntibus, et quæ ad nos et hæredes nostros, si vos sine hærede masculo de corpore vestro obieritis, remaneant præfato Henrico, et hæredibus suis; tenend. de nobis et hæredibus nostris per servicia inde debita et consueta in perpetuum; ita quod quandocunque idem Henricus post mortem vestram plenam seisinam de castro, et aliis terris et tenementis prædictis, virtute concessionis nostræ prædistæ, suerit assecutus, quod tunc solutio dicti seodi quingintarum marcarum cesset; et quod nos de eodem feodo penes ipsum Henricum exonerati simus, et quieti; ita quod si prædictum castrum, terræ, et tenementa, valorum prædictarum quingintarum marcarum per annum excedant; quod idem Henricus et hæredes sui, postquam ipsi seisinam de iisdem, castro, terris, et tenementis, post mortem vestram erint assecuti, de surplufagio illo valorem dictarum quingentarum marcarum fic extendente, respondeant nobis et hæredibus nostris ad scaccarium nostrum et hæredum nostrorum, prout in literis patentibus inde confectis plenius continetur. Vobis mandamus quod eidem Henrico, de eo quod ad vos pertinet, attendentes sitis, et respondentes. In cujus, &c. Teste rege apud Eboracum sea cundo die Martii. Pat. de anno 2 Edvardi III. p. 1. m. 20.

Vol. II. Z z At

At the foot of the village is the church, with a tall spire, a fine contrast with the octagon-tower; the street seeming as a spacious avenue between them. In the tower is a large clock; the following inscription on the dial-plate.

W. R.

1700.

EX DONO GEO. LAWSON, GLOSTER-HILL, GENEROSI.

Within the church, at the fouth-west end, by the entrance, is the funeral-monument and effigies of a Knight-Templer, with this inscription.

The effigies of Sir Hugh de Morwick, who gave the Common to this town of Warkworth.

In a pain of stained glass, in the east window of the south isle, are two semale sigures; the name of St. Hilda by them, in Saxon characters. It is a handsome church; a neat vestry in it; two good bells in the tower; the chancel wainscotted to the bottom of the windows; the roof cieled, and adorned with arched and knott-work.

By the entrance into the chancel, on the right hand, is a very neat mural monument of the Berlin-freestone, with this infcription.

Juxta hunc locum

Jacent reliquiæ

Wilfridi Lawfon,

Hujus ecclesiæ vicarii. Obiit

ijus ecciena vicarii. Odiit

Apr. 1. 1732.

In vita, labor et periculum, in moriendo Pax, et refurgendi fecuritas. On the west side of the church, is the vicarage-house; the river Coquet on the north side of it, crossed by a stone-bridge of three arches; an upright stone pillar on the middle, with the Percy-arms sculptured; a square tower at the south end; the gate formerly of iron, with port-cullices. Twenty marks were left towards rebuilding this bridge by Mr. John Cook, of Newcastle upon Tyne, 2 K. Richard II, 1379. The river enters the ocean about a mile below it, and is capable of being made navigable up to it for small vessels; the villa formerly much resorted to by merchants (c); the situation inviting commerce. It has three annual fairs, viz. on Thursday before St. George's, St. Lavrence's, and St. Martin's day; a weekly market on Thursday.

A quarter of a mile west from Warkworth in the antient park, on the northern banks of the river Coquet, is

The Hermitage, a cell of two Benedictine monks from Durham, for whose maintenance Nicholas de Farnham, Bishop of that See in the reign of K. Henry III, appropriated the church of Brankston, confirmed by his successor, Walter de Kirkham (d). It consists of a small chapel, and a bed-chamber, cut out of a solid rock of white rag-stone, in the Saxon-gothic stile; the chapel curiously adorned with side-pilasters, and the roof of knot-work. In the sole of a window, at the south end of the altar, is the essigies of the Blessed Virgin, sculptured in stone, recumbent; another of the child Jesus on her right hand, standing, his left hand resting upon her shoulder; at her feet, in a nich in the wall, is the effigies of an hermit, in the attitude of prayer; by him a Bull's head; all in high relief. Over the entrance into the chamber, is a 'scutcheon of arms, now effaced. Next the river is the ruin of a small building, with a fire-place; probably the kitchen; above, there seems to have been a chamber, from the appearance of holes in the rock for the timber. On the south-east side of the rock, is a door and winding stairs cut out of it, leading to their little olitory or garden. The range of rocks eastward are of a considerable height and length; a fountain of soft and pleasant water under them; above them, spreading oaks and brushwood; the river passing by in a silent stream.

(c) Lel. Itin.

(d) Angl. Sacr. tom. r. p. 738.

Bp. Tanner's Notitia Monastica, fol. p. 396.

Near the 10th mile-stone, we cross the river Coquet by a stonebridge of three arches, on the north side of which is

Felton, a pleasant, well built villa, on a gradual slope. Here the Barons of Northumberland did homage to Alexander, King of Scotland, 18th of K. John, 1216; who in resentment laid it and several other places in ashes. It was one of the manours of the Barony of Mitsord. It was possessed by the Bertrams (e); by the Earl and Countess of Pembrake (f); by the Earls of Atholl; by Sir Thomas Inquisit. capta apud Novum Castrum, 14 die Septembris, de anno 10 Ed. II.

(e) See Mitford.

(f) Dicunt juratores super sacrum suum, quod Adomarus de Valentia, comes Pembrochiæ, tenuit in dominico suo, ut de seodo, die quo obiit manerium de Felton, cum pertinentibus, una cum quibusdam tenementis in Thriston, in com. prædicto, de dom. rege in capite.

Item, dicunt juratores super sacrum, quod Johannes de Hastings, ætat. anno xxx; Johanna, uxor comitis de Athell, ætat. anno xxvi; et Elizabetha Cumen, soror ejusdem Johannæ, ætat. anno xvi; sunt consanguin. et propinquiores hæredes prædicti Adomari.

Thomas and Sir Ralph Percy; by Sir John le Scrope (g); and by the antient family of the Lisles. It was in the possession of Sir Robert Lisle, high sheriff of Northumberland, 11th K. Henry IV, and 9th K. Henry V; who died, 4th K. Henry VI; his Arms, or, a fess, betwixt two cheverons, sable (h); of Thomas Lisle, 10 Q. Elizabeth (i); of Robert Lisle, 14 K. Charles I (k). It was lately in the possession of Edward Horsley Widdrington, Esq; and now of his son-in-law, Thomas Ridell, of Swinburn-Castle, Esq.

Above the bridge, on an eminence, is the church, dedicated to St. Michael. On the north-east side is the vicarage-house, over the entrance of which is the following inscription.

Dicunt juratores super sacrum suum, quod Maria de Sansto Paulo, ac de Pembrochia, comitissa, tenuit in dote, die quo obiit, manerium, villam et sorestam de Felton, cum pertinentibus, ex donatione Adomari de Valentia, comitis Pembrochiæ, quondam viri sui; reversione dicti manerii, villæ, et sores cum pertinentibus, spectant. post mortem præsatæ comitisse, Elizabethæ, uxori Thomæ de Percy, et Johannæ, uxori Radulphi de Percy, certis siliabus Davil. de Strabol y, nuper comitis Atholl, silii David et Johannæ uxoris ejus, &c.

Et dicunt juratores super sacrum, quod dicta comitissa obiit circiter xv die Marcii, anno 51 Ed. III.

Inquisit. capta apud Novum Castrum super Tynam, 21 die Maii, anno 51 Ed. III. Ex bundello escaetr. Turri Londin. n. 20.

- (g) Vid. Pont-Eland.
- (b) Escaet. de anno 11 Hen. IV. n. 31.

  9 Hen. V. n. 54.

  4 Hen. VI. Robertus Lisse, Chr. obiit seisitus de et in manerio de Felton.
- (i) Thomas Lijle fuit seisitus de et in villa de Felton, Elibaugh, South Gosforth, Cox-lodge, Cat-hugh, cum terris in Weldon.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.
  - (1) Robertus Liste, Arm. filius Roberti, tenet in capite manerium de Felton.

    Escaet. de anno 14 Car. I.

A

1683,

Has Ædes

pofuit

Robertus Henderson

Trinitatis Colleg. Cantab.

Tempore Barrowni, tempore Newtoni,

Socius:

Hujus et ecclesiæ

Non indignus vicarius.

Pietatis ergo pofuit

Hoc patri filius testimonium,

1758.

At the west end of the village, is a handsome modern structure, called,

Felton-Hall, the occasional residence of Mr. Ridell, built by Mr. Widdrington; the gardens to the east; the river Coquet taking its course between two hanging banks of wood at a small distance to the south.

By Alnwick-turnpike-gate, a road branches off, on the right hand, to Alnmouth, a manour and fea-port of the Barony of Alnwick, belonging to his Grace the Duke of Northumberland. It stands at the Offium, and on the north fide, of the river Aln (1), on a rising

(1) Alaunus. Ptolomy.

Alauna. Richard of Cirencester.

Alne. Camden.

Awne. Stukeley.

Ail. Vulge.

ground; three miles from Warkworth, and four from Alnwick. It is a small, well built town. The principal export is corn, kept in large granaries, the largest, perhaps, in the county; the import, Norway-timber, and goods from London, Holland, and other places. On a hill, close by the sea, is the ruin of a church, which has been in the form of a cross. The church-yard is still used as a burial-ground; on the east side of which, bones of a very uncommon size have been washed out by the sea. The tide slows about a mile up the river, to the village of Lesbury, where is now the parish-church. The river is easily crossed on horse-back at ebb-tides. A new ship, of near 300 tons, was built and launched at this port on Wednesday, 13th March, 1765, supposed to have been the first ever built at it.

A little beyond the turnpike-gate above mentioned, is the antient town of Alnwick, which at the conquest was the barony of a young lady, the daughter of a noble Saxon, William Tyson, slain in the defence of the liberties of his country, and of his sovereign, K. Harold, at the battle of Hastings (a). The victorious Norman, K. William I, disposed of her in marriage, with this barony, and her baronial inheritance of Malton, in Yorkshire, to one of his favourite lords, Ivo de Vescy (b). His daughter and heir, Beatrix, was given in marriage by K. Henry I, with both these baronies, to Eustace Fitz-John; father of William, grandfather of Eustace, great grandfather of William, and great, great grandfather of John de Vescy; who successively held the barony of Alnwick of the king in capite by the service of xviii knights fees of the old feossment (c):

The

(a) Dugd. Monast. Angl. vol. ii. p. 592.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Eustachius de Vescy tenet in capite de Domino Rege Baroniam de Alnewick, per servicium xviii seod. milit. et præterea tenet Bodill et Spinleston; scilicet duas villas et molendi-

The Lord Euflace had great alliances by marriage; his eldeft fister, Matilda, marrying Robert de Muschamp, the first Baron of Wooler; his younger fifter, Cicilia, marrying Hugh de Baliol, Baron of Bywell; and he himself marrying Agnes, daughter of William King of Scotland; and his own mother being of the noble house of Stutvile, of Knaresbrough, in Yorksbire, the daughter of Lord Robert Stutvile. He, and the rest of the Barons of Northumberland, in confederacy against K. John, did homage to his royal brother, Alexander King of Scotland, at Felton, 1216; their army, stiled The Army of God and of the Holy Church, commanded by Robert Fitz-Walter, a General of experienced valour and prudence; in refentment of which defection, K. John laid Felton, and many other towns, in ashes. The two brothers, King Alexander and the Lord Eustace, being before the town of Bernard Castle in the fame year, to beliege it, and taking a near exploratory view of its ftrength on horse-back, his lordship was killed by an arrow of one of the townsmen (d). His grandson, John Vescy, was sum-num de Warnet, quas Dominus Rex Henricus primus, dedit Eustach. fil. Johan. ante ipse Eussachius habuit ad incrementum servicii sui: Et omnes antecessores sui tenuerunt post tempus, &c. Et de seodo illo nulla est alienato, &c. unde, &c. Testa de Nevill.

Willielmus V sey tenet in capite de Domino Rege Ainwick, Alnemouth, Denwicke, Hawkle, Bilton, Lesburie, Shilbotle, Nuton super mare, Hazaunt, Guysens, Ruglye, Morwicke, East Chevington, Houghton et Houghton, Howicke, Rynington, Rocke, Charleton et Charleton, Falowden, Burneton, Batell, Nuton super Moram, Preston, Tughall, Swynhoe, Newham, Cummyn; Lucker, cum Hoppen, membro suo; Horton, Turbilmell, Edderston, Spyndleston, Budle, Elwicke; Doddington, cum Nesbet, membro suo; Hezlerigge, Lyham, Chatton, Fowburye, Weitwood, Caldmarton, Yeardhill, Ingram, cum Revelye et Hartesyde, suis membris; Prendwicke, Fawdon, Alneham, Hudbernelaw, Ambell, Hawxley, Weitwham, Bitlesden, Clenhill, Netherton, Burraden, Alnewhynton, Hetton, Sharperton, Tharneham, Scranwood, Chillingham, Eworth, et Hebburne per xviii seoda vet. seoffamenti.

(chron. de Metrofs.

moned to fit in the famous parliament, 48 K. Henry III, 1264; which, with the parliament in the year following, and in another in the 18th of K. Edward I. are believed to be the models of our present parliaments, consisting of Lords and Commons; this, whereto his lordship was summoned, being the first of that kind upon record for the commons to have a fhare in the legiflature (e). In the expedition against the Welch, 11 K. Edward I, 1282, his lordship commanded the Gascoigners (f). He died in that king's reign. To his only daughter, married to Sir Gilbert de Aiton, Knight of Aiton, by the river Derwent, near Scarbrough, he gave his barony of Malton. He gave his barony of Alawick to an illegitimate fon, William Vefey, a minor, who for fome difcourtefy done to his guardian and feoffce in truft, Anthony Beck, bishop of Durham, was not permitted to take possession of it (g); being fold to Henry Lord Percy, baron of Topcliffe and Spofford, in Yorkshire, 3 K. Edward II, 1310; his Majesty and Sir Gilbert de Aiton confirming the title in the fame year (b).

Of the noble house of Percy (i) there were five Lords and thirteen Earls; William the first Lord Percy coming into England with K. William I, and presented with a barony of thirty knights fees (k),

- (e) See the Writ of Summons in the Fædera Anglicana.
- (f) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 283.
- (g) Dugdale.

- (h) Rym. Feed. vol. ii. p. 199.
- (i) Perci. Madox.
  Percie. Camden.
  Piercy. Speed.
  Percy. Rot. Mag. Northumbr.
- (k) Madox's Baron. Anglic. p. 31. 93. 224.

Henry, the fourth Lord Percy, who added to the grandeur of his family by the acquisition of the barony of Alnwick, was fummoned to the parliament at Carlifle, 35 K. Edward I, 1307. His Lordship, with the Lord Robert Clifford, and the Earl of Pembroke. obtained a compleat victory over Robert Bruce, at Methfen, in Scotland, foon after his coronation at Scone. Among the prisoners was his Oueen, daughter to the Earl of Ulfter, who at the folemnity of their coronation is recorded to have faid, "That she feared "they should prove but as a summer-king and queen, such as "in country-towns the young folks choose for sport, to dance "about may-poles." The king gave the earldom of Carrick, her husband's inheritance, to Lord Henry Percy; who in endeavouring to fecure the rents from being feized, loft part of his armed retinue, horses and plate, and was forced to take refuge in a Scotch fortrefs, till relieved by his fovereign, K. Edward. Lord Robert Clifford was presented by his Majesty with Hert and Hertness, in the Bishoprick of Durham, faving always the right yet that belonged to the church of Durham, Totenham and Totenbamshire (1).

Henry Lord Percy was one of the twelve barons to whom the government of England was affigned in the minority of K. Edward III, 1327. The year following he lost his Scotch possessions, no Englishman being then permitted to hold any in Scotland, unless he lived upon them, and became a Scotch subject, said to be owing to the counsel of the queen dowager of England, and the Lord Mortimer. He was summoned to the samous parliament at Westminster, 23d October, 3 K. Edward III, 1329. He was one of the lords sent to Paris to negotiate a treaty, 5 K. Edward III,

<sup>(1)</sup> Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 314.

363

1331. He died, 17th February, 26 K. Edward III, 1352 (m). His fon.

Henry, the fifth Lord Percy, was then thirty years of age, and fucceeded him in his barony of Alnwick, &c. (n). He led part of the

(m) Henricus Percy, qui diem suum clausit extremum tenuit de Domino Rege in capite die quo obiit in comit. Northumbr. castrum et manerium de Alnwick, et etiam villas de Eurnton, Preston, Scranwood, quas Johannes de Stryvlyn, miles, tenet de præsato Henrico in dominico, per homagium et per servicium unius seodi, et tertiæ partis unius seodi milit. et pro sidelitate et pro servicio reddendi annuatim 15 die Julii  $9\frac{\pi}{2}d$ . pro warda castri prædicti, et valet per annum 20 l. et etiam villas de Newton juxta mare, et Yardhill, qu is Nicholas de Sancto Mauro tenet, &c. Et dicunt juratores, quod præsatus Henricus obiit 17 die Februarii, ult. præterit. et quod Henricus, filius præsati Henrici, desuncti, est hæres ejus propinquior, et ætatis triginta annorum.

Inquisit. ex bundello escaetr. Turri Londinensi, No. 52, capta apud Alnwick in comit. Northumbr. vicessimo primo die Marcii, 26 Edwardi III, coram Johanne de Coupeland, escaetore Dom. Regis in prædicto comit. virtute brevis prædicti regis.

(n) Henricus de Percy, filius et hæres Henrici de Percy, tenuit de rege in capite castra, maneria, terras, et tenementa subscripta, per diversa servicia, viz. castrum et manerium de Alnwick, et villam de Alnmouth, Benley, Lesbury, Magna Houghton, Tughall, Chatton, et quandam placeam pastur. vocat. Swynle-sheels, in comit. Northumbr. per servicium nonæ partis baroniæ de Alnwick, juxta quod servicium dat. lx l. pro relievio suo; ac castrum et manerium de Warkworth, cum villa de Berlin, Acklington, Rothbury, le Newton, Thropton, et Snitter, ad eundem castrum et manerium pertinen. in comit. Northumbr. per service, duorum seod. milit. et x l. et burg de Corbriggs in prædicto comit. per servic. reddend. ad scaccarium regis x l l. per annum, de veteri serma, et de incremento ejusdem; cuj is burgi valor non dedicit excedere prædict. x l l. per ann. et de diversis asiis terris et tenem. ibidem annotat.

Rot. Turri Londinens, Mich. Fin. vicessimo 8vo R. Ed. III.

Henricus de Percy, Dominus de Spofford, filius et hæres Henrici de Percy, nuper Domini de Spofford, cognovit se tenere de rege in capite, castrum et manerium de Alnwick, cum membris suis, in comit. Northumbr. viz. villam de Alnmouth, Denwike, Lesbury, Magna Houghton, Chatton, Alnham, et quandam placeam vocat. Swinle-sheels, cum pertinen. in prædicto comit. Northumbr. cum seod. milit. advocat. eccles. dom. religios. et hospital.

A 2 2 2

the first wing of the English army at the battle of Nevill's Cross, near Durham, and Ralph Lord Nevill part of the second, under the heroic Queen Philippa, on the first Saturday after Michaelmas, 20 K. Edward III, 1346; six weeks after the glorious victory obtained over the French at Cressy. His brother, Sir Thomas Percy, was made governour of Poictou, 44 K. Edward III, 1370, on the death of the famous Lord Chandois, whose rare and excellent qualities endeared him both to the English and French nation.

His lordship was general of all the king's forces in France, marshal of England, and created Earl of Northumberland, 1 K. Richard II, 1377; and in the same year was summoned by writ to the parliament at Westminster; Sir Peter de la Mare, knight of the shire for Herefordshire, being chosen speaker of the commons, the first upon record. His brother, Sir Thomas Percy, was made admiral of England the year following, joined in commission in that high office with the samous Sir Hugh Calverley. Being on a cruise together, soon after their appointment, they took a French man of war, and seven merchants ships, richly loaden. They eisdem castr. maner. et vill. pertinen. per servic. quatuor unius baroniæ, viz. Baroniæ de Alnwick, baroniæ integræ in quinque partes; dominicum, et castrum, et manerium, de Warkworth, cum pertinen. in prædicto comit. Northumbr. cum villa de Aklynton, Berlin, Rothbury, Snitter, Thropton, le Newton, le Newburne, cum Butterlaw, Beanly, Walbotell, parcell. prædicti manerii de Warkworth, cum suis pertinen. una cum seod. milit. ac burg. de Corbridge, cum pertinen. in prædicto comit. Northumbr. per sidelit. et servic. reddendi eidem Dom. Regi in antiquo per ann. in scaccarium suum xl. de veteri serma, pro omni servicio; et postea idem rex dedit sermam prædicto Henrico de Percy, et hæsedibus suis in perpetuum, ac etiam manerium de Spossord ac Topclisse, et Seimour, cum membris, viz. Thurstanby, et Bynnington, quæ sunt parcellæ dicti manerii de Seimour, cum pertinen. suis in comit. Eboraci, una cum seod. milit. ac etiam manerium de Swinhowe et Tughall, cum membris et pertinen. de rege in capite, per servic. quartæ partis baroniæ de Alnwick, viz. baron. in quinque partes divis. nec non manerium de Leckensield.

Rot. Turri Londinenfi, Mich. Fin. 7mo. R. Ric. II.

were both at fea in the great florm, 1379. Sir Thomas being attacked by a Spanish ship after the storm was over, engaged her with so much resolution and spirit, that he took her, and sold her cargoe at the first port; and then sailed, through many perils, to Brest, of which he and Sir Hugh were governors. Sir Hugh narrowly escaped being drowned in this tempest, only himself and seven men being saved of his whole ship's company.

Sir Thomas was admiral of the whole fleet in an expedition to Spain, 8 K. Richard II, 1386, in the month of May; the good Duke of Lancaster general of the forces. Sir Henry Percy, cousin to the Earl of Northumberland, and the Lord Poinings, were commanders under him. They were both swept away by a great sickness the year following, with half of the army.

Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, and his two fons, Sir Henry and Sir Ralph Percy, were defeated by the Scots, at Otterburn, 12 K. Richard II, 1388; his two fons taken prifoners; and the Scotch General, Earl Douglas, flain (0).

His Lordship being at his government of Calais, 15 K. Richard II, 1391, he was recalled home, and made lord-warden of the west marches. His brother, Sir Thomas, was one of the three ambassadors sent to France the year following. He was made lord steward of the king's houshold, 17 K. Richard II, 1393; and in the same year, Sir Thomas Percy, junr. was made warden of Bourdeaux and Aquitain in France. The lord steward was created Earl of Worcester, 21 K. Richard II, 1397. His seat was at Wrefil-Caftle, by the oftium of the river Derwent, in Yorkshire, purchased of the Lucies, and rebuilt by him, after a design so magnificent, elegant, and curious, as to exceed, in the judgment of an eminent antiquary, all the buildings on the other fide of Trent (0): the fituation fomewhat higher than the rest of the country; the walls of stone, large and square, and some of it so fine, as to be thought to be imported from France; five towers at each corner; in one of them a fludy, called Paradife, where was a closet in the middle of eight fquares, latticed about; at the top of every fquare, a desk, ledged, to set books on, with drawers within, and feeming as if firmly joined to the top of the closet, yet one or all would come down, and serve for book-desks. It was moted round, except the entrance; a chapel and gardens within the mote, and orchards without, wherein were mounts opere topiario, with winding walks, to afcend to the top without pain.

<sup>(0)</sup> See Otterburn.

Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, and his fon, Sir Henry Percy, wardens of the West and East marches against Scotland, with the Earl of Westmorland, congratulated Henry Duke of Lancaster and Hereford at Doncaster, after his landing at Ravenspur, in Yorkshire, whom the Lord Ros, Baron of Wark and Helmfly, and other Lords, had joined before, 22 K. Richard II, 1399; all the noblemen and men of note in the nation following their example, and receiving him for their fovereign; King Richard being left without one confolatory friend. So general was the national defection, that Father Orleans, in his History of the Revolutions in England, fays, that even the king's favourite greyhound left him, and fawned upon the duke (p). After his being taken at Conway-castle, in Wales, and conducted to the duke at Flint-castle, he was carried from one place to another for many days, in one single, plain suit of cloaths, though accustomed to elegance and magnificence in dress, one coat of gold and gems being valued at 30,000 marks (q).

<sup>(0)</sup> Lel. Itin. vol. vi. p. 13.

(p) Pere d'Orleans, tom. ii. p. 188. Stow's Chron. p. 316, 317. Collier's Ecclef. Hift. vol. i. p. 601, 602.

The new fovereign, K. Henry IV, to reward the fervices of the Earl of Northumberland, made him high conflable of England, his patent bearing date September 30th, 1399, at Westminster. also give him the Isle of Man, with the privilege of carrying the fword, called the Lancaster-sword, at coronations; the patent dated November 19th, 1399, at Westminster (r). His brother, Thomas, Earl of Worcester, had the post of deputy high steward conferred upon him, during the minority of Thomas Earl of Lancaster, the king's fecond fon, the patent dated October 8th, 1399, at Westminster (s). He was also made governor to the Prince of Wales (t); and appointed ambassador to France, with Walter Skirlaw, bishop of Durham. He was fent the year following with his nephew, Sir Hugh Haftings, and others, to reduce the revolting Gascoigners to their duty on the death of K. Richard; which he performed, not by force of arms, but by his wisdom and address, by the powers of perfuaiion, and the engaging charms of affability and condefcention (u).

The Earl of Northumberland, and his fon, Henry Lord Percy, stiled by an admired historian, for his martial heroism, "the

(q) See the record and instrument of the renuntiation of the unfortunate K. Richard II, at the end of the x script. Hist. Angl. by Sir Roger Twisden, col. 2743; and in the Hist. of his Life by an anonymous person of quality, 8vo. Lond. 1681. p. 192, &c.

(r) Rym. Fæd. vol. viii. p. 89. 95. Acta Regia, vol. ii. 8vo. p. 62, 69, 70.

<sup>(5)</sup> Rym. Fæd. vol. viii. p. 90. Acta Regia, vol. ii. 8vo. p. 69.

(t) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 509.

(u) Id. p. 518.

"bravest man in England (v)," obtained a great victory over the Scots at Nesbit in the Merse, 22 June, 3 K. Henry IV, 1402 (w). They obtained another victory over them at Humbledon, near Wooler, on Holy Rood-day, in September, in the same year; an upright stone-column still standing in memory of it.

The Earl of Northumberland first married Margaret, the daughter of Ralph Lord Nevill. He next married Matilda, the widow of Sir Gilbert Humfranvill, Earl of Angus, daughter to Thomas Lord Lucy, and fister and heir to Anthony Lord Lucy; who out of her great affection settled upon his lordship, and his heirs, all her honours and lands, the baronies of Cockermouth and Egermond, in Cumberland, and the baronies of Langley and Prudhow, in this county, on condition of quartering the arms of the Lucies, with his own (x).

His fon, Henry Lord Percy, married Elizabeth, the daughter of Edmund Mortimer the elder, by Philippa, the daughter of Lionel Duke of Clarence. He was flain at Shrewfbury, on Saturday, St. Mary Magdalen's Even, 4 K. Henry IV, 1403. His father was flain at Brambam-moor, 11 K. Henry IV, 1408; both lamented with a general forrow throughout the nation, for the glory of their arms, their princely magnificence, and patriotic spirit (y).

Henry Percy, the second Earl of Northumberland, son to Henry Lord Percy, was summoned by writ to the parliament at Westminster, with Ralph Nevill, Earl of Westmorland, 2 K. Henry VI, 1423; and 29 K. Henry VI, 1451. He was created knight of the most noble order of St. George, commonly called the garter; and appointed lord warden towards Scotland.

(v) Rapin. (w) Acta Regia, vol. ii. 8vo. p. 80.

(x) See Langley and Prudhew. Camd. Brit. ed. opt. p. 866.

(y) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 534.

His lordship invading Scotland with 4000 men, 14 K. Henry VI, 1435, was defeated by William Douglas, Earl of Angus, at Piperden; 1500 Englishmen slain at that battle, among whom were Richard Percy, and John Ogle, &c.

He entered that kingdom a fecond time with considerable forces, 29 K. Henry VI, 1450. An experienced officer, named Magnus, commanded under him. They joined battle with the Scots near the river Sarc, commanded by Hugh Douglas, Earl of Ormont, and a valiant knight, Sir William Wallase of Craigy. The Scots on the first onset were ready to fly, but being animated by the exhortatory and pathetic address, exemplary bravery and spirit of their knightly leader, Sir William, they obtained a compleat victory. The Earl of Northumberland escaped by the help of his son Lord Percy, whose silial piety was such, that he chose rather to be taken prisoner himself, than his father. Sir John Pennington, a valiant officer, was taken prisoner with him.

The Earl of Northumberland in the time of peace and leifure patronized learning and the liberal arts. He most generously bestowed three fellowships upon University-college in Oxford, directing them to be filled up by fit persons, born in the diocese of Durham, York, and Carlisle; the natives of Northumberland always to have the preference, if equally deserving as other candidates.

His lordship for the better security of his castle and town of Alnwick against the Scots, encompassed the latter with a strong wall of stone, and embattled the former, by leave from the crown, 12 K. Henry VI, 1411; the town having sour large gates, and square towers; the castle, originally of Saxon soundation, large, with tall towers, and exploratory turrets; two spacious areas within, a chapel, and other buildings; the entrance to the west, above Vol. II.

B b b

which there has been the brabant-arms, born by the Percies, Or, a lyon rampant, azure; now effaced by the weather; the motto still legible, in the old English black letter, in relief;—

ESPERANCE ME COMFORTETH.

This great nobleman espousing the cause of his sovereign K. Henry VI, against the house of York, was slain at the battle of St. Albans, with John Lord Clifford, and others, 23 May, 1455. He was interred in the abbey-church of St. Albans, in the chapel of the Blessed Virgin. He married Eleanor, the daughter of Ralph Earl of Westmorland, widow of Richard Lord Spenser. His son,

Sir Henry Percy, Lord Poinings, the third Earl of Northumberland, was appointed Lord warden of the east marches towards Scotland, and justice of all the royal forests south of Trent, 33 K. Henry VI, 1459. his lordship being with Queen Margaret at the battle of Towton, was slain with the Earl of Westmorland and Lord Dacres, &c. on Palm-Sunday, 29th March, 1 K. Edward IV, 1461. He married Eleanor, the daughter and heir of Richard Lord Poinings, Brian, and Fitz-Pain; and in his father's life-time was summoned to the parliament at Westminster, by the stile and title of Sir Henry Percy, Baron Poinings, &c. 29 K. Henry VI, 1451. His son,

Henry Lord Percy, the fourth Earl of Northumberland, was fummoned by writ to the parliament at Westminster, 12 K. Edward IV, 1472; and made general warden of the marches towards Scotland, and justice of all the king's forests south of Trent. He was one of the generals of the army sent against Scotland, 22 K. Edward IV, 1482, and commanded the foreward; Sir John Middleton, of Belsay, the Lord Scrope, of Bolton, &c. commanding under him; Ralph Lord Greystock, Baron of Morpeth, bearing a command in the middle middle ward; the whole army encamped and marshalled at Aln-wick, about the beginning of July.

His lordship was summoned to the parliament at Westminster, 1 K. Richard III, 1484; and in the reign of K. Henry VII. was made Lieutenant of Yorkshire; in which high office endeavouring to suppress an insurrection on account of a subsidy to be raised for the public service, he was slain with many of his faithful atternation dants, 4 K. Henry VII, 1489 (c). He was interred in the classical at Beverley; a stately tomb erected over him. His dantises Eleanor, married Edward Stafford, the third Duke of Back His younger son, Alan Percy, D. D. was the first prover John's college, in Cambridge, appointed by the executors foundress, Margaret, countess of Richmond. His sepulture the inner chapel under a marble-stone, plated with brass. Less lordship's eldest son, Henry Lord Percy, the fifth Earl of Northumberland, was fummoned by writ to the parliament at Westminster, 25th June, 1 K. Henry VIII, 1509. He was appointed general warden of the marches towards Scotland, 14 K. Henry VIII, 1522; but not choosing to hold that office, the Earl of Surrey was made general warden, the Marquis of Dorset warden of the east and middle marches, and the Lord Dacres warden of the west marches.

His lordship was at Alnwick, 15 K. Henry VIII, 1523, with the Earls of Surrey and Westmorland, and the Lords Clifford, Dacres, Lumley, Ogle, Darcy, and others, with an army of 40,000 men, in their march against the Scots. He died, 18 K. Henry VIII, 1526.

(c) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 769. Lord Bacon in Bishop Kennet.

He married Catharine, the daughter of Sir Robert Spenser, Knt. His fon, Henry Lord Percy, the fixth Earl of Northumberland, was fummoned to the parliament at Westminster, 21 K. Henry VIII, 1530; when both the Archbishops, two Dukes, two Marquisses, his Lordship and twelve other Earls, four bishops, twenty-five barons, twenty-two abbots, and eleven knights and doctors, signed the famous letter or declaration to the Pope, concerning abuses in the church (d). He died without issue, 29th June, 29 K. Henry VIII, 1537. He married Mary, the daughter of George Earl of Shrewsbury. His brother, Sir Thomas Percy, being under an attainder, and incapable of succeeding him, he gave a great part of his estate to the crown. Queen Mary restored it entire to his nephew,

Thomas Percy, the feventh Earl of Northumberland, fon to Sir Thomas (e); who by letters patent was created Baron Percy, and Earl

(d) Lord Herbert in Bp. Kennet.

(e) Thomas comes Northumbriæ fuit seisitus de et in castro et manerio de Alnwick, cum villa; de et in castro, manerio, et villa de Warkworth; de et in castro, manerio, et villa de Prudhow; de et in manerio et castro de Langley, cum Haidon-Bridge; de et in manerio et villa de Newburn; de et in manerio et villa de Rothbury, cum foresta ibidem; de et in manerio et villa de Beanley; Hulm-Park, Hulm-Pilgrimage, Lesbury, Houghton longa, Alnmouth, Ovingham, Nether-sheels, Over-sheels, Snipe-house, Fawdon, Alneham, Overbuston, Berling, Acklington, cum Parka, Brotherwick, Thriston, Hare-low-hill, Magna Whelpinton, Birtley, Ingho, Buteland, East Hawdon, cum terris in Barressorth, et Gunnerton, Syde, Snapp, Smedwell-rigg, Hole, Hay-greens, Holinhead, Greenheld, Haugh, Black-middings, Sleley, Newbiggen, Came, Sydewood, Water-head, Gravesteed, S. Smale-burn, Smalemouth, Latham, Yarrow-hill, Fawstene, Cross-hill, Yarrow, Cariteth, Walwick-grange, Park-shelde, S. Charleton, Chatton, Lyham, Fowbury, Caldmarton, Brenkeburn, Gyseunt, Whitton, Barton, Bowmer, Denwick, Ellingham, Preston, Newham, Lucker, Warneford, Tughall, Swinhow, cum certis terris et tenem. in Rinnington, et villa

Earl of Northumberland, with limitation to him and his heirs-male, and failing them, to his younger brother, Henry Percy, and his heirs-male; the patent dated April 30th, and May 1st 1557, at Westminster. He was also made lord warden of the marches towards Scotland, with Lord Wharton; the patent bearing date August 2d. 1557, at Richmond (f). The Scots croffing the Tweed in the fame year, under the conduct of Sir Andrew Karr, were defeated by his lordship, and Sir John Forster, near Cheviot, after a very fevere and sharp engagement; Sir John being shot through the mouth into the neck, and through the thigh, and his horse killed under him; Sir Andrew Karr, the Scotch general taken prifoner. The year following, his lordship's brother, Sir Henry Percy, entered Scotland with about feven or eight hundred horse, and two thousand foot, and after burning the towns of Duns and Langton, engaged the Scotch forces at Swinton, and obtained a compleat victory; his valour, and the valour of his officers, greatly applauded. The two brothers had another encounter with the Scots, and their French auxiliaries, in the fame year, at Grindon, which ended in their total defeat; many of them in their flight drowned in the Tweed; four upright stone-pillars still to be seen on a hillock in a neigbouring field, memorials of the chieftains flain, and buried there (g).

His lordship carried the sword of state before the queen to the parliament-house, 5 Q. Mary, 1562. He was one of the eleven de Corbridge, cum certis terris in Titlington, Long-haugh, Newton, Boishill, Red-mire, Larder-burn, Bowght-hill, Green-haugh, Brunt-bank, Burn-mouth, et Dunstede.

Escaet. de anno 10 R. Eliz.

(f) Rym. Fæd. vol. xv. p. 46, 462, 468.
Acta Regia, vol. iii. 8vo. p. 409.

(g) See Grindon.

lords who protested against the validity of English ordinations, 8 Q. Elizabeth, 1566 (h). His brother, Sir Henry Percy, the eighth Earl of Northumberland, was fummoned by writ to the parliament at Westminster, 18th February, 17 Q. Elizabeth, 1575. He also sate in the parliament, 23 Q. Elizabeth, 1581, when an act passed both houses for fortifying the borders. He died, 21st June, 27 Q. Elizabeth, 1585 (i). He married Catharine, the eldest daughter and coheir of John Nevil, Lord Latimer, by whom he had eight sons and three daughters. His eldest son, Henry Lord Percy, the ninth Earl of Northumberland, was created Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter, for his services against the Spanish Armada, 30 Q. Elizabeth, 1588. He was summoned by writ to the parliament at Westminster, 21 K. James I, 1623; and I King Charles I, 1625.

His lordship was an eminent patron and encourager of genius and learning, especially of such as distinguished themselves by making useful discoveries, experiments, and observations. On Thomas Harriot, the learned friend, companion, and assistant of Sir Walter Raleigh in the discovery and survey of Virginia, he settled a pension of 120 l. per annum, on Sir Walter's recommendation. Thus liberal he was to two other ingenious men, Robert Hues, and Walter Warner, on whom he bestowed the like annuity. A donation to literary merit worthy of a Percy! being in Queen Elizabeth's reign a genteel support and maintenance. These three learned men were called the Earl of Northumberland's three Magi.

(h) Camden in Bishop Kennet.

(i) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 1403.

They were his companions in his best and worst fortunes. In the latter, in his confinement in the Tower, he would never be without them, had them constantly with him, provided them a table at his own charge. Sir Walter Raleigh being then likewise in the Tower, joined the sett, was much delighted in their company, and they formed a fort of philosophical society. Their prison was as an academy, where their thoughts were elevated above the common cares of life, explored science in all its pleasing forms, penetrated her most intricate, recesses, surveyed the whole globe, till Sir Walter's noble fabric arose, his history of the world, probably by the encouragement and persuasions of these his learned friends.

His lordship died, 8 K. Charles I, 1632; and was interred at Petworth, in Sussex. He married Dorothy, the daughter of Walter D'Evereux, Earl of Essex. His son, Algernon, Lord Percy, the tenth Earl of Northumberland, was fummoned by writ to the parliament, 3 Nov. 16 K. Charles I, 1640, by the stile and title of Earl of Northumberland, Lord Percy, Lucy, Poinings, Fitz-Pain, Brian, and Latimer, Knight of the Garter, and lord high admiral.

His lordship was admiral of the British navy, 12 K. Charles I, 1635. With sixty men of war he seized and sunk many of the sishing-vessels of the Dutch in the north seas, who sled to the king, praying his majesty's leave to fish and trade with his subjects according to treaty. He was appointed general in chief of the king's army against the parliament, 1640; but he declined it, on account of his health. The next year he had orders from his majesty to have the whole British navy ready for sea, but his indisposition still continuing, the vice-admiral, Sir John Pennington, had .

had the care of it. In the same year he was appointed by the parliament Lord Lieutenant of Northumberland, the town and county of Newcastle upon Tyne, and the town and county of Berwick upon Tweed; also of the county of Suffex, and of the isle of Anglesey. On the parliament's motion to raise money by subfcription, in June, 1642, his lordship subscribed 2000 l. and was discharged from being lord high admiral by his majesty, in July following, to which his lordship, favs his majesty in his proclamation, paid a dutiful obedience. He was one of the four lords and eight commoners appointed by the parliament in that year to be commissioners to the king at Oxford, where he lived in princely fplendour and magnificence. A bill for high treafon was preferred against him, and others, at Salisbury, 1643, but the jury would not find it. He was one of the five lords who affociated for the defence of the counties of Wilt/hire, Dorsetshire, Somerfetshire, Devonshire, and Cornwall, and with the members for them and the boroughs, had power, any eight of them, to raife money, appoint colonels, and other officers. He was one of the parliament-commissioners at the treaty of Uxbridge, Fanuary 29th, 1644. By their order, he took the charge of the education of his majefty's children. He was appointed one of the lords commissioners of the admiralty, 1645; and had a grant at the same time of 3000 l. per annum, for his care of the royal offspring. He was accused to the parliament for assisting his majesty with money, but there being no better evidence against him than hear-fay, he was acquitted, and at liberty to profecute the accufer; and was prefented with 10,000 l. in consideration of his losses in the north. After a visit from his majesty to his children at Sion-house, he got permission from the parliament to take them at any time to Hampton-court to fee their father,—exemplary and great in his fufferings! He was one of the commissioners at the treaty in the Isle of Wight. After his majesty's death, he was an interintercessor with the parliament for the support of the royal orphans.

His lordship's brother, Henry Percy, was a representative in parliament for Northumberland, but was expelled, 9th December, 17 K. Charles I, 1641, for endeavouring to engage the Northern army to free his majefty from the parliament-fetters, pour mettre le Pois hors de peine, as he called it; to keep up his majelly's revenue. maintain bishops in their rights and functions. He was betrayed. after a folemn oath taken, by colonel Goring, afterwards a general of horse under the Earl of Newcastle. With some difficulty and peril he escaped their vengeance. History has drawn his character in most amiable colours. His countenance was awful, and commanded respect. His mind liberal, and stored with knowledge, civil and military. This made him as able a general in the field, as he was a prudent and wife counfellor in the cabinet. In the former, he awed the parliament by his management and address, and in the latter embaraded their menfures; in both firm and intrepid; more formidable by his wifdom, than his power, though that was great; which he employed with the ardour and zeal of a patriot in the fervice of a good mafter, who, to reward him, created him a peer, by the file and title of Baron Percy, of Marwick, 28th June, 1643. He also made him lord chamberlain, and gave him in charge a treafure he loved well, the conduct of his Queen to Oxford. When the power of the parliament was too enormous to oppose, he retreated beyond fea, leaving behind him a great effate, and all its splendid apparatus, preferring before them a spotless loyalty, and an unwounded honour.

Algernon, Earl of Northumberland, died, October 13th, 1663. He first married Ann, the daughter of William Earl of Salisbury. He Vol. II. Ccc after-afterwards married Elizabeth, the daughter of Theophilus Earl of Suffolk, by whom he had a fon and heir to his great estate (k), Joceline, the eleventh Earl of Northumberland. His Lordship married Elizabeth, the third daughter and coheir of Thomas Wriothessey, Earl of Southampton. He died at Turin, May 21st, 1670 (1), leaving an only daughter, the Lady Elizabeth Percy, who inherited his splendid fortune, and the antient baronies of the family. Her ladyship had three husbands, Henry Cavendish, Earl of Ogle, son and heir to the Duke of Newtastle; Thomas Thynne, Esq; and Charles Duke of Somerset. By his Grace her Ladyship had, besides other children, Algernon, Earl of Hertsord, afterwards Duke of Somerset, who was created Earl of Northumberland, and at his death leaving an only daughter and heir, Elizabeth, now Dutchess of Northumberland, who in her own right is baroness Percy, Lucy Poinings, Fitz-pain, Brian, and Latimer. The titles of Earl of Northumberland and Baron Warkworth, devolved by the limitation in the patent to his Grace on his fon-in-law, the present Duke of Northumberland, knight of the most noble order of the garter, lord lieutenant of the counties of Northumberland and Middlesex, of the city and liberty of Westminster, and of the town, and county of the town, of Newcastle upon Tyne, vice-admiral of the county of Northumberland, and of all America, one of the lords of his majesty's most honourable privy council, and late lord lieutenant-general, and general-governor of the kingdom of Ireland.

(k) Algernon Percy comes Northumbr. filius Henrici, tenet in capite castrum de Alnwick, Parcum vocat. Cawledge-Park, West-Park, et Hulne-Park, ac dominica, maneria, terras, et tenementa, et hæreditates in Denwick, Houghton, Lesbury, Alnmouth, Bilton, Tughall, Newham, Newsteed, Lucker, South Charlton, Alnham cum Mora, Fawdon, Clynch, Chatton, Wooler, Rugley, Shield-dikes, Shilbottle, Renington, Lyham, Swinclere, Harccragg, Snipe house, Hestley-house, et Hall-Close. Ac castrum, dominicum, et manerium, et pertinen, de Warkworth, ac maneria, terr. et tenem, de Berling, Guisance, Thurston, Toggesdon, Buston, New-town, et Brotherwick, ac piscariam in aqua de Cocket; ac castr. baronia, ac dominica, et maneria de Prudhowe, et Beanley; ac dominica, ac maneria de Ovingham, Hely, Harelaw hill, Horsley, Whelpington, Ingho, Birtley, et Barresforth; ac dominica, et maneria de Rothbury, et forestam de Rothbury, ac maneria de New-town, Thropton, et Snitter, ac diversa tenem. et hæreditat in Newbiggen, Hedley, Penpugh, Thorn-haugh, et Ecclestrawe; et dominica, et maneria de Newburn, Corbridge, Wallbottle, Butterlaw, Throcklaw, et Dewley; ac divers, tenem. et hæreditat. in villa de Novo Castro super Tynam; ac dominic. maner. terr. tenem. et hæreditat. vocat. Talbots, in Lib. Foedr. Pet. Ofborne, Milit. Tinedale.

<sup>(1)</sup> See the Introduction to vol. i.

Alnwick-Castle, the seat of this noble family, was besieged, 2 K. William II, 1093, by Malcolm, King of Scots. He had with him his son and heir apparent, Prince Edward. Robert Movobray was then Earl and governor of Northumberland, a nobleman of great personal bravery, and military skill. Vexed to see his country invaded, for the fifth time, by that active monarch, he resolved to take revenge (m). Malcolm thought himself secure by the absence of the king's troops. Movobray considered this, and came suddenly upon him with the forces of his government. A smart battle ensued. The Scots being deprived of their usual courage by their surprize, gave ground. Their sovereign and his son, astonished to see it, rode from rank to rank, exhorting, intreating, and imploring them to remember the glory of the Scotch arms, and were both slain. This disaster compleated the rout, and left both the field and the castle to the English.

By the first mile-stone on the post-road, north from Alwwick, there is part of a cross or stone-column still remaining, erected in memory of this event, called Malcolm's Cross.

(m) Hol. Chron. vol ii. p. 21.

This castle underwent another siege, 20th K. Henry II. 1174, by William King of Scotland. He had with him an army of 80,000 men. Preferring plunder to a fiege, of which he had fmall hopes of fuccess, he gave orders to raise it, and pillage the country. A body of 400 horse at Newcastle, under the command of five gentlemen, hearing of their adventures, resolved to free their. country of them, or die in the attempt. Bernard Baliol, a gentleman of great resolution, spirit, and conduct, animated his companions, and led the way. They came upon the King unawares and on a fudden, his troops feattered and dispersed, intent only on fpoil and rapine. The king, alarmed at the danger of his fituation, by found of trumpet recalled as many of his men as were within hearing. The English attacked them with great courage. The Scots, not inferior in courage, but almost wearied to death with plundering, were over-matched, and victory declared against them. Their King, William, was taken prisoner, after the greatest efforts and struggles to prevent it. Many of his fcattered troops were taken prisoners ere they well knew their danger. Others fled. He was conducted to Richmond-caftle. from thence to London, and was afterwards fet at liberty by K. Henry II, for a large ranfom, the fum of 100,000 l. sterling, one moiety in ready money, and the other at an appointed time, delivering for fecurity the castles of Edenburgh, Roxburg, Berwick, Tedworth, and Sterling; also doing homage for his crown to England, the first example of that kind upon record, as a perpetual memorial of which he left his breast-plate, sword, and saddle, to be kept in York-Minster (n). This battle was fought on Saturday, 5th July, 1174; and ought to be remembered to the honour of Northumberland, and of this castle, which could make such formidable numbers despair of taking it (0).

(n) H. Knight, inter x scriptores.

<sup>(0)</sup> Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 91, 92.

Euftace de Vescy, 14 King John, 1212, being under suspicion at court of disaffection, orders were issued for demolishing his castle of Alnwick, but on his submission it suffered no harm.

After the battle of Hexham-field, 3 K. Edward IV, 1463, the Earl of Warwick, the Lord Montacute, the Lords Fauconbridge and Scrope, prefented themselves before it, and summoned Sir Peter Bresly, and his Norman auxiliaries, in the service of K. Henry VI, to surrender. Sir Peter not yielding, they resolved to besiege it. Sir George Douglas, Earl of Angus, came on the sirst notice to his relief with 13,000 Scotchmen. He then marched out with his friends, his enemies not daring to oppose, who were glad to take possession of the castle without a stroke (p).

It was fortified and put into a good state of defence, 1569(q).

It is now the feat of the Duke and Dutchess of Northumberland, who have repaired the castle in a very splendid and magnificent manner, in the antient Saxon-gothic stile; its situation elevated; the river Aln gliding under it to the east; from which point, and from the hill on the western road by the entrance into the town, it is a most striking and beautiful object.

Alnwick is the county-town, and a difused borough, of which the principal officers are the Duke's bailiff, and four chamberlains, annually chosen, who are freemen of the town. Those that are made free of it meet on St. Mark's day on the town-moor, formerly called the forest of Aidon, on horseback, in white cloathing, attended by the castle-bailiff, the four chamberlains, and most of the freemen, when, by antient custom, they pass through a deep bog, called the Freemen's Well, wherein they are fome times up to the chin.

(p) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 666.

The town stands very pleasantly, on irregular slopes, within four miles of the sea, a ridge of hills, and one higher than the rest, called Ratshugh-Crag, intercepting the prospect of it. Three ports and towers of the town-wall are still standing, viz. Bond-gate, a prison for debtors and delinquents; Clay-port, converted to a poor-house; Potter-gate, the tower without a roof. It hath the following streets.

Bond-gate-street; a good street, long, and well built, the entrance from Newcastle.

Market-street.

Narrow-gate-street; a good firect, the road to Berwick upon Tweed.

Clay-port-street; the road westward to Hebberlaw, &c.

Bailiff-gate-street; well built, leading from the castle to the church.

Potter-gate-street; leading to the moor.

Finckle-street.

The market is nearly in the center. On the west side of it is a market-house lately built by the Duke and Dutchess of Northumberland for the benefit of the corporation, after an elegant design, in the Saxon-gothic stile, containing seven apartments, with an ambulatory before them.

On the north fide of the market-place is a range of buildings, in which is the town-hall, entered by a flight of fleps, where the fessions for the county, and elections of the knights of the shire, are held; a tower over it, with a large clock.

The market is on Saturdays. It hath four annual fairs, viz. 12th May; the last Monday in July; the first Monday in October; 24th December.

In the evening before the fair, on the last Monday in July, the fleward of the court, and the bailiff, of the Duke and Dutchess of Northumberland, walk from the castle to the cross in the marketplace, attended by persons who owe fuit and service; that is to fay, the townships of Chatton and Chillingham, 4 men; Cold-Marton and Fowbury, 4 men; Hetton and Hezelrigge, 4 men; Fawdon and Clinch, 4 men; Alnham and Alnham-moor, 2 men; Tughall and Swinboe, 2 men; Long Houghton and Denwick, 4 men; Lesbury and Bilton, 2 men; Lyham and Lyham-hall, one man; with the principal inhabitants of the borough of Alnwick. The bailiff proclaims the fair in the name of the Duke and Dutchess of Northumberland. The men who attend for the feveral towns in fervice are obliged to keep watch at all parts of the town the night before the fair, which has been a custom for time immemorial. The next day the tenants of the Duke and Dutchess within the barony of Alnwick attend at the castle, when the steward and bailiff proceed from thence to the market-place, and proclaim the fair as before. They then go to the head of Clay-port-street, and return to Clay-port-tower, where the fair is proclaimed again; and from thence to the castle. The townships above mentioned are exempt from paying toll for 12 months, for their attendance; but if they do not attend, they must pay the same till the next year.

In the upper end of Potter-gate-street, is a grammar-school; the following inscription over the entrance.

Hec schola primo in usum municipum Alaunensum ædificata Anno Dom. 1687.
Nunc demum instauratur Anno Dom. 1741.

There is a neat fashed house and garden joining on to it for the accommodation of the master; the endowment reputed 25 l. or 30 l. per annum, arising chiefly out of the tolls of the town.

The town was burnt by the Scots, 1448, in refentment for the burning Dunfries by the English (r).

It gave its name to William de Alnwick, L. L. P. Confessor to Henry VI, 1424, and keeper of the privy-seal, recommended by his Majesty and his ministry for the Bishoprick of Ely, on the death of John Fordham, who held both that See and Durham, but missed of it by the Pope's interposition.

Alnwick-church stands at the end of Bailiff-gate-street. It is large; has three isles, extending through as many arches into the chancel; has four galleries, twenty-seven windows, great and small, and three bells which are small. It is a good church, kept neat; the chancel cieled; and the whole covered with lead; a neat tower for the bells.

(r) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 272.

On the back of the royal arms, over the arch of the middle ifle in entering the chancel, is this infcription, in Black characters;

Sumptibus Edvardi comitis cognomine Bedford; Cognita præclari funt hæc infignia clara.

ANNO DNI. 1600.

In a hollow nich of the wall of the fouth isle, there are three human figures in stone, recumbent; the hands elevated, in a supplicatory attitude.

On the fouth-east fide of the chancel, is a neat mural monument, with this inscription in capitals.—

Intra altaris fepta,
Concessu honestissimæ matris Janæ Graiæ,
Situs est

Alexander Banus, Scotus,
Juris patris in academia Edenburgena xiv amplius annos interpres
Elegantis vir ingenii,
Limatique ftyli,

Quietibus blandis graviora temperans studia; Nunc mechanica, nunc pictura, præsertim vèro, Qua plurimum excellebat, musica.

Hoc ille ingenio fimul et perpetua Morum honestate spectabilis, > Suorum lumen, Distidentium fanitas, Miserorum levamen, Sodalium delicium,

In itinere ad
Thermas Somerfetenses obiit x Kal. Maii, A. D.
MDCCXXXVII Ætat. LII.

Splenduit.

Bene merenti viro

Monumentum fida

Pofuit uxor,

Maria Carftairs.

Above, is the effigies of the deceased on a brass plate, over which is his coat armorial, a wheat sheaf and three thistles, and under it these lines;——

Di celant homines, et vivere durant, Quam sit dulce mori.

A fmall house and garden in Clayport-street, lately lett at 7 l. per annum, was given by Mr. Grey, a merchant in Alnwick, for the use of the incumbent. The dissenters have built one for a minister of theirs near Bond-gate, both handsome and convenient. They have two meeting-houses; and a people, usually called Methodists, have another.

Here was an Hospital, dedicated to St. Leonard, of the foundation and in the patronage of the noble family of the Percies. Henry Lord Percy, afterwards Earl of Northumberland, gave it, to hold in pure alms, to Alnwick-Abbey (s). This abbey was founded, 4 K. Stephen, 1157, by Eustace Fitz-John, for Premonstratensian canons, and dedicated to the Blessed Virgin (t). He endowed it with a great parcel of his

- (1) Pat 50 R. Ed. III. p. 1. m. 24. pro hospitali S. Leonardi ibidem annectendo.
- (t) Cronicon Mailros.

Leland's Collectanea, vol. iii. p. 73.

his baronial lands. He gave it the villa of Huicliff, and all the demesnes about it, on the left hand of the road from Alnwick to Rock, and the wastes belonging to it, extending from Hindon to the river Aln, with the fervice of half the tenants. He gave it two parts of the tithes of the lordships of Tughall, of Alubam, of Newham, of Heysend, of Chatton, and one moiety of the tithes of Wooler. He gave it the appropriations and advowions of Aluwick. of Wooler (u), of Long Houghton, and of Lesbury. He also annexed to it the priory and church of Gyfnes, now Gyfon, or Guizance, near Felton, dedicated to St. Wilfrid, of Richard Tylon's foundation, to hold in pure alms, with all its privileges and endowments, a moiety of the tithes and two bovats of land at Gyfon, the church of Halge or Haugh, the lands of Ridley, and Morwick-haugh, with liberty of creeting a corn-mill, on the river Coquet, and of raising as much corn on his wastes there as they could plow, with liberty to grind it at his own mill, moulter-free. He also gave the canons for their table the tenth part of all the venison and pork killed in his parks and forests, and of all his fishes taken in his fisheries by his order, and a falt-work at Warkworth.

The Lord William de Vescy, his son, gave them the advowsons of Chatton (v), of Chillingham, and Alnham. They had also the ad-

Vid. in Monast. Anglican. vol. ii. p. 591. Diploma Henrici Percy, com. Northumbr. recit. et confirm. Cart. foundationis.

Regist. et Cart. Monast. de Alnwick, penes Franc. Brandling, Mil. A. D. 1639.

Collectanea ex ii dem, MS. Dodsworth, vol. xlix. f. 11, &c.

Cronicon. Monast. de Alnwick, MS. in Bibl. Coll. Reg. Cantab. et excerpta ex eodem MS. Cotton. Vitell. E. xiv. 22. 10.

- (u) Pat. 1 R. Ed. II. m. 4. pro eccles, de Wollore.
- (v) Pat. 5 Ed. II. p. 1. m. 23. pro eccles. de Chatton.

  Cart. tres Will. de Vescy, Fil. Eustacii; una pro eccles. de Chatton; altera pro eccles. de Chillingham; tertia pro eccles. de Alnham.

vowsons and appropriations of St. Dunstan's in Fleet-street, in London (w), and of Leckenfield, in Yorkshire (x).

They had twenty-four acres of turbary or earth for fuel, and liberty of pasturage on Edlingham-common (y). They had lands at Chatton, and at Fallodon (z). They had four tenements and a garden in Newcastle upon Tyne (a).

The abbot was fummoned to parliament, 23, 24, 28, 32, and 34 K. Edward I; also to the parliament at Carlifle, 35th of the same reign, 1307; and to the parliament, 19 K. Edward II.

These are the chief antient privileges and possessions of Alnwick-abbey. Its annual revenues at the diffolution, 26 K. Henry VIII, were valued at 1891. 15 s. Dugd. 1941. 7 s. Speed. It had then thirteen canons. The fite of it was granted, 4 K, Edward VI, to Ralph Sadler and Laur. Winnington. It was afterwards fold, with the demesnes about it, to Sir Francis Brandling, Knt. of whose family it was purchased with the same lands by Mr. Doubleday, father of Thomas Doubleday, Efq; the prefent possessor, whose seat is built out of the ruins of it, which stood in his orchard, fouth of his pleasure-garden. The only remains of this religious pile, is the court-wall to the east, through which is the entrance, of very curious architecture, with a modern-built turret at the

(w) Pat. 9 Ric. II. p. 1. m. 14. pro eccles. S. Dunstani in Fleetstreet, Londini, approprianda.

(x) Pat. 37 Hen. VI. p. 1. m. 4. pro eccles. de Lakenfield approprianda.

(y) Cart. 2 Job. m. 12. pro turbaria. Cart. 35 Ed. I. n. 25. recit. et confirm. donationes.

<sup>(2)</sup> Pat. 16 Ed. II. p. 2. m. 1. de terris in Chatton & Falenden.

(a) Bourne's Hift. of Newcastle, p. 142.

fouth end, beyond which is a building feemingly of a later erection, not corresponding with the grandeur of monastic structures, answering better the use it is now put to, viz. a stable, than any other. Adjoining to it, is an antient and strong tower, with four turrets, two at each end.

The fituation of the abbey is extremely pleafant, at a small distance from the castle, in view from the church, and under a hill, on the extreme point of a peninsula by the eastern margin of the river Aln, crossed by a bridge of two arches; whose winding trout-stream, in pleasant murmurs, glides past it; shaded on the opposite side with a bank of wood, and here and there a broken rock visible through it, variegated with ivy and wood-bine.

There is a street between the bridge and the church, a fort of suburbs to the town, called Connon-gate; from its leading to the abbey, or house of Canons; a small manour belonging to them, and now in the possession of Sir Lancelot Allgood, of Nunwick, Kt.

About three miles from the castle of Alnwick, nearly in the middle of Huln-park, higher up the river, on an eminence, is the abbey of Huln (b) founded by Ralph Fresborn, a gentleman of Northumberland, for Carmelite friers (c), and endowed by John Lord Vescy,

- (b) Holme. Camden.

  Holm. Tanner.

  Hulne. Rot. Mag. Northumbr.
- (c) Newcourt's Repertorium, vol. i. p. 567. Steven's Addit. vol. ii. p. 184.

with twelve acres of land, lying round it (d). A conduit of fine fresh water was conveyed to it from the Holy Well, a mile to the north-east of it, in lead-pipes, called also the Friers Well. On the west side of it, is an antient tower, built by Sir Henry Percy, the fourth Earl of Northumberland, as appears from the following inscription, cut in relief on a stone still remaining.

In the year of Christ Ihu. M. CCCC. IIII. VIII.

This tower was builded by Sir Henr. Percy,

The fourth Earl of Northumberland, of great honour and worth,

That cspous'd Maud, the good lady, full of virtue and beauty,

Daughter to Sir Will. Herbert, right noble and hardy,

Earl of Pembroke, whose soulces God save,

And with his grace conserve the bilder of this tower.

The founder of this monastery, Mr. Fresborn, died 2 K. Edward I, 1274, and was interred in it. He chose this spot for its resemblance to mount Carmel, in Syria. It is on the north-east side of the river Aln, whose streams wash its sloping skirts, in a winding current through rocks, pebbles, and bushes, awakening with its symphony our attention to seriousness and pleasure. In this delicious solitude, the samous biographer, John Bale, lived and studied, being a member of this little society.

The whole, except the tower, is now in ruins. It was given by Queen Elizabeth, to Sir John Forster, Knt. and in the reign of King Tanner's Notitia Monast fol. p. 395.

(d) Pat. 4 Ed. II. p. 1. m. 3. Pro confirmatione donationum Johannis de Vescy, et aliorum.

Pat. 9 Ed. III. p. 11. Vid. inter MS. Bibl. Bodl. Oxon. Dodfworth, vol. xlv. f. 15. excerpta ex cartulario Carmelitarum de Alnwyke olim in custodia Dom. Will. Howard, Dom. de Naworth, nuper penes Johannem Warbarton, Arm. Somerset heraldum.

James I, was in the possession of John Salkeld, Esq; (e), and now of his Grace the Duke of Northumberland. His Grace has repaired the tower, made a handsome road to it from his castle through the park, by the margin of the river, edged with slowering shrubs and plantations, stored with game, and song-birds, of various kinds. The odours of the flowers, the play and pastime of partridges, of hares, the cooing of turtles, the joyous harmony of the little songsters of the grove, all conspire to render it a charming walk. To the west of the abbey, are the rocky hills, called, Brissley-hills, containing about 200 acres, planted by his Grace with forest-trees, of the best kinds, which in a few years will add greatly to the beauty of this his facred Carmel.

At the north end of Alnwick-bridge, a road branches off on the right hand, to Howick, one of the manours of the barony of Alnwick, a mediety of which was held by the antient family of the Greys of Chillingham; by Sir Ralph Grey, Knt. in part of the reign of King Henry VIII, in the reign of King Edward VI, and in the beginning of the reign of Queen Elizabeth; and by his fon and heir Sir Thomas Grey (f); the other mediety belonging to Robert Heron, a younger branch of the baronial family of the Herons of Ford (g).

(e) Cart. penes ducem Northumbr.

(f) Radulphus Grey, de Chillingham, obiit seisitus de et in medietate villæ de Howick, per dimidium seodi milit. veteri seossamento, baronia de Alnwick.

Thomas Grey, de Chillingham, filius Radulphi, est in minoritate, et in manu reginæ.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz. Vid. Work.

(g) Robertus Heron suit seisstus de et in medietate villæ de Howick.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

The Greys afterwards acquired the whole manour; which was possessed by John Grey, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 14 K. William III, 1701; by the late Sir Henry Grey, Bart. high sheriff of Northumberland, 1736; and now by his son and heir, Sir Henry Grey, Bart. a representative in parliament for Northumberland.

The old tower of Howick, mentioned by Leland (h), is entered by a flight of steps, and is still a fair structure, to the north end of which the late Sir Harry built a large, handsome house, and elegant offices. It stands within a mile of the sea, and on the north side of a trout-stream, called Howick-burn, crossed by a new stone-bridge of ashler-work. To the north-east are the stables. To the west is a shrubbery and plantation, through which the brook takes its course between grass-lawns, and makes its Exit by a gentle fall. To the south-east is the church, dedicated to St. Michael, rebuilt after a handsome manner by the late Sir Harry, though not the patron. Near it is a free-school, for the education of his tenants children in reading, writing, and accounts, to which at his death he gave 200 l.

A mile north-east from Howick, is

Craster (i), the manour and villa of the antient family of the Crasters; of William de Craster, I K. Edward I (k); of Sir Edmund John Heron, ancestor of this Robert, held the manour of Little Houghton of the same barony, 1 K. Ed. 1.—Johannes Heron tenet villam suam de parva Houghton per unum seod. vet. feosffam. Baronia de Alnwick.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

- (b) Lel. Itin. vol. vii.
- (i) Crawster. Craster.

, (k) Willielmus de Crawster tenet Crawster per dimid, seod. milit. veteris seossamenti, Baronia de Emelton.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

de Craster, Knt. 26 K. Edward III (1); of Richard de Craster, 13 K. Henry IV (m), who also had the Lordship of Dilston, near Hexham (n); of John de Craster, 12 K. Henry VI (o); of Edmund de Craster, bailist of Bambrough-Castle before and after the battle of Hexhamsield, to whom, and to Richard Craster, K. Edward IV. granted lands for their faithful services to him; of Edmund de Craster, 10 Q. Elizabeth (p); of the late John Craster, Esq; an eminent counsellor at law; and now of his son, George Craster, Esq. The village stands close by the sea, and is inhabited chiefly by sishermen.

From Alnwick-bridge we ascend the hill, by Malcolm's cross, to the third mile-slone, near Hefferley-tower, where we have a fine prospect of Dunstonbrough-Castle (q), which was built by Thomas Earl of Lax-caster, general of the confederate-army against K. Edward II, 1321, who after his defeat by the king's forces at Burton upon Trent, thought to have taken shelter in it, but was taken in his slight at Borough-Bridge. He was conducted to his castle of Pom-

(1) Escaet, de anno 26 Ed. III. n. 52.

- (0) He is among the names of the gentlemen of the county returned by the commissioners in that year; Sir Thomas Lilbourn, of Lilbourn, then high sherist, and a commissioner.
- (p) Edmundus Crawster suit seisitus de et in villa de Crawster, cum terris in Dunston, et Embleton.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.
  - (9) Dunstaburge. Camd. Brit. p. 860, and p. 873. Dunstanborow. Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 60. Dunstonbrough.

fret, and tried in form, in the king's prefence, for treason (r). He was beheaded on St. Thomas's hill, on the north-east side of that town, 25 March, 1322; and was buried in the priory-church on the right hand of the high altar. The king remitted, on account of his being a near relation, grandfon to K. Henry III, the infamous circumstances of hanging and quartering; the first example of which in England was in the person of the unfortunate Welfb Prince David, the last of his family, and of the first antiquity in Europe, 10 K. Edward I, 1282. He was canonized in the reign of K. Richard II, and his picture hung up in St. Paul's church (s); after which time the hill of his execution was called St. Thomas's hill. He forfeited five earldoms, viz. Lancaster, Linxoln, Solisbary, Leicester and Derby. He was the greatest subject in the realm, and the mightiest Peer in Christendom (t). His attainder was taken off, and all his fignories, honours, and lands, restored in the next reign to his brother, Henry Earl of Lancaster, on his petition to the parliament. He was one of the four Lords appointed by the twelve guardians of the kingdom to take care, of K. Edward III, in his minority; who in the 25th year of his reign, 1351, created him Duke of Lancaster, by his special charter. was the fecond in the kingdom advanced to that high dignity; Prince Edward being the first, whose brother, John, marrying the daughter and heiress of the Duke of Lancaster, succeeded both to his fortune and title; to the latter by creation.

Duke Henry of Lancaster on his investiture by the sword, had licence to hold a court of chancery within his dutchy, to send out writs, and try causes; which is the rather to be noticed, as some have thought, that Lancaster was not made a county palatine till the reign of K. Henry IV.

(r) Rym. Fæd. Angl. tom. iii. p. 936. Tyrrel's Hist. of England.

(s) Acta Regia, vol. i. 8vo. p. 113.

(t) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 331.

The castle was a strong and noble building. Its glory fell with the royal rose of Lancaster, K. Henry VI, after the satal battle of Hexbam-sield; when Sir Peter de Bress, and sive hundred Frenchmen taking shelter in it, it was besieged by Ralph Lord Ogle, Edmund and Richard de Craster, John Manners, and Gilvert de Errington, zealous friends of the house of York, who took the whole garison prisoners, except Sir Peter, and demolished it; having held out by its strength a long time; the besiegers being encouraged by the hopes of rewards, which they had plentifully out of the forseited estates from the fortunate and victorious Edward, who never failed liberally to remunerate those who saithfully served him. It was in the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (u); and was granted, 6th February, 22 K. James I, to Sir William Gray, Baron of Wark, and confirmed by K. William III, 20 December, 1694; and is now in the possession of the right Hon, the Earl of Tankerville.

It stands on an eminence of several acres, sloping gently to the sea, and edged to the north and north-west with precipices, in the form of a crescent, by the western termination of which are three natural stone-pyramids of a considerable height and by the eastern one an opening in the rocks made by the sea, under a frightful precipice, called Rumble-churn, from the breaking of the waves in tempestuous weather and high seas. Above this is the main entrance, and by it the ruin of the chapel. At the fouth-west corner is the draw-well, partly filled up. It is built with whin and rag-stone.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

(u) Domina Regina Elizabetha seisita de et in castro, manerio, et villa de Dunssonsh, Dunston, Stamford, et Emelton, ut de possessionibus nuper Johannis Domini de Lan aster.

Near the 4th mile-stone, a road branches off, on the right hand to Rock, one of the manours of the barony of Alnwick, of which it was held by William de Rock, I K. Edward I (v); by Robert Lawfon, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 3 Q. Elizabeth (w), and a representative for it in parliament, 5th of the same reign, who also had the estate of Falowdon, as was found by an inquisition taken after his death, 10th of that reign (x); by John Salkeld, Esq; (y); and by the late Thomas Proctor, Esq; who sold it to the Right Honourable the Earl of Jersy. It has a chapel in it dedicated to St. Philip and St. James. It stands on an eminence, and has an extensive sea and land-prospect.

Two miles east from Rock, and a mile from the sea, is Embleton (z), the Barony of John de Viscount, in the reign of K. Henry III (a), and 1 K. Edward I (b). It was afterwards one of

- - (w) Escaet. de anno 3 Eliz.
  - (x) Hæredes Roberti Lawson seisiti de et in villa de Rock, et Falloden.

Escaet, de anno 10 Eliza

- (y) Camd. Brit. Edit. 1722, p. 873.
- (z) Emleton.

Emelton.

Embleton. Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 60.

Embledon. Prowne Willis.

(a) Johannes Viscount tenet in capite de dom. rege baroniam suam de Emleton per servicium trium seodorum milit. et omnes antecessores sui tenuerunt per eund. servic. de dono dom.

of the Lordships of the Dutchy of Lancaster, and now belongs to the right honourable the Earl of Tankerville. It is an irregular built village, chiefly under the ridge of a hill, which intercepts the prospect of the sea. The church is on the west side of it, which is dedicated to the Holy Trinity. It is in the form of a cross, the roof slat, covered with lead; a gallery in it at the west end. It has also a small vestry, and a good tower. The vicarage-house and garden join on to the west side of the church-yard, on a gradual slope; in making which decent and convenient, a large sum of money was laid out by the late incumbent, the Revd. Mr. Parsons. One of his predecessors, the Revd. Mr. Edwards, founded a small English and Writing school on the top of the ridge of the hill, to which he gave an enclosed field on the east side of it, valued at 5 l. per annum.

A little beyond the 7th mile stone, a neat road branches off, on the right hand, to

Ellingham, which was the Barony of Ralph de Guagy in the reign of K. Henry III (c), and 1 K Edward I (d). It was the Lord-regis Henrici primi, qui eos feoffavit. Et præterea idem Johannes Viscount tenet sex bovatasterræ in burgo de Bambrough, reddendo inde per annum vii e ad sermam burg, quas dom. Rex Johannes, pater dom. regis Henrici, dedit Johanni, silio Edvardi, antecessori prædicti. Johannis; et de eodem seodo nulla est alienatio, aut donatio alíqua, unde dom. rex minus habeat de servicio suo.

Testa de Nevill.

- (b) Johannes le Viscount tenet in capite de dom. rege Emelton, Stamsord, Burton, Warnham, Erawster, et Dunston, per tria seoda milit. de veteri seossamento. Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.
- (c) Radulphus de Gaugy tenet in capite de dom. rege baroniam suam de Ellingham per servicium trium seodorum milit. et omnes antecessores per eund. servicium tenuerunt post tempus regis Henrici primi, qui illos seossavit. Et de illo tenemento nulla est alienat. &c. unde dom. Rex, &c.

  Testa de Nevill.
- (d) Radulphus de Guagy tenet de dom. rege in capite Ellingham, Osberwicke, Doxforde, Cramlington, Heton juxta Novum Castrum, Hartley, Jesmont, et Whitley, per tria seoda milit. veteris seossamenti.

  Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

the right honourable H.nry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, and his fon Henry Lord Percy, where he had his particular post assigned him in the assault, and acquired great honour by his valour (e). He died in the latter end of that reign, and left three daughters and coheirs; viz. Elizabeth, married to Sir John de Fenwick; Mary, to Sir William Swinburn; Johanna, to Sir Robert Ogle (f). It is now the seat and manour of Edward Haggerston, Esq; a younger son of the late Sir Carnaby Haggerston, of Haggerston, Bart. and brother to the present Sir Thomas. His seat is in a low situation, by the side of a small stream. The church is on a higher ground, in a solitary field, in sight from the postroad.

From the 9th mile-stone, we have a fine view of Bambrough-Caftle (g); which stands on the ridge of a steep hill above the sea, and from the stile of the architecture of the base of the old tower now remaining, of the Doric order, is believed to be of Roman original. It is very probable, that whilst the Romans held possessions in Scotland, and north of the wall, they had their exploratory towers and forts along the coast, and did not leave it naked and defenceless, exposed to the inroads of an enemy.

(e) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 421.

(f) Johannes de Fenwick, et Elizabetha uxor ejus, una; Willielmus Swinburn, Chr. et Maria uxor ejus, altera; nec non Robertus Ogle, Chr. et Johanna uxor ejus, tertia filia, et hæredes Alani de Heton, Chr. defuncti. fuerunt ad respondend. regi pro relievio suo pro omnibus terris et tenem. quæ dictus Alanus tenuit de rege in capite die quo obiit, &c.

Rot. Hillar. Fin. de anno 21 Ric. II.

(g) Bamburg.
Bambrough. Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 60.

Besides, the coast for fertility, and the conveniency of their navy and shipping, was of more value to them than all the rest, unless it can be supposed, contrary to the usual practice of that wife nation, that they preferred poverty to wealth, danger to fecurity. hardships and difficulties to pleasure and convenience, and rifqued their lives for the acquifition of bleak mountains and hills, barren rocks, heaths and moraffes. The caftles of Tynemouth, Dunstonbrough, and this, stand in a line, as Agricola's chain of forts did crofs the country between the two feas; and it is very likely that the first foundations of all three were Roman. It is well known, that the Saxons built their castles, when they could, on Roman foundations, and gave them the name of Burg and Brough. The Danes gave them the name of Burgos. The Saxon king, Ida, has the honour done him by Roger Hoveden, and all our historians, of being the builder of this, and make its antiquity coeval with his kingdom of Northumberland. He first inclosed it with wooden pales, and afterwards with stone. A well was made to accommodate it with water, which is much praifed by Hoveden for its goodness, and for the stone-workmanship about it. When the Saxon-court afterwards became Christian, and Northumberland-kings ferved God with more pleafure than the world, a church or chapel was built within it, confecrated by K. Ofwald to St. Aidan.

It must have been a place of great strength, as it was the fanctuary of the Northumberland-kings, earls, and governors, on any imminent danger; withstood the fury of many sieges and blocades, and was the consinement of state-prisoners. K. Ofred, in his minority, and a nobleman under whose tuition he was, called Brithric, shut themselves up in it, on the death of K. Alfred, his father, in 705; to be safe from the violences of Edulph, a rebel lord, who had seised upon the crown. Edulph besieged it with his partizans. The young king and his governor made a brave and long defence, which gave his faithful subjects time to rise and hasten to his relief. The usurper had turned the siege into a blocade, but on their approach retired in confusion and hurry. He was pursued by Brithric, the royal orphan's guardian. Brithric followed him with all the ardour of a good general, and with a resolution to take vengeance on his sovereign's wrongs. Edulph was presently overtaken and seised. There being no need of the form and ceremony of a trial for so black a treason, he was instantly executed. Young Ofred was securely settled in the throne, and this castle was no longer his prison, but his palace.

Walteof, the first of that name, Earl of Northumberland, being feeble and weak with age, and unable to oppose Malcolm, King of Scots, at the head of a numerous army, made this royal fabric his retreat, till he was freed from his fears by the valour of his fon, Uchtred. Enraged to fee his country invaded, Uchtred marched against them with a few troops, hastily raised. With these, disposed to the best advantage, animated by his undaunted bravery and courage, with the view of glory, and the taking ample vengeance of their enemies, he obtained a famous and compleat victory. A victory, from which he would have reaped a greater harvest of honour, had he used it with lenity, and not fullied it with an act of cruel inhumanity. He had among his prisoners several Scotch noblemen, generals and officers of rank. These he beheaded. Their heads he placed upon poles round the walls of the city of Durbam. In this, he shewed he had more of the spirit of the tyrant, than of the hero, whose soul has just ideas of glory, and always extends a generous commiferation to the vanquished, and protects and applauds the faithful and brave General in an enemy. However, Uchtred's fuccefs, and not his cruelty, cruelty, was regarded at the court of his fovereign, K. Ethelred. Every body there talked of it in raptures. K. Ethelred himself in his transports was resolved to shew him one of the highest marks of his favour. He gave him his daughter, the princess Edgiva, in marriage, and with her, the earldom of Northumberland, and the county of Yorkshire, for a portion; old Walteof resigning this royal fortress, and his other castles, and government, to his son, thus allied to the throne.

In the year 642, it was befieged by Penda, the pagan king of Mercia, after his victory over K. Ofwald at Ofwestre, in Shropshire; a prince as remarkable for his zealous patronage of christianity, as for his bravery. Cruelty seems to have been the characteristic of Saxon paganism. The savage Penda, not content with a victory over that christian hero, barbarously mangled his body, and thought to have reduced this castle to ashes, for making a gallant defence. He laid vast quantities of wood under the walls, to which he set fire as soon as the wind was favourable, but no sooner was it in a slame, than the wind changed, and carried it into his own camp, and forced him to raise the siege, to his own great shame, and the praise of that Being, who sets bounds to the rage of merciles men.

In the reign of K. Egbert, Kenulph, Bishop of Landisfarn, being suspected at court of a crime, of which he was innocent, was a state-prisoner in this castle about thirty years, from 750 to 780.

It suffered greatly by the fury of the Danes in the year 933, but was soon repaired, and esteemed the strongest fortress in the county.

Vol. II. Fff In

In the year 1005, Robert Mowbrar, Earl of Northumberland, and his party, marched into it for fecurity, on the approach of the roval troops to chastise them for their treason. The king, William II. befieged it in person. As traitors never think themselves fafe any where, Mowbray fecretly fled for fanctuary to St. Ofwin's shrine at Tynemouth, where he was taken prisoner. His steward and kinfman, Morel, with a courage that would have done honour to a better cause, defended the castle in the absence of his unfortunate Lord. He defended it against all the forces of the king. The king had turned the fiege into a blockade, and raifed a fortress near it, called Malvoison, i. e. Bad Neighbour, some time before the earl fled. Morel, not terrified by fo many bad neighbours, still held out, with an astonishing perseverance and resolution, to the furprize of the king, who beginning to be uneafy, tried to effect that by policy, which he could not do by force, He ordered the earl to be led up to the very walls, and a declaration to be made, that if the castle did not surrender, his eves should instantly be put out. This succeeded to his wish, Morel no fooner beheld him in this imminent danger, than he confented to yield upon terms. For his fidelity and affection to his Lord, and his gallant defence, the king took him into his royal protection and favour. A godlike action, thus generously to reward a faithful enemy! For the fervant's fake, probably, the incenfed fovereign spared the life of the master, and only kept him a prisoner in Windsor-castle, where he remained thirty years.

In the year 1296, K. Edward I, summoned John Baliol, King of Scotland to appear before him at his castle, and answer for breach of faith. Baliol not appearing, he went on to Berwick, and put the Scotch garrison to the sword. From thence he directed his march to Dunbar, and in his way met with the Scotch army going to its relief. That army he attacked, and made a dreadful flaughter. Twenty-two thousand Scotchmen are said to have fallen victims to his resentment. Dunbar was reduced. Baliol was taken prisoner. The victorious Edward brought him to England, together with the stone-throne of the Kings of Scotland, kept at Westminster ever fince.

In 4 K. Edward II, 1310, Peers de Gaveston, Earl of Cornwall, was placed in this castle by that king, to save him from the indignation of an injured nobility, who in 1312, dragged him to justice from the castle of Scarbrough, in Yorkshire.

In the year 1463, it was taken and retaken by the Generals of kings Edward IV, and Henry VI. Sir Ralph Grey, Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter, was governor of it for the latter a little before the battle of Hexham-sield; but after that unfortunate action he was forced to surrender both himself and it to the Earl of Warwick, and the Lords Montacute, Fauconbridge, and Scrope.

Between these two contending princes it must have received violent shocks. After that period, it went speedily to decay. K. K. Henry VII, and VIII, out of policy did not repair any castles, but demolished many, looking upon them only as fanctuaries for rebels. It was in the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (b). Sir John Forster, of Bambrough-abbey, lord warden of the middle marches, was then governor of it. He was made a knight bannerct, 1 K. Edward VI, after the victory obtained over the Scots. by the English near Musselburg; and was high sheriff of Northumberland, 3d of the fame reign; his arms, argent; a cheveron, betwixt three hunter's horns, fable. He resided at Alnwick-abbey (i). His daughter, Julian, married Sir Francis Russel, third fon of Francis Ruffel, Earl of Bedford, the first heir apparent of a peer allowed to be a member in the house of commons; that house voting, 21st June, 3 K. Edward VI, 1549, that on the death of his elderbrother he should continue in that house as he had done before. Sir Francis was high sheriff of Northumberland, 19 Q. Elizabeth (k): and a representative for it in parliament, 14th, and 27th of the fame reign. He was killed on the borders, on a march-day. 27th June, 158;. His father-in-law, Sir John, lived to a great age; and was fucceeded in his abbey of Bambrough, and his manour and abbey of Blanchland, by his fon, Nicholas Forster, Efg. high sheriff of Northumberland, 44 Q. Elizabeth (1); whose son and heir, Sir Claudius Forster, Knt. was high sheriff of Northumberland, 10 K. James I, and created a baronet, 17th of the same reign. His brother and heir, John Forster, Esq; obtained a grant from the crown of the castle and manour of Bambrough (m).

(h) Domina regina Elizabetha fuit seisita de et in castro et manerio de Bambrough, cum certis terris et tenem. in villa de Bambrough, de et in certis terris in Clenhill, Ingram, et Netherton, ac de et in villa de Kydland, Wryhill, et Whipperton, ac de et in villa de Bednel, Shoston, Sunderland, Emelton, Dunstonbrough, Dunston, Stamford, Burton, cum terris in Newton, et Budle.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

The castle commands a most extensive sea-prospect. On a clear day may be seen the town of Berwick upon Tweed, Tynemouth-castle, (i) Minmouth's Memoirs, p. 147.

(k) Escaet, de anno 19 Eliz.

<sup>(1)</sup> Escaet, de anno 44 Eliz.

(m) Johannes Forster, arm. frater et hæres Claudii, tenet in capite castrum et dominicum de Bambrough, ac tenet in capite situm nuper cellæ de Bambrough, ac manerium de Belford, ac Rever-Grange, vocat. Yessington-Grange, ac situm monasterii de Blanchland, ac medietatem capellæ de Shotley, parcellam rector. de Bywell St. Andrew, ac decimas in campis de Unthank; Shotley-Field, et alibi.

Escaça. de anno 14 Car. I.

and the greatest part of the coast between them. A stately tower, whose base is Doric, as before mentioned, is the only monument now left to speak its antient grandeur. It was lately repaired by by the trustees of Bishop Crew.

Below the castle, is the villa of Bambrough, which was a royal borough. To the 23d parliament of K. Edward I, it fent two members, John le Greystang and William le Coroner. In the expedition of K. Edward III. against Calais, it fent him one ship. It is now an obscure place. It gives its name to a large tract of country, called Bambroughshire, extending southwards to Warkworth-bridge.

In the reign of K. Henry I, a monastery of regular canons of the order of St. Austin was founded here, subordinate to the prior of Nostill, in Yorkshire (n). Its revenues were valued at, 26 K. Henry VIII, at 1161. 12s. 3d. Dugd. 1241. 15s. 7d. Speed. It was granted the year following to Sir John Forster (o).

Here was also an hospital, founded in honour of St. Mary Magdalen (p).

K. Henry III, in the latter part of his reign, founded a religious house near the villa for the Fratres Pradicatores, or Friers.

Bp. Tanner's Notit. Monast. fol. p. 392.

(n) A. D. 1137, in the MS. annals in the library of the church of Westminster, are many things relating to this house.

Vid. Cart. 17 Joan. n. 11. et 36.

fo) Ibid.

(p) Pat. 7 Ed. II. p. 1. m. 1.

Pat. 22 Ed. III. p. 1. m. 4. Pat. 37 Ed. III. p. 1. m. 41. Pat. 50 Ed. III. p. 1. m. 28. Escaet. Northumbr. 50 Ed. III. n. 56.

Bp. Tanner's Notit. Monast. fol. p. 397.

Preachers (q). This is the fair college faid by Leland to be "a "little without Bamborrow (r)." The fite of it was granted to Thomas Reeve and Nicholas Pinder, 2 Q. Elizabeth (s).

The church of Bambrough was of K. Ofwald's foundation, as well as St. Aidan's. K. Henry I, granted them both to the priory of Noftill (t).

It is a neat church, confisting of three broad isles. Within a nich of the fouth wall in the chancel, is the effigies in stone of a knight templer, in the usual habit and attitude.

On the north fide of the chancel, is a fmall mural monument erected to the memory of Sir Claudius Forster, with this inscription.

Scio quod Redemptor meus vivit in Cœlis.

Claudius Forsterus, eques auratus et baronettus, antiqua, numerosa, et nobili Forsterorum familia in Com. Northumbr. oriundus, Domini Nicholai Forsteri, silii fortissimi illius viri, Johannis Forsteri, qui 37 annos mediarum marchiarum Scotiam versus Dominus guardianus extitit, silius et hæres: honoratissimis etiam Dominis Cumbriæ et Bedfordiæ comitibus, nec non insigni et illustri Fenwickorum progenie, totique generosorum genti inter Tinam et Tweedam celeberrimo sanguine Cart. 51 Hen. III. m. 4. pro decem acris terræ ad oratorium construendum. Pat. 51 Hen. III. pro eistem. Pat. 22 Ed. I. Bp. Tanner's Notit. Monast. sol. p. 396.

<sup>(9)</sup> Rot. Pat. 50 Hen. III. n. 14. et n. 125.

(r) Lel. Itin. vol. viii. p. 130.

(s) Bp. Tanner.

(t) Confirmo donum quod feci ecclesse de Nostla, juxta castellum Pontisfratsi, et canonieis ejustem loci, videlicet ecclesias sancti Oswaldi et Aidani de Baenburch, sieut Algarus presoiter unquam eas melius tenuit. Cart. Hen. I. Monast. Angl. vol. ii. p. 34.

conjunctus. Castri denique Bamburg dominus Senescallus et constabularius: obiit in manerio suo de Alba Terra in com. Northumbr. anno salutis nostræ, 1623. Memoriæ sacrum lugens posuit uxor ejus Domina Elizabetha, Gulielmi Fenwick, de Wallingtonia, equitis aurati, silia.

By this monument is another over the family of Sir William Forfer, with the following inscription.

In the vault below lie buried the bodies of William, John, and Ferdinando, fons of Sir William Forster, of Bamburg, Knt. by Dorothy, daughter of Sir William Selby of Twizel, Bart. and by Eleanor, daughter of Ferdinando Lord Fairfax, of Denton.

William was born the 28th of July, 1667; married Elizabeth, daughter of William Pert, Esq; died the first of Sept. 1700, without issue.

John was born the 29th Sept. 1668. Died the 15th November 1699.

Ferdinando was born the 14th of Feb. 1669. Died the 22d of Aug. 1701: both unmarried. They had another brother, Nicholas, who died young, and was buried in the church of South Baily in Durham; as also five fifters.

Eleanor, and

Dorothy, who died very young.

Frances, married to Thomas Forften, Esq; of Etherstone, to whom she had several children.

Mary, who died unmarried. And Dorothy, wife to the Right Honourable the Lord Crew, Lord Bishop of Durham, of whom their mother died. She being the only one remaining of the family, set up this monument in memory of her dear brothers, as the last respect that could be paid them for their true affection to the church, the monarchy, their country, and their sister, anno 1711. This being the burying place of their ancestors.

The fon of Thomas and Frances Forster, of Etherstone, mentioned in this monument, of his father's name, being general of the rebel-forces in the year 1715, his manours and estates of Bambrough and Blanchland were forfeited to the crown. At the very time of his defection, he was one of the representatives in parliament for this county, and only in the 34th year of his age. He escaped out of Newgate to Rome, and died of an asshma at Bologne in France, in November, 1738 (u). Lord Crew, Bishop of Durham, his uncle, purchased his forfeited estates, and at his death left them to charitable uses. For the great esteem he had for an academical education, he gave by will, bearing date, 24th June, 1720, twelve exhibitions of 20 l. per ann. each, to Lincoln-College. in Oxford, to be disposed of by the rector and fellows to as many under-graduate commoners, natives of the diocese of Durham, or of Northallertonshire, or Howdenshire, in the county of York, or of Leicestershire, Newbold-Verdon in Oxfordshire, or of Northamptonfbire, to be held for eight years, and no longer, unless for an extraordinary reason by leave from the rector; the diocese of Durham to have the preference. His lordship also for the augmentation of the living of Bambrough gave 40 l. per annum; and to the living of Shotley, near Blanchland, 20 l. per annum, for ever (x). He died, 18th September, in the 88th year of his age, at Stene, the feat of his ancestors, in Northamptonshire.

(u) For a farther account of him, of his escape out of Newgate, and the description of his person, See The Political State of Great Britain, Vol. ii. p. 166, 387, 388.

From Bambrough-castle, we have a prospect of the

(x) My trufters, John Montague, John Dolben, John Morley, William Lutton, and Thomas Eden, their heirs and affigns, shall out of the rents, iffues, and profits of my manours, hereditaments, and premises, in the county of Northumberland, and Durham, for ever hereafter pay or cause to be paid the yearly sum of 201. to each and every of twelve exhibitioners of Lincoln College, in the university of Oxford, which I have already named and appointed. or which I shall hereafter name and appoint, and to each and every of twelve exhibitioners to be elected and chosen after my decease, as herein aftermentioned, who shall be undergraduate commoners in Lincoln-college aforesaid, and who are or shall be natives of the die cese of Durham, and for want of fuch natives, of Northallertonshire, or Howdenshire, in the county of York, or of Leicestershire, and particularly of the parish of Newbold Verdon of the diocese of Oxford, whereof I was formerly Bilhop, or of the county of Northampton, which is the county I was born in. And my will is, and I do hereby direct, that fuch exhibitioner and exhibitioners on any vacancy or vacancies of any exhibitioner or exhibitioners by me already named and appointed, or upon any other vacancy or vacancies whatfoever, shall be from time to time, and at all times, for ever after my decease elected and chosen by the rector and fellows of Linioln-college aforefaid for the time being, or by the major part of them, and to enjoy the faid exhibitions or annual payments for eight years (if they respectively continue fo long in the college aforefaid), and no longer, unless they have leave from the rector of the college aforefaid for the time being to be absent, which I desire he will not grant but upon reasonable cause. And I do hereby direct, that as often as any vacancy or vacancies shall happen of such exhibitioner or exhibitioners, others shall be elected in their room within three months in manner as aforefaid. And upon this farther trust, that my truftees, John Mortague, John Dolben, John Morley, William Lupton, and Thomas Eden, their heirs and affigns, do, and shall, out of the rents, issues, and profits, of the said manours, lands, and hereditaments, in the faid counties of Northumberland and Durham, devised to them as aforefaid, for ever hereafter pay the annual fums hereafter mentioned, (that is to fay) unto the minister of the said parish-church of Bambrough, in the said county of Northumberland, and his successors, the yearly sum of 40 l. and to the minister of the parishchurch of Shotley, in the faid county, and his fuccessors, the yearly sum of 20%.

Farn-Island, the recess of St. Cuthbert. Here was afterwards a priory of fix or eight Benedictine monks, subordinate to Durham (y). They received annually five quarters of wheat from the manours of Tughall and Swinhoe (z). The corporation of Newcastle upon Tyne paid them an annual rent of 13 marks, and 10 s. (a). At the dissolution it was valued at 12 l. 17 s. 8 d. Dugd. and Speed. It was granted to the dean and chapter of Durham, 33 K. Henry VIII (b). It stood on the most romantic part of the island, on a pleasant lawn, edged with rocks, by a fresh-water spring. Near it was a fort, built for its defence by the last prior of Durham, but one, Prior Castle (c). On the north-east side are sive other small islands, consisting of bleak, barren rocks.

A mile north from Bambrough, is

Budle, one of the manours of the barony of Alnwick; of which a mediety was held by the three daughters of Sir George Bowes, of Stretlam-Caftle, in the bishoprick of Durham, Knt. 14 K. Charles I.

- (y) Lel. Itin. Vol. vii. p. 61.
- (2) Claus. 10 Ed. II. m. 25. de quinque quarteriis frumenti singulis annis e maneriis de Tugball et Swinb:e.
- (a) Vide in Bourne's Hist. of Newcastle, p. 199. Assistam per priorem Dunelm. contra majorem et ballivos Novi Castri pro redditu annuo tredecem marcarum et decem solidorum concesso domui de Farneland anno 25 Ed. III. p. 209, requictantiam prioris Dunelm. pro redditu prædicto debit. ad sestum S. Michaelis anno 5 Hen. V. p. 218, Hen. VII, confirmationem istius redditus anno regni 7.

Clauf. 2 Hen. IV. p. 1. m. 13. de xiii. marcis annui redditus concessis de redditu Novi Castri per regem Edvardum.

- (b) Bp. Tanner's Notit. Monast. so. p. 394.
- (c) Lel. Itin. vol. v. p. 108.

viz. Elizabeth, Ann, and Dorothy (d); whose ancestor, Sir William Bowes, Knt. was chamberlain to the Duke of Bedford, brother to K. Henry V, and protector and governor in France, with whom he was fixteen years in that kingdom, and was called Monsieur de Arches. He was a great favourite with his grace, and acquired great riches. On his return home, he built the castle of Stretlam (e). He was high sheriff of Northumberland, 6 K. Edward IV (f); his arms, ermin, three bows bent, gules. Their father, Sir George, was in the expedition against Scotland, 33 K. Henry VIII, 1544, under Edward Seimour, Earl of Hertford, by whom, with many others, he was knighted, at Leith, near Edenburgh (g). He was marshal of Berwick upon Tweed, 1 Q. Elizabeth, 1558, and had a fhare in the victory obtained over the Scots at Swinton, by Sar Henry Percy, brother to Thomas Percy the fixth Earl of Ambre 10land; the forces on both fides confifting of the neighbouring ganrisons (b). He was one of her majesty's privy counteilors in the 14th year of her reign, 1571, and a representative in pullament for the borough of Morpeth (i). He was of the council of Park, for the government of the northern counties, the year Acliows ing; Henry Hastings, Earl of Huntington, then Lord President. Il s brother, Sir Robert Bowes, Knt. was Captain of Norham-castle, 33 K. Henry VIII, 1541. He was in that year in the grand cavalcade of the Yorkshire gentlemen, who, to the number of 200, cloathed

(d) Elizabetha, Anna, et Dorothea, filiæ Georgii Bowes, militis, tenent de rege, ut de castro de Abrwick, per servicium milit. medietatem manerii sive villæ de Budle et Spindlesson.

Escaet. de anno 14 Car. I.

(e) Lel. Itin. vol. iv. p. 9, 10.

(f) Escaet. de anno 6 Ed. IV.

(g) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 9'2.

(b) ------ vol. i. p. 362-3.

(i) Parliam. Hist. of Eng. vol. iv. p. 108.

in velvet, on fine horses, with 4000 yeomen and servants, tall and well mounted, made their fubmission on their knees to his majefty, and prefented him with 900 l. on his entering their county. He was their speaker (k). He was taken prisoner the year following in an expedition against the Scots, and detained without ransom, contrary to the laws of the marches. He was released in 1543, by the favour of the Earl of Arran, then regent of Scotland (1); and made treasurer of the army sent into France (m.) He was of the council at York, 29, 30 K. Henry VIII, and 4 K. Edward VI (n). Bernard-Caftle being besieged, 23d November, 12 Q. Elizabeth, 1570, the two brothers defended it by their valour for eleven days, and then obtained an honourable capitulation (o). Sir William Bowes, Knt. was one of her majesty's commissioners for border-causes in Scotland, in the 40th year of her reign, 1507 (p). He was also her ambassador extraordinary in that kingdom, in 1599 (q). He was of the council at York, 41st of her majesty's reign, and 1 K. James I. The late George Bowes, Efg; was a representative for the county of Durham in several parliaments to the time of his death. His only daughter and heir married the right honourable the Earl of Strathmore, who by an act of parliament affumed the name of Bowes, and is one of the fixteen Peers of Scotland.

This manour now belongs to his Grace the Duke of Northumberland. The village is finall. It stands above a fine fandy bay

(k) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 954.

<sup>(1)</sup> _____ p. 959.

(m) ----- p. 960.

(n) Drake's Antiq. of York.

<sup>(0)</sup> Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 1212.

(p) Rym. Fæd. tom. xvi. p. 312. Acta Reg. vol. iv. 8vo. p. 165.

(q) Rym. Fæd. tom. xvi. p. 373. Acta Regia, vol. iv. p. 166.

of the fea, on the fouth fide of the Ofium of the river of Warn, which is accounted a tolerable harbour for small vessels of about eighty tons; being about seven or eight feet water in full tides.

On Spinelston-hill, near Budle, is an intrenchment, nearly round, with three deep ditches and high Valla to the north and fouth, and two at the west, with a slope to the east, entered by a very wide port; two exploratory mounts, hard by, to the south; and another to the north. It is Danish.

A little to the west of this intrenchment, is another, in the form of a crescent, very large, with the small harbour of Warn, to the north, and a romantic precipice to the south; three ditches and Valla to the west and south-west; the Valla of turs and stone, as usual, and still pretty high in most places; the port to the north, the ground sloping to the harbour, a hollow way extending almost to it from the precipice. It has a most extensive sea and land prospect on all sides, of the two castles of Bambrough and Holy Island, and of all ships passing and repassing. This is also Danish.

On the north fide of the river, facing it, is

Ul-chefter (r), i. e. Caftrum ulterius, the out-guard or fort to fecure the pass of the river and the harbour. By its name it seems to be Roman. It was one of the manours of the barony of Wooler, of which it was held by Sir Robert de Ulchester in the reign of K. Henry III, and IK. Edward I(s). He was one of the commissioners

(r) Ulchester.
Outchester.

(s) Robertus de Ulchester tenet Ulchester per unum seolum veteris seossamenti Baron. de Wooler. Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

missioners appointed, 33 K. Henry III, 1249, to recognize the border-laws, and make new ones (t). It was forfeited to the crown, 1715, by James Earl of Derwentwater, and given to Greenwich-hospital.

By the 10th mile stone on the post-road we cross the river by a stone-bridge of one arch, at Warnford; and by the 12th mile-stone a road branches off, on the right, to

Ethersion (u), which was the manour and seat of the antient family of the Forsters; of Sir Thomas Forster, Knt. in the reign of K. Henry VIII, who married Dorothy the daughter of Ralph Lord Ogle, of Ogle, by Margaret the daughter of Sir William Gascoigne, of Gawtherp, in the county of York, Knt. (w); of Thomas Forster, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 6, 14 Q. Elizabeth (x); of Matthew Forster, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 18 K. James I (y); of Thomas Forster, Esq; in the reign of K. Charles I, II, who married Frances the daughter and heir of Sir William Forster, of Bambrough-castle, Knt. (z); of Thomas Forster, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 2 Q. Ann, 1703; of the late Thomas Forster, Esq;

- (t) Bp. Nicholfon's Bord. Laws, p. 2.
- (u) Etherstone. Lel. Itin. vol. vi. p. 34, 35, 36. Etherston.

  Elderstone.
- (w) MS. penes Gulielmum Ogle, de Cawsey-Park, Arm.
- (x) Escaet. de annis 6, 14 Eliz.

Thomas Forster suit seisitus de et in Edderssone, cum certis terris in villa de Bousdon, et Spinelsson.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz..

- (y) Escaet. de anno 18 Jac. I.
- .(2) See Bambrough-Castle.

who died, 31st March, 1763, in the 20th year of his age; and was succeeded by John William Bacon, Esq; high sheriss of Northumberland in the same year; of which his great grandsather, John Bacon, of Staward, Esq; was high sheriss, 5 K. William III, 1693; also his grandsather, William Bacon, Esq; 1745. His father, John Bacon, Esq. Fellow of the Royal and Antiquarian Societies, and governor of the hospitals of Bridewell and Bethlehem, died in July, 1752.

Mr. Bacon, built a handsome house at a distance from the old one, near the wood by the rivulet of Warn. He died, 1767.

By the 14th mile-stone, is

Belford, which was the manour and villa of Thomas de Hebburn, I. K. Henry V (a); of John Forster, of Bambrough-castle, Esq; 14 K. Charles I (b); and now of Abraham Dixon, Esq; high sheriss of Northumberland, 1759. It is a well built villa, on a gradual slope, within two miles of the sea, the prospect of which is intercepted to the east and north-east by the ridge of a hill. At the north-east end is the church, dedicated to St. Mary. It was built in 1700, and sealed in 1759. On the top of the hill is the ruin of the old chapel. On the north-west side, by a fine spring, is the antient manour-house, behind which was formerly a wood, of half a mile in length, of large oaks, under a range of steep rocks of (a) Thomas de Hebburn, frater et hæres Honrici de Hebburn, tenet manerium et villam de Belford et Yessington de rege in capite, per servicium quartæ partis unius seodi militis. Et ibidem compertum est per scrutinium, quod Willielmus de Hebburn, antecessor ipsius Thomæ, tenuit de dom. rege in capite medietatem villæ prædicæ, parcellam Baroniæ de Wooler, et unam carucutum terræ in Belford de rege in capite, ut parcellam Baroniæ prædicæ.

Rot. Mich. Fin. anno I Hen. V.

whinstone, now sparingly shaded with young trees and brush-wood. On the south-east side is Mr. Dixon's seat, a large modern building, after a genteel design, in Mr. Pain's architecture. On the south side of it is a beautiful shrubbery by a piece of water under a semicircular rocky mount, on the top of which is a neat little tower, with port-holes; and at an agreeable distance to the south-east, near a Chinese-cottage, is an opening between two hills, which lets in a prospect of the sea.

A mile fouth-west from Belford is an encampment, nearly square, with a wide foss, and a double rampier, the entrance to the north-east.

Five miles north from Belford, on the left hand of the post-road, and in fight, is Kiley (c), the villa of Eustace de Kiley, 1 K. Edward I (d); in which in the beginning of the reign of K. Henry VIII, the studs of a knight's belt, and the hilt of a sword, of massy gold, were found between two stones. They came into the possession of Dr. Ruthall, Bishop of Durham (e). It stands on an eminence, and has an extensive land and sea prospect. The church is in a field at some distance from it.

Opposite to Kiley, on the right hand of the post-read, and in fight, is

- (c) Kiley. Lel. Cand. Kyloe. Browne Willis.
- (d) Eustacius de Kyley tenet villam suam de Kyley, villam de Berrington, villam de Lowlin, in Chinagium, et reddit inde per ann. x marc. et sacit operationes dominicis de Fonwick.

Escact. de anno 1 Ed. I.

(e) Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 56.

Lindisfarn, or Holy Island, which was a bishop's see, founded by Ofwald, King of Northumberland. Aidan, a Scotchman, was the first bishop, and had that whole kingdom for his diocese. Historians have given him an excellent character. By his prudent conduct, and the unwearied pains he took in the ministry, he acquired great efteem. His country-idion? not being understood by a Saxonaudience, the king himself became the interpreter of his difcourses, which had such an influence, that crowds thronged to him for baptifm. And no wonder, fince, befides the advantages of his own eloquence, and perfonal good qualities, his humility and condefcension, uncommon assiduity and humanity, he had the authority and example of a benevolent and good king, and the highest and best men of his court, to back him. For how captivating is religion, how perfuafive her voice, when uttered from the throne, and her precepts explained in all the beauty and force of language? Aidan affected no state. He travelled on foot, not by necessity, but choice, (for he that was the favourite of a good king could not be in fuch circumstances) to win the Heathers to embrace and love Christianity. His care for the was fuch, that he was their follicitor with the rich, to become their patrons and benefactors; using all his interest to gain them favour, to get them relief, and to fet them above mifery and diffress. May they never want such friends! After a life thus piously spent in his bishoprick for 17 years, he died, 31st August. 651. He was fucceeded by Finan, one of the fame monastery. Finan had orders from Gregory, the Roman Pontiss, to remove his See to York, but Popes in those days having no influence in Northumberland, he continued it here, preferring the model of government in the Eastern churches to that of Rome. He built a cathedral-church, which he dedicated to St. Peter. He thatched it, after the Scotch fashion, with Vol. II.

reeds. It was afterwards covered with lead by Bishop Eadbert. His pains and success in making converts to Christianity were very great, He was so fortunate as to gain two crowned heads to embrace it, Penda, King of Mercia, and Segibert, King of the East Angles. He is said to have baptized them at Wall-town, now Welton, twelve miles west from Newcastle. Their subjects following their example, also turned Christians, under the ministry and preaching of their Bishops, Diuma, and Cedd, ordained and set over them by Finan. Lindisfarn was governed by this bishop ten years. He died, 14th February, 661. His successor was Coleman, a Scotchman also, who was bishop only three years. Chagrined at King Ofwy's taking part against him with the Romanists in the point of Church-government, he resigned his See, and returned to Scotland. Thirty Englishmen, and all his countrymen in the island, devoted to a religious life, went with him. He lived to the year 676. His successors were such as adhered to the principles of the church of Rome, of whom the first was Tuda. He came into England with Coleman. He died foon after his election. The next chosen to the episcopal dignity was

Chad, a modest and humble man, who accepted it rather to please others, than himself. He was stilled, not Bishop of Lindisfarn, but of York, by the desire of his sovereign, King Alfred, who designed it for his governor or preceptor, Wilfrid. He was twice consecrated, first at Winchester, by Bishop Wine, on the vacancy of the See of Canterbury, and next at York, by Theodore, the new metropolitan. In complaisance to that prelate, and the two kings of Northumberland, Oswy, and Alfred, he retired to his monastery, and resigned his bishoprick in favour of Wilfrid, who held it but a short while. King O/wy dving, and Alfred being dethroned, Egfrid obtained both their kingdoms. In his reign came on the great revolution of the diocese of Lindi/farn. In the time of Paulinus, York had been dignified with the title of an archiepiscopal See. Theodore was resolved to lessen its power, and to mortify and humble Wilfrid, with whom he was difgusted. He deposed him. He then obtained the royal licence to divide the kingdom of Northumberland into two diocefes, York and Lindisfarn; the first containing Deira, the latter Bernicia. Wilfrid, in high refentment, went to Rome, to procure his reftoration by the Pope. The Pope flood his friend, held a chapter, and fent him home with their resolution in form, that he should be reinflated. This, with the pope's letter, he prefented to the king. who, exafterated at his prefumption, reproached him with procuring them by bribery, and cast him into prison, where he might have remained had it not been for the intercession of Ebba, the king's aunt, and on promife of his never entering Northumberland more. He retired to the monastery of Glassenburg, of which Berthwald was abbot, Nephew to Ethelred, King of Mercia. The abbot entertained him but a fhort while. He was forced to fend him off by the commands of his uncle, Ethelred, to oblige King Egfrid. His next retreat is to the court of Adelwach, King of Suffex. Adelwach, on the conversion of his people, gave him the bishoprick of Selsey. Now Theodore, grown feeble and old. and defiring to be in friendship with him before his death, got him reflored to the See of York, by his earnest intercession with King Alfred, Egfrid's fuccessor. When he left it, it was divided into two dioceses, but now on his return he found it split into three; Hexham making the third. He attempted the re-union of York and Hexham, but with an importunity fo difagreeable at court, that he was again expelled. He withdrew to the court of Etheldred, King of Mercia. He had the address to make that monarch his friend, and to get one of the four bishopricks in his kingdom, the bishoprick of Leicester, then vacant. His passion for pre-eminence, and immoderate love of power, hurt him in his new fituation. The king, and his nephew, Berthwald, archbishop of Canterbury, being offended with him for some undue liberties, they refolved, in concert with Alfred, king of Northumberland, to clip the plumes of his ambition. They tried him by a fynod, charged him with many things, and at length requested a formal refignation of his bishoprick. On his refusal, he was deposed. He was now 70 years of age, yet not so feeble, but he took another journey to Rome for redrefs. The pope convened a council, and fent him back with a decree for his restoration. with letters recommendatory to the two kings, and the archbifhop. The archbishop, out of respect to the pope, and the king of Mercia having taken on him the habit of a monk, and the king of Northumberland falling fick, and relenting on his deathbed, received him again into favour. But another difficulty came in his way. Alfred, king of Northumberland, died before he could be replaced in his fee of York. However, he acquired fo much favour with his fuccessor, the young king Ofred, as to have a council held near the river Nidd (c). With great difficulty he obtained the bishoprick of Hexham, the third part only of the antient diocese of Northumberland (d). But to return to Lindisfarn,

On the reduction of this diocese to the kingdom of Bernicia,

Eata was made bishop of it. He was one of Aidan's scholars. Aidan, upon his first coming to this see, undertook the education of twelve Saxon children, whom he trained up to piety and learning. Before his death, he had the pleasure of seeing Eata preferred to be abbot of Melros; who left that monastery to be abbot of Lindisfarn, in 664. He presided over it fourteen years. He had not been long bishop before his diocese of Bernicia was divided into two, Landisfarn and Hexham, as before-mentioned. Tumbert was chosen to the latter. Being against Theodore's having any jurisdiction over the northern churches, he was deposed in a full chapter of bishops, convened by the archbishop of Twisford, by the river Aln, 684. They proceeded, after his degradation, to elect another in his room. The choice fell on Cuthbert, a monk of Lindisfarn. Cuthbert was with difficulty brought to comply to accept it, and, at length, only on condition that he might remain at Landisfarn. It was agreed therefore to give him the see of Landisfarn, and to translate Eata to Hexham.

(c) Spelm. Confil. i. 203. Heddius. p. 58.

(d) Vid. Hexham

Cuthbert had his education in the monastery of Melros, under Eata, who had brought him with him to Landissarn, and settled him in that abbey. He was an exemplary, modest, humble, and good man, took great pains to make others so, would go for whole weeks and months into the most unfrequented and uncivilized parts of the diocese, moors and mountains, for that purpose, by himself and alone, where other learned persons would not come. He was handsome, had a graceful elocution, and a persuasive manner, which with his other good qualities, his extensive charity and good nature, were powerful and irresissible charms. Finding his health declining, and unable to sustain the weight of episcopal cares, he resigned his bishopric, after he had held it two years. He survived his resignation only two months, dying 20th March, 687, at his hermitage or solitude in the island of Farn, and for his eminent virtues was canonized.

The way of drawing and representing faints among the Saxons, may be seen in that curious piece of antiquity found near Ashelney, in Somersetshire, described and sigured by two eminent antiquaries (e); of pure gold, weighing about three guineas, in enamel, covered over with chrystal, representing St. Cuthbert, as is supposed, sitting in a chair, with this inscription on a plane rising obliquely, in Roman or Gallo-Italic letters, except two.

AELFRED MET HETT GEWYRLAN.

Alfredus me justit fabricari.

On the reverse are flowers. K. Alfred preferred these characters to the Saxon, and, when he swayed the scepter, brought them into use (f). This curious memorial of St. Cuthbert was found in the very place of that glorious monarch's retreat and deliverance from the Danes, fortified by him in time of war (g), and in time of peace converted into a monastery (h). Dr. Musgrave thinks this curious cimolium an undeniable instance of the use of images coming from the heathens into the Christian church (i).

On the vacancy of the fee of Lindisfarn by the death of St. Cuthbert, it was governed for one year by Wilfrid, bishop of Hexham, on the expiration of which,

- (e) Dr. Musgrave, Ph. Tr. No. 247. Dr. Hicks, Thesaur. Ling. Septentr. Ph. Tr. No. 260.
- (f) Ingulphus.
- (g) Milton.
- (b) Malmibury.

(i) Geta Brit. Ph. Tr. No. 346. Eadbert was chosen to fucceed him. This prelate is recorded to have been a very pious man, to have understood the holy scriptures well, to have drawn them into his life and practice, and to have been a liberal father to the helpless stranger, the poor and indigent. In March, 698, he removed St. Cuthbert's body from the island of Farn to that of Lindisfarn. He survived that act of kindness for his venerable friend and predecessor but a few days, and was buried in the same tomb with him, having been a bishop ten years.

Egfrith, or Eadfrith, was elected to fucceed him in the same year. He was a monk of Lindisfarn, of which his father was abbot. In that retirement he translated the Gospels into Latin, decorated after his death with gilding and jewels by his fucceffor, with painting by Bilfrid, an anchorite, and with an interlineary Saxon version by Aldred, a priest. This book fell into the hands of Sir Robert Cotton, whom few fuch curiofities escaped, and is now in his library in the British Museum. He was eminent for his learning in the age he lived, and loved to encourage it in others. By his advice, Bede wrote the Life of St. Cuthbert in profe and verse, whose memory he so much revered, that one of his first episcopal acts was, the repairing of his chapel or oratory in the island of Farn. Yet, though he venerated that exemplary and pious prelate, he did not altogether imitate him. He attended not the cares of his high office fo strictly as became him. For this he was warmly exposulated with by his friend Bede, in a letter full of spirit, piety, and good sense. He put him in mind of the weight of his charge, the duties of a Christian bishop. He earnestly pressed him to remember his Saviour's commission, how he was to admonish even the highest orders within his jurisdiction, and remind them of their duty; exhort them not to build. build monasteries and churches to get a name and a reputation, but for the glory of God, and the increase of virtue; find out and punish diffembling priefts, who had the form, but not the power of godliness; employ his episcopal leifure not in pleasing the world, but God; in studying his holy scriptures, and translating them into the Saxon language for the benefit of his own and other dioceses. The bishop, so far from being angry with this freedom of his friend, received his letter kindly, and returned an answer, calling it "An Answer of Gratitude." He set about translating several of the facred books into the Saxon tongue. This shews, that, however remiss he might be in some things. in reproving the great for their ambition, or the little for their hypocrify, he had the true spirit and temper of a Christian bishop. and might be led into an over-forbearance and remiffness; by an excess of humility and modesty, his natural candour and good nature. He was bishop twenty-four years, dying in 721. He was fucceeded by Ethelwold, abbot of Melros, a scholar, companion, and friend of St. Cuthbert. In his time king Ceolwulf divested himself of his royalty, to add to the number of the religious in the monastery of Lindisfarn. This bishop died in 740. The next was

Kenulf, chosen the same year. His episcopacy abounded with troubles. K. Egbert imprisoned him in the castle of Bambrough, on suspicion of a murder being committed with his knowledge and connivance on one of the royal line, named Offa, who had taken sanctuary within his jurisdiction. He did not get his liberty till the year 780, and then with difficulty. Sorrow and age had brought him so weak, that he turned over the burthen of his office to another, and spent the remainder of his days in a course of strict piety and devotion. He died in 783.

Highald, his coadjutor, was elected his fuccessor. He was not long bishop before the Danish rovers made a descent upon the island, cruelly used the monks, knocked some on the head, drowned others, and robbed and burnt their monastery. The abbey-church was spared. The bishop, and some of his clergy, escaped unhurt. He lived a great while after in his see, unmolested, and free from such alarming accidents. He died in 803. His see was filled up by Ecgbert, who was bishop eighteen years. He died in 821. The next was Heathured. He had this dignity nine years. He died in 830; and was fucceeded by Egfrid, a gentleman of birth and fortune, of an enlarged benevolence, and a free and liberal spirit. He built the church of Norham, removed the tomb of K. Ceowulf to it, gave that village, and five more, viz. Gedword, Gainsford, Ilcliff, Wicliff, and Billingham, to his see of Lindisfarn, which he governed fixteen years; dying in 845.

Eadbert was chosen in his place, of whom there is nothing memorable, but that he was bishop eight years, and died in 854. The same year

Eardulph succeeded him, who had a most troublesome time by another descent of the Danes in 875, under their General Halfden. In that year, Halfden made an entire conquest of Nor-Vol. II.

I i i thumberland, thumberland, fet a king or vice-roy over it, whom he dethroned the next year, and divided his kingdom among his officers. which had lasted 330 years, from the time of Ida, the first king. Bishop Eardulph, on the first news of their approach, fled, with his clergy. Defirous of having St. Cuthbert's bones preferved, they carried them, and what they could of value, with them. They wandered long from one place to another, without a fettled habitation, for the tedious melancholy space of seven years. At length, they fet themselves down at Chester-le-street, then called Craig, and by the Saxons Concestre, from its situation by the river Cone, five miles from Durham, and feven from Newcastle upon Tyne. Here Eardulph enlarged his diocefe, by adding to it the vacant one of Hexham, in 883, which had been without a bishop for fixty-three years, from the time of Tidforth's refignation. Both now go under the name of the Bishoprick of Lindisfarn. He had no more troubles under his government of it. He was bishop forty-fix years, and died in the year 900. His fuccesfors lived here very happily till the year 995. Aldwin was then The Danes infesting his diocese, he and his clergy thought it prudent to remove for their fecurity, with St. Cuthbert's remains, to Rippon. There they flayed only four months, all being quiet again. Bishop Aldwin thought to have come back with them to Chestre-le-street, but by the occasion of a dream upon the road, fettled at Durham (k), where his fucceffors have continued to this day, many of whom have been as great lights to learning and religion, as their revenues were great and refplendent, derived from the pious munificence of those who held epifcopacy in veneration. Its friends were very many, and liberal to a high degree, as may be judged by some of their gifts to this diocefe. K. Hardiknute gave all the land lying between the river Tees and Tyne. K. Canute gave Stainthorpe and Raby. K. Ethelstan gave South Weremouth, with eleven villages; besides many church-ornaments to his clergy. Stire, a nobleman, gave the lordship of Darlington, with its appurtenances, and two plowlands in Lumley. Swaculph, son of Kikell, gave the lordships of Bradburg, Morden, Griseby, cum Saca & Soena. K. William II, gave North Allerton, which bishop Pudsey built, and gave Sadberg, purchased by him of K. Richard. Bishop Walcher gave Jarrow; and Tillered, abbot of Hesserbam, gave South Yoden; bishop Egsrid gave the church and village of Norham, &cc. K. Egsrid gave Chesser-lesseet (1).

(k) Lel. Comment. in Cygn. Cant. in Itin. vol. ix. p. 56, 57, 58.

St. Cuthbert's shrine had this privilege, that whoever fled to it, should be safe for thirty-seven days (m).

Such were antiently the powers and revenues of this bishoprick, called St. Cuthbert's patrimony. It is still, perhaps, the best in England, being a principality, vested with large Regalia, crected in troublesome times for the security and defence of the borders.

I have been the more particular in my account of this bishoprick of Lindisfarn, and its bishops, because their history is a piece of antiquity, which shews the spirit and temper of the first professors of Christianity in Northumberland. The monastery occasionally mentioned, of Aidan's foundation (n), was under the government of the bishops (o). The abbot and monks were the

<sup>(1)</sup> Lel. Itin. vol. viii. p. 10, 11.

(m) Hol. Chron. vol. i. p. 150.

(n) Bed. Vita Cuthb. p. 241, 242.

<sup>(1)</sup> De Episcopis Lindisfarnensibus Whartoni Anglia Sacra, tom. i. p. 691, &c. Monast. Angl. vol. ii. p. 845. de Exord. et Statu Lindisfarn. Eccles. Ex Codice MS. Ethelwoldi Episc. Winton. Traactat. de Abbatibus Lindisf. 980.

Rec. in Scac. 21 Ric. II. Mich. Rot recit. Cartam Ed. III.

428

cathedral clergy. The cathedral, and the neighbouring village of Fenham, the village and church of Norham, with other possessions, were given by William de Carilepho to the monastery of Durbam (p). Here was afterwards a cell of Benedictine Monks, subordinate to that priory. Its annual revenues, 26 K. Henry VIII, were valued at 48 l. 18 s. 11 d. Dugd. 60 l. 5 s. Speed. In the 33d of the same reign they were granted to the dean and chapter of Durbam, in whose possession they now are (q).

The cathedral has been a splendid structure, of which there are still some remains. Two towers are standing, also three isles, with their beautiful pillars and arches. On the south side, are the soundations of the abbey; both built with red freestone.

On the west side, and within a few yards of the sine cathedral-ruin, is the parish-church, dedicated to St. John (r). It has three isles. On the north side of the chancel is a mural monument of white marble with the following inscription.

Here lyeth the Body of Ann Jones, some time Wife to Henry Jones, Esq; which Ann died the 9th of Feb. 1625.

In obitum dilectissima matris, Anna Jones.

Si quis forte rogat, cujus tenet offa sepulchrum,
Ipse tacens docui marmora dura loqui.

Si quæris proavos generoso sanguine ducta est.
Si vitam, insignis regula justitia.

(f) Carta Willielmi de Carilepho, Dunel. Episc. Monast. Angl. vol. i. p. 43. Hen. Huntington. lib. iii.

(q) Bp. Tanner's Notit. Monast. fol. p. 389.

(r) Browne Willis.

Si quæris mores, mulier nec æqui amantior Nec pietatis erat, nec probitatis erat. Hæc pro te triftis fubscripsit carmina natus, Quæ funt officii signa suprema sui.

Per me Petrum Jones.

The village is chiefly inhabited by fishermen. To the northeast of it is a garrison commanding the harbour. At ebb-tides both horse and foot may come from the main land to the island. It is well delineated by Speed (s). It has its name of Lindisfarn from its situation by the ostium of Lind-rivulet, and the Celtic Fahren, Recessus. Egelwine, bishop of Durham, to escape the vengeance of K. William I, after the desection of Northumberland, retired to it with his clergy, the church-treasure, the jewels, and the body of St. Cuthbert, for security, in the year 1069; where they remained upwards of three months (t). It gives its name of Holy Island, to a considerable tract of country on the coast, called Holy Island-shire (u).

We next pass by the village of Fenwick, and Fenwick-Park, on the left hand of the post-road, in the jurisdiction of Lindisfarn; also the village of Beal, on a pleasant slope, half a mile from the shore (v), and in the same liberty. It has its name from the famous Irish female saint Begogh, the patroness of Kirkby Begogh, and of a town called Beal in Yorkshire (w).

Near the 7th mile-stone, on the left hand, by Lind-rivulet, crossed by a small bridge, is

(s) Speed's Maps.

(t) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 7.

(u) Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 61. 63.

(v) Ibid.

(w) Stripe's Life of Archbishop Grindal, p. 291.

Haggerston, the seat of the antient family of the Haggerstons; of John Haggerston, in the reign of K. Henry III, and I. K. Edward I (x); of Sir Thomas Haggerston, created a baronet, 19 K. Charles I, 1613, who was a colonel in the famous Northumberland-regiment, active and faithful to his Majesty, for which his estate was sequestred by the parliament, 16 July, 1651; of Sir Thomas Haggerston, his son, who was governor of Berwick upon Tweed; of the late Sir Carnaby Haggerston; and now of his son, Sir Thomas Haggerston, Bart. His seat is the old tower in which K. Edward II. received the homage of Thomas Earl of Lancaster for the earldom of Lincoln, 1311 (y). It is kept in good repair. On the south front is the family-arms, but no date. Hard by is the ruin of an old chapel. The gardens, in which is a conservatory, are bounded to the south by the slow running stream of Lind (z).

Seven miles from Haggerston, is the villa of Tweedmouth, so called from its situation by the ostium of the river Tweed; memorable for the general muster of the army that was to march against Scotland, 4 K. Edward I. Here the barons, knights, and tenants by warlike serjanties made their Profrum Serviciorum, the profer of services, before Sir Bartholomew Badlesmere, lieutenant to the constable of England, and Sir Nicholas de Segrave, marescal of the king's host, on Thursday next after the Nativity of St. Mary, 10th September.

(x) Jehannes Haggerston tenet villam suam de Haggerston libere, et red sit inde per annum Cs. mortuus est, et terræ ejus sunt in manu regis. Escaet, de anno 1 Ed. I.

(y) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 320.

(x) Lindif Lol. Itin. vol. vii. p. 60.

Here was an antient hospital, dedicated to St. Bartholomew, now called, the Spital, the mastership of which was in the disposal of the bishop of Durham (a).

We cross the Tweed by a strong and handsome stone-bridge, on the north side of which is the antient town of Berwick (b). It was given by Edgar, King of Scotland, to the fee of Durham, with the lands of Coldingham to the priory of Durham, in honour of St. Cuthbert, for a victory obtained under his banner over his uncle Donald. Canulph was then bishop, by whose defection and disloyalty this noble jewel was lost to that see; the pious Edgar taking it from that ungrateful prelate into his own hands again (c).

On the convention held for the ranfom of William, King of Scotland, in the reign of K. Henry II, at the round fum of 100,000 l. it was one of the four garrifons delivered up for fecurity of the payment; the other three being Roxbrough, Edinburgh, and Striveling. K. Henry, in whom the antient royal Saxon line was reflored to the crown of England (d), fortified it with a castle (e). The Scotch King did homage to him for his kingdom, as mentioned in another place (f). The ranfom being paid, this and the other

- - (b) Tuesis civitas antiquissima recte Ptolomæo de nomine cognita.

    Lel. Comment. in Cygn. Cantionem, in Itin. vol. ix. p. 93.

    Bed. Hist. l. 1. c. 12.
  - (6) Hol. Chron. vol. i. p. 181.
- (d) Parliament. Hist. of Engl. 8vo. vol. i. p. 14.

(e) Polychronicon.

(f) See Alnwick.

pledges were restored by K Richard I. It remained as an appendage to Scotland, till the reign of K. Edward I. That victorious monarch, on the death of King Alexander, held a parliament at it for the election of his fuccessor, 1292. Among the powerful competitors, were William de Vescy, baron of Alnwick, William de Ros, baron of Wark, upon Tweed, John Baliol and Robert Bruce. John Baliol was chosen (g). He did homage to Edward for his crown at Newcastle, in the same year, 26th December, on St. Stephen's day (b). In a little time he broke his oath of fealty. Incenfed at his perjury, K, Edward invested Berwick with a large fleet and army. His fleet confifted of twenty-four ships; his army, of 4000 horse, and 30,000 foot, besides 5000 horse, and 1000 foot, of the bishoprick of Durham. The townsmen burnt three or four of his ships, and forced the rest out of the harbour. By the bravery of his troops, and his manœuvres, he was an overmatch for his enemies, and made great flaughter. victory he obtained in the 24th year of his reign, 1296. It is faid about fifteen thousand Scotchmen were killed, at least, and not above twenty-eight Englishmen. A commercial building, called The Red Hall, belonging to a company of Flemish merchants, fortified in the form of a tower, was reduced to ashes, with thirty of them in it, on their refusing to surrender. He lodged in the castle fifteen days. He encompassed the town with a ditch, eighty feet broad, and as many in depth. The furren-

Rym. Fæd. tom. ii. Acta Regia. vol. i. 8vo. p. 66, &c. Brady's Compl. Hift. vol. ii. App. No. ii.

(g) Apud Berwyke super Tweedam, in aula castri ejusdem villæ, in pleno Parliamento, &c. Vid. Mat Westm.

(b) Rym. Foed. tom. ii p. 600.
Acta Regia. vol. ii. 8vo. p. 72, 73.

der of the castles of Roxbrough, Dunbar, and Edinburgh, soon sollowed. When he was before the latter, he met with a remarkable instance of honour in a Scotchman, the chief officer of the castle, who upon his majesty's letters to his council being brought to him by an unfaithful and treacherous messenger, named Lewin, a Welchman, delivered them back over the walls to the king unopened, and the Welchman to be punished, who was hanged on a high gallows, and quartered (i). A rare example in an enemy, worthy of being remembered by those poltrons who make a practice of opening the letters of others, to know their concerns!

K. Edward, in the above-mentioned year, 1296, having made a compleat conquest of Scotland, received the homage and fealty of all the Scotch nobility at this town, August 24th, in the prefence of the English parliament, splendid and numerous. The oath of fealty was in the following terms, as translated from the old French of H. Knighton, canon of Leicester (k), in an ingenious modern history (l).

"Because we are at present under the subjection of the thrice noble prince, and our dear Lord, Sir Edward, King of England, "Lord of Ireland, and Duke of Aquitain, we do faithfully promise, for ourselves, and for our heirs, upon pain of body and estate, that we will serve him truly and loyally against all manner of people that may live and die whenever it shall be required or commanded by our said Lord the King of England or (i) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 298, 299, and p. 301.

(k) De Eventibus Angliæ inter Decem Scriptores. Col. 2482.

<sup>(1)</sup> Parliament. Hist. of Engl. vol. i. 8vo. p. 100.

"his heirs; that we will hinder him from damage as much as we can, and fet upon his enemies with all our forces whereever they may be found. And to the end that we may firmly keep and hold these presents, we do bind ourselves, our heirs, and our goods; and we have sworn to this upon the Blessed Evangelists. Besides all we that are present, and every of us feparately, have done homage to our Lord the King of England, in these words,

"I will be true and loyal, and bear true faith and allegiance to Edward, King of England, and his heirs, and ferve him with life and limb, and do him all earthly honour against all manmer of people that may live and die; and from henceforth I will not bear arms, nor be aiding in counsel, against him, or against his heirs, on any cause whatsoever. So help me God, and all the faints.

"In witness of these things we have made these letters patents, and sealed them with our seals."

"Given at Berwick upon Tweed, this 28th day of August, in the "year of the reign of our said Lord the King of England twenty "four."

Among the Scotch peers thus doing homage in that august affembly, was Sir Gilbert de Humfranvil, Earl of Angus, in Scotland, and Baron of Prudhow, in Northumberland.

Not only the barons or great tenants in capite made their fub-mission in form, but on giving the Scots a new chancellor, a new great feal, new judges, and a new treasurer, the lesser tenants were called upon to make theirs by a written deed, to remain as a memorial of their being subjects by conquest to the crown of England.

The Scots revolting, King Edward reduced them by force of arms to obedience, in 1300; a year memorable for the renewal of the great charters, and the new statute made for their confirmation, intitled Articuli super Chartas, or articles upon the charters (m).

To hold the Scots in the greater subjection through fear, he ordered one half of the body of Sir William Wallase, after his execution, to be set over Berwick-bridge, in the 33d year of his reign, 1305; and the year following the Countess of Boughan was set by his command on the walls of Berwick-castle in a woodencage, for putting the crown of Scotland on the head of Robert Bruce at Scone, in the absence of her brother, the Earl of Fife, then at his manour of Whitwick in Leicestershire (n).

By the policy and valour of Edward, Berwick was in the poffession of the English twenty years. After his death, the Scots acquired it, 11 K. Edward II, 1318, on the 2d of April; not by bravery, but by corruption. Sir Pierce Spalding delivered in up to Thomas Randall, Earl of Murray, in consideration of lands given him in Angus, in Scotland (0). It remained in their possession till 7 K. Edward III, 1333; when it was recovered by a great victory obtained over them by his majesty on Hallidon-Hill, near the town, with very little loss; his enemies losing a prodigious number in the battle and the pursuit, 7 Earls, 900 Knights, 400 Esquires, and about 32,000 common men, and by their own confession 14,000. The castle surrendered the next day, being St. Margaret's (p).

(m) Statutes at Large, anno 1300. Coke's 2d Inst. 537.

(n) Hol. Chron. Vol. ii. p. 313, 1314.

The Scots regained the town, but not the castle, 29 K. Edward III, 1355, early in the morning of the sixth of November, by surprize. The king was then in France. In January following, 1356, he came before it with a fleet and army. He entered the castle by a mine, to the great joy of the English commander, and the whole garison. The miners were brought from the forest of Dean, in Gloucestershire, and other parts of England. The Scots, perceiving this, gave up the town. Upon its reduction, his majesty repaired the fortifications (q).

The castle was taken by surprize, by the Scots, 1 K. Richard II, 1377. They were dispossessed of it in the same year by the Earl of Northumberland, the Lords Lucy and Greystock, and others, who took it by storm, and put every Scotchman to the sword, except their captain, Sir Alexander Ramsey. The Earl of Northumberland entered Scotland with 3000 men of arms, and 7000 archers, and wasted the lands of the Earl of March for three days together, in resentment for burning Roxbrough (r).

The castle was taken by the Scots, by surprize in the night the year following, on Thursday before St. Andrew's day. The Enlish constable of it was Sir Robert Bointon, who was slain. His

with the property

(p) Hol. Chron. Vol. ii. p. 350.

(q) ______ p. 386.

<sup>(*) -----</sup> p. 418, 420.

wife, children, and servants, were permitted to depart on promise of paying 3000 marks within three weeks, or yielding themselves prisoners again; but on the ninth day after, it was retaken by the Earl of Northumberland, and his son, Henry Lord Percy, with 400 men in two hours. Sir Matthew Redman, who married Johanna, the widow of William Lord Creystock, and afterwards of Anthony Lord Lucy, was made constable of it (s). Sir Matthew's orders to guard the town were so strict, that even the great Duke of Lancaster was refused admittance on his return from an embassage in Scotland (t).

After the battle of Towton, 1461, King Henry VI, refigned it to James III, King of Scotland, as a reward for his protection; from whom it was taken, 22 K. Edward IV, 1482, August 24; and continued in the possession of the English crown ever since (u).

For fetting the boundaries and limits of it, commissioners were appointed by K. Richard III, in the 2d year of his reign, and K. James III, of Scotland, 1484; when it was agreed, that the debateable ground should remain in its antient state, without culture, buildings, or inhabitants. The names of the English commissioners were Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, Lord Grey-

(s) Nobilissimus Baro, Willielmus de Greystock, filius Radulphi, cepit in uxorem Johannam, filiam Henrici Fitzhugh, domini de Ravenswath. Dicta Johanna postea desponsata suit Antonio, Domino de Lucy, qui infra breve obiit in terra sancta. Deindè autem super sestum S. Barnabæ, Apostoli, anno Edvardi tertis quinquegessimo primo, Mattheus Redmayn cepit dictam dominam Johannem in uxorem.

Ex Autographo perantiquo.

(t) Hol. Chron. Vol. ii. p. 439.

(u) ——— Vol. i. p. 283.

Vol. ii, p. 705-6.

flock, Lord Scrope of Masham, Sir William Gascoign, Sir Robert Constable, &c. (v).

The lord warden of the east marches was governor of the town for the time being, and appointed the officers of the garifon, for whose conduct he was answerable.

It was fummoned to fend two members to parliament by King Henry VIII. It is governed by a mayor, recorder, and four bailiffs, chosen annually by the burgesses, in number about 300. They elect the two members of parliament. The mayor and bailiss are the returning officers (w).

By a treaty between King Edward VI, and Mary Queen of Scotland, dated at Norham, 10th June, 1551, it was made a county-town, or as the record expresses it, a free town, independent of the two kingdoms (x).

By the charter of King James I, granted 1602, the mayor, recorder, and four bailiffs, or any three of them, the mayor always to be one, are impowered to hold in their Guild-hall, or Tollbooth, one court of pleas every Tuesday in every second week throughout the year; to have four serjeants at mace, and no more, and a coroner; a merchant's guild with hanse, and all other liberties, privileges, and free customs belonging to that guild; to prohibit merchant-strangers to dispose of any goods within their precincts, except in gross or by wholesale.

(v) Hol. Chron. Vol. i. p. 285.

(w) Browne Willis.

(x) Rym. Fœd. tom. xv. p. 265. Acta Regia, Vol. iii. 8vo. p. 373.

They have full power and authority to frame, constitute, ordain, make, and establish, from time to time, such laws, statutes, ordinances, and constitutions, as shall appear to them, or the greater part of them, the mayor always to be one, good, prositable, wholesome, honest, and necessary, for the good government of the town.

They may purchase manours, messuages, lands, tenements, rectories, tithes, rents, reversions, services, and other possessions, and hereditaments whatsoever, which are not held immediately of the crown, provided that the same do not exceed the clear annual value of 60 l. per annum, the statute of laws and tenements not to be given in mortmain, or any other act, ordinance, proviso, or restraint thereof had, made, decreed, or provided to the contrary notwithstanding.

They are exonerated or quit for ever of all Toll, Pontage, Passage, Murage, Paunage, Cranage, Lassage, Cariage, Kaigge, Vinage, Achate, and Rechate, through his Majesty's dominions, with Seck, and Sack, and Toll, and Theam, Ward and Ward-Penny, and all other customs to be performed of their own proper goods and merchandise, also of all payment of subsidies, taxes, impositions, tenths, sistenths, and exactions whatsoever; also of Prisage of Wines, Butlerage of Wines, and of all other impositions, called the imposts, Butlerage and Prisage of Wines, for any wines carried, unloaden, or put to land within their own port of Berwick, or in any other of the members or creeks of it.

The corporation have a power to impose a reasonable tax or tallage upon the rents and other things of the inhabitants, without molestation or hindrance from the king's officers, provided they apply it only to the chamber's use.

They

They have two weekly markets, on Wednesday and Saturday; also an annual fair; with a court of Pyepowder, Tolls, Tallages, Picage, Fines, Amerciments, and all other customs, liberties, profits, and emoluments whatsoever belonging to such markets, fairs, and courts of pyepowder. The mayor is clerk of the market.

They have a Court Leet and view of Frank Pledge of all the burgeffes, inhabitants, and refidents, within their jurifdiction.

The mayor has the custody of the gates, posterns, and wickets, and the custody of the keys of the gates.

The mayor, recorder, bailists, and burgestes, or any three or more of them, the mayor and recorder always to be two, may do judgment of Infangthiefe, and Outfanthiefe. They have the power of assize over the prisoners; authority to enquire, hear, and determine all Felonies, Murders, Homicides, Robberies, Assaults, Riots, Routs, Forces, Outcryes, into lands or tenements, trespasses against the crown, unlawful Conventicles, Ambidexters, Conspiracies, Contempts, Concealments, and also of all other Misprisions, Offences, Mischeeds, Defaults, Negligences, Causes, and Articles, within the liberties of the corporation.

The coroner makes return from time to time of all juries, inquisitions, pannels, attachments, and indentures, taken before the mayor, recorder, &c. He attends them in all gaol-deliveries, and does the office of a sheriff. All sines, ransoms, issues, amerciments, forfeitures, profits and perquisites of the mayor's courts are levied and raised under his authority, and go into the town-chamber; also all goods and chattels whatsoever waved, Deodards, Chattels of Felons, Fugitives, and Outlaws, convicted and attainted.

The mayor and corporation have all the Seignory, Manour, Borough-Town, and Soke of Berwick upon Tweed, with all and fingular their rights, members, and appurtenances; all the houses, edifices, buildings, stables, store-houses, lands, tenements, cottages, wafte-grounds and foil whatfoever which belonged to the crown within the Signory, Manour, or Borough; all the crown-lands and fields adjoining to the town, commonly called the Bounds and Fields of Berwick; also all those crown-lands, tenements, meadows, pastures, feedings, commons, demesne-lands, messuages, mills, houses, edifices, barns, stables, out-houses, orchards, gardens, wastes, heaths, furz, moors, marches, fruits, profits, waters, fishings, fishing-places, fuit, foke, rents, reversions, and fervices, as well of free and customary tenements, fermes, feefermes, annuities, knights-fees, wards, marriages, eschaets, releafes, herriots, fines, amerciments, rights, jurifdictions, franchifes, privileges, and hereditaments whatfoever, of whatfoever kind, nature, or degree, or by whatfoever names they be known. lying or fituated within the Signory, Manour, and Borough of Berwick.

This Signory or Manour is thus abuttelled; beginning at the port or haven, and extending northwards by the shore of the sea, and the sea-banks, to a certain path or way, commonly called, The brown rod, and by the same brown rod westward to the rivulet of Witteter, and from the other side of it by the same brown rod to the river Tweed, and from thence by the banks of the Tweed eastward unto the port or haven of the borough of Berwick.

The crown hath referved to itself the castle, built on the townwall; all the edifices, and buildings belonging to it; the watermill near the wall, commonly called, The castle-water; all the lands, tenements, closes, and other hereditaments, known, or Vol. II.

called by the feveral names of the Inner castle-hills, enclosed, and the Outer castle-hills, not enclosed, the New water-haugh, and Lumsden's avery, Gayn's-law, Gouk-Haugh, the Sunk, and the Maudlinsfield, the Coney-garths, the Marshalls meadow near Lammerton, the meadow, called, The Horsman's bat, the Horsman's meadows, the Yellow-Gowlon-meadow adjoining near or upon Latham, and extending to the eastern and western Mortinton; all the sishing and sishing-places, beginning at Finche's-howgh, and extending in and by the river Tweed to the deep sea; all those lands and meadows commonly called or known by the several names of Broad's-haugh, Borrey-Avery, and Ethermouth-Avery, being within or nigh the town; also two wind-mills within its precincts.

The Seignory, Manour, Borough, Town, and Soke of Berwick are held of the crown in free and common burgage, by the payment of 20 l. annually into his majesty's exchequer, or into the hands of his bailiss or receivers, at the feast of the annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and of St. Michael the Archangel, in equal portions for ever, for all other rents, services, exactions, and demands whatsoever due to the crown (y).

A monastery was founded in Berwick by Sir John Grey, A. D. 1278, for white friers, Fratres Carmeli Monte, one of the four orders of friers mendicants. They officiated in the king's chapel belonging to the castle, for which they had the usual salary given by the crown (z).

(y) Ex Carta Jac. I. Dat. 30. Apr. anno reg. 20 Angl. 37 Scotia.

(z) Fratres Carmelitæ deserviant in capella regia in castro de Berwick, et habeant consuetum stipendium.

Rot. Pat. 2 Ed. II. p. 1. m. 14.

Tanner's Notitia Monast. fo. p. 396.

Another monastery was founded by the bridge, dedicated to the Holy Trinity. It is said by Leland to have been dissolved by Anthony Beck, Bishop of Durbam (a); but that learned antiquary must be under a mistake, as that prelate died, 5 K. Edward II, 1311, and mention of it is afterwards made as existing, 2 K. Edward III, and of its being founded pro Ministro et Fratribus Sancta Trinitatis Pontis Berwici (b).

There was also one founded for the Grey Friers, or Friers Minors, who had a grant for twenty marks per annum out of Wetherburn, for the payment of which K. Edward III. gave orders in the 13th year of his reign (c).

Mention is made in the Eschaet-rolls of Northumberland, and by Bishop Tanner, of an hospital, or free chapel, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, situated near Berwick, but not precisely said where (d); to which was united an Hermitage, at a place called Segdon (e).

The town stands chiefly on the brow of a hill; the river Tweed to the fouth; the sea to the east; large barracks for soldiers at

(a) Lel. Itin. Vol. viii. p. 5.

- (b) Clauf. 2 Ed. III. m. 16.
- (c) Mandatum R. Ed. III. anno reg. 13. de solvendo guardiano et fratribus ordinum minorum in villa de Berwico commorantibus viginti marcas per annum de serma dictæ villæ, de elemosina regum Scotiæ de antiquo constituta.

Rym. convent. tom. v. p. 104. Notit. Monast. so. 397.

(1) Rot. Pat. 29 Ed. I. m. prope finem. Rym. Feed. tom. iii. p. 786.

Rex dedit Nicholao Nuton custodiam liberæ capellæ S. Mariæ Magdalinæ, juxta Berewi, et hermitagii de Segdon eidem anex. Pat. 16 Hen. VI. ex collectan. cl. M. Hutton.

(e) Rot. Pat. 41 Ed. III. n. 39; where is an inquisition of the lands belonging to it., Tanner's Notit. Monast. so. 397.

the upper part of it, by a handsome area, called, The Parade, where they exercise; the fortifications strong, well furnished with cannon. In the reign of K. Charles I, it was put into a good state of desence by the parliament, who held it against his majesty. They repaired the town-walls, on which thirty pieces of ordnance were planted. On the mount over-looking the sea, and commanding the harbour, were ten brass pieces (f).

The church is on the north fide of the parade, in which Joan. the fifter of K. Edward III, was married on St. Mary Magdalen's day, 1328, to David Bruce, fon of Robert Bruce, King of Scotland. Their nuptials were celebrated with royal pomp and magnificence. Her mother, the Queen Dowager, was present, with the Lords Mortimer and Warren, the Bishops of Ely and Norwich, and an abundance of other great Lords. The Lord Mortimer's retinue alone confifted of ninescore knights, besides esquires, gentlemen, and yeomen. The Scots acquired by this marriage the re-delivery of their charters and patents, and of that famous one called. Ragman, whereby their kings became feodaries to the crown of England; also many jewels that had been taken from them; for: which, in return, they complimented their new queen with the title of Joan Make-peace (g). It was rebuilt under the Auspices of Colonel George Fenwick, of Brinkburn, in the fervice of the parliament (b). It is dedicated to the Holy Trinity (i). The minister of it at the Restoration was Mr. Nicholas Wressel, who was ejected for not complying with the act of uniformity. He taught school at Stockwell for some time, and ended his days at London, about the year 1695 (k).

(f) Whitelocke's Memor. p. 447.

(g) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 347.

(b) See Brinkburn.

(i) Browne Willis.

(k) Bishop Kenner's Historical Register.

In this town is a free Grammar school, of Q. Elizabeth's foundation; who also built the bridge over the Tweed. It was carried away by a great flood, 2 K. John, 1200. It was then of wood, and rebuilt by William, King of Scotland (1).

The Town-hall is a neat modern structure, of white freestone and hewn work.

The Town-Arms are, A dog paffant by a tree; in fesse point, two escutcheons with the arms of England and France quarterly, tied together by an arch; in chief, a king sitting on an arch, with a scepter in his right hand, and a mound in his left (m).

(1) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 161.

(m) Browne Willis.

THE

ANTIQUITIES

OF

NORTHUMBERLAND, &c.

JOURNEY III.

From Berwick to Cornhill, by Etall, Wooler, the Vales of Whittingham, Rothbury, Witton, Wallington, Bolham, Belfay, and Pont-Eland, to Newcastle upon Tyne.

 ${f F}^{ m ROM~\it Berwick}$  we go westward for six miles on a good turn-pike-road to the pleasant villa of Norham, i. e. the North Hamlet, the antient Ubbanford (a), which was built by Egfrid, Bishop of Lindisfarn, A. D. 830; and gives its name to a large tract of country called Norhamshire. Egfrid built a noble church in it, to which he removed the royal remains of Ceolwulf from Lindisfarn, the first of our princes who retired from a throne to a monastery. He gave the impropriation and advows son of it, and the whole villa, also the village of Shoreswood, and other villages before mentioned, to his fee (b). It stands on the north side of the village. The middle isle is only now standing. The foundations of a building were lately discovered at the east end, and a stone found with the following inscription.

(a) Northam. Rog. Hoveden. Camden's Brit. p. 862.

IHZINGAUL

Above it, in a nitch, is the effigies of St. Peter, with the keys; also of St. Cuthbert, and King Ceolwulph, holding a scepter; the three patrons of Norham-church. On the reverse is this infeription.

MHRINH MI

On the ravage of Lindisfarn by the Danes, St. Cuthbert's body was removed hither, where it remained till the time of King Ethelred. The village confifts of one long and wide fireet on the banks of the Tweed, to the east of which, on a rocky eminence, is Norham-Castle, which was built by Ralph Flambard, Bishop of Durham, 22 K. Henry I. 1121 (c). The Tweed fetches a circuit under it round a little island, called the Shingles, in most delightful murmurs. Alexander II, King of Scotland, made his personal submission in it to King John, 1209, at the price of a great sum of gold, leaving for pledges two of his daughters. He came before it with a mighty army, 1216, with which for the space of forty days he attempted to take it, but in vain, being forced with difgrace to raise the siege. After his death, a parliament was summoned to meet at Norbam, 10th May, 19 K. Edward I, 1291. The king resided in the castle. The nobility, prelates, and knights of both kingdoms, assembled before him on a green plain, on the banks of the Tweed, directly opposite to the castle, says the record, to consider of the successor to the Scotch scepter, to which he put in his claim; his title being historically declared and published by the Bishop of Durham (d).

(b) See Lindisfarn, or Holy Island.

(c) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 42.

Browne Willis.

In the following reign it was befieged by the Scots, who erected two forts against it, one in the church of Norham, and the other at Upsitlington, but by the bravery of its captain, Sir Thomas Grey, of Heton, and the arrival of the Lords Percy and Nevill with a body of forces to its relief, they were forced to desift from their enterprize, and retire (e).

They laid fiege to it again in the fame reign, and took it. K. Edward came before it with a large army, 1322, and recovered it, after a fiege of ten days (f).

It was befieged by James, King of Scotland, 13 K. Henry VII, 1497, but was rescued by the Earl of Surry, with an army of 20,000 men (g).

(d) Congregatis ex opposito castri de Norham, ex alia parte suminis Twedæ in quadam area viridi, episcopis, prælatis, comitibus, et baronibus, aliisquè nobilibus viris, jus ad dictum regnum vindicantibus, &c.

Rot. de Superioritate Regis Angliæ in Turri Lond.*

Brady's Compl. Hist. of England, vol. ii. p. 19.

(e) Hol. Chron. vol. i. p. 222.

(f) vol. ii. p. 332.

(g) _____p. 782-3.

It was feized by the Scots in the following reign, but was recovered by the prowefs and policy of Mr. Franklin, archdeacon of Durham, for which he had a coat of arms given him, 22 K. Henry VIII, 1530 (h).

It was repaired by bishop Tunstal in the reign of Q. Mary. It is now through age and neglect become a perfect ruin. Some of the vaults and prisons remain, part of a side-wall of the chapel, and a large tower at the north-east of it; under which a pleasant fountain issues out of the rocks.

The manours of Norham and Norhamshire, with the fisheries in the river Tweed, and all their franchises, were granted to Q. Elizabeth by Richard Barnes, bishop of Durham, who made no scruple to rob St. Cuthbert, to make round portions for his daughters (i). Her majerty granted the castle, the tithes, and demessins of Norham to Sir Robert Cary, Earl of Monmouth, for his own life, and the lives of his two sons. His lordship sold them for 6000 l. and the furniture of the castle for 800 l. to George Hume, Earl of Dunbar; a nobleman, says Lord Orerry, of an excellent character (k).

The manour of Norham is now in the possession of Sir Thomas Haggerston, of Haggerston, Bart. The castle, and its demess, consisting of 1030 acres, as surveyed about the year 1751, and extending eastward on the banks of the Tweed near two miles, be-

- (h) Athen. Oxon. vol. i. p. 703. Reg. Dunelm. Visitat. of Thomas Tonge, Norray, &c.
- (i) Browne Willis's Survey of the Cathedr. of Durh.
- (k) Monmouth's Memoirs, p. 114, and p. 128, and p. 197-8.

450

long to Robert Fenwick, of Lemington, Esq, in right of his wife, Mrs. Fenwick, one of the daughters and coheirs of the late William Ord, of Sandy-bank, Esq. They are held of the lord of the manour, paying only the castle-rent.

A fishery in the Tweed, near the castle, called Halywell, for one night and one day in a legal manner, was adjudged by the commissioners appointed to settle all claims and differences on the borders, 1553, to be the property of Lord Hume, his heirs, and assigns (1).

A mile below Norham, the Tweed forms an island of fourteen acres, by a den, called St. Thomas's Den; the Tweed musical by a fall from a mill-dam, in the border-idiom, named The Call, from its murmurs, as from a cascade.

A little to the west of it, is a losty terrace above the Tweed, where it forms a kind of serpentine canal; the seat of James Ker, of Ker's-field, Esq; on the other side, and a craggy cliff, inaccessible by human feet, the solitary recess of Cormorants, and several species of Hawks, particularly in the breeding-season.

Near half a mile further down the river, on the left hand of the road, two small Urns were found in a gravel-pit, called The Crooks, and several human bones by them. One of them is now in the possession of Francis Blake, of Twizell, and the other of Henry Collingwood, of Cornbill, Esqrs.

About 100 yards from it, is a pedestal of a cross, with some of its broken fragments; also another about 200 yards in a direct line from it, and a pleasant mount with a course of stone-steps round it, an antient sepulture, or barrow. The crosses were erected by the road formerly leading from Tilmouth-chapel to the villa, church, and castle of Norham.

<sup>(1)</sup> Bp. Nicholsen's Border-Laws, p. 109.

Half a mile from the Crook, is Twizell (m), which was the lordship and villa of Sir William Ridell, A.K. Edward III, who had also the hamlets of Dudhow and Grindon, which he held of the bishop of Durham by the annual rent of twenty marks, and doing fuit and fervice to his court at Norham (n). It was afterwards in the possession of a branch of the antient family of the Selby's; of Sir John Selby, a commissioner for enclosures of the east marches, 6 K. Edward VI (a), and deputy-warden of the east marches under Henry Lord Hunsdon in the reign of Q. Elizabeth (p); Sir William Selby, of Grindon, being at the same time master of the ordnance at Berwick (q). Sir John claimed a fifthery in the river Tweed, called Tilmouth-haugh fifthery, but by the commissioners appointed to adjust and settle all claims and differences on the borders, 1553, it was adjudged to be a Scotch fishing, belonging to the priory of Coldstream, leased to Alexander Hume of Maders-town, and that the lord of the manour of Twizelt had only a right to use and occupy a ring-net, and to stand on a place, called Fillispotte, upon the fouth fide of the river (r). His

- (m) Twizell. Rot. Escaetr. Northumbr. Twisse. Lel. Itin. vol. vii.
- (n) See Tilmouth.
- (0) Bp. Nicholfon's Border-Laws, p. 337.
- (p) Monmouth's Memoirs, p. 113.

(q) Id. p. 131.

(r) Border-laws, p. 110.

fon William Selby had the manours of Brankfton, Moneylaws, Shotton, Lowick, and half of the forest of Cheviot (s). Twizell is now the feat of Francis Blake, Efq; F. R. S. fon of Robert Blake, Efq; by the third daughter of Sir Francis Blake, of Ford-castle, Knt. lately repaired, with handsome additions, chiefly in the Saxon-Gothic stile: the river Till in a winding current gliding under it, croffed by a ftone-bridge of one ftrong and beautiful arch, as described by Leland (t), and faid to have been built by a lady of the Selby-family. nearly femicircular, 90 feet, 7 inches, from base to base, in height from the top of the battlement 46 feet, 2 inches. Under the house is a range of rocks, cavernose, fringed with various petrifications of moss, and other small plants, formed by drippings of water from the roof and crevices; a natural alcove in one part of it, the moss-plants on its sides variegated and gilded by those petrifying drops, a short, upright stone in the center in party-coloured lapideous cloathing, and hollow at the top by their continual falling; a fine view, through the arch of the bridge, of a floping bank of hawthorn, in bloffom beautiful; the north-west side of the bridge adorned with large quantities of Pellitory of the Wall; an upright rock, of a great fize, and tapering to the top, about twenty feet high, a little below the bridge. on the edge of the Till; a fountain near it, confecrated to St. Helen, and by it an antient fepulture, faid to have belonged to the family-chapel.

The two noble brothers, Sir Thomas Percy, the fixth Earl of Nor-thumberland, and Sir Henry Percy, defeated the Scots at Grindon, 5

Escaet. de anno 14 Car. I.

(s) Willielmus Selby, arm. filius Johannis Selby, militis, tenet in capite manerium de Eranxton, ac manerium five capitale messuagium vocat. Moneylaws, ac manerium five dominicum de Shotton, ac manerium de Lowick, ac medietatem forestæ de Cheviot.

<sup>(1)</sup> Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 62.

Q. Mary, 1558, and pursued them over the Till at Twizell, also over the Tweed at Chapel-ford, where many of them were drowned. On a rising ground near Grindon, about a quarter of a mile south from Sandy-bank, and in fight from it, are sour upright stoncpillars, funeral-memorials of the chieftains slain in that action (u).

On the other fide of Twizell-bridge, is Tilmouth, a mediety of the manour of which belonged to Sir Jurdan de Ridell, 1 K. Edward I (v); and the whole manour to Sir William Ridell, high sheriff of Northumberland, 8 K. Edward II (w); also to his son, Sir William Ridell, 4 K. Henry III; held of the bishop of Durham by half of a knight's fee, and doing suit and service to his lordship's court at Norham, and paying the castle-rent, viz. 20 s. per annum. The second Sir William died in that year, and left three daughters and coheirs, viz. Isabell married to Sir Alan de Clavering, Constantia to John de Kingston, and Johanna to Gerard de Woodrington (x). Sir Alan's Lady survived him, and

- (u) Hol. Chron. vol. i. p. 363.
- (v) Jurdanus de Ridell tenet medietatem de Tilmouth per dimid. marc. Veniat et fiet miles. Escaet, de anno 1 Ed. I.
- (w) See Swinburn-castle.
- (x) Dicunt juratores, super sacrum, quod Willielmus Ridell obiit seisitus in dominico, ut de seodo, de manerio de Tilmouth, cum pertinentiis, except. una caracuta terræ tradita unæ cantariæ in perpetuum, et duobus terris husbandriæ cuas Hugo Ridell tenet in eodem manerio, et excepta tertia parte ejusdem manerii quam Emmo, quæ suit uxor Willielmi Ridell (vicecomitis Northumbr. 8 Ed. II.) tenet in dotum de hæreditate prædicti Willielmi; et quod tenuit dictum manerium de domino episcopo Dunelmiæ per servitium medietatis unius seodi militis, et saciendo sectam ad curiam de Norham, et reddendo per omnia pro custodia castri de Norham viginti solidos, et solebat dictum manerium valere per annum in omnibus exitiand held this manour for her life. The reversion of it, and of the manour of Upsetlington, were granted by Sir Robert Clavering, for the term of his own life, to Alexander, archbishop of York, who granted them back to his son, Sir John Clavering, and his heirs, 49 K. Edward III (y).

It

bns, tempore pacis, exceptis prædictis carucutis terræ, et duabus terris husbandriæ, et dote Emmæ prædictæ, sexdecem libras.

Et idem Willielmus suit seisitus de manerio de Twizell, et hamlettis de Dudhow, et veteri Grindon, quæ sunt de pertinentiis ejusdem manerii; et tenuit eund. manerium, et hamletta, de disto domino episcopo Dunelmiæ per servicium viginti marcarum per annum, et faciendo sectam ad curiam de Norbam; et valuerunt per annum tempore pacis in omnibus exitibus præter prædictas viginti marcas, viginti sex libras, et sex solidos.

Et prædictus Willielmus suit seisitus de duabus partibus manerii de Upsetlington, cum pertinentiis, et tenuit dictas duas partes de dicto domino episcopo per servitium faciendi sectam ad curiam de Norham, et valuerunt per annum, tempore pacis, x l. xiii s. iv d.

Et omnia prædicta maneria sunt destructa per Scotos, ita quod nihil valeant, &c. Et domina Isabella quæ suit uxor Alani de Clavering, et domina Constantia uxor domini Jehannis de Kingston, et domina Johanna uxor domini Gerardi de Widdrington, sunt siliæ et hæredes prædicti Wiliielmi propinquiores. Et prædicta Isabella suit ætatis xxx annorum, et domina Constantia suit ætatis xxvi annorum, et domina Johanna suit ætatis xxii annorum.

Inquisit. de anno 4 Ed. III.

(3) Sciant, &c. quod nos Alexander permissione divina Ebor. archiepiscopus, Angliæ primas, et Angliæ sedis legatus, dedimus, &c. Roberto de Clavering, militi, reversionem manerii de Tilmouth, cum pertinentiis, &c. quod quidem manerium domina — de Strivelin, quondam uxor Alani de Clavering, tenet ad terminum vitæ suæ; ac etiam reversionem manerii de Upsetlington, cum pertinentiis suis; quod quidem manerium Henricus de Estington tenet ad terminum vitæ suæ, quas quidem reversiones habuimus ex dono et seossamento prædicti Roberti de Clavering, militis prout in carta per ipsum inde nobis consecta continetur; habend. &c. prædicto Roberto de Clavering, militi, ad terminum vitæ suæ, sine vasto seu destrictione inde facienda; et faciendo capitali domino seodi illius servicia inde debita, et de jure consueta. Et post decessum prædicti Roberti Clavering, militis, volumus et concedimus, quod omnes prædictæ reversiones, cum acciderint, &c. remaneant Johanni filio domini Roberti Clavering.

It continued in the possession of the Clavering-family for many generations. By an inquifition taken at Norham, 10 K. Henry VIII, before Robert Lord Ogle, it was found that Robert Clavering died feifed of Tilmouth, and of a fishery in the river Till; and that John Clavering, his father, granted his lands in Dudhow, and Green-laws, to Richard Bishop of Durham, for the use of the said John and Isabell his wife, and the longer liver of them, the reverfion to his next heirs in fee; and that the third part of Tilmouth was affigned by the faid Richard, Bishop of Durham, to the faid Isabell; and that all the faid lands and fishery were held of the bishop in socage, and that John Clavering was son and heir to the aforefaid Robert, then of the age of fifteen. John Clavering died. 16 December, 28 K. Henry VIII, when it was found by an inquifition taken at Norham before Sir William Eure, Knt. that he held his villa and lands of Dudhow, his hamlet of Greenlaws, and his villa and lands of Tilmouth, in fee, by focage-fervice, of the Clavering, militis, et hæredibus de corpore suo legitimè procreatis, in perpetuum. Et si contingat quod prædictus Johannes de Clavering obierit sine hærede, &c. prædictæ reversiones, &c. remaneant Thomæ fratri ejusdem Johannis de Clavering, et hæredibus masculis de corpore suo legitime procreatis, in perpetuum. Et si contingat quod prædictus Thomas obierit, &c. remaneant Roberto de Clavering, fratri suo, et hæredibus masculis de corpore suo legitime procreatis. Et si contingat quod prædictus Robertus obierit, &c. remaneant Rogero, fratri fuo, et hæredibus masculis, de corpore suo legitime procreatis. Et si contingat quod prædictus Rogerus obierit, &c. volumus quod prædictæ reversiones prædictorum maneriorum cum omnibus pertinentibus suis, prædicto Roberto de Clavering, militi, et hæredibus suis, integrè revertantur. Et nos vero prædictus Alexander, Ebor. archiepiscopus, prædictas reversiones prædictorum maneriorum cum acciderint, prædicto Roberto de Clavering, militi, in forma prædicta, contra omnes gentes warrantizabimus et desendemus in perpetuum. In cujus rei testimonium præsenti cartæ nostræ sigillum nostrum apposuimus. His testibus, dom. Ropera Heron, Willielmo De la vale, Bertrama Monboucher, Thoma Colvill, militibus, Nicholao Raymes, et Johanne Heron, et aliis. Data apud Tilmouth Die Lunæ proxime post festum Sancti Jacobi, apostoli, anno regni regis Edvardi III, post conquestum Angliæ xlix.

Carta de anno 49 Ed. III.

<sup>(2)</sup> Inquisit. de anno 10 Hen. VIII.

Bishop of Durbam; and that Robert Clavering was his son and heir, then about five years of age (a). He died, 30th November, 25 Q. Elizabeth; and was succeeded by his son and heir, Robert Clavering, then about twenty-eight years of age (b).

He died, 18th March, 42 Q. Elizabeth; and was succeeded by his son and heir, John Clavering, at the age of thirteen years and eleven months (c). Tilmouth now belongs to Francis Blake, of Twizell, Esq; and others.

A little higher up the Till, is

Heton, which was the feat and manour of the antient family of the Greys; of Sir Thomas Grey, captain of Norham-castle in the reign of K. Edward II (d); of Sir Thomas Grey, his son, captain of

(a) Juratores dicunt super sacrum, quod Johannes Clavering, arm. die quo obiit suit seistus in dominico suo, ut de seodo, de villa et terris de Duahow cum hamlet. de Green-laws, cum pertinentiis, in comit. de Norham; et de villa et terris de Tilmouth, cum pertinentibus, in comit. prædicto, de dom. episcopo Dunelmiæ, per servicium socagii, &c. Dicunt etiam juratores super sacrum, quod prædictus Johannes Clavering obiit sexto decimo die Decembris, anno regni regis Henrici octavi, vicessimo octavo; et quod Robertus Clavering est filius et hæres propinquior prædicti Johannis, et est ætatis quinque annorum, et amplius.——

Inquisit. capta apud Norham, coram dom. Willielmo Eure, milite, Escaetore Episcopi Dunelm. anno vicessimo octavo, Regis Henrici octavi.

- (b) Juratores dicunt super sacrum, quod Robertus Clavering, arm. die quo obiit suit seisitus in dominico suo, ut de seodo, de et in duodecem messuagiis, decem cotagiis, centem acris terræ, octoginta acris prati, centum acris pasturæ, trecentis acris moræ, cum pertinentiis, in villis, et terris de Dudhow, Green-laws, et Tilmouth, quæ tenentur de Ricardo episcopo Dunelmiæ in libero socagio, &c. Quodque prædictus Robertus Clavering obiit tricessimo die Novembris, anno regni dominæ nostræ Elizabethæ reginæ nunc, &c. vicessimo quinto. Et quod Robertus Clavering est silius et hæres propinquior dicti Roberti Glavering, et est ætatis viginti et octo annorum.
  - (c) Inquisit. capta apud Dunelm. anno 42 Eliz.

the same castle in the reign of K. Edward III, taken prisoner in too eager and forward a pursuit of the Scots, 1355 (e); of Sir Thomas Grey, a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 1 K. Heury IV, and captain of Wark-castle, taken by the Scots in his absence, who, after plundering it, pulled it down to the ground; the borders then afflicted with a great mortality (f). He was in great favour with K. Henry V, the glory and pride of the English nation, and the feourge of France, for conspiring whose death he was executed. His confederates were Richard Earl of Cambridge, Edward Duke of York, and Henry Lord Scrope of Masham, who were also executed. The largest share of disgrace fell upon Sir Thomas and Lord Scrope. Sir Thomas was a privy counfellor. Lord Scrope was lord treasurer, and admitted into the highest confidence, and nearest intimacy with the King. The folemn gravity of his countenance, the attractive graces of a modest and chafte conversation, full of zeal for virtue and goodness, so won the king's heart, that he placed him the nearest of all men to his bosom and person, and was for the most part swayed by him in every thing of moment (g).

Heton afterwards came into the possession of Sir Ralph Grey, who, with K. Henry VI, Henry Lord Percy, the Earl of Westmorland, and others, was invested with the high and honourable Order of Knight of the Garter by the Duke of Bedford, regent of England (b). He was captain of the castles of Wark and Roxbrough;

- (e) Hol. Chron. vol. i. p. 242.
- (f) vol. ii. p. 514.
- (g) _____ p. 548.
- (b) _____ p. 595.

the last of which he defended with an eminent courage for twenty days, 15 K. Henry VI, 1436, against the forces of James, King of Scotland, till the arrival of succours under Henry Percy, the second Earl of Northumberland, on the sight of which the Scots sled with precipitation; many of them slain and taken prisoners (i). He was appointed captain of Bambrough-castle by the house of Lancaster, in which he was taken prisoner after his retreat from the battle of Hexham, and beheaded at Doncaster, his sword being sirst broke over his head, &c. for breaking his oath of fealty to the house of York (k).

In the reign of K. Henry VIII, it belonged to Sir Edward Grey (1); and afterwards to William Lord Grey of Wark (m). It is now in the possession of the Earl of Tankervill. The castle was a strong building, nearly square; a court on the west side, called The Lyon's Court; on the north side, a vault that 100 horse might stand in. It is now in ruins. King James IV, of Scotland, invested it with his army before the battle of Floddon-sield, but could not take it. In digging for stones, two wells were discovered by the workmen, in which were found four pewter plates, with part of the arms of the Greys engraved upon them; also one bow made of yew. They came into the possession of Mr. Gregson, of Wark upon Tweed.

Below Tilmouth, by the confluence of the Till into the Tweed, is Tilmouth-Chapel; fmall, and in ruins; the altar-window remaining, and a bason in a nich of the south wall; on the north

(i) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 615.

(k) _____ p. 666.

<sup>(1)</sup> Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 61.

(m) See Wark upon Tweed.

fide, the foundations of the minister's house conspicuous; the situation most delightful, on a small peninsula sloping to the two rivers.

On the west side of the chapel, on the banks of the Tweed, is a remarkable curiosity, a stone-boat, of as sine a shape as a boat of wood, in which St. Cuthbert is said, by tradition, to have sailed down the Tweed from Melross to this chapel. It is ten seet long within; three feet and a half in diameter, in the middle; eighteen inches deep; four inches and a half thick.

Half a mile west from Tilmouth, on the left hand of the Ber-wick-road to Cornbill, is a stone-cross, called Tilmouth-Cross; below which, on the north side, is an intrenchment, nearly square, called The Haly Chesters; a great part of it overgrown with furz.

Opposite to Linnel-House, and about a quarter of a mile from Cornhill-bridge, on the brink of the Tweed, is the vestigies of a fort, trenched round, called The Castle Stone-Nich; a guard to the ford cross the river.

The bridge over the Tweed is a modern structure, consisting of fix arches, of white freestone; the first foundation-stone laid in May, 1763, by Lord Home; 4000 l. given towards building it by the parliament.

At a small distance from the bridge, is Cornbill, which was the villa of William de Cornbill, I K. Edward I (n). It now belongs to Henry Collingwood, Efq; high sheriff of (*) Willielmus de Cornhill tenet villam de Cornhill in Escambio, et Horncliff, et reddit. inde per annum xviii marc. Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

Northumberland 1766, and to Francis Blake of Twizell, Efq; The church stands nearly in the middle of it; lately rebuilt, small, but neat, the roof cieled; dedicated to St. Helen, a spring hard by carrying her name. In digging up the old foundations two small urns were found by the workmen, the genuine contents not certainly known, being shuffled out in a struggle by the finders of them, thinking they had got a treasure.

In the church-yard is the following infeription on the tomb of an old man, an empyric, at Twizell.

Eheu! quis mortis jam retardabit falcem? Archiater ille inclytus, ad pontem Twifili, Jacobus Purdy, non vacat ægris.

Obiit ipse 4to die Decembris, A. D. 1752, et ætat. 81. Et cum conjuge Jana, nepteque Eleanora, sub hoc lapide tenetur.

At bono sis animo viator — fortasse vivas. Superstes Jacobo viget natus Samuel, sub patrio lare artes exercens patrias: Si quæris sanitatem, hunc adi.

The street from the church forms a wide avenue, at the foot of which is Mr. Collingwood's seat; on the top of a large slope; the gardens to the west; a fine view from a terraced lawn of the fertile vale below it, through which the Tweed takes its course in a winding current; of the market-town of Coldstream, on its opposite banks, at which Margaret, the Queen Dowager of Scotland, sister to K. Henry VIII, was met by Lord Dacres, lord warden of the marches, and conducted to Harbottle-castle, 26th August, 1515 (0); of the handsome modern seat of Mr. Pringle, with an octangular tempiato, on the banks of the river; of the baronial villa and castle of Wark, of Mr. Compton's seat by his villa of Carbam, and Shidlaw; Sunney-laws, Prestsen, Learmouth, Old Many-laws; the whole bounded by a semicircular range of hills, of the Hirfel-law, Hume-Castle, both the property of the Earl of Hume; Stichbill, the seat of Sir Robert Pringle, Bart. Eilding-hills, within about a mile of the samous abbey of Melross, Hose-law, Limpot-law, Stand-alone-hill; the hills of Yetholm, Hare-law, and Cheviot, i. e. the chief of all the hills for height and magnitude, overtopping all the rest, giving a most extensive and beautiful land and seaprospect on a clear day.

A quarter of a mile fouth-east from Cornhill, is an incampment, the most remarkable of any north of the Roman wall, for extent, variety of military works, covered ways, large and spacious, with numerous curvatures, defended by ranges of terraced hills, and a morass at several angles and sides of the hills; many of them exploratory and sepulchral, of the usual sigure, conic; the hollows remaining, and silled with water, from which the earth was taken for raising them. They were the suneral repositories of great chieftains; the common men being buried without any such distinction, many of their remains being digged up on the ridge of a hill, called Bleak Lands, opposite to the medical spring.

Two miles west from Cornhill, on the banks of the Tweed, and in fight, is Wark-Caftle, which was the barony of the antient family of Ros (p), barons of Helmsley in Yorkshire. Robert de Ros, in the reign of K. Henry II, married one of the daughters of William (p) Ros.

Roos.

King of Scotland; Eustace de Vescy, Baron of Alnwick, marrying another daughter. His fon and fuccessor (q), Robert de Ros, and John de Baliol, were guardians of the new married pair, Alexander, King of Scotland, and Margaret, eldest daughter of K. Henry III, 1251. For their undue behaviour towards their royal charge in denving them focial intercourse, they were punished, on the information of a physician sent from the English court. Robert de Ros had his lands feised for the King's use. John de Baliol came off by a compliment of money. K. Henry and his Queen took a journey to Edenburgh, to fee them in possession of all their wishes (r).

William de Ros, fuccessor to Robert (s), on the death of Alexander, King of Scotland, was a competitor for his crown, with William de Vescy, Baron of Alnwick, Florence Earl of Holland, Patric de Dunbar, Robert de Pinkeny, Nicholas de Sauls, Patric Golightly, Robert Bruce, and John Baliol, 20 K. Edward I, 1292 (t). He was one of the three barons of Northumberland in the famous lift of British Lords who made that noble fland against the papal usurpation, in claiming the kingdom of Scotland as a fief to the fee of Rome, 29 K.

(a) Robertus de Ross tenet baroniam de Warke in capite de domino rege per servic. duor. feod, milit, et omnes anteceffores sui tenuerunt per cund, servic, post tempus domini regis primi Henrici, qui eos feoffavit. Et de feodo illo nulla et alienatio, &c .- Testa de Nevill.

(r) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 251, & p. 283.

(s) Willielmus de Roos tenet in capite de domino rege Wark, Leremouth, Myndrom, Carham, Preffen, Moneylawes, Downham, Pauston, Shotton, Kilham, Holthill, Neuton, et alteram Neuton, Langton, Lilburn, Ilderton, Weperdon, Rosdon, Shawdon, Titlington, Bolton, Abberwyke, Bittleston Inferior, grangium de Sturton, et medictatem de Glanton, per duo seoda et dimid, seodi de veteri seossamento, Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

(t) Rym. Feed. Angl. tom. ii. See Berwick.

Edward I, 1301; the other two barons being Robert Fitz-Roger. Baron of Warkworth and Clavering, and John de Greystock, Baron of Morpeth (u).

John Lord Ros, Baron of Wark and Helmsley, was one of the twelve guardians of the kingdom in the minority of K. Edward III (v).

Thomas Lord Ros was fummoned by writ to parliament, 1 K. Richard II, 1377 (w).

William Lord Ros was fummoned to the parliament at Westminster, 6th October, 1 K. Henry IV, 1399 (x).

The year following, by an inquisition it was found, that the castle, manour, and villa of Wark belonged to Sir Thomas Grey, of Heton (y), who was summoned by writ to the parliament at Westminster, 6th October, the preceding year; and was one of the committee to receive the renuntiation of K. Richard II, at the tower, being procurator-general or proxy for the Northern members. He was high sheriff of Northumberland, 9th of K. Henry IV (z); his arms, gules, a lyon rampant, within a border engrailed,

- (u) Rym. Fæd. tom. ii. p. 873, 874, 875.
- (v) Parliament. Hist. of Engl. vol. i. p. 191.
- (w) ______p. 336.
- (y) Thomas Grey, miles, obiit seisitus de et in castro, et manerio, et villa de Wark super Twedam.

  Escaet, de anno 2 Hen. IV.
  - (2) Escaet, de anno 9 Hen. IV.

argent (a). They were possessed with the castles of Heton and Chillingham, and other estates, by Sir Ralph Grey, high sheriff of Northumberland, 34, 38 K. Henry VI (b); by another Sir Ralph. high sheriff of Northumberland, 5 Q. Elizabeth (c); by his fon and heir, Sir Thomas Grey, high sheriff of Northumberland, 16th of the fame reign (d); by Sir William Grey, created a baronet, 15th June, 17 K. James I, 1619. He was a representative in parliament for Northumberland the year following. He was raifed to the peerage by the stile and title of Lord Grey of Wark, 11th February, 21 K. James I. His lordship married Anne one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir John Wentworth, of Gosfield, in Effex. He was fummoned to parliament, 1 K. James I, 1623; also 1 & 16 K. Charles I. 1525, 1640. He was a lieutenant general of the parliamentarmy under Lord Fairfax, 19 K. Charles I, 1643. On their fright and consternation by the news of the defeat of their forces at Atherton-moor, near Bradford, in Yorkshire, in the same year, in July, he was called upon to go to Scotland, to invite the Scots to their affistance. His lordship, either from his dislike to a seavoyage, there being no fafe paffage by land for the royal army. or for fear of putting himself beyond a possibility of pardon

(a) Fuller's Worthies.

(b) Escaet, de annis 34, 38 Hen. VI. See Heton.

(c) Escaet. de anno 5 Eliz.

(d) Thomas Grey, de Chillingham, stat in sua minoritate, et est in manu reginæ Elizabethæ; tamen ejus pater, Dominus Radulphus Grey, obiit seisitus de et in castro, manerio, et villa de Wark super Twedam, et Wooler, de et in castro, manerio, et villa de Chillingham, Neuton, North Middleton, South Middleton, Akeld, Yevering, Reveley, Hethpole, Dodington, Fenton, Learmouth, Black Heddon, Pressen, Mindrum, Elsson, Elter-chapel, Antechesters, Trunope, Rake-side, Kylham, Nesbet, Eworth, cum medietate villæ de Howick, et Hawkell, cam terris in villa de Bambrough.

from the king, if he prevailed, by going on fuch an errand, refused. He was fent to the Tower for his disobedience. His commission of lieutenant general was taken from him, after a final and positive declaration that he was not able to go on account of his health. He was released foon after, without a petition, but his commission not restored. He acquired so much favour as to be fpeaker of the upper house, and to be entrusted with the court of the Dutchy of Lancaster, jointly with Lenthall, the other speaker, 21 K. Charles I, :645. In 1647, he was made keeper of the Great Seal of England, jointly with Sir Thomas Widdrington, with a falary of 1000 l. per annum. His brother, Colonel Grey, was killed in the fame year at Munster, in Ireland, in the service of the parliament (e). His lord hip died, 29th July, 26 K. Charles II, 1674. He was fucceeded in honour and estate by his fon and heir, Ford Grev. who was created Vifcount Glendale, and Earl of Tankerville, 7 K. William III, 1695. He married Mary, the fourth daughter of George Earl of Berkley, by whom he had one daughter, Mary, married to Charles Bennet, Lord Offulston. He died, 1 Q. Ann, 1701; and with him the Earldom and Viscountship. The barony and estate came to his only brother, Ralph Grey, governor of Barbadoes. He died 20th June, 1706 (f). Lady Offulfton, his niece and heir, died in May, 1710. She had three fons, and three daughters, by Charles Lord Offulfion (g). His lordship was created Earl of Tankerville, 19th October, 1 K. George I, 1714. He was made chief justice in Eyre of all his majesty's forests, chaces, parks, and warrens fouth of Trent, and Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter, 26th February, 1720-21. His fon, the late Charles Earl of Tankerville, was lord lieutenant of the county of Northumberland, and of the town and county of Newcastle upon Tyne, and Knight of the Order of the Thiftle. He died in March, 1753; and was fucceeded by his fon, Charles Earl of Tankerville, the prefent possession of Wark-castle, &c. his feat at Chillingham. His lordship married Elizabeth the daughter of Sir John Aftley, Bart. in October, 1742.

(e) Parliament. Hift. of Engl.

(f) Le Neve's monumenta Anglicana, vol. i. p. 120.

(g) _____ p. 204.

The caftle is at the west end of the village, on a high mount of difficult access, circular, feemingly raised by art with earth and stone; part of the foundations still remaining, and a fragment of the building, looking at a distance like a column; some courses of the outer-wall entire on the north fide, of ashler-work; under it a walk, called, The Maiden-walk; i. e. the Military way, or walk under the Maiden or fortress; five yards broad, and fortyeight yards long. It is a beautiful terrace, edged with a fteep precipice, shaded with trees; the Tweed gliding under it in deep and hollow murmurs.

On the west fide are the outworks, now called the Kemb; i. e. the camp of the militia designed to kemb or fight an enemy; Kemb being a word often used by the borderers when they threaten in a passionate tone to beat an assailant—They will kemb him—i. e. drub him heartily.

This intrenchment is half a mile long, measured; the breastworks and covered ways still fair and conspicuous, the ditches deep, and the rampier high, of earth and stone; two small mounts at nearly an equal diffance, one about midway, and the other at the extremity, a linear trench through them at top; another mount of the same form between the last and the river. Near the first mount is part of the foundations of a chapel, now called, Gilly's Nich, from its situation by a port-way, and its dedication to St. Giles; many grave-stones about it, some standing, and others slat; one large slat one, of freestone, over a Knight Templer, a cross sculptured upon it between two swords.

On the fouth fide of the rampier, near the castle, is a piece of ground, called, The Battle-place. Opposite to it is a terraced hill, called, Gallows-hill, the place of execution of criminals; a circular mount near it to the west, called, The Gallows-hill-know; the burial-place after execution; a human skeleton found a few years ago in digging for limestone, interred within a few feet of the surface.

The castle was burnt by the Scots, 7 K. Richard II, 1383.

It was befieged by the Scots under the command of the Duke of Albany, 15 K. Henry VIII, 1523. Sir William Lifle was then governor. They croffed the Tweed in the night, to the number of two or three thousand, on Saturday the last of October, with heavy cannon, battering it to the second of November, when entering the breaches, and being masters of all the wards, but the inner one, called, The Dungeon, Sir William and his garison slew three hundred of them, besides such as died of their wounds and were drowned; the Duke repassing the Tweed; the Earl of Surrey being at hand to the relief of the garison. It was reputed a strong fortress in that reign (b). A few years ago, a cannon was found among the rubbish.

(b) Le'. Itin. vol. vii. p. 61, 62.

Near a mile west from Wark on the banks of the Tweed, is Carham-Hall, the feat of Anthony Compton, Efq; a modern building, to which he hath made large and handsome additions, and great improvements about it by planting.

A little higher up the river, and in fight, is his villa of Carham; at the west end of which, almost on the brink, by a slexure of the Tweed, and at the east end of the church, was an abbey of Black Canons, subordinate to the priory of Kirkham, in Yorkshire. The villa, lordship, advowson and impropriation of the living, belonged to that priory; as did the villa and manour of Titlington, two parts of the tithes within the lordships of Mindrum and Bolton, a mansion-house in Wark, the advowsons and impropriations of Ilderton and Kirk Newton, &c. (i) The abbot of

(i) Thurstino Die gratia Ebor. Archiepisc. et Galfrido eadem gratia Dunelm. episcopo, et successoribus eorum, Walterus Espec, et Adelina uxor ejus, salutem. Sciatis nos concessisse et dedisse Deo et ecclesia S. Trivitatis de Kirkham, et canonicis ibidem Deo servientibus, confensu Henrici regis Anglorum, et consensu nostro et auxilio, &c. in liberam et perpetuam elemosinam; videlicet, in Northumberland, totam villam de Carram super Twedam suvium, et ecclesiam ejusdem villæ, cum omnibus eidem villæ et eidem ecclesiæ pertinentibus in terris et aquis, in pratis et pascuis, in pasturis et molendinis, in divisis et consuetudinibus: et unam manssuram in Wark; et totam villam in Titlington, cum omnibus eidem pertinentibus in Bosco at Plano, in pratis et in pasturis, et molendinis, in divisis, et consuetudinibus; et ecclesiam de Ilderton cum omnibus eidem pertinentibus; et ecclesiam de Nuton in Glendale, cum omnibus eidem ecclesiæ pertinentibus: Et omnes meas dominicas decimas, et nominatim decimam denariorum de censu terrarum mearum in Northumberland: Et duas partes decimæ de Dominio de Mindrum et de Bolton, et de molendino de Bolton, et si dedero alicui homini aliquam de terris supra nominatis, semper decima remanebit ecclesiæ Sanctæ Trivitatis de Kirkham.

Carta fundat. prioratûs de Kirkham, in agro Eboracensi, Ex registro de Belvoir, citat. Monast. Angl. vol. ii, p. 105.

of Carham was allowed 13 l. per annum, as mentioned in the Lincoln-taxation, 19 K. Edward I, 1291. The abbey was burnt by the Scots, 24th of the same reign, 1296. They also laid the villa of Prest-Other villages in the neighbourhood met with the fen in ashes. fame fate, which caused K. Edward, who then lodged at Coldstream. to come to Wark-castle (k). He afterwards took severe vengeance on their leader, Sir William Wallase. In 44 K. Edward III, 1370, the Scots being on the point of croffing the Tweed at this village loaden with English plunder, were attacked by Sir John Lilburn, and his brother. The engagement was long and obstinate. At length. Sir John and his brother were defeated, and both taken prisoners. Here was a fmall tower in it, which is mentioned by Leland, who calls it "a little tower of defence against the Scots (1)." The village is fmall, but well built; many plantations of young forest-trees about it, thriving and vigorous; the church small. lately repaired.

The minister's house is at the north-east end of the village; neat and convenient; of stone, and partly hewn work; built by the present incumbent, Mr. Richard Wallis, A. M. late fellow of Sciant præsentes et suturi, quod ego Walterus Espec dedi et concessi canonicis de Kirkham, totum manerium de Titlington, et ecclesiam de Ilderton, cum omnibus eidem ecclesiæ pertinentibus, et totam terram Ulskilli, clerici: Et ecclesiam de Carram super Twedam sluvium, cum omnibus eidem ecclesiæ pertinentibus, et totam villam de Carram, cum omnibus eidem villæ pertinentibus, et terris et aquis, in pratis et pascuis, piscariis, molendinis, et in divisis, et in consuetudinibus ejusdem villæ: Et totam terram Ulskilli, clerici, quam de me tenebat in eadem villa, sicut alii liberi homines ejusdem villæ per eassem divisas. Et omnes meas dominicas decimas, et nominatim decimam denariorum de censu terrarum mearum de Northumberland. Et si dedero alicui aliquam ex terris illis, semper decima remanebit ecclesiæ S. Trinitatis de Kirkham.

Carta secundæ sundat. priorat. de Kirkham. Ex cartulario de Rivall, in Biblioth. Cotton. sol. 136. b. citat. Monast. Angl. vol. ii. p. 106.

(k) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 297.

<sup>(1)</sup> Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 62.

Queen's College, in Oxford. At the east end of it is a small, but fertile glebe.

On the fouth fide of the village, is a small hamlet, belonging to Mr. Compton, on a hill, called Shidlaw, a contraction of Shield-law; a guard-hill, and exploratory; from which is an extensive and beautiful prospect into Scotland.

A mile above Carham, a streamlet, called, Ryding-burn, empties itself into the Tweed, which is the boundary between the two kingdoms of England and Scotland to the west.

We now turn fouthward on the Etall-road from Cornbill, about two miles from which, on the right hand, in Brankfton-weft-field, is a large upright pillar, of whinftone, fix feet, feven inches high, and thirteen feet in diameter towards the base; a memorial of the great victory obtained over K. James IV, of Scotland, by the Earl of Surrey, on Friday, 9th of September, 5 K. Henry VIII, 1513.

This battle is called, The battle of Brankfon, from the chief fcene of action being near that village; also the battle of Floddon, from the Scotch intrenchments being on Floddon-hill, out of which they were drawn forcibly, as it were, to an engagement, by the Earl of Surrey's cutting off their retreat homewards. Among the slain was their fovereign, with his natural son, Alexander, Archbishop of St. Andrews, who had the learned Erasmus for his tutor; also two other Scotch prelates, sour abbots, twelve Earls, seventeen lords, a great number of knights and gentlemen, and about eight thousand, or as some say, twelve thousand common men. According to Sir John Froisart, K. James sell near Brankston, where he was sound the next day by Lord Dacres. On the highest part of Floddon-hill, near it, is a natural rock, called the King's chair, from which he had a good view of his own, and of the English army, and of the country round him.

In the time of the battle the thieves of Tynedale and Tiviotdale were not idle. They rifled the English tents, and took away many horses, and other things.

The day after the battle, the standards, and twenty-two pieces of ordnance, taken from the Scots, were carried by the victors to Etall, among which were seven, for their handsomeness, called, The Seven Sisters. The general, Sir Thomas Howard, Earl of Surrey, was created Duke of Norfolk the year following for his service (m).

We next pass through the village of Crookham, where the Differences have a handsome meeting-house, and crossing the river. Till at the Willow-Ford, come to Etall, a pleasant villa, one of the manours of the Barony of Wooler, of which it was held by the antient family of Manners, ancestors of his Grace the Duke of Rutland; by Sir Robert de Manners, I K. Edward I (n), who was captain of Norham-castle, I K. Edward II, and the scourge of the Scots on their invasion of the borders under the command of the Earls of March and Southerland, 14 K. Edward III (o). He was in that year a representative in parliament for Northumberland, with Sir William Felton (p). The year following he built the castle of Etall. He married the daughter and heir of Sir Henry Strother of Newton, in Glendale; by whom he had Sir Robert de Manners, who was upon an inquest at Morpeth, 10th March, 22 K. Richard II (q), and upon another at Bambrough, with Sir John de Fenwick, and Roger de Horsley, before Sir Thomas Grey, of Wark, 31ft March, 13 K. Henry IV (r). His fuccessor, Sir Robert de Manners, was upon an inquest at the castle of Nerveastle, with Sir William Lumley, and Bertram Harbottle, 29th October, 33 Henry VI (s); and upon another at the same castle. with Sir John Swinburn, Sir William Bowes, Robert de Nevill, and Robert de Folbury, in June, 4 K. Edward IV; in which year he was high sheriff of Northumberland (t). He was a zealous friend to the house of York. He marched at the head of 400 men to oppose the landing of Queen Margaret and her friends at Bambrough, whom he compelled to alter their course for Berwick upon Tweed, before the fatal battle near Hexbam. He married Eleanor the eldest daughter and coheir of Thomas Lord Ros, by whom he had two fons, and two daughters, viz. George, Edward, Elizabeth, and Ca-George married Ann the daughter of Sir Thomas Sellinger, by Ann Dutchess of Exeter, fister of K. Edward IV; by whom he had five fons, and five daughters, viz. Thomas, Oliver, Anthony, Richard, John, Elizabeth, Catharine, Eleanor, Cacilia, and Ann (u).

(m) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. 825 to p. 829.

(n) Robertus Manners tenet Etall per dimidium feodi milit, vet, feoffamenti Baron de Wooler. Escaet, de anno 1 Ed. I.

(0) Barne's Hift. of K. Ed. III.

(p) See Feltor.

- (q) Escaet. de anno 22 Ric. II. n. 39.
- (r) Escaet. de anno 13 Hen. IV. n. 20.
- (s) _____ 33 Hen. VI. n. 17.
- (t) _____ 4 Ed. IV.
- (u) Lel. Itin. vol. i. p. 102.

Sir Thomas Manners, Lord Ros, of Etall, was created Earl of Rutland, 17 K. Henry VIII, 1526 (v).

Sir Roger Manners, Kt. of this antient family, an ornament of the court of Q. Elizabeth, gave four scholarships to Corpus Christicollege, in Cambridge, famous for its library over the chapel, the donation of one of its learned sons, Sir Nicholas Bacon, Kt. keeper of the great seal and privy counsellor to Q. Elizabeth; an excellent repository of antiquities, the library of the monastery of Stoke-Clare, in Suffolk, being preserved and placed in it by Archbishop Parker, its venerable warden, and an eminent antiquary.

Etall, was found by an inquisition to be in the possession of the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (w). It came afterwards into the possession of Sir Robert Carr, Kt. second son of Sir William Carr, of Greenbead, Bart. on whose death it was under sequestration by the parliament for eleven years and a half, but was restored to his son, William Carr, and Mrs. Margaret Carr, by composition, 15th February, 1653 (x).

It

Escaet. de anno 10 Ehr.

(x) Upon the application of Mrs. Margaret Carr, and William Carr, and upon the perufal of several warrants and orders of the committees of sequestration in the time of the late usurped powers, as also on the report of Sir Peter Balle, Kt. her late majesty's attorney general, to whom the business was referred, it appears, That the said manour of Etall was under sequestration for xi years and a half, and was not discharged thereof until the 15th of February, 1653, and that on the payment of the whole composition-money, being 539 l. 8s. 7d. and considering the whole matter both as to the legality and equity thereof, it is thought sit,

Vol. II.

(v) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 892.

(w) Domina Regina Elizabetha seisita est de et in castro, et manerio, de Etall, cum villa; de et in medietate de Riplington, Tritlington, cum certis terris in Whaiton, Hawkwell, Struetordham, Matsen-east, Hugh, Fenham, Howtell, et Homeldon, ut de corona.

It is now the villa and feat of William Carr, Efq; father-in-law of the right honourable the Earl of Errol; by a countefs of whose family the county of Buchan, in Scotland, is described, and all its remarkables accounted for (y). His feat is at the east end of the village, lately rebuilt, after a genteel design; the south front appearing to great advantage through an avenue of trees on the approach to it from the castle of Ford; a slower-garden, lawns, gravel-walks, edgings of slowers and shrubs before it, encompassed by a dwarf-hedge of holly; the street of the villa forming an avenue from it westward to the ruins of the old castle on the banks of the Till, part of two large towers still remaining, the coat-armorial of the builder, Sir Robert de Manners, above the entrance of one of them, obscured by the weather and age.

The vale by the Till appears in great beauty to the fouth and fouth-west, many hills and mountains in sight; the hills of Brankston and Floddon; the two mountains consecrated to the Saxon god Torr, and carrying his name; the hill called Yevering-Bell, from its bell-like shape; the two Cheviots, Akeld, and Humbleton-hills.

and accordingly ordered, That the said Mrs. Carr, and William Carr, together with the said manour of Etall, be, and is henceforth acquitted and discharged, and his majesty's auditor is hereby desired and required to discharge the said manour of the said composition, and, to grant a Quietus for the same unto the see-sermer thereof: Is discharged, and the above named Mrs. Carr and William Carr, together with the said manour of Etall, and the tenants of the same, from the payment of the said arrear of 539 l. 8 s. 7 d. are accordingly freed and absolutely acquitted, xxi April, 1673.

Francis Allworth, Auditor.

[Ardeaconry of Richmond.]
MS. penes Gulielmum Carr, Arm. de Etall.

Within the manour of Etall are coals, freestone, slate, marle; also limestone, and a small machine, moved only by an inch and a half of water, to preserve it from drowning; great improvements, by enclosing and planting, by Mr. Carr; the plantations in a variety of situations, nine on eminences; oaks remarkably vigorous and healthy on a fandy slope, east of the village.

Four miles east from Etall is a remarkable hill, called The Watch-Law, exploratory, as the name imports, to observe the motions of an enemy, and to alarm the country by fire from a beacon; of a regular and pleasant slope on all sides; a sea and land prospect from it very extensive, to all points, particularly of Scotland; part of sive Scotch counties seen from it on a clear day, and ships at sea at a great distance.

A mile east from the Watch-law, is Barmore, which was the villa of William Muschampe, 1 K. Edward I(z); of George Muschampe, 10 Q. Elizabeth, high sheriff of Northumberland, 38, 42 of the same reign (a); and of William Muschampe, high sheriff of Northumberland, 20 K. James I (b). It was lately in the possession of Colonel Bladon, the ingenious translator of Casar's Commentaries, and uncle to Sir Edward Hawk, first lord of the admiralty.

At this village the lords marchers of the northern counties were affembled, 5 K. Henry V, 1417, with 100,000 men against the Scots, who retreated upon hearing of such a mighty army coming against them (c). The Lord Howard and his son lodged at Barmore-Wood the night after the battle of Brankston (d).

(z) Willielmus Muschampe tenet Barmore per quartam partem unius seodi veteris seoffamenti baronia de Wooler.—— Escaet, de anno 1 Ed. I.

(a) Escaet. de annis, 10, 38, 42, Eliz.

(b) _____ anno 20 7ac. I.

A mile fouth from Etall, is Ford, which was the villa and manour of Odonel de Ford, 1 K. Edward I (e), who married Cecilia the youngest daughter and coheir of Robert de Muschampe, baron of Wooler. His daughter and heir married Sir William Heron, whose ancestor, William de Heron, was infeossed in the barony of Heron, by K. Henry I, which was possessed by fordan de Heron in the reign of K. Henry III (f), who was succeeded by this Sir William (g). His son, Sir William Heron, built the castle of Ford, 12 K. Henry III. He acquired a grant from the crown of a weekly market and an annual fair at Ford; also liberty of free warren in this and his other lordships. He was captain of the castles of Bambrough, Pickering, and Scarbrough; also warden of the forests north of Trent, and high sheriss of Northumberland for eleven years together, in the same reign (h).

- (c) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 560.
- (d) _____p. 829.
- (e) Odonell de Ford tenet Ford, Crookham, Skimmerston, et tertiam partem de Hethpole, per unum seodum veteris seossamenti baronia de Wooler.

  Escaet, de anno 1 Ed. I.
- (f) Jordanus de Heron tenet in capite de domino rege baronsam suam per servicium unius seodi milit. et omnes antecessores sui tenuerunt per eund. servicium post tempus regis Henrick primi qui eos seossavit. Et de illo tenemento nulla alienatio est, &c. Testa de Nevill.
- (g) Willielmus Heron tenet in capite de domino rege Hadston, Chirton, Benton parvam, Col-well, Swyneburne parvam, et Flatworth, per unum seodum milit. de veteri seossamento.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

(b) Madox's Hist. of the Excheq. p. 647.

His fuccessor, Sir William Heron, had summons to parliament among the barons, 44 K. Edward III. He was ambassador to France, and steward of the king's houshold, in the reign of K. Henry IV. He died, 20th October, 5th of the same reign. On the 8th of April, the year following, he was sound by an inquisition to be in possession of the manour of Eshet, and other lands, at the time of his death, and that Sir John Heron, son of Sir John Heron, his brother, was his successor and heir (i). This Sir John was

bannis

(i) Dicunt juratores super sacrum (viz. Thomas Heselrigge, Johannes Cambhow, Willielmus de Cramlington, Ricardus de Crawcester, et alii) quod Willielmus Heron, miles, suit seissitus in dominico suo die et tempore quo obiit de manerio de Eshet, cum pertinentibus, et de centum et 60 acr. terræ in Clifton et Caldwell, et centum et 14 acr. terræ in Dudhow. Est de feodo talliato fibi et hæredibus masculis de corpore suo exeuntibus. Et dicunt juratores super sacrum suum, quod predictum manerium una pertinentibus, cum prædictis terris, remaneret Gerardo Heron, militi, et hæredibus masculis corpore suo exeuntibus, ex dono et scoffamento Willielmi Merrington et Rogeri Shilbottle. Item, quod fi prædictus Gerardus obieret fine hærede masculo de corpore suo exeunt. quod ex tunc prædictum manerium, cum pertinentibus, et terris prædictis, remaneret Willielmo Heron, arm. et hæredibus masculis de corpore fuo exeunt. Item, quod si contigerit prædictum Willielmum Heron obire sine hæredibus masculis de corpore suo exeunt. quod ex tunc prædictum manerium, cum pertinentibus, et cum terris antedictis, remaneret Nicholao Heron, arm. et hæredibus masculis de corpore suo exeunt. Item, quod si contingerit, prædictum Nicholaum Heron, arm. obieret sine hærede masculo de corpore suo exeunt. quod ex tunc prædictum manerium, cum pertinentibus, et cum terris antedictis, remaneret certis hæredibus prædicti Willielmi Heron, militis, in perpetuum. Et dicunt etiam quod prædictus Willielmus Heron, miles, Gerardus Heron, et Willielmus Heron, arm. mortui funt fine hæredibus masculis de corporibus eorum exeuntibus. Et dicunt quod prædictus Nicholaus Heron adhuc est superstes. Et dicunt etiam quod prædictum manerium et terræ, cum suis pertinentibus, tenentur de Johanne le Scrope, et Elizabetha uxore ejus, ut de jure ipsius Elizabethæ, per servicium militare, ut de baronia de Mitsord; quod manerium et terræ, cum suis pertinentibus, valent per annum in omnibus exitibus ultra reprisas viginti marcas, Sterling. Et dicunt etiam quod prædictus Willielmus Horon, miles, obiit 20 die mensis Octobris ult. præterit. Et dicunt etiam quod Johannes Heron, miles, filius Jo-was high sheriff of Northumberland, 19, 20, 22, 30, 35, K. Henry VI (k), to whom he was a zealous and faithful friend in his struggles with the house of York, for which he was attainted. I K. Edward IV. His attainder was afterwards taken off. In the 17th of K. Henry VIII, Sir William Heron of Ford, was high sheriff of Northumberland (1). He died, 28th June, 27 K. Henry VIII. It was then found by an inquisition, that he was in the possession of the castles and manours of Ford, Eshet, and Simonburn; and that Elizabeth Heron, a minor, daughter of his fon, William Heron, killed by John Manners, of Etall, for which he was fined by the crown. was his fole heir (m). She married Thomas Carr, Efg; of Etal (n), brother of William Carr, Esq; a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 31 Q. Elizabeth (o). His daughter and heir married Sir Francis Blake, Knt. whose daughter, Mary, married Edward Delaval, Efq; (p), ancestor of Sir John Hussey Delaval, Bart. the present possessor of Ford-Castle.

From the baronial family of the Herons of Ford, were descended the Herons of Chipchace, Bokensield, Meldon, and Riplington.

hannis Heron, militis, defuncti, fratris prædicti Willielmi Heron, defuncti, est hæres ejus propinquior, et ætat, anno 30, et amplius.

Inquisit. capta apud castrum dom. regis de Novo Castro super Tynam, coram Ricardo Cliderhow, escaetore dom. regis in comit. Northumbr. 8 die Aprilis, 6 Hen. IV.

Ex bundello escaetr. Turri Londin. No. 21.

- (k) Escaet. de annis prædictis.
- (1) de anno 17 Hen. VIII.
- (m) ----- 27 Hen. VIII.
- (n) Bishop Nicholson's Border-Laws, Append. p. 343.
- (0) Browne Willis.

(p) See Newburn.

The village stands on an eminence, on the east side of the Till; consisting of one irregular street, the castle on the north side, lately repaired after a handsome manner; a variety of good views from the battlements, particularly of the winding course of the river below it, the bridge over it, and the improvements made on its banks, and the neighbouring plain, by inclosures, tillage, and planting on little eminences; also of the several ranges of the neighbouring hills and mountains, with the antient karns and intrenchments on their tops.

At Broom-ridge, a mile fouth from the village, and in the parish, are the lines and intrenchments of the brave Saxon king Athelstan, who obtained a compleat victory over the confederate forces of Constantine, King of Scotland, Eugenius, King of Cumberland, and Anlas, the Dane, 928. In this battle K. Athelstan lost his two near kinsmen, Elwin and Ethelstan, valiant young noblemen. Constantine escaped into Scotland, and Anlas to Dublin.

At a place, called Haltwell-Sweire, near Fenton, half a mile fouth from Broom-ridge, Sir Henry Percy, brother to Sir Thomas Percy, the fixth Farl of Northumberland, was defeated by the Scots under the command of the Earl of Bothwell, 5 Q. Mary, 1558; the Scotch forces confifting of 1000 horse. Two English captains of light horse, Carr and Errington, were taken prisoners.

We crofs the Till at Ford by a stone-bridge of one large and strong arch, and come to Milfield, a fmall village, where the Saxon kings of Bernicia, after the death of K. Edwin, fometimes refided; on the fouth fide of which is a spacious and beautiful plain, formerly overgrown with broom, famous for the defeat of a large party of the Scots before before the battle of Brankston, by Sir William Bulmer, of Branspeth-castle, who commanded the forces of the bishoprick of Durham. The Scots had concealed themselves among the broom. Five or six hundred of them were killed, and four hundred taken prisoners. They afterwards called the road through the plain, The ill Road (q).

About two miles fouth-west from Milfield, on the north side of the rivulet of Glen, is Copeland-Castle, or North-Copeland, which was the seat of the antient family of the Wallaces; of Edward Wallace, or Wallase, in the reign of K. Edward II*; of William Wallace, in the beginning of the reign of Q. Elizabeth, son-in-law of John Swinburn, of Edlingham-Castle, Esq; (r); of George Wallace, 17 K. James I, 1619, who in that year rebuilt the castle; the date of the year, and the initial letters of his own and his wife's name on one of the chimney-pieces in it; of the late Ralph Wallace, Esq; store-keeper of the garrison of Berwick upon Tweed, who sold it to the late Sir Chaloner Ogle, Knt. an admiral in the British navy; and is now in the pos-fession of the Rev. Dr. Newton Ogle, of Kirkley (s).

On the fouth-west side of the Glen, at a small distance, and in fight from Copeland-Castle, is

- 49) Hel. Chron. vol. ii. p. 825.
- * MS. penes comitem de Tankerville apud castrum de Chillingham.
- (r) Copeland.
  Coupeland.
  Cowpland. See Knarefdale-Hall.
- (s) See Kirkley.

Tevering, a mean village, which that learned antiquary Dr. Gale, imagined was the Roman station Glanoventa (t), but no Roman antiquities have ever yet been discovered at it, of any kind, to favour such an opinion; which is grounded only on its situation by the Glen, which gives its name to the vale of Glendale. It was a royal manour of the Saxon kings, called, by Bede, Ad Gebrin, at which they sometimes resided, till they removed to Melmin or Milsield (u). It was the residence of King Edwin and his Queen Ethelburga for thirty days after their conversion to the Christian faith by the address and preaching of Paulinus, who attended them hither, and converted great numbers of their people, who were baptized in the neighbouring river. Edwin was slain by two tributary princes, Penda and Cedwall. His queen sled for refuge by sea to her brother, Eadbald, King of Kent, who took her under his protection, and made Paulius bishop of Rochester.

At this village the Scots, after a long engagement, were defeated on St. Mary Magdalen's day, 3 K. Henry V, 1415, by Sir Robert Humfranvil, captain of Roxbrough-Cafle; the Earl of Westmorland then lord warden of the marches. Above fixty Scotchmen were slain, and one hundred and fixty taken prisoners. A thousand of them were pursued upwards of twelve miles (v). On the south side of the village, midway between the hill and the road from Kirk Newton to Wooler, is an unwrought column of whinstone erected in memory of it, of a vast magnitude; in height fourteen feet, and sour inches; in diameter at the base as many; and towards the middle, eleven feet, and seven inches.

(t) Gale's Antoninus, p. 116.

(u) Bede, l. ii. c. 14. Camden, p. 861-2.

(v) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 548.

About two hundred yards west from this column, is a high hill, called Yevering-Bell, from its bell-like shape; the top of an oblong figure; a karn on the east side, with a circular trench; many circular foundations of buildings upon the sides or slopes of both; the whole encompassed with a wall of whinstone of a great breadth and length, fallen down by age and tempests; the work seemingly of the pagan Danes, for their priesthood and nobles to assemble on, for legislation, for devotion, and for sepulture.

Half a mile fouth-west from Yevering-Bell, is another karn, composed of a large conic heap of small whinstones. It is called Tom Tallon's Grave. Hard by, to the east, is a cluster of broken rocks, called Tom Tallon's Crag, from its situation near the karn.

On the top of Newton-Torr, East Torr, or Green Torr, just by, is another karn; also one on the top of West Torr; hills facred to the pagan god Thor, or Jupiter. There is also a karn on the western point of Cheviot; also another upon the hill, called Whitelaw, a mile to the south-east from Yevering-Bell, from which it is in sight; as are all the rest.

A mile west from Yevering, is

Kirk-Newton, a small village, one of the manours of the barony of Wark, of which it was held by the antient family of the Strothers; by Sir Henry Strother in the reigns of K. K. Edward II, III; by William Strother, in the reign of K. Edward VI; by Mark Strother, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, I K. George I. It now belongs to John Strother Kerr, of Fowbury, Esq.

Two miles west from Kirk-Newton, is Passon, the seat and manour of Gabriel Selby, Esq; of the antient family of the Selbys of Twizell. It stands on the south side of the rivulet of Bowmont, on a rising ground, well sheltered with tall forest trees.

On a hill to the fouth-west of Paston, called The Hare-law, i. e. the hill or station of the army, is a circular intrenchment, with a double rampier and foss. Under the hill, on the west side, is a hamlet which takes its name from it. It gives a fine view of a narrow vale westward, through which the Bow-mont takes its course, so called from its bending or winding course under the mountains, joined by the streamlet of Shotton, within about ten yards of the boundary between the two kingdoms of England and Scotland.

Two miles fouth from Yevering, by the road to Wooler, is Humbledon (w), a fmall village, on an eminence, under which a great victory was obtained by Heavy Lord Percy, and George Earl of March, over the Scotch under the command of Archibald Earl of Douglas, on Holyrood-day in the harvest, 3 K. Henry IV 2. Earl Douglas's forces consisted of 10,000 men. He possessed to alls, but Lord Percy, sirnamed Hotspur, cutting off his retreat was land with the plunder he had acquired in Northumberland, he was forced to come to an engagement on the plain. With him were most of the barons, knights, and gentlemen of Fife and Lothian, who escaped by slight, 22d of June, the year before, from the battle of Nisbet, in the Merse, in which fell most of the Lothianyouth. A great part of them were either stain or taken prisoners. Among the latter were the Earls of Fise, Murrey, Angus, Atholl, and Monteith. Earl Douglas received five wounds, and lost an eye. Five hundred Scotchmen in the pursuit were drowned in the Tweed. The field of battle is called Red-Riggs, from the blood spilt on it (x). By the side of the road, under Humbledon-Banks, is an upright pillar of whinstone erected in memory of it; in height, six feet, six inches, and a half; in diameter, twelve feet.

(w) Humbledon. Escaetr. Northumbr. Homeldon. Rym. Fced.

By Humbledon-burn, on the flope of a hill, is an intrenchment, called, Green Cafile.

On a hill, called Humbledon-Hugh, is a circular intrenchment, and a large karn; both Danish.

A poor woman of this village, wife of Thomas Rutlidge, a day-labourer, was delivered of four children, three girls, and one boy, on Saturday, 31ft March, 1764; all baptized. She had two children at a birth the year before.

Two miles fouth from Humbledon, is Wooler (y), a fmall market-town, which was the barony of the Muschampes; of Robert de Muschampe in the reign of K. Henry HI

(x) Hol. Chron. vol. i. p. 254, 255.

(y) Wooler. Bp. Gibson, in Camden. Woller. Bp. Kennet.

(2); and of his son, Robert de Muschampe, t K. Edward I (a), whose three daughters and coheirs married the Earl of Strathern, in Scotland, Odonel de Ford, and Walter de Huntercombe. It was afterwards the manour of the Greys, of Wark; and now belongs to the Earl of Tankerville. It stands on a rising ground to the east of Cheviot, above a small trout-stream. It consists of several streets and lanes, viz.

Teucer-Hill, Ramsey's South Lane, Windy-Row, Scotch-Gate, Temple's-Hole, Cheviot-Bank.

The market-place is in the center; the market on Thursdays. It hath two annual fairs, 26th April, and 6th of October. The church was lately rebuilt by a brief. The minister of it at the reformation was Mr. John Loman, M. A. of Emanuel College, in Cambridge; who not complying with the act of Uniformity was silenced, and retired to North Shields, where he practised physic and surgery, and kept an apothecary's shop, there being none there at that time (b). The mother-church is said to have been at Fenton, a village on the east side of the river Till, now in ruins; and in this parish, though enclosed by the parish of Chatton, on <sup>(2)</sup> Robertus de Muschampe tenet in capite de domino rege Baroniam de Wooler per quatuor feod. milit. et omnes antecessores sui tenuerunt per eund. servicium post tempus domini regis Henrici primi, qui eos feossavit; et de seodo illo nulla est alienatio, &c. Testa de Nevill.

(a) Robertus de Muschampe tenet in capité de domino rege Woller, Heathpoole, Lowicke, Belford, Etall, Ford, cum Kymmerston, membro suo, Crookham, Hedderlaw, Brankston, Heddon, Akeld, Cowpland, Yevering, Humbledon, Barmore, Ditching, Middleton, Fenton, Yessington, Tricklington, Bolsden, Howburn, Ulchester, et medietatem de Elwick. per quatuor seoda milit. de veteri seossamento.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

(b) Bishop Kennet's Hist. Regist. p. 906.

all fides. On a round hill, are the ruins of an old tower. Here was an hospital dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen (c)

Mr. Handyside, who had a Premium of 10 l. 10 s. from the society for the encouragement of arts, for the second best painting in Enamel, exhibited in March, 1764, was a native of this town.

At Cattle-Well, near Wooler, is an intrenchment, called, The Maiden-castle.

At Trodden-Gares, near it, is another intrenchment; also a Karn, called, Trodden-Karn.

Three miles east from Wooler, is

Horton-Castle, which was the seat of a younger branch of the Greys of Heton; of Thomas Grey, 12 K. Henry VI (d); of Sir Ralph Grey, high sheriff of Northumberland, 12 K. Henry VII (e); of Sir Thomas Grey, a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 1 Q. Mary, 1553; and high sheriff, 6 K. Edward VI (f); of Sir Ralph Grey, Kt. high sheriff of Northumberland, 9 K. James I (g); of Ne-

- (c) Escaet. de annis, 22 Ric. II.-14 Her. IV.
- .(d) Fuller's Worthies, p. 310.
- (e) Escaet. de anno 12 Hen. VII.
- (f) Thomas Grey, de Horton, miles, fuit seisstus de et in manerio et castro de Horton, ac etiam de et in villa de Horton, et Dichon, Howton-house, cum medietate villæ de Nesbet, cum certis terris in Morwick, Togsdon, East Chevington, West Chevington, et Yessington, cum medietate soresta de Cheviot, et Elwick.

  Escaet de anno 10 Eliz.

Bp. Nicholfon's Border-Laws, p. 213.

(g) Escaet. de anno 9 Jac. I.

will Grey, Esq; r K. George I. It is now in the possession of Sir Harry Grey, of Howick, Bart.

A mile fouth from Horton-castle, on the western banks of the Till, is Fowbury, a small village, which was the manour and seat of William de Fowbury, I K. Edward I (h); of Sir Robert de Fowbury, 6 K. Edward IV, in which year he and Sir George Lumley were representatives in parliament for Northumberland, who are stilled in the writ, Milites gladiis cincti (i); of William de Fowbury, 16 K. Henry VIII, 1524. In that year his son and heir took two hundred Scotchmen prisoners on their return from plundering the country-people going to Berwick-fair, on Trinity Sunday, 20 May (k). In the 24th of the same reign the Scots plundered the village (l). It afterwards came into the possession of the Strothers of Kirk-Newton. It now belongs to John Strother Kerr, Esq; high sheriss of Northumberland, 1741.

Two miles fouth from Fowbury, is Chilling ham-Castle, which was the seat and manour of the Greys of Wark (m); and is now in the possession of the right Honourable the Earl of Tankerville. It stands on a rising ground, and is kept in good repair. In one of the ground-rooms is a marble

(m) See Wark.

487

(b) Willielmus Fowbury tenet Fowbury, Caldmarton, et Hezelrigge, per unum feod. milit. veteris feoffam. baronia de Alnwick.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

(i) Escaet. de anno 6 Ed. IV.

(k) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 883.

(l) _____p. 928.

chimney-piece wherein a live Toad was discovered in sawing the block in two; the Nidus of the toad visible, till plaistered over by the order of the late Lord Tankerville. In the same room is a painting of it, from which the late Mr. Warburton took a drawing, and prefixed to it the following verses.

Heus Stagyrita!

Tuo fi velis quid mirabilius Euripo,
Huc venito.

Fluant, refluantque Maria, et fit Lunaticus
Qui fuo triniam fpoliat honore.

En tibi novi quid, quod non portat Africa,
Nec fabulofis Nilus arenis,
Ignem, flammamque puram,
Aura tamen vitali cafam!

Cæco e recefsû feiffi, quod vides, faxi,
Obstetrici lucem Lithotomi dedere manus Vivo Bufoni.

The church is on the north fide of the castle, dedicated to St. Peter. At the north-east end of the chancel, behind the Earl of Tankerville's feat, is a beautiful raised tomb of alabaster over one of the knightly family of the Greys and his lady, with their estigies, recumbent, and in a praying posture; curiously ornamented with sculptures of the boly family, in niches. Above it, on blue marble, is his coat armorial, with the following motto, in French.

De bon vauloir, ferver le roy.

On a rocky eminence, at the head of Chillingham-park, is a circular double intrenchment, called, Ros-Caftle.

At the bottom of Hebburn-wood, a mile fouth from Chillingham, is another, of the same form.

At New Town, a mile west from Chillingham, is a stone-cross, twelve feet high. The common people call it, The Hurle-stone.

A mile from New Town, is West Lilburn, which was the villa and seat of the antient family of the Lilburn; of John Lilburn, 18 K. Edward II (n); of Sir John Lilburn, who was twice taken prisoner by the Scots; first, with his brother in an engagement at the village of Carham, 44 K. Edward III, 1370 (o); and afterwards at the battle of Otterburn, 12 K. Richard II, 1388 (p): of Sir Thomas Lilburn, a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 12 K. Henry VI (q). In later times it was possessed by the antient family of the Clennels, of Clennel; by Percival Clennel, Esq; 1 K. George I; by the late Thomas Clennel, Esq; and now by his nephew, Henry Collingwood, of Cornbill, Esq. It stands on the east side of the Wooler-road, and in sight, on a rising ground, on the north side of a small stream. At the west end is the ruin of an old tower, also of a chapel. At the east end is Mr. Collingwood's seat, a neat, modern building.

Three miles from Lilburn, on the right hand of the road, on a hill, is Ilderton, a fmall village, one of the manours of the barony of Wark, of which it was held by the antient family of the Ildertons;

(n) Johannes Lilburn obiit seisitus de et in manerio de West Lilburn.

Escaet. de anno 18 Ed. II.

(0) See Carham.

(p) See Otterburn.

(q) Fuller's Worthies, p. 310.

Vol. II.

Rrr

by

489

by Henry de Ilderton, I K. Edward I (r), who also held the Three Middletons by the annual rent of I l. 10 s. per annum, of the barony of Beanly (s); by Sir Thomas de Ilderton, high sheriff of Northumberland, 50 K. Edward III (t), who was at the siege of Berwick upon Tweed, I K. Richard II, 1378, and acquired great honour by his valour (x); by Sir Thomas de Ilderton, high sheriff of Northumberland, 21 K. Henry VII (v); by Thomas de Ilderton, 6 K. Edward VI (w), and 10 Q. Elizabeth (x); by John de Ilderton, in the reign of K. Charles I; by the late Thomas Ilderton, Esq; who died in January, 1762, and was succeeded by his son and heir, Thomas Ilderton, Esq.

On Rosedon-edge, on the fouth fide of Ilderton, is a large square intrenchment.

There is also another in fight from it on Bewick-hill, on the east side of the rivulet of Bramish, semicircular, with a double foss and vallum; a steep precipice to the west; an extensive prospect from it on a clear day. A hollow way leads to it from the south, twelve feet and a half broad, edged on one side with large ragstones, set edgeways in the earth.

- (r) Escaet, de anno 49 Hen, III.
- (s) Henricus de Ilderton tenet tres Middletons per redditum xxx s. per ann. Baronia de Beauley.
  - (t) Escaet. de anno 50 Ed. HE.
  - (u) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 421.
  - (v) Escaet. de anno 21 Hen. VII.
  - (w) Bp. Nicholfon's Border-Laws, p. 337.
- (x) Thomas Ilderton fuit seisitus de et in Ilderton et Rosedon, cum terris in Branton, et Shipley.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

By Harup-burn, half a mile to the east of it, is a smaller, semi-circular also. It seems to have been a kind of an out-guard on that side.

A mile fouth-east from Ilderton, is Rodham, the feat and manour of the antient family of the Rodham; of William de Rodham, 49 K. Henry III (y); of William de Rodham, 30 K. Edward III, who married the daughter and fole heir of Thomas de Esplee (z); of Sir John de Rodham, who was flain at the battle of Towton, 1 K. Edward IV, 1461; of John de Rodham, 6 K. Edward VI (a); of Robert de Rodham, 10 Q. Elizabeth (b); of John de Rodham, in the reign of K. Charles I; of the late Rodham, Esq; and now of his son and heir, Edward Rodham, Esq; brother of Robert Rodham, Esq; a captain in the royal navy, born 15th March, 1719-20, who married Lucy Mary, eldest daughter of the Honourable George Clinton, uncle to Henry the present Earl of Lincoln, 24th April, 1749, at Stenwich, in New England. She died, 9th Inquisit. capta apud castrum de Novo Castro super Tynam die Sabbati in septimana paschæ anno regis Edvardi tertii xlvii.

Ex bundello escaetr. Turri Lond. de anno 48 Ed. III. n. 23.

(y) Escaet. de anno 49 Hen. III.

<sup>(2)</sup> Dicunt juratores super sacrum suum, viz. Ricardus de Cramlington, Ricardus del Park, Robertus de Eland, et alii, coram Willielmo De la vale, escaetore dom. regis Edvardi tertii, in com. Northumbr. quod Thomas de Esplee obiit die Jovis xx, præterit. xxx Ed. III. Et dicunt quod uxor Willielmi de Rodham est filia et hæres prædicti Thome, et est ætatis xxx ann. et amplius.

(a) Bp. Nicholson's Border-Laws, p. 337.

(b) Bobertus Rodham suit seisitus de et in Rodham et parva Houghton, cum terris in Rennington, et Broxham. Escaet. de 10 Eliz.

December, 1750, at New York, in North America, at the age of twenty-one years, and nine months, and was buried there. The feat-house is modern and handsome, on the south side of a deep gill, on an eminence; an agreeable prospect of the vale under it.

On Hedgley-Moor, on the left hand of the road, is a wrought stone pillar, fixed in a pedestal, called, Percy's cross, from its being erected to the memory of Sir Ralph Percy, who was slain in an engagement with Lord Montacute, 3 K. Edward IV, 1463, before the battle of Hexham-field (c). The Percy and Lucy arms are cut upon it in relief, still very fair.

A little beyond Percy's cross, on the banks of the rivulet of Bramish, is,

Brandon-White-House, which was the seat of a younger branch of the Collingwoods of Essington (d); and of Lancelot Allgood, of Newcastle upon Tyne, Esq; in 1701; on whose death it came to his nephew, Isaac Allgood, Esq; father of the present possessor, Sir Lancelot Allgood, of Nunwick, Knt (e).

We cross the Bramish by a new stone-bridge, above which, on the right hand, and in sight, is Branton, a small village, supposed by Dr. Gale (f) to be the Roman station Bremenium, now fixed at Rochester in Reedsdale (g). Here the differents have a very handsome meeting-house.

Four miles west from Branton, on little Cheviot, is a large Karn.

- (c) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 666.
- (d) Bp. Gibson in Camden.

(e) See Simonburn.

(f) Gale's Antoninus.

(g) See Rochester.

Two miles east from Branton, is Beanley (b), which was the barony of the Earls of Dunbar (i). It was taken from Patric Earl of Dunbar by K. Edward III, for being in arms with the Scots against him. He gave it to Henry Lord Percy; and it is now in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Northumberland.

On moor is a large circular intrenchment, in fight from Bervic and Rosedon-edge.

A 16 ... it from Beanley, is Eglisch, n, a small village, which was the seat and manour of Luke Octe, sig; 10 Q. Llizabeth (k); of Henry Ogle, Esq; one of the sequestrators of the lands in Northumberland for the parliament, 19 K. Charles I, 1643 (l); also a representative in parliament for

- (b) E seley. Escaetr. Northumbr.
- (i) Comes Patricius tenet Baroniam de Beneley per servicium Inbrough et Outbrough inter regiones Angliæ et Scotiæ. Preterea, tenet tres villas in Chinagium pro quibus reddit dom. regi per ann. xxx. Et eund. servic. omnes antecessores sui tenuerunt post tempus regis Henrici primi qui eos seossavit. Et de seodo illo nulla est alienatio, &c. Testa de Nevill.

Patricius comes de Dunbar tenet in capite de dom. rege Beanley, Shipley, Edlingham, Brandon, Branton, Hedgley, Middleton cum Rodham membro suo, Middleton et Middleton-hall, Harup, Lemington, Witton et Long Witton, Stanton cum Leverchild membro suo, Wyndgates, Horsley, reddens Domino regi pro tribus Middletons prædictis xxx s. per manus vice-comitis comitatus præfati; et pro aliis villis dictus comes facit Inbrough et Outbrough per Angliam et Scotiam.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

- (k) Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz. See Bp. Nicholson's Border-Laws, p. 338.
- (1) Parliament. Hist, of Engl. vol. xii. p. 233.

Northumberland, 5 K. Charles II, 1653; of Henry Ogle, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 6 Q. Ann, 1707; of John Ogle, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 10 K. George II, 1737; and now of Ralph Ogle, Esq.

On Glanton-hill, on the right hand of the road, is Glanton-Pike, a mount so called from its conic form, exploratory; on which was also a beacon to alarm the country by fire in times of public danger; an extensive prospect from it; the hill, called Dun's Law, in Scotland, being seen from it on a clear day.

In a place, called, The Deer-street, by Glanton-west-sield, as a mason, by the order of Mr. Mills of Glanton-pike was digging for stone in the year 1716, he discovered a stone-chest, upwards of three feet in length, and two in breadth, with a stone cover, with nothing in it; but as his son, now living, was working down an uneven piece of ground, he discovered three more such chests with covers, containing sine eatth and two urns in each, with some charcoal, and human bones carrying the marks of sire. Near them were two more urns, one large, and the other very small. On being exposed to the air they all fell to pieces, except one, which Mr. Mills preserved, since broke. They were of very ordinary pottery.

A quarter of a mile north from Glanton-west-field, Mr. Mills's fervant, as he was making a fence a few years ago, turned up a British Securis or Celt at the bottom of a clod, well preserved; now in my possession. It is of the old mixed brass.

Few instruments have more exercised the thoughts of antiquaries than this; some contending for its being a weapon of war' (m) and others not. Mr. Hern fancies it to be a Roman chiffel, used in making their Aggeres, and that it was preferred to iron from the reputed sacredness of the metal of which it was made. From there being no mention of it by Bonani (n), by Monsieur de la Chausse (o), or by Spon (p), and no vestiges of it among the Roman arms on the Trajan or Antonine pillar, or among the ruins of Herculaneum, the ingenious Cornish antiquary, Mr. Brlase, is inclined to think it not of foreign transmarine origin, but the work of British-Romans, or artists taught by them, for an offensive missive weapon (q). According to the late learned and sagacious Dr. Stukeley, it was used by the Druid priesthood in their Sacra, being their hatchet, fixed to the end of a staff, with which they cut the Missetoe for Yuletide, our Christmas, and Oak-boughs for their festival of the autumnal equinox (r).

From Glanton-hill we have a fine prospect of the vale of Whittingham, wherein on the left hand of the road, and on the north side of the rivulet of Aln, is

Bolton, a small villa, where was an hospital founded by Robert de Ros, Baron of Wark, before the year 1225, for a master, and three chaplains, thirteen leprous men, and other lay-brethren; dedicated to St. Thomas the Martyr, or the Holy Trinity; subordinate to the abbey of Ryeval, and the priory of Kirkham, in York-

- (m) Rowland's Mona Antiqua, p. 86. Plot's Staffordshire, p. 403.
- (n) Museum Kercherianum.

(0) Museum Romanum.

- (p) Miscell. curieus.
- (q) Antiq. of Cornwall, chap. 13. p. 263, &c.
- (r) Caraus. vol. ii. p. 163.

(hire (s). He gave it the villa, lordship, impropriation and advowson of Bolton, and a waste of 140 acres; a corn-mill and a tenement at Mindrum; lands at Paston, and at Kilham. He gave it the villa, manour, impropriation and advowson of Straunston, and his estates of the two Pauntons within that lordship, near Grantham, in Lincolnshire. He also gave it an estate at Elwell, in Swanefland, in York/hire, with pasturage for 300 sheep, near the river Humber; a corn-mill, and a tenement, at Middleton, near Dalton: and lands at Garton; both in the county of York (t). The master, chaplains, and brethren of the hospital, were to keep a good table, drefs neatly, and provide themselves with all necessaries and conveniences out of their annual revenues, and apply the remainder to the relief of the poor, and helpless strangers. At the diffolution it came with the manour and villa into the poffeffion of the Collingwoods of Eslington. It belonged to Sir Cuthbert

(s) Carta Roberti de Ros de fundatione ejustdem, citata in Monast. Angl. vol. ii. p. 458, 459.

Rector hospitalis S. Thomæ de Bolton præsentatus ad ecclesiam de Smessach, 10 Hen. III. Collect. Dodsworth, ex rotulo Hug. Wells, Episc. Lincoln.

Hospitale regium S. Trinitatis de Bolton, juxta Alnwick. Pat. 3 Ed. 111.

Leprosi de Bolton. Lel. Collectan. vol. i. p. 199.

Carta hospitalis S. Thomæ de Bolton, II K. Hen. III. m. 90.

Confirmat. cartæ hospitalis S. Thomæ de Bolton, 2 Ed. III. n. 95.

De patronatu hospitalis S. Thomse de Bolton abbat. de Ryeval, &c. claus. 4 Ed. III. m. 1. et claus. 5. p. 1. m. 29. in Dorso.

(t) De possess. hospitalis Thomæ Martyris de Bolton, viz. de Bolton, et de Kilham, et Straunflon juxta Grantham, et tenem. in Passon, Etall, et Swarland, et past. 300 ovium juxta Humber, et tenem. in Garton, &c. carta 11 Hen. III. m. 90. in Cedula.

Vid. Tann. Notit. Monast. so. p. 395.

Collingwood, 10 Q. Elizabeth (u); and to Robert Collingwood, 14 K. Charles I (v).

In the 2d Q. Ann, 1702, it was the feat and manour of William Brown, Efq; high sheriff of Northumberland in that year; and of Nicholas Brown, Efq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1748; and now of his son-in-law, Matthew Forster, Efq; a younger branch of the house of Etherston (w), high sheriff of Northumberland, 1765.

Before the battle of Brankston, Sir Thomas Howard, Earl of Surrey, was at this village, on Monday, 5th September, 5 K. Henry VIII. 1513; where all the noblemen and gentlemen met him with their retinues, to the number of 26,000 men; among whom were the Lords Clifford, Coniers, Ogle, Scrope of Upsal, Lumley, Sir William Percy, Lionel Percy, Sir George Darcy, Sir William Bulmer, of Bramspeth-castle, and Richard Tempest (x).

At Shawdon-new-houses, two urns were digged up a few years ago in making a fence; of ordinary pottery; one of them large and bellied, now in the possession of James Hargrave, of Shawdon, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1738.

Two miles from Bolton, on an eminence, between the two roads from Whittingham and Rothbury to Alnwick, is (u) Cuthbertus Collingwood, miles, fuit seisitus de et in manerio de Bolton.

Escaet, de anno 10 Elia.

- (v) Robertus Collingwood, arm. consanguineus et hæres Guthberti Collingwood, militis, tenet in capite per servicium militare manerium de Bolton, ac duo messuagia in Broom-park, ac quinque messuagia in Titlington.

  Escaet. de anno 14 Car. I.
  - (w) See Etherston.
  - (x) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 826.

Vol. II.

497

Lemington, the feat of Robert Fenwick, Esq; high sheriss of Northumberland, 1753; whose father, Nicholas Fenwick, Esq; was a representative in parliament for the corporation of Newcastle upon Tyne, for many years. It is a handsome modern structure, of white freestone, and hewn work; the gardens to the north-east, wherein is a pinery; an agreeable prospect from it westward of the vale of Whittingham; a large plantation on the brow of a hill to the east.

A mile fouth-west from Lemington, by a streamlet, and in fight from the Rothbury-road to Alnwick, is Edlingham-Cassle, which was the seat and manour of Sir Roger Hastings, Knt. who bore a captain's commission in the expedition against the Moors, 1 K. Henry VIII, 1509; as did Sir Ralph de Ilderton (y). It came afterwards into the possession of Thomas Swinburn, Son of John Swinburn, of Nasserton-hall, Esq; as was found by an inquisition, 10 Q. Elizabeth (z). He was succeeded by his son, George Swinburn, who had two sons and three daughters, by Margaret the daughter of — Haggerston, Esq; of Haggerston; the younger son married to the daughter of Robert Raymes, of Shortslat, Esq; the eldest daughter, Margaret, to Roger Procter, of Shawdon, Esq; the second daughter to Sir George Heron of Chipchace, Knt. and the third daughter to Robert Rodham, of Rodham, Esq; Heirs male failing in John Swinburn, son of Thomas, in the reign of K. Charles I, and his eldest sister and sole heir, Margaret, marrying William Swinburn, of Cap-Heaton, Esq; those two houses were united (a); now in the possession of Sir Edward Swinburn, Bart.

(y) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 808.

(z) Thomas Swinburn fuit seisitus de et in manerio de Edlingham, Abberwick, Newton, Hugh, Nafferton, et M. Bavington, de et in tribus partibus de Black Heddon, cum terris in Fawnes, Bromemore, Hexham, et Morpeth.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

We pass on through the village of Whittingham, westward, for a mile, to Estington, which was the villa and manour of the antient family of the Estingtons; of Alan de Estington, 23 K. Henry III (b); of his fon, John de Estington (c), who had also the manour of Framlington, as was found by an inquisition taken at the castle of Newcastle, 49th of the same reign (d); and by another taken at Rothbury,

(a) Johannes Swinburn, Arm. filius Thomæ, tenet de rege in capite per servicium placita coronæ custodiendi in Northumbr. manerium de Nassorton; ac tenet in capite xii messuag. sive tenem. in le Hugh, ac diversas terras ibidem, ac tenet de rege, ut de manerio de Prudhow per servic. milit. capitale messuag. in Magna Bavington, ac vi messuag. sive tenem. ibidem; ac tenet in capite per servic. milit. capitale messuag. in Abberwick, ac villam de Abberwick.

Escaet. de anno 14 Car. I.

MS. penes Dom. Edvardum Swinburn, de Cap Heaton, Baronettum.

- (b) Alanus de Essington tenet de Domino Rege villam suam de Essington in Dringagium per servicium xl s. per annum, et debet Marchet. auxilium, et portabit truncos ad castrum de Bambrough, et saciat consuetudinem spectantem ad dringagium. Ac de prædicta villa nil alienatum est vel datum in liberum maritagium, elemosinam, aut de alio ullo modo quo dom. Tex, &c.

  Testa de Nevill.
- (c) Johannes de Essington tenet Essington in capite de dom. rege in dringagium, et reddit per annum xl s. et facit talia servicia, qualia Willielmus de Calleley facit, scilicet truncagium castello de Bambrough, et debet talliare dominicis regis cum marchet et haziot, &c.

Certificat. Hug. de Bolbeck, vicecom. Northumbr. Temp. H. III.

(d) Dicunt juratores super sacrum suum, (viz. Mexander de Titlington, Willielmus de Hezeligge, Willielmus de Glanton, Robertes de Whittingham, John de Eranton, Willielmus de Rodham, et Johannes de Beanley, coram vicecomite Northumbr. apud castrum Novi Castri super Tynam, die Veneris proximè post sessum beati Hillarii anno regni regis Hemici silii regis Jo-S s 2

bury, 21 K. Edward I (e); of Robert de Essington, his son, announced in the latter inquisition to be his heir, and to be upwards of the age of twenty. In 14th of K. Henry IV, a mediety of it was possessed by Thomas de Hezelrigge, son of William, and brother of Donald de Hezelrigge, ancestor of the Hezelrigges of Noseley, in Leicestershire. He had also the manour of Whittingham (f). In 36 K. Henry VIII, it was the seat and manour of the knightly family of the Collingwoods, by whom it was possessed through a long succession; by Sir John Collingwood, high sheriss of Northumberland in that year (g); by Sir Robert Collingwood, high sheriss of Northumberland, 5 K. Edward VI (h); by Sir Cuthbert Collingwood, high sheriss of Northumberland, 10, 22 Q. Elizabeth (i); by Robert Collingwood, hannis quadragessimo nono,) quod Johannes de Essington, silius Alani de Essington, est propinquior hæres Johannis de Essington, desuncti, qui tenuit manerium de Framlington de dom. Rogero Bertram per servicium unius seodi milit.

Ex bundello escaetr. Turri Loud. de anno 49 Hen. III. n. 18.

(e) Juratores dicunt super sacrum suum, (viz. Henricus de Warton, Nicolaus de Warton, Walterius de Warton, juxta Rothbury, Johannes Gallon de Truwick, et alii, coram Roberto de Normanville apud Rothbury die dominica a die paschæ in tres septimanas anno regni regis Edvardi vicessimo primo,) quod Johannes de Estington tenuit manerium de Estington per servicium quatuor librarum redditus ad scaccarium Domini regis de Novo Castro, et xlvi s. ad castrum de Bambrough, pro truncagio, et xiv d. pro cornagio; et sectam ad castrum Novi Castri; et pro terris de Franlington secit tantum homagium Roberto de Stotville, et sectam curiæ de Mistord; et dicunt quod Robertus de Estington, filius prædicti Johannis, est hæres ejus propinquior, et est de ætate viginti annorum, et amplius.

Ex bundello escaetr. Turri Lond. de anno 21 Ed. I. n. 23.

(f) Thomas Hizelrigge, filius Willielmi, fratris Donaldi Hezelrigge, tenet medietatem mannerii de Estington, &c. de rege in capite; et manerium de Whittingham de rege in capite, &c.

Mich. Fin. de anno xiv. Hen. IV.

(g) Escaet. de anno 3	36 I	Hen.	VII	I.
-----------------------	------	------	-----	----

(h) _____ 5 Ed. VI.

(i) — — 10 & 22 Eliz.

wood, 14 K. Charles I (i); by George Collingwood, 26 K. Charles II; by George Collingwood, 1 K. George I.

It is now the feat and manour of the right honourable Henry Lord Ravensworth, to whom it gives the title of Baron. Lordship's feat is modern and handsome, in a low situation, on the north fide of the Aln, which forms a canal of a confiderable length; a grafs-lawn between it and the house, and slopes of flowering shrubs on its opposite banks; a plantation of thriving young forest-trees on the fouth fide of the road, on a rising ground, above which is a terrace extending east and west, and a feat to rest on; from which is a view of the greatest part of the vale of Whittingham, of the octagon-grove at Calleley, called The Star, of the castle-hill by it, of the villa and church of Whittingham, of Glanton, Titlington, Shawdon, Bolton, Broom-Park, Lemington, and of the woods of Shawdon and Widewood; the vale being enclosed, as it were, with hills and rocky eminences, with an opening to the east beyond Widewood, well cultivated, and terminating the prospect.

A mile fouth from Eslington, is Calleley, which was the villa of William de Calleley (k) in the beginning of the reign of K. Henry III; and of his fon, Gilbert de Cal-

Cuthbertus Collingwood suit seisstus de et in manerio de Eslington, et Bolton, de parva Ryle, magna Ryle, et Titlington, cum medietate villæ de Whittingham, cum terris in Netherton, et villa de Glanton.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

- (i) Robertus Collingwood, arm. filius Thomas, tenet de rege; ut de castro de Bambrough, per servic. dringagii, 10 mess. et molendinum aquat. in Essington, ac manerium de Whittingham, ac diversa mess. in Barton, Thrompton, et parva Ryle, et tenet in capite diversa mess. in Broom-Park, et Titlington.

  Escaet. de anno 14 Car. I.
- (k) Willielmus de Calleley tenet in capite de dom. rege Calleley et Yetlington in dringagium, et reddit dom. regi per annum xxx s. et facit servicium truncagii castello de Bambrough; et debet

Calleley, in the fame reign (1), who granted it, with the manour of Yetlington, to Robert Fitz-Roger, Baron of Warkworth and Claver-Jing; which grant was confirmed by the crown, 6 August, 55 K. Henry III (m). His Lordship gave them to his son, Roger, and his youngest debet talliari cum dominicis regis; ac debet heriton et marchet, et reddere de Yetlington pet annum xxiv s. sed hoc servicium non pertinet ad tenentes dicti Willielmi.

Certificat. Hug. de Bolbeck, vicecom. Northumbr.

- (1) Gilbertus de Calleley tenet in capite de dom. rege duas villas, viz. Calleley et Yetlington, per servicium xxx s. per annum de chinagio; et debet dare marchet et auxilium, et qualibet altera die a clausaura Pentecostes usque ad sestum S. Petri ad Vincula invenirit unam caricatam carientem truncos ad castellum de Bambrough, viz. cum uno trunco adjuncto pro onore suo, et debet sectam curiæ comitis Northumbr. et interim nullum alium servicium debet. Et omnes antecessores sui prædictas villas per eundum servicium tenuerunt post tempus Willielmi bastardi regis Angiae, et de tenemento illo nii est alienatum per maritagium vel elemosinam, aut aliquo alio modo unde dominus rex minus habeat de servicio suo. Testa de Nevill.
- (m) Henricus Dei gratia rex Anglia, dominus Hibernia, et dux Aquitania, archiepiscopis, episcopis, abbatibus, prioribus, comitibus, baronibus, justiciariis, vicecomitibus, præpositis, ministris, et omnibus ballivis, et fidelibus suis, salutem. Inspeximus cartam quam Gilbertus. filius IVilliclmi, de Calleley, fecit Roberto, filio Rogeri, filii Johannis, de tota terra sua quam habuit in Cal'eley et Yetlington in com. Northumbr. in hæc verba. Sciant præfentes et futuri quod ego Gilbertus, filius Willielmi, de Calleley, dedi et concessi et hac præsenti carta confirmavi Roberto, filio Rogeri, filii Johannis, totam terram meam quam habui, vel habere potuiin Northumbr. scilicet in Calleley et Yetlington, fine aliquo retenimento, et aliqua diminutione, cum omnibus escaetis dictis feodis, de cetero accidentibus nomine dotis, et quocunque alio modo aliquid alio tempore accidere potuit eisdem feodis, et maxime in viis, semitis, boscis, pratis, pascuis, pasturis, aquis, molendinis, stagnis, homagiis, serviciis, wardis, villenapiis, vinariis, fossatis, sepibus, releviis, et in omnibus libertatibus et asiamentis nominatis, et non nominatis, prædictis feodis pertinentibus, fine aliquo casu pertinere valentibus, tenend, et habend, prædisto Roberto et hæredibus suis, vel suis assignatis, de dom, rege in capite, adeo libere et quiete, plenarie et honorifice, ficuti ego unquam liberius, quietius, plenius, melius, et honorificentius prænominatam terram habui, tenui et possedi, sicuti carta dom regis testatur, et proportat. quam quidam cartam ego prædicus Gilbertus prædicto Rollerto deliveravi faciendo fervicium dom. regi, ficut prædicta dom. regis testatur et proportat. p.o omnibus servicies, consuctudinibus, exactionibus, secularibus demandis, et omnibus alis youngest and seventh son, Alan de Clavering. Roger died, 34 K. Edward I, in the possession of Calleley, and lest one daughter, Margery, a minor, in ward to the crown (n), who also died without issue; and his brother, Alan, according to the settlement, succeeded to both manours, at the age of twenty-eight years (o).

aliis rebus quæ possint exigi de prædictis seodis sine aliqua occasione interveniente. Et ego prænominatus Gilbertus, et hæredes mei, totam prædictam terram cum omnibus pertinentibus fuis, libertatibus, et asiamentis, ut superius præscriptum est, prædicto Roberto et hæredibus fuis, vel fuis affignatis, contra omnes homines et fæminas, Christianes et fudeos, per prædicta fervicia warrantizabimus, acquietabimus, et in perpetuum defendemus. Et ut hiec mea donatio, concessio, warantizatio, defensio, acquietatio, et præsentis carte meæ consirmatio, rata, et stabilis, et inconcussa in perpetuum permaneat, banc præ en em cartain figilli mei impressione duxi roborandum. His testibus, dom. Rogero de Mirlay, Rozero Bertram, Ada de Jesment, tunc vicecomite Northumbr. Roberto de Insula, Johanne de Halton, Thoma de Fenwick, Johanne de Eslington, Johanne de Plesses, Thoma de Rile, Ada Barret, Roberto de Cambowe, Thoma de Ogle, Gerardo de Widdrington, militibus, Henrico de Seton, Rogero de IVidaringion, et aliis. Nos autem prædictam donationem, concessionem, et confirmationem, ratus habentes et gratas eas pro nobis et hæredibus nostris, quantum est in nobis, concedimus et confirmamus, ficut prædicta carta rationabiliter testatur. His testibus, 7/2hanne de Warrena, comite Surrey, Rogero de Leyburne, Rogero de Somery, Elia de Rabayne, Mattheo de Lovayne, Galfrido de Percy, Petro Everard, et aliis. Data per manum nostrum apud Westmonaster. sexto die Augusti, anno regni nostri quinquagesimo quinto.

Ex rotulo cartarum de anno 55 Hen. III. pro Roberto, filio Rogeri, filii Johannis.

(n) Juratores dicunt super sacrum suum, quod Rogerus de Clavering tenuit die quo obiit in com. Northumbr. de dom. rege in capite villam de Calleley, in qua est capitale messuagium, 230 acr. terræ arabilis in dominico, 10 acr. prati, 23 bondagia, septem cotagia et molendinum aquaticum. Et dicunt quod tenuit prædictas terras & tenementa de dom. rege in capite per servicium medietatis octo marcarum et xvi d. per annum ad scaccarium Novi Castri super Tynam solvendi, et per servicium dimidium marcæ pro disassorestatione sorestæ eidem scaccario pro cornagio solvendi, et faciendi sectam comitatús, et per servicium xv d. eidem scaccario pro cornagio solvendi. Et quod Margeria est filia et hæres prædicti Rogeri propinquior. Escaet. de anno 34 Ed. I.

(0) Juratores dicunt super sacrum suum, quod duæ partes medietatis manerii de Calleley, cum pertinentibus, in com. Northumbr. sunt in manu dom. regis per mortem Margeriæ silæ

He was brother to John Lord Clavering, who granted the reversion of his baronies to the crown (p). He died, 2 K. Edward III, and was succeeded by his son, William de Clavering, then in the 24th year of his age (q). He died in the same reign, as did his wife, Matilda. He was succeeded by his son, Sir Robert Clavering, as was found by an inquisition at his mother's death, 26 K. Edward III. He was then of the age of twenty-six years (r). He died, et hæredis Rogeri de Clavering, defuncti, ratione minoris ætatis ejustdem Margeriæ. Et dicunt quod prædictæ duæ partes mancrii de Calleley reverti debent Alano de Clavering, fratris prædicti Rogeri, per formam donationis quod Robertus, silius Rogeri, silii Johannis, dudum dedit præfato Rogero et Alano conjunctim, &c. eo quod prædicta Margeria obiit sine hærede de corpore suo excunte. Et quod idem Alanus est ætat. xxviii annorum.

Escaet, de anno 35 Ed. L.

- (p) See Warkworth.
- (q) Juratores dicunt super sacrum suum, quod Alanus de Clavering tenuit in dominico suo, ut de seodo, die quo obiit de dom. rege in capite manerium de Yetlington, cum pertinentibus, per servicium tertiæ partis unius seodi milit. et per servicium reddendi per annum ad scaccarium dom. regis Novi Castri super Tynam xlvii s. per annum ad duo sesta S. Cuthberti. Item, pro cornagio xiv d. Item, pro sin. curiæ vi s. viii d. et pro foresta v s. ad eosdem terminos. Et dicunt quod tenuit die quo obiit manerium de Calleley de dom. rege in capite, per servicium tertiæ partis unius seodi milit. et per servicium reddendi ad scaccarium dom. regis Novi Castri super Tynam xviii s. per annum: I:em, pro cornagio iv d. ob. et pro sine curiæ ii s. ii d. ob. et pro foresta xx d ad duo sesta prædicta Et dicunt quod Willielmus de Clavering est silus et hæres prædicti Alani de Clavering, et est ætat. xxiv. annorum. Escaet. de anno 2 Ed. III.
- (r) Juratores dicunt super sacrum suum, quod Matilda quæ suit uxor Willielmi Clavering, quæ diem clausit extremum, tenuit in dominico suo, ut de seodo de dom. rege in capite die quo obiit manerium de Calleley in com. Northumbr. cum pertinentibus, exceptis sexaginta acris terræ et prati in eodem manerio, per homagium et sidelitatem, et per servicium lx s. per annum, et per servicium xiv d. pro cornagio, et per servicium vi s. viii d. pro boscis et terris suis deassorestandis; quæ quidem servicia prædicta annuatim redduntur dom. regi, et solvuntur ad manus vicecomitis com. prædicti qui pro tempore suerit ad opus regis; et etiam per sectam ad com. Northumbr. et per servicium xvi s. reddend. annuatim dom. regi ad manus died, 17 K. Richard II; and was fucceeded by his fon, Sir John Clavering. Sir John was then in the thirtieth year of his age (s). He was high sheriff of Northumberland, 4 K. Henry IV; his arms, quarterly, or and gules, a bend sable. He died, 4 K. Henry VI. He was succeeded by his son and heir, Robert de Clavering; then of the age of twenty-three years (t). He died, 31 K. Henry VI; and was succeeded by his son, Robert de Clavering, then upwards of twenty years of age. His son, John de Clavering, succeeded him, who died, 2 K. Henry VII. He was succeeded by his son, Robert de Clavering. He died, 10 K. Henry VIII. He was succeeded by his son, John de Clavering, who died, 16th December, 28 K. Henry VIII. He was succeeded by his son, Robert de Clavering, constabularii sui castri de Bambrough, ad opus ejus dem dom. regis pro truncagio. Et dicunt quod Robertus de Clavering, filius præsatæ Matildæ, est hæres ejus propinquior; et est ætat. xxvi. annorum.

Escaet. de anno 26 Ed. III.

dominico suo ut de seodo die quo obiit de villis de Calleley et Yetlington cum omnibus suis pertinentibus in com. No transler et eas tenuit de dom. rege in capite reddendo dicto dom. regi, et hæredibus suis ad scace inna suum per manus vicecomitis Northumbr. qui pro tempore suerit vil. ad sestum S. Cuthbert. Martio et Septembre, et pro truncagio saciend. castro de Bamburg ad eadem sesta xxxi... Et quod Johannas Clavering, miles, est ejus propinquior hæres, ætat. xxx annorum.

See Tilmouth.

(t) Juratores dicunt super sacrum suum, quod Johannes Clavering, miles, obiit seisitus de maneriis et villis de Calleley et Yetlington, in com. Northumbr. quæ tenentur de dom. rege in capite per homagium, sidelitatem, et per servicium vil. per annum, et iis. iv d. per ann. pro cornagio; et insra metas forestæ pro terris suis deafforestandis, xiiis. iv d. quæ quidem servicia solvuntur annuatim vicecomiti Northumbr. qui pro tempore suerit, ad opus dom. regis, et per sectam ad comitatum Northumbr. et per servicium xxxiis. per annum reddend. dom. regi annuatim per manus constabularii castri dom. regis de Bambrough pro truncagio. Et quod Robertus de Clavering est silius et hæres prædicti Johannis, ætat. xxiii annorum.

Escaet. de anno 4 Hen. VI.

who died 25 Q. Elizabeth. He married Ann, one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir Thomas Grey, of Horton-Caffle (v), by whom he had four fons, viz. Robert, John, James, and William. John was rector of Gamlinghay, in Cambridgeshire; James was fettled at Newcastle upon Tyne. He was sheriff of that corporation, 42 Elizabeth, 1500; of which he was also mayor, 5 K. James I, 1607; and, 16th of the fame reign, 1618(w). He was advanced to the honour of knighthood. He was ancestor of the late Sir James Clavering, of Axwellpark, Bart. father of the prefent Sir Thomas Clavering, Bart. of George Clavering, of Greencroft, Efg; and of Colonel Clavering, fonin-law to the right honourable the Earl of Delawar. William, the youngest son, was bred to the army. Robert, the eldest, married Mary the daughter of Sir Cuthbert Collingwood, of Eslington, by whom he had four fons, viz. John, Robert, William, and James. He was high sheriff of Northumberland, 28 Q. Elizabeth (x). He died. 42d of the fame reign (y). His fon and heir, Sir John Clavering, Knt.

mar-

- (v) See Horton Castle.
- (x) Bourne's Hist. of Newcastle upon Tyne, p. 227-28.
- (y) Escaet. de anno 28 Q. Eliz.
- (x) Juratores dicunt super sacrum suum, quod Robertus Clavering diu ante obitum snum suit seisitus in dominico suo, ut de seodo, de et in manerio de Calleley et Yetlington, cum pertinentiis, et de in quadam parcella terræ vocata Trewhet-Strother, &c. ac etiam in quodam annuo redditu duorum solidorum exèunte de uno burgagio et duabus parcellis terræ vocatis Butts of Lands, &c. ac etiam de et maneriis de Tilmouth et Dudhow, in comit. de Norham, insta libertatem et præcinctum comitatus palatini episcop. Dunelm. Dicunt etiam quod prædictus Robertus per ultimam voluntatem et testamentum suum dedit et legavit Mariæ uxori sue inter alia prædictum manerium de Yetlington, &c. dedit etiam filio suo Johanni prædictum manerium de Dudhow, alias Dudhoe, et hæredibus suis masculis de corpore suo legitime procreatis; et pro desectu hæredum, Roberto Clavering, secundo filio dicti Roberti, et hæredibus masculis; et pro desectu hæredum Willielmo Clavering, tertio filio dicti Roberti, et hæredibus masculis; et pro desectu hæredum Jacobo Clavering, quarto filio, &c. et pro desectu hæredum hæredum married Ann, the daughter of Sir Thomas Riddel, of Fenham, Knt; by whom he had nineteen children  $(\gamma)$ . He was a zealous friend to K. Charles I, in all his distresses, for which he incurred the displeafure of the parliament, and was cast into prison. His eldest fon, Sir Robert Clavering, Knt. raifed, at his own charge, two regiments for his Majesty, one of horse, and another of foot; also fome troops of dragoons; with which he ferved his Majesty in person, under the command of the Marquis of Newcastle, and had a share in the victory obtained over the parliament-forces at Athelfton-moor, in Yorkshire. He received the honour of knighthood for his bravery. He was also made commander in chief of the two counties of Northumberland and Durham, then in the possesfion of the Scots, whose forces he vanquished, took the castle of Morpeth, and the fort of South Shields, by affault; and afterwards directed his march to York, with a defign to join Prince Rupert for the relief of that city. By the interpolition of the enemy, he did not accomplish his aim till after the battle of Marston-moor. He was then feized with a fever, of which he died, in the twentyfixth year of his age, unmarried. His father furvived him, who died, 22 K. Charles I, 1646. He was fucceeded by his third fon, Ralph Clavering; whose fon and heir, John Clavering, married Ann the daughter of the right honourable William Lord Widdring dum, Johanni Clavering, de Gamlinghay, in comit. Cantab. rectori fratri dicti Roberti, et hæredibus suis, &c. et pro desectu hæredum, Jacobo Clavering ad tunc vicecomiti Novi Castri, fratris dicti Roberti, &c. et pro desectu hæredum, Johanni Clavering, silio dicti Jacobi fratris, &c. et pro desectu hæredum Jacobo Clavering, filio secundo domini Jacobi fratris, &c. et pro desectu hæredum, Radulpho Clavering, de Bowlesden, &c. et pro desectu hæredum masc. &c. dicti Radulphi, tunc rectis hæredibus masculis ipsius Roberti, &c. in perpetuum. Dicunt etiam quod prædictus Robertus obiit apud Calleley xviii die Martii anno regni dom. Elizabethæ, reginæ, xlii; et quod Johannes Clavering est silius et hæres ejus propinquior, et ætat. xiii annorum, et iv mensium.

Inquisit. capta apud Nov. Castrum super Tynam, anno 44 Eliz.

(y) Mr. Warburton, Somerfet-herald.

508 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

ton, Baron of Blankney, by Elizabeth Berty, heir to Sir Peregrine Berty, and niece to the right honourable the Earl of Lindsey, lord high chamberlain of England, by whom he had Ralph Clavering, father of the late Clavering, and grandfather of the present possession of Calleley and Yetlington, Ralph Clavering, Esq.

His feat of Calleley is on the fouth fide of a stream of the same name, in a low situation; built on to an old tower, to which he hath made handsome additions; a large and elegant diningroom in it, with two music-galleries. The streamlet takes its course between two slopes, on one of which, to the north, is the garden; and on the other, to the south-east, an octagon-grove, called The Star; a paddock of deer between it and the house. At a small distance, to the south-east, is a high conic hill, called Castle-hill, on which is a circular intrenchment with vestiges of buildings; an extensive prospect from it of the vales of Coquet, Whitting ham, and Glendale.

A mile west from Calleley, is Little-Ryle, the villa and feat of a younger branch of the Collingwoods of Eslington; of Alexander Collingwood, high sheriff of Northumberland, 1725; who built a handsome feat at Unthank, hard by, now the seat of his son and heir, Alexander Collingwood, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1761.

Three miles fouth-west from Little Ryle, is

Cartington, which was the feat and manour of the antient family of the Ratcliffs; of Sir Edward Ratcliff, high sheriff of Northumberland, 17 K. Henry VII (z); of Sir Cuthbert Ratcliff, high sheriff of

(z) Escaet. de anno 17 Hen. 17.

Northumberland, 10 K. Henry VIII (a); of Sir George Rateliff, high sheriff of Northumberland, 5, 6, Q. Mary (b). It was afterwards the feat of Sir Edward Widdrington, Bart. who raised a regiment of horse for the service of K. Charles I, by whom he was created a Baronet, 8th August, 1642. His estate was sequestered by the parliament, 1652. His eldest daughter and coheir, Mary, married Sir Edward Charleton, of Hezleyside, Bart. She died, 8th April, 1703, aged 71. His third daughter and coheir, Catharine, married Richard-Francis Sherburn, only fon of Sir Nicholas Sherburn, of Stoniburft, in Lancashire, Bart. She was born on Sunday, 3d December. 1693; died on Monday, 8th June, 1702 (c). Lady Charleton founded and endowed a small almshouse in the village, for four antient poor widows in the parish of Rothbury. The manourhouse is an old tower, now possessed, with part of the villa, by Giles Allcock, of Newcastle upon Tyne, Esq; It stands on an eminence, from which, four miles to the north-west, we have a good view of Bittlesdon (d), which was the seat and villa of Sir Walter Selbye, governor of Lidell-Castle on the borders, 16 K. Edward III, 1342; in which year, on the 5th of October, it was taken by David King of Scotland, in his march into England with an army of

(a) Escaet. de anno 19 Hen. VIII.

(b) ______ 5 et 6, Mar.

Georgius Ratcliff, miles, fuit seisitus de et in castro, manerio, et villa de Cartington,

&c.____

Vide Dilson.

(c) Le Neve's Monum. Angl. vol. i. p. 44.

(d) Bidleston. Escaetr. Northumbr.

Bytilsden. Bp. Nicholson.

Bittlesdon.

40,000 men, one half confifting of veterans, and the other half of militia, raised by the towns and boroughs, for their inexperience, called Hoblers; Sir Walter being beheaded after it was taken for refusing to surrender (e). In 6 K. Edward VI, his villa was in the possession of Percival Selbye, who was one of the commissioners for the enclosures upon the middle marches in that year. It now belongs to Thomas Selbye, Esq. His feat is at the head of a gradual flope; a streamlet behind it, falling at irregular distances from large rocks in a winding course through a deep gill, overlooked by the high hills of Sowndon, Silverton, and Hardon, from the two last of which is a view of the sea on a clear day; a garden to the east, with a flew-wall of brick, 110 yards in length; a fine prospect from it of the pleasant vale of Coquet. terminated to the fouth-east, the fouth, and fouth-west, by a semicircular ridge of hills; Simonfide-hill standing nearly in the center, overlooking the reft, of an oblong figure.

Three miles from Bittlesdon, on the banks of the Coquet, is Clenell, the feat and manour of the antient family of the Clenells; of Thomas Clenell, 18 K. Edward I; in which year he obtained a grant of free warren in this manour, and his manour of Elsden (f); of William Clenell, 12 K. Henry VI (g); of Percival Clenell, 6 K. Edward VI (h); of Luke Clenell, high sheriff of Northumberland, 1727; of the late Clenell, Esq; on whose death it came to his two daughters and coheirs.

A mile below Clenell, on the fouth fide of the Coquet, is

(e) Hol. Chron. vol. i. p. 240.

(f) See Elsdon.

(g) Fuller's Worthles, p. 310.

(h) Bp. Nicholfon's Border laws, p. 330.

Harbottle-Caftle (i), which was held by the Humfranvils, Barons of Prudhow, by the service of keeping Reed/dale free from thieves and wolves (k); by which fervice they also held the castle and manour of Otterburn (1). This fervice was adjudged to be the fervice of Great Serjeanty, 17 K. Henry IV. In that year, the court of eschequer ordered a search to be made in the rolls, to find their yearly value. Upon which it was found by an escheator's inquisition, that they were then worth 61. 19s. 8 d. per annum; whereupon Walter Tailboys, heir to Robert Humfranvil, was adjudged to pay the king that fum annually (m). They were both in the possession of the crown, 3 K. Edward IV, by the attainder of Sir William Tailboys, after the battle of Hexham-field. They were also in the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth. The castle and manour of Harbottle are now in the possession of Percival Clenell, Esq. The castle stands on an eminence, overlooking the river Coquet, now in ruins. It was fo ftrong, 24 K. Edward I, 1296, that the Scots in their march through Reedsdale to Hexham in that year besieged it in vain for the space of two days (n). It was also a good castle, 6 K. Henry VIII, 1515; in which year, Margaret, Queen Dowager of Scotland, daughter to K. Henry VII, mother to K. James V, grandmother to Q. Mary, and great grandmother to K. James VIth of Scotland, and Ist of England, retired to it by the appointment of her

- (i) Harbottle, i. e. the station of the army. Camden. Herbotell. Madox.
- (k) Testa de Nevill. See Prudhow.
- (1) See Otterburn.
- (m) Mich. Fin. anno 17 Hen. VI. Rot. 1. b. Madox's Baron. Angl. p. 244.
- (n) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 299.

brother, K. Henry VIII, after her marriage with Archbold Douglas, Earl of Angus. In this recess her daughter, Lady Mary Douglas, was born, 1518; afterwards married to the Earl of Lenox, 36 K. Henry VIII, 1544 (0).

A mile below Harbottle-castle, on the same side of the Coquet, is

<sup>(0)</sup> Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 838, 963.

(p) Camden's Britan. p. 859. Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 59.

(q) Rex archiepiscopis, &c. Salutem. Sciatis nos pro salute animæ nostræ, et animarum antecessorum et hæredum nostrorum concessisse, et confirmasse Priorissæ et monialibus de Halystane donationes subscriptas, videlicet de dono Alessæ de Alneto totam terram quam ipsa Alessa tenuit in villa de Hedrestone; scilicet tres bovatas terræ cum una tosta et crosto, et cum omnibus libertatibus et asiamentis ad præsatam villam pertinentibus. Et de dono Rogeri Bertram totum boscum qui vocatur Baldiwineswode per has divisas; scilicet a campo sossati monialium ex australi parte descendentis in Sillesdoneburne, et per Sillesdoneburne ascendendo versus occidentem usque ad divisas de Thorntone, et sic per vetus sossatum versus aquilonem usque divisas Rogeri de Merlay, et sic per illas divisas usque divisas de Stantone versus orientem, et sic usque ad fossatum

of land in Kestron (r). They had the impropriation and advows on of Allenton, near Harbottle-castle (s); where they had an hospital (t). They had the impropriation and advows on of Carsonside. They had also the advows on of Harbottle chapel. These two livings, and Halystone, were consolidated by Richard Kellow, Bishop of Durbam, by the desire of the Lord Richard Humfranvil, their patron, who was admitted into holy orders to be their chaplain and vicar, for this good reason, that the pastoral duties might be discharged with honourable zeal and piety (u). They had four fossatum dictarum monialium versus aquilonem, cum libero introitu et exitu sine aliquo reternemento, et cum omnimodo asiamento, et omnibus commoditatibus et utilitatibus tam in ædificiis quam in omnibus aliis quæ prædictæ moniales infra prædictas divisas facere voluerint vel potuerint, et cum libera multura bladi provenientis de eodem bosco ad molendina ipsius Rogeri in parochia de Midsord, et cum communa ad omnimoda averia ipsarum monialium in communibus pasturis de Newtone et Throphill tunc habitis extra divisas earundem monialium, sicut cartæ prædictorum sieste et Rogeri quas prædictæ moniales inde habent rationabiliter testantur. Quare volumus, &c. Dat. per manum nostram apud Novum Castrum super Tonam xxv die Septembris.

Carta 39 Hen. III. m. 2. citat. Monast. Angl. vol. i. p. 476.

(r) Priorissa de Halystone tenet Halystone, Corsondope et Sentill, in elemosinam, et nullum servicium facit provinciae de Riddisdale. Ac tenet xl acras terræ in Kestron, in elemosinam, et nullum facit servicium.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

Regest. Dunelm. citat. Monast. Angl. p. 476.

Pat. 50 Ed. III. p. 2. m. 32.

(u) Ricardus Episcopus Dunelmensis consolidavit et univit ecclesiam de Corsanset, et capellam de Harbotell, ecclesiæ de Halystane, et monialibus ibidem Deo servientibus, &c. Statuens quod de cætero unum et idem beneficium ecclesiasticum de Halystane nuncupetur, et sructus ejusdem in proprios usus vestros liberè converterentur. Sed ne animarum cura dicto beneficio, nec ejus partibus depereat, seu quomodo libet negligatur, nobilis viri domini Ricardi de Umfranvill advocati et patroni vestri ordinatione, super hoc habita, statuimus, quod sit ibidem vicarius, &c. Datum nono die Februarii Ann. Dom. MCCCXI.

514. ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

houses in Newcastle upon Tyne (v). In the Lincoln-taxation, 20 Edward I, their temporalities are rated at 24 l. At the dissolution, their annual revenues were valued at 11 l. 5 s. 6 d. Dugd. 15 l. 10 s. 8 d. Speed (w). The site of the priory, manour, and villa of Halystone, were in the possession of the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (x).

Below Halystone, on the north side of the Coquet, is Heppell, which was the barony of Ivo Tailboys in the reign of K. Henry III (y), and continued in his family down to the latter end of the reign of K. Edward III (z); when it came into the poffession of the Ogles of Ogle-Castle, and was possessed by Cuthbert Lord Ogle, 10 Q. Elizabeth (a). It now belongs to his Grace the Duke of Fortland.

On the hill between Thropton and Rothbury, is a circular intrenchment, with a double fofs and rampier, called Old Rothbury;

- (v) Bourne's Hist. of Newc. p. 142.
- (w) Bp. Tanner's Notit. Monast. fol. p. 394.
- (x) Dom. Regina Elizabetha fuit feisita de et in manerio et villa de Halystone, &c.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Eliza
- (y) Ivo Tailbois tenet in capite de dom. rege baroniam suam de Heppell cum uxore, quæ suit Willielmi de Bradford, quam nunc habet ex dono dom. regis per servicium unius seodi militis. Et omnes antecessores tenuerunt prædictam baroniam in chinagium, &c.

Testa de Nevill.

(2) — Tailloys obiit feisitus de manerio de Happell, Bickerton, Tosson et Tosson, Floterton, Warton, et medietat. de Trewbett, per unum seo !. veteris seossamenti.

Escaet. de anno 43 Ed. III.

Ogle obiit seisitus de et in manerio de Hoppell. Escaet. de anno 47 Ed: III.

(a) See Bothall.

an afylum and refuge in times of public danger, like the hills, called Castle-Hill, and Ros-Castle, before mentioned; used also as guard hills on the establishment of a night watch before the union of the two kingdoms.

. About a mile from old Rothbury, is the villa of Rothbury, which was the barony of Robert Fitzroger, Baron of Warkworth and Clavering, 6 K. John, by whom he was infeoffed in that year; and had a grant at the fame time of a weekly morket on Thursday, and an annual fair, to continue for three days viz. the even, and the day of St. Matthew, and the day after with all rights, duties, customs, tolls, and stallages belonging to a fair; also a free forest, with all liberties, franchises, and privileges belonging to it, except the goods of felons (b). John, the last Lord Clavering, granted the reversion of it to the crown, 6 K. Edward III (d);

(b) Rot. Clauf. de anno 6 Joh. m. 14.

Escaet. de anno 33 Hen. III. n. 66.

Matth. Paris annal. sub anno 33 Hen. III. 1249.

Hæres Johannis, filii Roberti, tenet de dom. rege in capite villam suam de Rotheburie, Thrompton, Snyter, et novam Villam per unum seed. milit. veteris seossamenti.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.

Placita de juratis et affisis, apud Novum Castrum super Tynam in com. Northumbr. anno 21 Ed. I. Rot. 71.

- (c) Rot. Clauf. de anno 6 Ed. I. m. 11.
- (d) Pat. de anno 2 Ed. III. p. 1. m. 20. See Warkworth.

516 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

and is now in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Northum-berland. It is in a low, but romantic situation; the Coquet passing by it on the south side, crossed by a neat stone-bridge of three arches; a beautiful vale opening gradually to view to the west, enclosed almost with hills and ridges of broken rocks. It consists of three irregular streets, viz.

Ratten-row,
Market-street,
Church-gate.

The Market-cross is nearly in the center. It hath three annuals fairs; on Whitson-Monday, 21 September, and on Thursday before All-Hallows day. The church is in the form of a cross, dedicated to All Saints; a large clock and two bells in the tower; the floor within the communion-rails of chequer-work, of white freestone, and blue marble; the altar venerable. Against a pillar by the fouth door is the effigies of a man in armour cut in stone, standing, and in relief, with a pistol in his right hand, and a powder-bag at his belt; his head broken off. Near it is a funeral monument to the memory of George Fletcher, Esq; high sheriff of Northumberland, 1710, who died within the year, 25th January. He left to the parish of Rothbury 61. per annum, for ever, out of his lands at Spital, for maintaining a school at Rothbury. On the north side of the chancel is a mural monument of blue marble with the following inscription.

Near this monument lyeth the body of the truly virtuous Matron, Mary, wife of John Thomlinson, rector of Rothbury, who departed this life, Oct. 30th, 1710. Aged 70 years.

Alfo,

on her right fide, is interred the body of the faid Reverend Mr. John Thomlinson, a worthy benefactor to this parish, who was rector above 41 years, who departed this life, May 23d, 1720. Aged 69 years.

Below it is the following infcription, on a fmall mural stone of the same kind.

Benefactions of the Rev. Mr. Thomlinson to the parish of Rothbury, &c.

	I.		. d.
Sharperton	22	0	0
Estates \{ Harbottle	4	0	. •
Estates Sharperton	7	0	of per annum.
To the fchool there	20.	, O	٥)
Building the school-house -	100	0	. • .
To the vicars of Wigton	13	0	0
Further augmentation
To the fchool there	100	. 0	. 0 .
Building a college of matrons at
Wigton	200.	0	· O .
Towards its endowment	35	0	•
	101	10	Q , .

On the brow of a hill on the fouth fide of the river, is Whitton-Tower; the Humfranvil-arms on the west side; now the rectory-house. It was repaired by its late rector, the learned Dr. Thomas Sharp, archdeacon of Northumberland, son of Dr. Sharp, archbishop of York, and father of Dr. John Sharp, the present

8:11

Archdeacon of Northumberland. It was also repaired by the prefent rector, the Revd. Mr. Birdmore, canon-residentiary of York.

Three miles below Rothbury, is Brinkburn-Priory, founded in the reign of K. Henry I, and dedicated to St. Peter (a), by William de Bertram, baron of Mitford, with the approbation of his Lady and his three fons.

His lordship placed in it Black Canons or Canons Regular, of the order of St. Austin, from the monastery of St. Mary de Insula, and endowed it with lands out of his wastes, confirmed both by his Lady, Hawys and Roger, his eldest son and heir. He gave it Thornhaugh, Forderhaugh, Papwirthhaugh, Heley, and Over-Heley, and the woods belonging to them, also a wood to the east of Heley, extending from Linchburn to the river Coquet. To this gift he added another, viz. an annual present of twenty sishes out of his sishery of Coquet (b).

His grandson, Roger, gave it 140 acres in his waste-lands in Evenwood, with a large share of his wastes near Framlington, also liberty to cut timber out of his woods in the forests for its necessary uses, with the privilege of having game. Prince Henry of Scotland, Earl of Northumberland, gave it a salt-work at Warkworth. He and his son, William de Warren, of the family of the Earls of Warren, by the mother's side, and named after them, confirmed to it all its possessions and privileges (c). They were also confirmed by feveral royal charters (d). Half of the manour of Nethertyrwhyt belonged to it (e); also the appropriations and advowfons of Long Horsley and Felton (f). About the time of its suppression it had ten canons. Its annual revenues were then valued at 68 l. 19 s. 1 d. Dugd. 77 l. Speed. It was granted to John Earl of Warwick, 4 K. Edward VI (g). In the same reign it came into the possession of George Fenwick, Esq; a commissioner for enclosures upon the middle marches (b), by descent from the antient family of the Fenwicks, of Fenwick-tower. In the reign of K. Charles I, it belonged to Colonel George Fenwick, in the fervice of the Parliament, and governor of Berwick upon Tweed. He was presented with a 1000 l. for his service in Ireland, 1647. The next year he, and Colonel Lilburn, and Mr. Sanderson, defeated Sir Richard Tempest, and took several officers and gentlemen of note prisoners. With his horse, and some dragoons, he relieved Holy Island, and took Fenham-castle, garrisoned by the Scots after their defection. Cromwell, on taking Edenburgh, 1650, made him go-

(a) St. Peter and St. Paul, in Pat. 15 K. Henry VI.

(b) Monast Angl. vol. ii. p. 203. Vide Cartam citat. ex registro hujus prioratus de Brink-burn penes Dom. Will. Howard de Naworth castro, 23 Jan. 1638. sol. 1.

Carta 2 Joh. p. 1. m. 11. et Pat. Hen. VI. p. 1. m. 7.

(c) Vide cartas Henrici et Willielmi comit. Northumbr. citat. in Monast. Angl. vol. ii. p. 203, 204.

(d) Ibid Vide cartam, 43 Hen. III.

Registr. prædict. hujus priorat. MS.

Excerpta ex eodem inter collectan. Rog. Dodfwrth, vol. 45. so. 1.

Carta, 37 Hen. III. m. 16. de libertatibus.

. (e) Pat. 21 Edwardi I. m. Plac. in comit. Northumbr. assiz. rot. 19. pro medietat. manerii de Nethertyrwhyt. Rot. 25 Dorso; quo war. Rot. 7. bis.

(f) Pat. 10 Ricardi II. p. 1. m. 3. pro eccles. de Horsley appropriand. ordinat. vicariæ de Felton, in eccles. Dunelm. A. D. 1314.

(g) Bp. Tanner's Notitia Monastica, fo. p. 391.

(h) Bp. Nicholson's Border-Laws, p. 330.

520 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

vernor of it. He summoned the governor of Hume-Castle to surrender to General Cromwell. The governor answered, "he knew "not Cromwell, and for his castle it was built upon a rock." The ordnance playing against it, he sent Colonel Fenwick these verses:—

> I William of the wastle, Am now in my castle, And awe the dogs in the town Shan'd garre me gang down.

Breeches were made in his castle, and many rich goods were spoiled. Gallant William was forced to surrender; the soldiery ordered to share his goods, except some furniture and bedding for the accommodation of his Lady.

The Colonel was a member for Berwick, and one of the parliament-commissioners to treat with the Scots. He, and Sir Arthur Hezelrigge, Bart. Thomas Bowes, Henry Tempest, and James Clavering, Esqrs; were five of the ninety-six members not suffered by Oliver Cromwell to sit in his packt parliament, 1656.

On the fale of the lands of the Bishoprick of Durham by the parliament, he purchased the borough of Sunderland, and the manour of Houghton le Spring, 9th November, 1649, for 2851 l. 9s. 6d. and parcels of land in Riehope, 1st June, 1650, for 2091 l. 16s. 3d. (i).

In the church of Berwick, a monument is erected to his memory with this inscription:—

(i) Browne Willis.

Col. Geo.

Fenwick of Brenkhurn, Efq;

governour of Berwick in the year 1652, was a principal instrument of causing this church to be built, and died March, 15th 1656.

A good man is a public good.

The last male-branch of this family was George Fenwick, Esq; whose daughter and heir, Elizabeth, married Roger Fenwick, of Stanton, Esq; by whom he had four children, the eldest of which, John Fenwick, marrying Margaret one of the daughters and coheirs of William Fenwick, of Bywell, Esq; occasioned the union of the two antient houses of Brinkburn and Stanton to that of Bywell, now all three possessed by William Fenwick, of Bywell, Esq;

Brinkburn-Priory stands under a hill, on the extreme point of a peninfula, by the north margin of the river Coquet, which in murmuring rills washes part of it, and the garden-walls; edged on the other side with a semicircular ridge of shaggy rocks, covered with ivy, and a variety of plants and shrubs; among them the mountain-ash, and wild guelder-rose, which with their white slowers, and scarlet fruit, add greatly to the beauty of this agreeable solitude.

This venerable pile, and part of the church, in the cathedral form, have been entirely demolished, and the stones converted to Vol. II. Xxx build build a dwelling-house, now also in decay. The large square Tower of the church, a small spire or steeple, many noble pillars and arches, some of the side-walls, and the dormitory, lately converted to a cellar, are still standing. The church-bell was removed to Durbam. The walls are fringed with various plants, with Pellitory of the Wall, and the greater Celandine, and among them the tall slowering Elder lives and slourishes in strength and vigour *.

ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

Six miles fouth-west from Rothbury, we cross the rivulet of Font by a stone-bridge of one arch, and from the brow of the hill, above the small hamlet of Ewslee, on the left hand, we have a prospect of Nether-Witton, the feat and manour of the antient family of the Thorntons; of Roger Thornton, the celebrated patron of the corporation of Newcastle upon Tyne (k), who died, 8 K. Henry VI, 1429, after building his castle or Tower of Witton (l); of Sir Roger Thornton, his son, who married Elizabeth the daughter of John Lord Greystock, Baron of Morpeth (m), and was high sheriff of Nor-

- Since this was written, a Brief has been obtained for rebuilding part of this facred fabric.
  - (k) See Newcafile.

    See the chapter of eminent men, in vol. 1.
- (1) Anno domini 1429, in crastino circumcissonis, obiit Rogerus de Thornton, burgensis villæ Novi Castri, & Dominus de Witton, qui castrum ibidem construxit, et dedit nobis plumbum, quo operitur navis ecclesiæ nostræ; pro quo Rogero et Agnete uxore ejusdem, et liberis, dicimus quotidiam missam pro desunctis; et jacent in ecclesia omnium sanctorum in Novo Castro.

Ex Martyrologio Novi Monasterii, de fundatore et præcipuis benesactoribus ejusdem; citat. Monast. Angl. p. 916-17-18.

thumberland, thumberland, 29, 36 K. Henry VII (n); his daughter Elizabeth marrving Sir George Lumley, of Lumley-Caftle, high sheriff of Northumberland, 2, 3, 8, 9, 10, 11 K. Edward IV; in the 4th of which reign he was a Conservator of the Peace and Trewe between England and Scotland, and had the honour of knighthood (0); of Roger Thornton, 6 K. Edward VI (p); of Sir Nicholas Thornton, Knt. whose estate was sequestred by the parliament, 8th November, 4 K. Charles II, 1652; of the late James Thornton, Esq; who left two daughters and coheirs. The old castle is now in ruins. The prefent feat is a genteel modern structure, of white freestone, with a flat roof; the gardens to the west; a plantation on a large slope to the east and north-east; a grass-lawn before the south front; the parochial chapel by the footh-west corner, dedicated to St. Giles: a paddock of deer between the foot of the lawn and the trout-streams of the Font, on the north side; both sides of the rivulet beautifully shaded with wood; the village small, and irregular.

In fight from the same place, to the east of Nether Witton, on the brow of a hill, and on the same side of the rivulet of Font, is

Stanton, which was the feat and villa of a younger branch of the Fenwicks, of Fenwick-Tower; of Sir Ralph de Fenwick, high sheriff of Northumberland, 7 K. Henry VIII (q); who with Sir John de Fenwick, of Wallington, and other gentlemen, acquired great (n) Escaet. de annis, 29, 36 Hen. VI.

(e) Bp. Nicholson's Border-Laws, p. 61. .

(p) ______p. 331.

(q) Escaet. de anno 7 Hen. VIII.

324 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND,

honour by their valour in an expedition against the Scots, 5th of July, 16th of the same reign, 1524; when with 900 men they defeated, after a long and obstinate engagement, 2000 Scotchmen, in the sine country of the Merse, and took 200 prisoners; Sir Ralph being unfortunately taken prisoner, with seven others, in the pursuit, and six more of his company slain; among the latter, a valiant young gentleman, of the name of Heron (r): of Ralph de Fenwick, 6 K. Edward VI, a commissioner in that year for the enclosures upon the middle marches (s); of Richard de Fenwick, 10 Q. Elizabeth (t); of William de Fenwick (u); of Roger Fenwick, and of his son, John Fenwick, Esqrs; (v). It is now in the possession of William Fenwick, of Bywell, Esq; (w).

From the top of the hill, called, Liniel-Law, above Ewslee, by a plantation, is an extensive land and sea prospect.

At the foot of Liniel-Law, on the right hand, is a femicircular lake, between two young plantations; a rill entering it from the north, called, White Den-Sike.

From the lake we afcend a hill, called, Codgey-Crag, and come past a large plantation on the left hand, and a park, called Rothe-

- (r) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 883.
- (s) Bp. Nicholfon's Border-Laws, p. 331.
- (t) Richardus Fenwick fuit seisitus de et in manerio et villa de Stanton, Absheels, Limekinfield, ac de et in medietate villæ de Long Witton, cum terris in Farnelaw, Trubetly-sheels, Eshenden, et Cowpon.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.
- (u) Willielmus Fenwick, arm. filius Richardi, tenet in capite per servic. milit. manerium de Stanton, cum pertinentibus.

  Escaet. de anno 14 Car. I.

(v) See Brinkburn.

ley-Park, in which, on a rocky eminence, is an artificial Tower; two jaw-bones of a Whale by the entrance, seventeen feet and six inches long; also two shoulder-blades of a Whale, three feet, six inches long, and three feet broad; an extensive land and sea-prospect from it. The park is full of deer and game. By the road-side, at a small distance from the Tower, is Rotheley, a fmall, but well built, pleafant villa, on a rifing ground, belonging to Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. who built the Tower, raifed the plantations, and formed the femicircular lake before-mentioned, in imitation of nature.

From Rotheley, two miles to the east, we have a view of Long Witton, an irregular villa on an eminence, at the east end of which is the feat of William Swinburn, Efg; brother of John Swinburn, of Newcastle, Esq; who was high sheriff of Northumberland, 1755. It is a neat structure, well sheltered to the north by tall forest trees; a plantation and shrubbery on each side; a grasslawn before it, to the fouth, from which is a most beautiful and extensive prospect; a pleasant walk from it southward by a gradual descent for about a mile to a neat garden, under a bank of oaks by a rivulet; a fmall rill croffing it towards the middle. called. The Den-Burn; a grafs-terrace by the rivulet, the opposite banks covered with brushwood; about 150 yards of fire-wall in it, producing excellent fruits; a gardener's house overlooking it from the brow of a hill by the road, fashed, and of grotto-work, Below it, to the north-east, is a winding-path through the bank of oaks to a ridge of rocks, under which are three medical fountains, called, Thurston-wells.

A little lower down, the rivulet is croffed by the Roman caufway, vulgarly called, The Devil's caufway, a branch of the Heremanftreet; very fair for a considerable length in a pasture by the roadside above the hill.

526 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

On the fouth fide of the rivulet, by the causway, is a bank of wood belonging to the vicarage of Hartburn, cut into many agreeable walks. On the edge of the rivulet is a grotto, cut out of a rock. Some pleasing objects are let in here and there through the trees, the Latebræ dulces (x); as a falling stream, the gothic Tower and the church at Hartburn, the rocks by Thurstonwells, and Mr. Swinburn's seat of Long Witton. This romantic solitude was formed by the present incumbent, the Rev. Dr. Sharp, archdeacon of Northumberland.

We now pass on from Rotheley to Harterton-burn, crossed by a new stone-bridge of one arch, and come to Camboe (y), i. e. the camp or fort on the hill, which was the villa and feat of Sir Robert de Camboe, high sheriff of Northumberland, 28, 29, 30 K. Henry III (z). It is now in the possession of Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, Bart. It is a small, well built, pleasant villa, with gardens and enclosures before it on gradual slopes, and a prospect from it of the sea.

Near a mile from Camboe, is Wallington, one of the manours of the Barony of Bolbeck, (a), of which it was held by John Grey, commonly called John de . (x) Hor. Epist. 16.

(y) Camhow.

(z) Escaet. de annis 28, 29, 30 Hen. III.

Wallington, 20 K. Edward II (b), and 39 K. Edward III (c); also by Robert de Wallington, whose only daughter and heir, Johanna, married William le Strother; on whose death it came, with its dependences, to Sir John de Fenwick, of Fenwick-Tower, who married his youngest daughter and coheir, Mary, in the reign of K. Henry IV. It was possessed by his family through a long succession; by John de Fenwick, 12 K. Henry VI (d); by Sir Henry de Fenwick, 28th of the fame reign, in which year he was one of the confervators of the peace and trewe between the two kingdoms of England and Scotland (e); by Sir John de Fenwick, 16 K. Henry VIII (f); by Sir William de Fenwick, high sheriff of Northumberland, 20, 31 Q. Elizabeth (g). He married Grace the daughter of Sir John Forster, Lord warden of the middle marches; her other fifter marrying Francis Ruffel, fon to the Earl of Bedford. His fon and heir, Sir John Fenwick, Knt. was high sheriff of Northumberland, 17 K. James I; and created a baronet, 9th June, 4 K. Charles I, 1628. He was a representative in parliament for the borough of Cockermouth, and made his election for the county of Northumberland, 5th February, 17 K. Charles I, 1641. He was expelled the house, 22d. January, 1643, for non-attendance, and giving his fervice to his fovereign, and William Fenwick, Efq; was chosen in

(b) Escaet. de anno 20 Ed. II. n. 40.

(c) _____ 39 Ed. III. n. 17.

(d) Fuller's Wortbies, p. 310.

(e) Bp. Nicholson's Border-Laws, p. 34. (f) See Stanton.

(g) Willielmus Fenwick, arm. fuit seisitus de manerio de Fenwick et villa, et in manerio de Wallington et Walker, Camhow, Harterton et Harterton-Hall, Catcherside, et medietate de Ryhill, Greenlighton, et Gunnerton, et Hawick, cum certis terris et tenementis in East Matsen, et de et in una villa vocat. Eshenden, juxta Bothall, et L. Wytton et Hawick. Escaet de anno 10 Eliz.

his room. He was taken prisoner the year following, with some other gentlemen, thirty horse and arms, and a sumpter with rich clothes, between Northampton and Banbury, by the forces of the parliament, then called, New Nodles, from their establishing their armies on a new model. His fon, John Fenwick, was flain in the same year at the battle of Marston-moor. In the year 16454 he was high sheriff of Northumberland, and at the head of the militia for the parliament, having made his peace with them. The royalists are faid to have had an intention of giving him. correction, by furprizing him and the militia, but were prevented on his receiving private notice of their design (b). He was readmitted to his feat in parliament for Northumberland, 26th June, 1646, by a majority of 124 voices against 73 (i). He first married Catharine the daughter of Sir Henry Slingsby, by whom he had one fon, John, above-mentioned, and two daughters, Catharine and: Elizabeth. He afterwards married Grace the daughter of ____ Lor__. rain, of Kirk Herle, Efg; by whom he had two fons, William and Alan, and one daughter, Grace. His fon and heir, Sir William Fenwick, Bart. was a representative in parliament for Northumberland. 6, 8 K. Charles II. He first married Grace the daughter of Henry Stapleton, of Wighall, in Yorkshire, Esq; by whom he had one fon, John, and two daughters, the eldest of whom, Grace, married Sir Thomas Lorrain, of Kirk Harle, Bart. He afterwards married Margaret the daughter of William Selby, of Newcastle, Esq; fifter to Sir George Selby, Knt. by whom he had two fons, and five daughters, viz. William and Roger, Elizabeth, Dorothy, Ann, Margaret, and Mary. His fon and heir, Sir John Fenwick, Bart. after the great fire of London, 18 K. Charles II, 1666, built the great hall in Christ's

(h) Whitlock's Memor. p. 143.

(i) Parliament Hist. of Engl. vol. ix. p. 23, 35.

Hospital, in which the boys dine and sup. He married the right honourable Lady Mary eldest daughter of Charles Howard Earl of Carlifle, who after his execution for treason on Tower-hill, 28th January, 8 K. William III, 1696, erected a monument with the following inscription to his memory in the cathedral church of York.

This monumental pillar is crected and dedicated by the right honourable the Lady Mary Fenwick, eldest daughter to Charles Howard Earl of Carlisle, as a testimony of respect to the memory of Sir John Fenwick, baronet, of Fenwick-castle in the county of Northumberland, her deceased husband; by whom she had four children, one daughter, and three sons: Jane, her eldest, died very young, and was buried in a vault in the parish church of St. Nicholas, in Newcastle upon Tyne. Charles, having attained the age of sisteen years, died of the small pox: William was six years old, and Howard a year and a half, when they departed this life. These three sons do all lie with their father in the parish church of St. Martin in the Fields, London; near the altar, where he was interred January 28th, 1696, aged 52.

Lady Fenwick died, 27th October, 1708, in the fiftieth year of her age (k).

Sir John fold this, and other lordships, to the second Sir William Blacket, of Newcastle upon Tyne, Bart. who was high sheriff of Northumberland, 1689. He was succeeded by his son, Sir William Blacket, Bart. who died, 29th February, 1728. His only daughter and heir married Walter Calverley, Esq; son and heir of Sir Walter Calverley, of Calverley, in Yorkshire, Bart. (1), now Sir Walter Calver-

(k) Drake's Antiq. of York, p. 503.

<sup>(1)</sup> Theresby's Topogr. of Leeds, p. 116, 117, 118.

Vol. II. Yyy

ley Blacket, Bart. 27th August, 1729. Sir Walter was high sherist of Northumberland, 1732; and a representative in parliament for the corporation of Newcassle upon Tyne from February 1734, to the present time. His seat is a modern genteel structure, of white freestone and hewn work; a large garden to the east, in which is a pinery; also shrubberies, pieces of water, plantations, and other ornaments; a park-like sield before it to the south, with a gradual slope to the rivulet of Wansbeck, crossed by an elegant stone-bridge of three arches; an islet above it; the rivulet falling below it in broken murmurs from artisicial slopes of pebbles, forming a serpentine canal between them for a considerable space, in imitation of nature, beautifully rural.

From Wallington, a mile and a half to the fouthwest, on the fouthern banks of the Wansbeck, we have a view of Little Harle, one of the manours of the barony of Prudhow, of which it was held by John de Fenwick, 6 K. Edward VI (m). It came afterwards into the possession of the Aynsley's of Shaftoe (n); and is now the seat and lordship of Gawen Aynsley, Esq; who was high sheriff of Northumberland, 1749. His seat is built on to an antient Tower, well preserved, with neat apartments in it; great improvements about it by gardening, plantations, and enclosures.

We have also a view from Wallington of (m). Bp. Nicholson's Border-Laws, p. 274.

Johannes Fenwick de parva Harle, fuit seisstus de et in parva Harle, cum certis terris in Denum, North Middleton, ac de et in certis terris in Blaigdon, Hawick, et in villa de Gunnerton.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

(n) Williedmus Aynstey fuit seisitus de et in cap tali messuagio de East Shaftoe, et villa de West Shaftoe.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

Kirk-Harle, one of the manours of the barony of Bolbeck; which, with a mediety of the barony, and a mediety of Shotleyspire, belonged to Sir Robert de Harle, son of William de Harle, in the reign of K. Edward III, as was found by an inquisition, 38th of the same reign (o). It was afterwards possessed by the antient family of the Lorrains; by Robert Lorrain in the reigns of King Edward VI, Q. Mary, and part of Q. Elizabeth (p), who was infidioufly and cruelly flain near his own house by the banditti, called, Moss-troopers, for his manly and spirited endeavours to bring them to justice; a stone-pillar erected in memory of it, still standing: by Thomas Lorrain, his fon and heir, a firm and zealous friend to K. Charles I (q); who died, 24th October, 1 K. Charles II, at the age of 35, and was interred in the fouth isle of St. Nicholas's church in Newcastle upon Tyne: by his son, Thomas Lorrain, who was created a baronet, 26th September, 16 K. Charles II, 1664. He married Grace the eldest daughter of Sir William Fenwick, of Wallington, Bart. by whom he had fourteen fons, and five daughters. His fon and heir, Sir William Lorrain, Bart. first married the daughter of Sir John Laurence, by whom he had no iffue. He afterwards married the daughter of Richard (o) Robertus de Harle, miles, filius et hæres Willielmi, obiit seisitus de et in medietate baroniæ de Bolbeck, viz. Bywell, de et in medietate de Stysord, Brome-haugh, Shotley, villa de Heley, et manerio de Kirk-harle, &c.— Escaet. de anno 38 Ed. III.

Willielmus baro de Greystock, filius et hæres Radulphi, dedit Roberto de Harle, militi, medietatem de Shotleysbire in Escambium pro medietate villæ de Angerton.

Ex Autographo perantiquo.

- (p) Robertus Lorrain suit seisitus de et in manerio de Kirk Harle, cum gleba ecclesiæ ibidem, cum terris in Trewick.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.
- (q) Thomas Lorrain, filius Roberti, tenet de rege, ut de baronia de Bolbeck, per servicium milit. manerium sive capitale messuagium de Kirk Harle, ac unum messuagium sive tenem. in Great-laws, ac tertiam partem villæ de Trewhet, ac duo messuagia et terras ibidem.

Escaet, de anno 14 Car. I.

Smith, of Enderby, in Leicestershire, Esq; by whom he had two sons, and four daughters, viz. Richard, Charles, Grace, Dorothy, Mary; and Jane. His eldest son died in his life-time. His younger son and successor, Sir Charles, was high sheriff of Northumberland, 1743. He left four sons, now in their minority, the eldest, Sir William, succeeding him in honour and estate; and his second son to the seat and estate of Richard Smith, of Enderby, Esq; abovementioned. The whole parish of Kirk Harle belongs to Sir William, except Hawick, separated from it on all sides, of which he has only a part. His seat is in a low situation; rebuilt by his grandsather, Sir William; well, sheltered by tall forest-trees.

Four miles from Wallington, on the left hand of the road, is Bolham, a small, irregular villa, on a rising ground, which was the barony of Sir Walter de Bolham, Son of Sir Gilbert, to whom it was granted by K. John; and was possessed by his son, and John and James de Calcey, in the reign of K. Henry III (r); and by Alice de Bolham, and James de Calcey, and his wife Alice, I. K. Edward I (s). We find a mediety of it afterwards possessed by the antient family of the Raymes's; by Robert Raymes, high sheriff of Northumberland, 20, 21 K. Edward III (t); by William Ray-(r) Johannes et Jacobus de Calcey tenent de dom. rege in capite baroniam suam de Bolam, cum silio Walteri, silii Gilberti, de dono dom. regis Johanni, per servicium iii. seod. milit. Et omnes antecessores sui per eund. servicium tenuerunt post conquestum Anglia, et de illo tenemento nulla est alienatio, &c.

Testa de Nevill.

(s) Alicia de Bolam, Jacobus de Calcie, et Alicia uxor ejus, tenent in capite de dom. rege Bolam, cum suis membris, viz. Lighton, Roughlies, Burnton, Thornbrough, Cowpon, parvam Whittington, Ayden, cum castro, Belsowe, Bradford, Trewick, Denum, et Tunstall, per tria seoda militaria veteris seossamenti.

Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. 1,

(t) Escaet. de annis, 20, 21 Ed. III.

met, 16 K. Richard II (u), and 3 K. Henry IV (v); by Edward Raymes, 35 K. Henry VI (w); by Robert Raymes, a commissioner for enclosures upon the middle marches, 6 K. Edward VI (x), and high sheriff of Northumberland, 11 Q. Elizabeth (y); by Henry Raymes, Esq; 14 K. Charles I (z).

In the church of Bolham is the effigies of a Knight Templer cut in stone, in the usual habit and attitude. At a small distance from the villa is the Campus sceleratus, called, Gallow-hill, used by the barons for the execution of criminals, before the Furca, or power of hanging, was taken from them.

There is a square piece of ground in the villa with a double trench; in length 120 yards, and in breath 80; a raised portway leading to it. It was the keep or fort for the security of the town, which tradition says was antiently so large, that it consisted of 200 houses, slated.

- (u) Escaet, de anno 16 Ric. II.
- (v.) _____ 3 Hen. IV. n. 21.
- (w) _____ 35 Hen, VI.
- (x) Bp. Nicholfon's Border-Laws, p. 332.

Robertus Raymes fuit seisitus de et in medietate manerii de Bolam, cum villa, et de et in Shortstat, South Middleton, cum medietate de Aydon, cum castro, L. Witton, et certis terris in Hawkwell, et Stamfordham.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliz.

- (y) Escaet. de anno 11 Eliz.
- (x) Henricus Raymes, arm. consanguineus et hæres Roberti, tenet in capite unum capitale messuagium, vocat. Shortssat, ac duo messuagia et terras ibidem, ac medietatem manerii de Aydon, cum castro, et sex messuagia et terras ibidem.

  Escaet. de anno 14 Car. I.

On Bolham-moor, the Roman caufway, a branch of the Heremanfireet, is very fair; nine feet broad, and raifed near a foot above the common level of the ground. By the fide of it is a cespitious mount, with two upright stone-columns; funeral and relious memorials.

On the north-east side of the same moor, is a rock trenched round, with foundations of buildings.

On the right hand of the road, near Shortflat, we have a view of Cap-Heaton (a), the feat and manour of the antient family of the Swinburns; of Sir William Swinburn, 12 K. Henry VI (b), whose ancestor, Sir Thomas Swinburn, with Lord Berkley, and Henry May, Esq; took fourteen French ships carrying provisions and stores to their sleet in Milsord harbour, 6 K. Henry IV, 1405 (c): of Sir John Swinburn, 4 K. Edward IV (d); of Sir John Swinburn, a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 1 Q. Mary, 1554 (e); of Sir Thomas Swinburn, 10 Q. Elizabeth (f), high sheriss of Northum-

- (a) Cap Heaton.
  Great Heaton.
  Heaton Cassle.
  - (b) Escaet. de anno 12 Hen. VI. Fuller's Worthies, p. 310.
  - (c) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 531.

(d) Escaet. de anno 4 Ed. IV.

- (e) Browne Willis.
- (f) Thomas Swinburn, miles, fuit seisitus de et in manerio de Cap-Heaton, White-House, Slaterford, tertia parte de Brenkley, medietate de Chollerton, cum terris in Haughton, et Bowson, ac in villa de Ingram.

  Escaet. de anno 10 Esca.

berland, 4 K. Charles I (g); of William Swinburn, Efg; 14 K. Charles I. (b), whose estate was sequestred by the parliament; of his son, Sir John Swinburn, created a baronet, 27th September, 12 K. Charles II, 1660. He married Isabell the daughter of Sir Henry Lawfon, of Brough, in Yorkshire, Bart. by whom he had thirty children, eighteen of whom lived to be men and women. His fon, Sir John Swinburn, Bart, married Mary the daughter of Anthony Englefield, Esq; of Whitenights, near Reading, in Berkshire. His eldest son, Sir John Swinburn, Bart, died unmarried, in April, 1762; and was fucceeded by his brother, the prefent Sir Edward Swinburn, Bart. His feat is modern and handsome, built about the year 1668; the former feat being an old castle, a fair building, according to Leland (i), moted round. Before the fouth front is a grafs-lawn, and a large park-like enclosure, with fmall clumps of forest-trees, the spire of the tempiato at Belfay appearing through them from one view, and the precipice and villa of Harnham from another.

In the time of Sir John Swinburn, Bart. father of the late Sir John, some Roman facra and coins were found by his labourers in making a cast for a hedge in a lane near his seat, called Silver-Escaet, de anno 14 Can. I.

See Edlingham-castle.

(g) Escaet. de anno 4 Car. I.

militare, maneria de Chollerton et Cap-Heaton, et Grange de White-House juxta Cap Heaton: ac tenet in capite per service milit. divers. hamlett. messuag. terras, et tenem. in Tynedale, vocat. Haughton, et Haughton-Strother, Rushburn, Edburn, Leop heath, Otterstanley, Buteland, Goston, Driden; ac tenet de rege, ut de manerio de Mitsord, per service milit. diversa messuag. terras, et tenem. in Brenkley; ac tenet in capite per service milit. diversa messuag. terras, et tenem. in Lowick, et Bradford, justa Belsow.

(i) Lel. Itin. vol. vii. p. 61.

536 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

lane, from that discovery. They secreted all the coins, and sold them. The sacra, or sacrificing vessels, were of silver. They sold most of these likewise, after breaking the bottoms out of some, and the handles and ornaments off others. They presented these following to Sir John, now in the possession of Sir Edward.

- 1. A Sympalum, weighing 26 ounces.
- 2. The bottoms of three others; one weighing a little more than a pound, the other half a pound.
- 3. The handles of three more, with beautiful figures in relief. and gilt. Upon one is like the buft of a Roman emperor; two fmaller figures on each fide, one a fhepherd holding a crook in his left hand, two or three sheep lying by his side; the other refembles a poor man looking towards the emperor in a supplicatory attitude, his body bending, and refting upon a ftaff, feemingly with both hands, with fomething like a bundle on his back. Below, on the middle of the handle, is a winged Mercury, in a fitting posture, with a Caduceus in his right hand, his left inclining on a bench or feat, grafping fomething like a ball. with a cock under him, in the attitude of crowing. At the bottom are two other deities, standing; one a Diana, in a loose robe, holding a spear in her right hand, a dog looking up in her face, her left hand resting on her hip; the other is a Silenus. naked to the feet, holding a bunch of grapes in his right hand. and a nymphea or water lilly in his left, with a canthera or jolly flaggon by him, fwelling with the grape at the brim.

On another handle are the figures of three animals flain for facrifice; one a lion, another a flag, and a third a wild boar.

On the third handle is the figure of a priestess before an altar facrificing, holding incense in her right hand, and a Thyrsus in her left; above her head, is like the head of a bearded emperor, and at the bottom two other smaller figures.

- 4. Part of a handle, whereon is a figure of Mars, in armour; and below, a Flamen before the altar of a temple in a grove facrificing; gilt, and in relief.
  - 5. A figure of Hercules and Anteus wresling-Herculis Antæum procul a tellure tenentis (i).

finely executed; the lyon's skin and club lying by them, on the left hand.

6. A Neptune, naked to the waist, in a reclining posture, holding his trident in his right hand, and an anchor in his left.

The lane, in which these antiquities were found, is only about a mile from the Roman causway. They seem by the workmanship to be as antient as the time of Agricola, who made the grand roads in Britain, and in whose time the Romans were beards, as expressed in the two sigures; it not being the custom for that polite people to wear any from the 454 year of the city till the emperor Hadrian (k). The Roman Hercules, and his two rival heroes in gymnastic feats, Theseus and Perithous, are set in no very favourable light by the virtuous Mantuan, who represents them as trying their strength in Pluto's regions, and doing acts of violence there; intimating, that the spirit and temper men die in, attend them beyond the grave (1).

(1) Virg. Æn. vi. ver. 392, &c.

(i) Juv. Sat. iii.

(k) Mons. Spon's Researches curieus.

138 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

Near the Roman caufway, in fight from the road by Shortflat, and from Cap-Heaton, is Harnbanz, or Hernban, i. e. the hamlet by the military way; Harn or Hern being a contraction of the Roman Hermen, from Hermes. Mercurius, the god of travellers, and Custos Manium and highways; and of the Saxon Hereman or Hareman, a military road. It stands on an eminence, and has been a place of great strength and fecurity; a range of perpendicular rocks of rag-stone on one fide, and a morafs on the other; the entrance by a narrow declivity to the north, which in the memory of some persons now living had an iron-gate. The manour-house is on the fouth-west corner of the precipice, built on to an old tower. In the reign of K. Charles II, it was the feat of Colonel Philip Babington, governor of Berwick upon Tweed. He married Catharine the widow of Colonel George Ferwick, of Brinkburn (m). She was the eldest daughter of Sir Arthur Hezelrigge, of Nosely, in Leicestershire. Bart. by Dorothy Greenville, fifter to Robert Lord Brook. She was born at Brooke-house, in London, in November, 1635. She was interred in a lead-coffin, the next day after her death, in a vault cut out of the folid rock below the old tower, now belonging to Mr. Thomas Leighton, by whose favour I saw the sepulchral grot, in company with the Rev. Mr. George Fenwick, vicar of Bolham, 1760; most of the coffin then remaining, and some of the bones. On a pane of glass in the middle window of Mr. Leighton's house her name and the colonel's, with the date of the year, are written with a diamond.

> Philip Babington, Sept. 5, 1668. K. Babington, Sept. 7, 1668.

On another

How vain is the help of man.

K. Babington.
Omnia Vanitas.
June 9th, 1670.

It is faid, the was denied Christian burial by an excommunication for contempt of ecclefiaftical centure, which was the reason of her fepulture in the curious grot in the rock. The colonel furvived her, and marrying again, had feveral children; the youngest of whom he named after her, Catharine, who married a gentleman in York/hire, in whose possession is the pedigree of his family, wherein are portrayed the chiefs of it in full length, and among them Sir John Babington, one of the fix young knights chosen by K. Henry IV, when in France, to go upon a desperate enterprize, which by his own petition he undertook himself, using these words on his taking leave of the king, Foy est tous, i. e. Faith is all, brandishing his fword. Having performed it, beyond all human expectation, the king gave him for his crest, a flaming dragon's head, with this motto, Foy est tous, proceeding from its mouth; with which he stands distinguished among his familychieftains, in armour.

Two miles from Harnham, on the right hand of the road, near the 13th mile-stone, and in fight, is Belsay (n), the feat and villa of the antient family of the Middletons; of Sir John de Middleton, in the reign of K. Edward II, Belfo.

Belfo.
Belfo.
Belfay.

who being leagued with the king's enemies, the Scots, Sir Gilbert de Middleton, and Walter Selby, 1317, his lands were feized for the king's use, and given to John de Crombwell, and Thomas de Bambrough, clerk, 3d April, 12th year of his reign, 1319 (0). On the death of Crombwell, they were granted, to Sir John de Striveling, 12th June, 34 K. Edward III (p); who died, 2 K. Richard II (q).

This

- (0) Rex omnibus ad quos, &c. Salutem. Sciatis pro bono et laudabili servicio quod dilectus noster Johannes de Crombell nobis impendit, et ad recompensum centum marcarum terræ per ann. quas sibi promissimus providere nuper de assensu prælatorum, comitum, baronum, et aliorum pro cura de regno nostro nobiscum in ultimo parliamento nostro apud Eboracum existent, dediffimus et concessimus pro nobis et hæredibus nostris prædicto Johanni manerium de Burnton in parochia de Emeldon, cum medietate villæ de Preston, cum pertinentibus, in. comit. Northumbr. et medietatem villæ de Belfow, in eodem comit. quæ fuerunt Johannis de Middleton; et que ad manum escaetoris nostri per foriscum ipsius Johannis de Middleton, pro eo, quod Scotis inimicis et rebellis nostris, contra nos, et fidem nostram, adhæsit, devenerunt, habend, et tenend, prædicto Johanni, et hæredibus suis masculis de corpore suo legitime procreatis, de capitalibus dominicis feodorum illorum per eadem fervicia, per quæ manerium et medietates prædictæ, cum pertinentibus, antig; ad manum nostrum per foriscum prædicti %bannis de Middleton, ut præmittitur, devenerunt, tenebantur, in perpetuum, falvire cujuflibet. Et si idem Jolannes de Crombwell sine hærede masculo de corpore suo legitime procreato obierit, tunc manerium et medietates prædicae, cum pertinentibus, ad nos et hæredibus nostris integre reverterentur. In cujus, &c. Teste rege apud Eboracum, 3 die Aprilis per ipsum regem, Ed. II. Anno regni 12. Pat. 12 Ed. II. p. 2. m. 16.
- (p) Rex omnibus ad quos, &c. Salutem. Sciatis quod cum nobis 8vo die Octobris, anno regni nostri Angliæ nono, pro bono servicio quod dilectus et sidelis nostra Johannes de Strivelin nobis impenderat, concessimus pro nobis et hæredibus nostris maneria de Belsow et Nèw-lands, cum pertinentibus, ac omnes alias terras et tenementa, et redditus, cum pertinen. in Belsow, Burnton, Preston, Warnham, et villa Novi Castri super Tynam, ac alibi in comit. Northumbr. quæ suerunt Johannis de Middleton, qui contra dom. Eduardum nuper regem Angliæ patiem nostrum Scotis inimicis ipsius patris nostri adhæsit, et quæ Johannes de Crombwell, et Thomas de Bambrough, clericus, tenuerunt ad terminum vitæ corum, ex concessione ipsius patris nostri, quæ etiam post mortem ejusdem Johannis de Crombwell et Thomae de Bambrough, ad nos, et hæredibus nostris reverti debuerunt, præsato Johanni de Strivelin et hæredibus suis remanerent in perpetuum, ut in litteris nostris patentibus inde consectis plenius continetur,

This villa and other lands were afterwards restored to the family, and were possessed by Sir John de Middleton in the reign of K. Henry V, who was infeossed in the manour and villa of Burnton, near Bumbrough, &c. conjunctly with his wife Christian, as was found by an inquisition after their deaths, 10th of the same reign: by their son and heir, Sir John de Middleton, then upwards of forty years of age (r); and returned among the gentlemen of Northumberland per servicia debita et consueta in perpetuum, similiter cum exitibus, et proficuis inde a tempore mortis prædicti Johannis de Crombwell, qualitercunque præceptis. In cujus, &c. Teste rege apud Westmonast. 12 die Junii. Per ipsum regem et consilium.

Pat. 34 Ed. III. p. 2. m. 31.

(q) Juratores dicunt super facrum suum, viz. Robertus de Clavering, Chr. Robertus De la val, Chr. Alexander de Cresswell, &c. Quod fohannes de Striveling, Chr. obiit anno 2do regis Ricardi II, seisstus communiter seossatus cum uxore sua de manerio de Burnton, in comit. Northumbr. &c. quod quondam suit Johannis de Middleton, Chr. et quod tenetur de dom. comite Northumbr. per servic. militare.

Inquisit. ex bundello escaetr. Turri Lond. n. 49. capta apud Novum Castrum super Tynam Die Jovis in crastino S. Michaelis Archangeli, anno 2do regis Ricardi II, coram Gilberto de Curwen, escaetr. dom. regis in com. Northumbr. Cumbr. et Westmorl.

(r) Dicunt juratores super sacrum suum, viz. Robertus Liste, Chr. Johannes de Whitsield, Nicholaus Turpin, Simon de Weltden, et Adam de Killingworth, Quod Christiana, nuper uxon Johannis de Middleton, militis, defuncti, tenuit die quo obiit communiter seossaa, nuper uxon dicto Johanne, nuper viro suo, manerium et villam de Burnton, juxta Bambrough in comit. Northumbr. et advocationem cantariæ capellæ dicti manerii, et servicium Roberti Herbottle, qui Robertus tenet in dicto manerio iv messuage. et iv terras husband. eisdem messuagiis pertinentes in villa de Presson, juxta Doxford, pro homagio, sidelitate, et secta curiæ dicti manerii de Burnton, de tribus septimanis in tres septimas, et per redditus xii d. per ann. et per servicium molendi omnimodo blada dictis terris crescentia ad molendinum de Burnton, ac reparandi et sustentandi dictum molendinum quoties et quando necesse sueria portione dictarum terrarum sicut alii tenentes ibidem tenentur reparare secundum tenorem certarum terrarum inde consectarum: Et servicium Willielmi Heron, de Whittingham, qui tenet de dicto manerio de Burnton unum tenementum in Presson, et unam terram husband. cum perti-berland by the commissioners, 12 K. Henry VI (s): by Sir John de Middleton, high sheriss of Northumberland, 1 K. Edward IV (t), and a representative for it in parliament, 12th of the same reign: by Thomas Middleton, a commissioner for enclosures upon the middle marches, 6 K. Edward VI (u); by Robert Middleton, 10 Q. Elizabeth (v); by Thomas Middleton, one of the parliament-commissioners for sequestring lands in Northumberland, 19 K. Charles I, 1643 (w); by Sir William Middleton, created a baronet, 24th October, 14 K. Charles II, 1662; mentioned by bishop Kennet for his kindness to a non-conforming minister at the restoration, Mr. Calvert, A. M. of Clare-Hall, in Cambridge, whom he made his

nen. eidem tenemento ibidem pertinen. pro homagio, fidelitate, et secta curiæ, ut prædicietur, et per redditus iii d. per ann. Et servicium molendi, et reparandi, ut prædicium est: Et servicium Henrici Heron, militis, desuncti, qui tenet de dicto manerio unum tenementum ibidem in Presson per servicium, et pro redditu iii d. per annum. Et servicium Johannis de Horsley, qui tenet villam de Scranwood, cum pertinentibus, in dicto manerio de Burnton, per servicium solvendi inde per annum iii s. iv d. Et dictum manerium de Burnton, cum suis pertinentibus, tenentur de Henrico comite Northumbr. ut de dominico suo de Alnwick; et valent per annum, his diebus, xl s. et non amplius propter destructionem Scctorum, et sterilitatem patriæ. Et dicunt quod Johannes Middleton, miles, est hæres propinquior et silius dictorum, Jahannis Middleton, militis, desuncti, et Christianæ uxoris ejus, et est ætatis lx anno et amplius.

Inquisit. ex bundello escaetr. Turri Lond. n. 54. capta apud castrum dom. regis de Novo Castro super Tynam, in comit. Northumbr. Die Jovis proxime post sestum Dominicæ in Ramis Palmarum, anno 10 regis Heurici V.

(s) Fuller's Worthies, p. 310.

- (t) Escaet. de anno I Ed. IV.
- (u) Bp. Nichalfon's Border-Laws, p. 332.
- (v) Robertus Middleton, arm. fuit seisitus de et in manerio de Belsow, Harechester law, parva Swinburn, medietate villæ de Bradford, cum medietate parsonagii de Mitsord.

Escaet. de anno 10 Eliza

(w) Parliament. Hift. of Engl. vol. xii. p. 233.

Chaplain, and tutor to his only son, after the death of Sir William Strickland, of Boynton, in whose family he had been chaplain and tutor from the time of his leaving his parish of Topcliffe, in York shire, till his coming to Sir William (x): by his son, Sir John Middleton, Bart. high sheriff of Northumberland, 10 Q. Ann, 1711; by the late Sir William Middleton, Bart. who represented Northumberland in six parliaments, and was one of the oldest members of the house of commons at the time of his death, 1 October, 1757; by the present Sir John Lambart Middleton, Bart.

Sir John is named Lambart from his mother, Frances Lambart (y), daughter of John Lambart, of Calton, in Yorkshire, Esq; descended from William Lambart, who married Gundred, grand-daughter to K. William I, widow to Roger Beaumont, Earl of Warwick, of the same name with her mother, wife to William count de Warren, whom the king enriched with many seigniories. This Lady, of the blood royal, was mother both to Walleron Earl of Warwick, and to Henry de Lambart, standard-bearer to K. Henry II, A. D. 1167; between whom and a Scotch knight, Sir Alexander Olysard, some difference arising, to be decided in the usual way, by combat, the King of Scots, by his royal interposition and favour, effected a reconciliation, on the request of K. Henry (z). He mar(x) Bp. Kennet's Hist. Regist. p. 899.

(y) Lambart. Lambert. Lambard. Lamberd.

(2) Rex Scotias universia in Christo ecclesias fidelibus, falutem: Sciant omnes ad quos literas istas pervenient, quod anno ab Incarnatione Domini, MCLXVII°. in prefentia mea, et venerabilium virorum, clericorum, et laicorum apud Stryvelyn, talis facta

ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

544

married Alice, fifter to William Maundeville, Earl of Essex, by whom he had John Lambart, Esq; who was presented with a very considerable estate by his uncle, the Earl, at Skipton, in Yorkshire (a), afterwards the seat of the family till their removal to Calton. He was father to Sir Edmund Lambert, Knt. and to Thomas Lambart, sheriff of London, 7 K. Henry III, 1213; and grandfather to Edmund Lambart, Esq; who married into the family of Calverley, of Calverley in Yorkshire, lately the seat and estate of Sir Walter Calverley, Bart. and of his son, Sir Walter Calverley Blacket, of Wallington, in this county, Bart.

est compositio inter Henricum de Lambart legatum ab Anglia, et Alexandrum de Olysard, militem, quos ad judicium sinaliter per me siendum Henricus rex Anglia totaliter referebat in causa duellii ipsis concessi per marischalsum Anglia proprie quasdam accusationes per unum adversus alterum habitas, et sidei interpositione utrinque sirmata, scilicet, quod coram me veniet uterque eorum armatus, paratus ad congressium, et me suadente totam calumniam quam quisque habebat adversus alterum confessim deponet et remittet ex corde, et dignitas utriusque salva erit, et jungent dextras, et super evangelia jurabunt se in æternam suturos veros amicos, salvo ossicio quod seorsim gerunt adversus regem suum. Et omnia hæc sacta sunt in præsentia mea. His testibus, Ingelram episcopo Glascuensi, Nicholao Cancellario, Richardo capellano, David de Olysard, Willielmo Dolepen, Thoma de Maundevill, Willielmo de Latimer, Petro de Colvill, Bernardo silio Briani, Rogero Camerario, Alexandro de Nevill, et multis aliis, Scotis et Anglis.

(a) Omnibus sanctæ patribus ecclesiæ filiis has literas visuris et audituris Willichmus de Maundevill, comes de Essex, salutem in Domino. Novit universitas vestra pio amoris et cognationis intuitu concessisse et hac præsenti carta mea confirmasse Johanni de Lambart, qui suit filius Henrici de Lambart, et Aliciæ, sororis meæ, et hæredibus suis, omnia illa tenementa quæ Galfridus de Mandevill, comes, frater meus, eis dedit in villis de Everwyke, Skipton, et Broughton, in terris, hominibus, in redditibus, in pratis, in mariscis, in passuris, in warrenis, et in aquis, et omnibus aliis rebus, locis, et libertatibus, infra villas et extra cum liberis introitibus et exitibus, et omnibus aliis pertinentibus, sicut carta fratris mei, comitis, testatur: habenda et tenenda libere, solute, et quiete ab omnibus servitiis, et exactionibus. Et ut hæc mea concessio et cartæ confirmatio sirma sit et stabilita, presentem paginam sigilli mei munimine corroboravi. Testibus his, Henrico de Lambart, Waltero de Presson, Radulpho Ansvill, Jacobo de Cane, Nigello de Fridmansell, Fuscono de Eure, Galfrido de Lister, Petro de Coco, et aliis.

In 8th K. Henry IV, John Lambart was appointed fenefcal or furveyor general of all the honours, lordships and castles, of the right honourable Henry de Bellomonte, Lord Folkingham, within the counties of York and Lincoln (b).

John Lambart was in great credit with K. Henry VIII, and employed by him on feveral occasions; was appointed secretary to the embassy of the Earl of Southampton into Scotland, and soon after made secretary to the council established in the North parts (c).

There

- (b) Sciant præsentes et suturi nos Henricus de Bellomonte dominus de Folkingham, dedisse et hac præsenti carta mea consirmasse Jehanni Lambart, de Presson, in com. Ebor. consanguineo meo, officium senescalli mei omnium maneriorum, dominiorum, et castellorum nostrorum infra comitat. Lincoln. et Ebor. una cum seodo sex marcarum communiter solut. pro com. Ebor. et decem marcarum pro com. Lincoln. percipiend. annuatim et proficuis et perquisitis curiæ ibidem crescent. habend. et tenend. prædictum officium et seoda sex marcarum, et decem marcarum domino Johanni de Lambart, et assignatis suis, durante vita ipsius Johannis. In cujus rei testimonium huic præsenti cartæ sigillum nostrum appositimus. His testibus, Johanne Tame, Willielmo Wikes, militibus, Henrico Wikes silio ejus, Thoma Clagmond, Albino de Enderby, Willielmo Mitchell de Feiskney, Johanne Williams, et multis a iis, anno regni regis Henrici IV, post conquestum 8vo. in sesto Translationis S. Thomæ Martiris.— MS. penes J. L. Middleton, baronettum, de Belsay.
  - (c) The copies of certain letters of K. Henry VIII, to John Lambart, fon of Christopher.

    Ms. in the possession of Sir John Lambert Middleton, Bart.

Signed, Henry Rx.

Forasmuch as we fend this bearer John Lambart, Gent. (son of Christoin paper, and figned with the Prvy Seal.

for displayed affaires into sundrye partes of this owne realme, owre pleafure and high comandment is that immediatelie upon the fight hereof, ye fee him furnished from tyme to tyme of sufficient and able horses for his journey at pryce reafonable, when and as often as he shall have cause, as yowe and every of yowe will answer for the contrary at yowre most extreme perills. givin under our signet at owre castell of Wyndsor the 20th day of october, the 27th yeare of our reynge.

To all and fingular owie Mayors, Bayliffs, Sheriffs, and Constables, and to all other officers, Ministers, and Subjects, and to every of them.

Vol. H

ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

There were four of the family honoured with the Order of Knighthood; Sir Edmond, of Skipton, above-mentioned, in the reign.

A Letter figned by the King and directed, both without and with the Subscription.

¥46

Signed Henry Rx.

We greet vowe well; lettinge vowe weete that whereas we have directed and fent with others owre right truftie and entyrely beloved cofyn and counfellor the earle of Southampton to owre towne of Newcostle upon Type, there to meete and treate with certaine commissioners thyther to be fent from the King of Scotland our nephewe, for and touchinge an universal peace to be concluded between us, and owre fayd Nephewe, and both our realms for ever. Owre pleafure and high commandment is, that upon his receit hereof yowe prefently furnish vowrefelfe to make yowre repayre to owre layde colyn of Southampton, so soon as yowe may underftand of his beyng at Yorke in his way thitherwards, thenceforth to be further employed as yowe shall be immediately ecommanded by us, or directed by him, wherein we will vowe to use yowre best endeavour and diligence, whereof we are well persuaded already, and as yowe tender owre fervice, and hereof fayle ye not, as yowe will answer the contrary. Given at owre honour of Hampton Courte the tenth day of June in the xxxviiith year of owre reigne.

Directed on the outfide and the inside.

To owre trustee and welle beloved John Lambart, Gent. sonne of Christopher Lambart, of Skipton.

Wee greete you well; lettinge yowe weete that forasmuche as owre right

A Mandate, directed by a Subscription, ut infra.

Signed Henry Rx. by the Kinge.

trustee and well beloved cofyn and counsellor the Earl of Southampton is departed this lyfe in his journey into Scotland, (upon whose foule Ihefu have mercye!) and that dyvers and fundrie instructions, letters, directions, papers, wrytings. and other notes touching owre fervice, wherein owre faide cofyn and counfellor was lately there, and into the north parts of our realm ymployed, whereby havinge put into yowre handes, and there lefte, and are so still remayning. Owre pleasure and high commandment is, that upon the fight hereof yowe make yowre ymmediate repaire unto us, bringing with yowe all the saide instructions, letters, directions, papers, wrytings, and other notes whatfoever, received either from us or from him touchinge that fervice to be disposed of, at owre pleasure. And hereof fayle ye not at yowre perill. Dated at owre pallace of Westminster the axviith daye of October, in the axxivth yeare of owre revgne.

> To owre well beloved John Lambart, Gent. sonne of Christopher Lambart, of Skipton.

ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND, 547

reign of K. Henry III; Sir John Lambart, of Skipton, whose daughter, Susanna, married Henry de Wake, third son to Sir Adam de Wake, Knt. near Pomfret; Sir Thomas his second son; another Sir Thomas of Old Town in this county, son to Alan Lambart, of Skipton, Esq; whose second son, Godfrey, of Long Presson, married Allen, cousin to Sir John Clifford, Lord Clifford, in the reign of K. Henry IV, great grandmother to Thomas Lambart, of Skipton, Esq; who married Ellen daughter and heir of Thomas Wykes, of Flitby, Esq; with whom he had a considerable estate both in Craven and Somersetshire, an award being made to compel her father to approve her marriage, done without his confent (d).

John

A mandate Signed Henry Rx. by the King. We greete yowe well; lettinge yowe weete that forasmuch as we in paper directed, ut infra, and sealed have conceived good lykinge of our truftie and well beloved John with the Signet. Lambart, Gent. (son of Christopher Lambart, of Skipton) of whose readiness and promptness in service we have had private knowledge for certayne years paste. And whereas we have received divers complaints agaynst our nowe secretarye of owre counfell established in the north partes. Owre pleasure and high commandment is owre sayde former secretarye to be removed, and that yowe see the sayde John Lambart placed in that office, and that you admit and receive him as our fecretarye of owre counfell in the north partes by these presents so to continewe at owre pleasure, and untill you receive further commandment from us; and hereof we will yowe not to fayle. Given under owre fignet, at owre pallace of Westminster the xxvth daye of November in the xxxvth yeare of owre reigne.

To owre right trustie and entyrely beloved cosyn and counsellor Charles Duke of Suffelk owre lyevetenant in the north partes, and to our counsel there established.

(d) Deed of Award, viz.

To all christen people to whom this present writings shall come, se, rede, or hearde. For-assuch as ther has been certaine variance, debate, and strife, had and moved betwixt Thomas Lambart of Skipton, Gent. sonn of John Lambart of Presson, deceased, and Thomas Wikes of Flitby, Gent. for and touching the weddings of Ellen the only daughter of the said Thomas Wikes, which the said Thomas Lambart wedded at kirk dore without his love and his leave gitten or asken before; for the which variance and strife hath the said parties standen bounden

A 2 2 2 2

eyther

348 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

John Lambart, Esq; the famous general in the parliament-army, was of this antient family, who married Frances the daughter of Sir William Lister, of Thornton, in Craven, and was great grand-stather to Sir John Middleton of Belsay. In the geneological table done at the general's expence, are many curious portraits and drawings of seals of their progenitors; a portrait of K. William Is, of William Count de Warren, his son-in-law; of Roger Beaumont Earl of Warwick, and of Gundred his countess; of Henry Lambart, standard-bearer to K. Henry II; of the same Henry, and Sir Alexander Olysard, both in armour, and on horseback, equipped for a duel; of three young gentlemen, brothers, Charles, William, and Samuel, grandsons to Sir Edward Dymocke, to whom the court of either to other to fulfill and holde the award and doome of hus Richard Cockfon, the vicar of the kirk of Batoley, William Blackburne, canon of Bolton, William Dawfon, prest, and Themas Ferrand, Gent. Whereupon we awarde, ordaine, and dome, the faid parties to ba accorded and frendful for evermore, and that the faid Thomas Lambart shall for evermore do knowledge to the faid Thomas Wikes as his fadder in lawe, and shall geve as good a childes part to little Christer his fonn, gitten by the said Ellen in lawful wedlock, as to his tother fonnes called John and gitten and born by his first wyfe in that wedlock, and shall make the faid Christopher his heire (if his brother die) before the fisters that are of the hale. blood to the alder barnes, and the faid Eilen shall go to Flitby to alde Mrs. Wikes her grandam, and to her fader and moder, and ask all their bleffinge and forgevenesse for God and . our Lady sake, and they shall forgeve her, and speake to her afterwards as to their awne. barne. And we ordaine, awarde, and dome also as follows, that the faid Thomas Wikes. shall gove to his daughter Ellen no other childes part than he vontis meet, but if his sonn Henry Wikes do die before him, the faid Ellen and her barnes stall be heires, and he shall charge his faid fonn Harry uppon his bleffinge never to hinder this awarde. And if Harry do live longer than his fadir, the fadir shall give his land in Flitby, (alias Fiashby) and Skipton to his fonn Thomas Lambart, or Christer his grandbarne, and bid Harry that he shall not make away that in Somerfetshire. And we charge them on God's name to fulfill all this upon payneof curses of haly kyrke. In witnesse of this our awarde, we the said Richard Cockson, William Blackburne, William Dowfon, and Thomas Ferrand, have fett our feales gyfven the xivthdaye of February in the yeere of the reigne of Kinge Edward the Fourth, the one and twentieth.

claims adjudged the office of the king's champion, at the coronation of K. Charles II, on St. George's day, 23d April, 1661, in right of his manour of Scrivelfby, in the county of Lincoln (e). The painting is neat, and the colours well preserved; the descent clear and perspicuous, attested by Camden, St. George, Segar, and Treswell, of the college of arms.

The villa of Belfay stands on the slope of a hill; the family-seat built on to an old tower; a domestic chapel among a clump of trees in a field to the fouth-east.

From the 12th mile-stone, on the left hand of the road, we have a view of Whalton, a pleasant villa, which was the barony of Walter Fitz William; also of Robert de Crammavill, from whom it was taken together with the barony of Warkworth, 6 K. John, and both given to Roger Fitz Roger, by whom it was possessed in the reign of K. Henry III (f), and by his son John Fitz Robert, Lord Clavering, I.K.

MS. penes J. L. Middleton, de Belfay, baronettum.

(e) Antiqua familia Lambartorum per multas propagines et diversas utriusque fortunæ vicissitudinibus, a Willielmo augusto rege usque in hunc diem deducta, iniquis aliquando temporum sluctibus jactata et continuata, præsertim in agro Eboracensi, una cum caolescentium et conjugium insigniis gentilitiis adornata, usque ad Thoman Lambart, armigerum, qui jam degit in agro Lincolniensi, cui nupsit Susanna silia Edvardi Dymocke, equitis aurati, multis nominibus viri ornatissimi, ex qua suscepit divina bonitate tres silios, Carolum, Willielmum, et Samuelem, quos sæciales nostri jure lucido, et ordine perspicaci, genus suum posse et debere reserre ad numerosam multitudinem comituum, baronum, heroum nobilium, equitumque auratorum, clarissimæ dignitatis tam unius quam alterius prosapiæ, genuina fatentur scriê, et stemmatis perquam splendidi clypeis antiquissimis testificantur, tandemque obsignatis tabulis hæc omnia palam demonstrare rogati, æquum et operæ pretium ducunt.

(f) Rot. Clauf. de anno 6 Joh. m. 14. Vid. Warkworth.

1 K. Edward I (g). We afterwards find it in the possession of the Scropes of Masham; of Sir Henry le Scrope, 20 K. Edward III (h); of Sir Stephen le Scrope, in the reign of K. Richard II; of Sir Henry le Scrope, 8 K. Henry IV (i); of Sir John le Scrope in the reign of K. Henry V; of Sir Thomas le Scrope, his son and heir, 25 K. Henry VI (k). It stands on the slope of a hill; a beautiful prospect from it into the vale below.

A mile fouth from Walton, in fight also from the 12th milestone, on the left hand, is Ogle-Cafile, which was the feat and manour of the antient family of the Ogles; of Humphrey de Ogle at the conquest by K. William I, confirmed to him with all its antient privileges by Walter

- (f) Robertus, filius Rogeri, tenet in capite de dom. rege baroniam de Whalton per servicium trium seodorum milit. quam dom. rex Johannes ei dedit, et cum carta sua confirmavit; et omnes antecessores sui per eund. servic. tenuerunt. Ac de illo tenemento nulla est alienatio aut donatio, unde dom. rex minus habeat de servicio suo.

  Testa de Nevill.
- (g) Johannes, filius Roberti, tenet in capite de dom. rege Whalton, cum suis membris, viz. Riplington, Newham, et Huntlawe, Denton, Newbiggen super mare, Edington, South Gosforth, Fawdon, Burroden, Ogle, Horton cum Stickley et Hartford membr. Woodrington, Bruntone et Druridge, membris de Woodrington, per tria seoda militaria, de veteri seossamento.

Escaet, de anno 1 Ed. I.

- (b) Henricus le Scrope, filius et hæres Galfridi le Scrope, dat xv k. pro relievo suo de manerio de Whalton, cum pertinentibus, in comit. Northumbr. Trin. Fin. anno 20 Ed. III.
- (i) Henricus le Scrope, Chr. filius et hæres Stephani le Scrope de Masham, Chr. tenet de dom. rege in capite manerium de Whalton et Newham, cum pertinen. in comit. Northumbr. per servicium trium seod. milit.

  Rot. Mich. Fin. anno 8 Hen. VI.
- (k) Thomas le Scrope, filius et hæres Johannis le Scrope, de Masham, miles, tenet de rege in capite manerium de Whalton, in comit. Northumbr. de rege in capite.

Rot. Mich. Fin. anno a5 Hen. VL.

Fitz William, Baron of Whalton (1); of Thomas de Ogle, in part of the reign of K. Henry III (m), and I K. Edward I (n); of Sir Robert de Ogle, in the reign of K. Edward III. He married Eleanor the daughter and sole heir of Sir Robert Bertram, baron of Bothall; by which marriage those two antient houses were united. He was high bailiff of the dominion of Tynedale, as attested by his patent, bearing date 11 K. Edward III. He built the castle of Ogle by leave from the crown, and had also a grant of free warren (o). He was with the king at Stanhope park, 1327. He was also at the battle of Nevill's cross, 1346 (p). His brother, Sir Alexander Ogle, Knt. was slain, 29th K. Edward III, 1355, in defence of the castle of Berwick upon Tweed, of which he was captain (q). His Lady Eleanor, Baroness of Bothall, survived him, and married John de Hatsield (r). His grandson, Sir Robert de Ogle, by his son Sir Robert, succeeded him, and had the barony

(1) Walter Fitz William came into England with the Conqueror, who gave him the barony of Walton, and the faid Walter by his deed, without date, granted to Humphrey de Ogle all fuch lands and liberties as he or any of his predecessors had before the coming of the Normans into England.

From an antient pedigree at Bothall-Castle, transcribed by Robert Tresswell, Somerset-Herald, A. D. 1598, by the favour of Cuthbert Lord Ogle.

- (m) Certificat. Hugon. de Bolbeck, vicecom. Northumbr. Temp. Hen. III.
- (n) Thomas de Ogle tenet Ogle, et medietatem de Burreden, per feodum et dimidium feodi, veteris feoffamenti, baronia de Whalton.

  Escaet. de anno 1 Ed. I.
  - (0) Ex Rot. Cart. de anno 15 Ed. III. m. 16.
  - (p) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 375.
  - (q) See Berwick.
  - (r) Rot. Paschæ Fin. anno 40 Ed. III.

of Heppell, as was found by an inquifition, 47 K. Edward III (1). The two baronies and castles were possessed by his posterity for many generations; by Sir Robert de Ogle, who married Joanna the voungest daughter and coheir of Sir Alan de Heton, of Elingham, Knt. as was found by an inquisition, 21 K. Richard II (t); by Sir Robert de Ogle, high sheriff of Northumberland, 16 K. Henry VI (u). by Sir Robert Lord Ogle, who was fummoned to parliament, 1 K. Edward IV, by the stile and title of Baron Ogle, of Ogle; and married Habell the daughter and heir of Sir Alexander Kirkby, Knt. by Owen Lord Ogle, his brother, who was fummoned to parliament, I K. Richard III; and married Eleanor the daughter of Sir William Hilton, of Hilton-castle, in the Bishoprick of Durham: by Ralph Lord Ogle, who was fummoned to parliament, IK. Henry VIII; and married Margaret the daughter of Sir William Gascoigne, of Gawth:rp, in Yorkshire, Knt. and was at the battle of Brankston or Floddon-Field, 1513: by Robert Lord Ogle, who married Anne the daughter of Sir Thomas Lumley, of Lumley-Castle. in the Bishoprick of Durham: by Robert Lord Ogle, who first married Dorothy the daughter of Sir Henry Widdrington; and afterwards married Jane the daughter of Sir Cuthbert Ratcliff, of Cartington, Robertus Ogle, filius et hæres Roberti Ogle, militis, et Johanna uxor ejus, tenent manerium de Heppel, cum pertinentibus in comit. Northumbr. de rege in capite per servicium unius seodi milit. ac tertiam partem medietatis manerii de Lowick, cum pertinentibus in comit. prædicto de rege in capite, per servicium sextæ partis unius seodi militis.

Rot. Hillar. Fin. anno 4 Hen. VI.

(s) Escaet. de anno 47 Ed. III. Vid. Heppel.

(t) Vid. Elingham.

(u) Escaet de anno 16 Hen. VI.

(v); and was flain in an expedition against the Scots, with Sir Ralph Eure, warden of the east marches, at Halidon-Rigg, or Panyer-Hugh, 37 K. Henry VIII, 1545: by Robert Lord Ogle, who was fummoned to parliament, 1 Q. Mary, 1553; and married Fane the daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Maleverer, of Allerton, Knt. (w): by Cuthbert the feventh Lord Ogle, his brother, who was fummoned to parliament, 23 Q. Elizabeth. His lordship married Catharine the daughter and coheir of Sir Reginald Carnaby, Knt. by whom he had two daughters, Joanna and Catharine. Joanna married the honourable Edward Talbot, Esq; younger son to the Earl of Shrewsbury, a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 27, 28 Q. Elizabeth. She died without issue. Catharine married Sir Charles Cavendish, Knt. She was created baroness of Ogle. Her fon, Sir William, was raifed through all the degrees of the peerage till he was Duke of Newsaftle, for his exemplary virtues, and diffinguished loyalty to the throne. His baronies of Ogle, Bothall, and Heppell, &c. are now in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Portland (x). His castle of Ogle has been long in ruins; the fituation pleafant, on the fouth fide of the flow trout-stream of Blyth.

From the 10th mile-stone, on the left hand, we have a view of Kirkley (y), one of the manours of the barony of Mitford, of

(v) From an antient pedigree of the Ogles, of Ogle, in the custody of William Ogle, of Cawfey-Park, Esq.

(w) From the same pedigree, which in the account of the marriage of these two Lords differs from that given in the geneological table in Bothall-church.

(x) See Bothall.

(y) Kirklawe. Kirkley.

which it was held by the antient family of Eure (z), by presenting annually a barbed arrow on St. John Baptist's day at the court of Mitsord, if demanded. John de Eure aiding the Scots against K. Edward II, his lands were seised after his death by the crown, 35 K. Edward III, then in the possession of his son, Sir John de Eure (a). They were afterwards restored to his family, and possessed by Sir Ralph de Eure, a representative in parliament for Northumberland, 5 K. Richard II, with Adomar de Valence, Earl of Pembroke; who died, 10 K. Henry V (b): by his son, Sir William de Eure.

(z) Eure. Evre.

Evers.

(a) Ego Willielmus de Nesseield, escaetor dom: regis in comit. Eborac. et Northumbr. secundum tenorem brevis dom. regis Edvardi III, huic schedulo attachati, vobis certifico, quod inveni per inquisitionem coram me ex ossicio meo captam, Quod Johannes de Eure, desunctus, tensit in seodo die adhæsionis Scotis inimicis dom. Edwardi nuper regis Angliæ, manerium de Kirklawe, cum pertinentibus, simul cum quibusdam terris et tenementis in parva Berwick, Throple, Newton-Underwood, Mitsord, Benrigge, et Calverdon-Darreyne, cum pertinentibus, in dicto comit. Northumbr. una cum homagiis liberorum tenentium, et aliorum dicto cia, cum pertinentibus, in comit. Northumbr. valent per annum, omnibus exitibus, juxta verum valorem corum, quadraginea et duas libras, fex folidos, et fex denarios. Et quod Johannes de Eure, Chr. post mortem prædicti Johannis, patris sui, manerium, terras, tenementa, homagia, et servicia prædicta, cum pertinentibus, ingressus suit, et ca adhuc tenet. Ideo cæpi in manum dom. regis manerium, terras, tenementa, homagia et servicia prædicta, cum pertinentibus prædictis, et ea de causa adhuc in manu regis existunt.

manerio, et tenem. pertinen. quod quidem manerium, terræ, tenementa, homagia et servi-

Ex bundello certificat. Willielmi de Neffesield, in Turri Land. de anno 35 Ed. III. n. 112.

(b) Dicunt juratores super sacrum suum, viz. Johannes de Harle, Williehmus Bednell, Williehmus Bennet, Simon de Weltden, Thomas Hezelrigge de Swareland, Robertus Musgrave, Williehmus Carr, Johannes De ia vale, et alii, Quod Radulphus de Eure seisitus suit die quo obiit in dominico suo, ut de seodo, sibi et hæredibus suis, in perpetuum, de manerio de Kirklawe, villa de Berwick super Montem, manerio de Darres Hall, villa de Calverdon-Darres, et de vil-

Eure, high sheriff of Northumberland, 15 K. Henry VI(c); by Sir Ralph de Eure, high sheriff of Northumberland, 19 K. Henry VII(d). He was lord warden of the east marches, 28 K. Henry VIII; his power and authority eminent; the Scots, for twenty miles on the borders, paying him the utmost deference, and living in peace and order the whole time of his government. It is recorded of him, that before his appointment to it he defended the castle of Scarbrough with such valour and resolution for six weeks, that he preserved it from being taken by the northern rebels, with the help only of his friends, tenants, and servants, out of duty and affection, living for twenty days on bread and water.

He joined the English army at Leith, in Scotland, 36 K. Henry VIII, 1544, under the command of Edward Seimour, Earl of Hertford, with 5000 light horse, which laid waste all the country about Edenburgh for seven miles round, supplied the army with great store of cattle, and carried off many valuable things which they found concealed, belonging to the inhabitants of that city; the army at their departure burning the pier and the town of Leith to lis de Throple, Newton Underwood, et de quinta parte villæ de Benrigge, de parco et molendino de Mitsord; et quod dicta maneria, villæ, &c. tenentur de Henrico de Percy, de Atholl, Chr. ut de dominico suo de Mitsord, in socagio, viz. reddendo unam sagittam barbatam die Sancti Johannis Baptistæ, si petatur, pro omni servicio. Item dicunt quod prædictus Radulphus tenuit die quo obiit xii burgagia et octoginta acras terræ in Mitsord, quæ tenentur de prædicto Henrico de Percy, ut de dominico suo de Mitsord, in socagio. Et dicunt quod prædictus Radulphus obiit Die Martis proxime ante sestum Sancti Georgii, Martiris, ult. præterit. Et quod Willielmus de Eure, miles, silius prædicti Radulphi, est hæres ejus propinquior, et est ætat. xxvi anno, et amplius.

Inquisit. capta apud Morpeth Die Martis proxime ante festum Nativitatis Sancti Johannis Baptista, anno 10 Hen. V; ex bundello escaetr. Turri Lond. n. 28.

(e) Escaet. de anno 15 Hen. VI.

(d) ______ 19 Hen. VII.

the ground, and the most considerable castles and towns in their way to Berwick, with the loss only of forty men, entering that town, 18th May.

Sir Ralph burnt the town of Jedworth the same year; and reentering Scotland with 4000 men, 37 K. Henry VIII, 1545, was slain at Halidon-Rigg, or Panier-Hugh, with Lord Ogle, &c. being surrounded in a manner by the Scots under the command of the Earl of Arran; his death causing an universal forrow, his very enemies respecting him (e).

His fon, Sir William de Eure was raised to the peerage in the fame reign. He was deputy warden of the east marches, 6 K. Edward VI (f). He was one of the generals of the army sent against Scotland under the Earl of Sussex, 12 Q. Elizabeth, 1570, commanding the rereward. His successor, William Lord Eure, fucceeded Sir John Forster in the government of the middle marches. His Lordship finding himself abused by his officers whom he trusted, and that the thievish borderers did just what they pleased, and he could not tell how to help it, he obtained leave, on his sollicitation, to resign (g).

Kirkley has for some time been the lordship and seat of a branch of the noble family of Ogle, and is now in the possession.

Willielmus Dominus Eure fuit seisitus de et in manerio de Kirklawe, Berwick-bill, parva Callerton, Rotheley, Newton-Underwood, Edington, et medietate de Throcklawe, cum certis terris in Mitsord, et molendino aquatico ibidem, cum hamlet de Sturton.

Escaet, de anno 10 Eliz.

(e) Hol. Chron. vol. ii. p. 943; 962-3; 968.

(f) Bp. Nicholson's Border-Laws.

(e) Monmouth's Memoirs.

of the Rev. Dr. Newton Ogle, nephew to the late admiral Ogle, and fon-in-law to the right Revd. Dr. Thomas, bishop of Winchester.

A little beyond the 7th mile-stone is the villa of Pont-Eland, which from its name was thought by Camden to be the Roman town, Pons Ælii (b), since fixed by a late eminent antiquary at Newcastle upon Tyne (i). After the conquest it belonged to the Barons of Mitford, and was in the possession of Adomar de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, 10 K. Edward II (k). A peace was concluded at it between the two kingdoms of England and Scotland, 28 K. Henry III, 1244 (l); in which the prior of Tynemouth was a principal negotiator. It stands on the banks of the rivulet of Pont, in a low situation. The church is in the form of a cross.

(h) Camden's Brit. Edit. 1722. p. 855.

(i) Horsley.

(k) Dicunt juratores super sacrum suum, quod Adomarus de Valentia, comes Pembr. tenuit in dominico suo, ut de seodo, die quo obiit, manerium de Pont Eland, cum pertinentibus, quibusdam tenementis in Parva Eland, Claverdon, et Merdessen, quæ sunt de pertinentibus dicti manerii, de dom. rege in capite.

Item dicunt, quod est quidam parcus, cujus proficuus, ut in pastura, solebat valere per annum, tempore pacis vis. iv d. et modo nihil pro desectu animalium.

Et quod est ibidem unum molendinum aquaticum, et solebat valere per annum temporepacis x l. et modo non valet per annum nisi xxvi s. iv d.

Item, quod placita et perquifita curiæ in dicto manerio, et pertinen, folebant valere per annum in tempore pacis vi s. viii d. et modo nibil.

Et dicunt, quod Johannes de Hastings, ætat. xxx anno, Joanna uxor comitis de Atholl, ætat. xxvi anno, et Elizabetha Cumin, soror ejustiem Joannæ, ætat. xvi anno, sunt consanguin. et propinquiores hæredes prædicti Adomari.

Inquisit. capta apud Novum Castrum, 14 Sept. anno 10 Ed. II.

(1). Camden.

318 1

558 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

In the Lincoln-taxation, made about A. D. 1291, there is a valuation of the rectory of Pont Eland, wherein it is represented as a collegiate church; viz.

Pont-Eland rectoria - xxx l. x11 d.

Prebanda dom. Caroli de Bellomont in eadem xx11 l.

Prebenda Philippi de Wyleby in eadem (m) - xx l. xs.

At the west end of the church is a gallery. On the front is the following inscription in gold letters.

Mr. Richard Coates died January 3d, 1719.

And left his whole effects at or about 70 l. per ann. to the parish of Pont Island for a charity-school; the Rev. Mr. Byne, vicar of Pont Island, the Rev. Mr. Forster of St. John's in New-tastle, and Mr. Charles Clark, attorney in Newcastle, being (with their successors) left trustees for ever to see it justly applied.

On the fourth end of the gallery is another infcription in black letters.

Mrs. Barbara Coates built the school-house, and erected this gallery, at her own charge, after her husband's decease.

I am informed, that 27 l. per ann. is all that is applied to the use of this school; and that the late vicar and archdeacon, Dr. Robin-son, filed a bill in chancery against the trustees, who, after an expence of upwards of 50 l. dropt his suit; and gave it as his opinion, that the abuse could only be remedied by a commission of charitable uses, which might extend to the whole diocese.

On the north side of the chancel is a flat sepulchral stone over Cuthbert Ogle, of Kirkley, Esq. who died, 14th January, 1655.

Within the communion-rails, near the altar, is a flat funeral stone, of blue marble, with this inscription.

Sub hoc Marmore

Sitæ funt mortales Reliquiæ
Revdi Viri Henrici Byne, A. M. Coll.

Merton apud Oxonienser olim socii;
Hujus Ecclesiæ Parochialis de Ponteland modo Vicarii; Supremo tandem Die functi xxvIII°. Novembris Anno
Salutis humani MDCCXXXI°. Cujus
Memoriæ facrum hoc Monumentum posuit, Deslens.

A. B.

Near it is another with the following inscription.

Patris juxta cineres requiescit

Anna Byne,

Forma et indole spectata virgo.

Egregias natura dotes elegantiorum

Artium studio excoluit;

Docilis, ut vix didicisse videretur;

Adolescentulam dignitas matronalis,

Rusticantem decor aulicus,

Venustate celebrem rara modestia,

Quoquo vestigia slectebat, subsequebantur,

Sociarum virginum delicia et invidia major;

Dum ad apicem seeminea laudis sestinabat,

A.D. 1741.

560 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

Variolis oppressa mortales exuvias
Amabilis puella subtus deposuit,
Forma inviolabili renovanda.

Elizabetha tali forore haud indigna,
Funesti contagio confors ætat. anno 16th.

Juxta occubuit.

Dilectis fororibus

Isabella sævi morbi sola victrix,
Hortante matre mætissima,
Hoc saxum P.

By these two flat funeral-stones, there is also one with this inscription.

> Thomas Robinson, S. T. P. Hujus parochiæ per xxx annos vicarius, Prebendarius Peterburgensis, nec non Landavensis, Et Northumbriensis archidiachonus. Vividum fuit illi ingenium, Literis humanioribus tam probe excultum. Ut ad feria licet attentus negotia, Gratiis nihilominus litaret. Infirma a teneris valetudo. Aliis fibi defidiæ caufa. Illi nulla obstitit Quo minus sibi mandata munia Gnaviter obiret. Fidelis verbi minister. Impiger in pace confervanda justiciarius, Archidiachonus vigilatissimus, Adeo ut si majora erant credenda. Haud indignus videretur.

Quæ fupererant interea,

Ita domi componebat omnia,

Ut non inopinanti tandem, vel trepidanti,

Sed expectanti ultra,

Mors amica obvenirit,

Anno ætatis Lx1<sup>mo</sup>.

Salutis MDCCLXI<sup>mo</sup>.

On the west side of the church-yard is a Sarcophagus or stone-coffin, digged up in making a grave; six feet and four inches in length within, and seventeen inches over at the shoulders.

A little beyond the 5th mile-stone, a winding road branches off on the left hand, from a porter's lodge, to Wolfington (n), which was one of the manours of the priory of Tynemouth, and was in the possession of the crown, 10 Q. Elizabeth (6). It was afterwards in the possession of the family of the Jennisons; and was the seat of Ralph Jennison, Esq; high sheriss of Northumberland, 1717. It is now the seat and manour of Matthew Bell, Esq; an alderman of the corporation of Newcastle upon Tyne, of which he was mayor, 1757.

Four miles and three quarters more bring me to the end of my journey—to Newcastle, the Pons Ælii, as has been before observed, of that brave people, the Romans: A people, but for whose coming, we might for ages, perhaps, have lived without the liberal arts, and all the graceful refinements that felicitate fociety: A people, who of great conquerors became, as it were, our fervants, to teach us how to live, like fociable and reasonable beings, to rescue us from the bondage of savage ignorance, to polish our manners, and to learn us by that best of lessons, their own example, both how to possess a country, and how to adorn it (p).

(n) Wolfington. Rot. Northumbr. Wissington. - Vulgo.

<sup>(0)</sup> See Tynemouth.

562 ANTIQUITIES OF NORTHUMBERLAND

So fensible were the inhabitants of Britain of the benefits derived from that great and renowned people, in the course of 500 years, that they nothing so much lamented as the departure of the Roman Eagle: whose grief and situation is beautifully expressed in a fine seal found at Floddon-sield, by the river Till, representing Britannia half naked, sitting upon rocks, and leaning also upon them with her right hand, taking hold with her left of the wing of an eagle, which has one foot upon the rocks, and the other on Britannia's knee, where she is cloathed (q). It came into the possession of the late Countess Cowper (r).

(p) Hæc est in gremium victos quæ sola recepit, Humanumque genus communi nomine sovit, Matris, non dominæ, ritû, civesque vocavit Quos domuit, nexûque pio longinqua revinxit.

Claud. Paneg. iii. in Stillonem.

- (9) See Gordon's plate of medals, in Itin. Sept. fig. 1.
- (r) Horf. Brit. Rom. p. 75.

APPENDIX OF INSTRUMENTS.

Vol. I. Numb. 1.

NORTHUMBR.

A D parliamentum apud Westminst. anno R. Ricardi II. post conquestum Anglia 5to. Adomarus de Athol, et Radulphus de Eure, milites gladiis cincti, electi fuerunt pro comitatu Northumbria esse ad parliamentum prædictum, et quilibet eorum habuit pro expensis suis quolibet die iv s. de villis subscriptis, viz.

Warda de Tyne-dale.

Pro burgo de Corbrig vs. pro villis de Langley, iis. Blenkinfopp, xviii d. Widen cum Redepeth, ii s. Fetherstonehaugh, xviii d. Haiden, cum Haiden-Brig, iii s. Allerwesh, ii s. Wardon, xviii d. Fourstanes, iis. Birtley, ivs. Colwell, xld, Barensford, iiis. Gunwarton, iis. East Swynburn, iis. Chipches, iis. Chollerton, iii s. Shildon, vii d. Thockrington, iii s. Magna Bavington, iiis. Parva Bavington, iis. Kirk-Heton, iis. Whelpington, cum membris, ivs. West-Harle, xiis. Kirk-Harle, xld. Cropton, xii d. Hawyke, xii d. Denum, ii s. Shaftowe, ii s. Magna Heton, iii s. Harnham, ii s. Bradford, iii s. Belfowe, iii s. Bechfield, xviii d. Black-Heddon, ii s. Dalton, ii s. Stamfordham, et Hugh, iv s. Haukwell, iis. Echwyke, ii s. Inghowe, iii s. Ryell, iii s. Magna Whitington, iii s. Parva Whitington, xii d. West-Matsen, iiis. East Matsen, iis. Fenwyke, iiis. flon. Cccc 2 fton, xviii d. Heddon super Murum, ii s. Hedwyne East, xii d. Hedwyne West, xii d. Whitchester, ii s. Houghton, xii d. Rouchester, ii s. Horsley, iii s. Ovyngeham, xii d. Whithill, xviii d. Nesbit, ii s. Halton, iii s. Clarewood, xii d. Wyden, ii s. Nafferten, ii s. Ovynton, iii s. Berehill, ii s. Bywell, iii s. Acomb, ii s. Neuton, iii s. Stelling, xii d. Stiford, cum Operedon, iii s. Thornburg, ii s. West Swynburn, ii s. Devilstone, iii s. Slaveley, iii s. Duxsield, iv d. Mickley, ii s. Hedley, ii s. Shotley, ii s. Cronkley, iii s. Faulder-lawe, ii s. Whittenstall, iii s. Newland, iv d. Hyndley, ii s. Bromeley, ii s. Brome-halg, ii s. Eltringham, ii s. Prudhowe, ii s.

Totus fummus Wardæ prædictæ, ix l. v s. iv d?

Warda de Coket-dale.

De burgo de Alnwike, iv s. de burgo de Felton, iii s. iv d. de burgo de Rothbury, iii s. iv d. De villis de Framlyngton, ii s. vi d. Swarland, ii s. Acton, xviii d. Hayfand, ii s. Gyfnes, ii s. Berling, xviii d. Brotherwike, xviii d. Stritton, xii d. Over-Bufton, ii s. Nether-Buston, xviii d. Weldon, ii s. Bilton, ii s. Shilbothell, et Whithill, iii s. Rugley, ii s. Swynley, xii d. Glantley, xii d. Overgars, xii d. Witton, xviii d. Newton, xviii d. Magna Toffon, ii s. Parva Toffon, xii d. Snytter, ii s. Thropton, iis. Warton, iis. Flotterton, xviii d. Bikerton, iis. Kestern et Werg-hill, ii s. Heppell, ii s. Whernham, ii s. Sharperton, ii s. Shirmoundune, xii d. Allenton, ii s. Clenehill. xviii d. Kydland, xii d. Betlifden, ii s. Burowdon, ii s. Firwhet, iiis. Thirwhet, ivd. Cartyngton, xiid. Netherton, iis. Crawood, iis. Lourebotell, iis. Calleley, iis. Yetlington, iis. Parva Ryle et Unthank, iis. Alnham, iis. Prendwike, iis. Magna Ryle, ii s. Eslington, iis. Whittingham, iis. Barton, xiid. ThrumpThrumpton, iis. Edlingham et Neuton, iiis. Lemockton, Aleberwicke, xviiid. Bolton, iis. vid. Shaweden, xviiid. Glanton, iis. Titlington, xviiid. Beneley, iis. Highlawe et Craweley, iis. Brandon, iis. Branton, iis. Ingram, iis. Reveley, xviiid. Rodom, xiid. Ilderton, iis. Weperden, xiid. Rofdene, xviiid. Magna Lilburn, iis. Middelton et Middelton, iis. Folbery et Caldmarton, iiis. ivd. Chatton, iiis. ivd. Chivelyngham et Upsetlington, iiis. ivd. Fawedon, iis.

Totus Summus Wardæ prædictæ, vii li. ixs.

Warda de Glen-dale..

De burgo de Wooler, iiis. iv d. de villa de Middelton, xii d. Homeldon, iis. Akeld, iis. Yevering, iis. Langton, iis. Coupland, iis. Newton, iis. West Newton, xii d. Hethpool, Killom, iis. Holthall, iis. Downham, iis. Palixton, iis. Myndrom, iiis. Heddon, xviii d. Shotton, xviii d. Prestsen, iis. Wark, iis. Learmouth, iis. Branxton, iis. Etall, iis. Crookham, iis. Hederslaw, iis. Ford, iis. Kimmerston, iis. Bollisdon, iis. Lowyke, iis. Bayremore, iis. Howburn, iis. Hessirig, iis. Dodyngton et Nesbet, ivs. E-worth, iis. Wetewood, iis. Hetton, xviiid. Horton, xviiid. Ly-ham, iis.

Totus fummus hujus Wardæ, lxxivs. iv d.

Warda de Bamburg.

De Burgo de Bamburg, v.s. de Burgo de Neuton, xii d. de Burgo de Alnemouth, ii s. de villa de Lesbury, iii s. vi d. Haukell, ii s. vi d. Magna Houghton et Bulmer, iv s. Parva Houghton, ii s. Howyke, . ii s. Denwyke, xii d. Renynton et Brockley, ii s. Rocke, xviii d. Charleton South, ii s. Charleton North, xii d. West Dichburne, xii d.

East Dichburn, xii d. Ellingham, ii s. Osberwyke, xviii d. Preston, ii s. Doxford, ii s. Neuham, ii s. Lucker cum Hopyn, iii s. Warneford, xii d. Edreston, ii s. Mulssen, xviii d. Bradford, xviii d. Belford, iii s. Yessington, ii s. Dychaunt, ii s. Middelton cum Unthank, ii s. vi d. Ulchester, ii s. Spindleston, ii s. Budill, ii s. Shoston, iii s. Sunderland, iv s. Bednell, iii s. Swynhowe, iii s. Tughall, iii s. Elford, ii s. Fletcham, ii s. Burnton, ii s. Fallowdon, ii s. Elwyke, xii d.

Totus Summus hujus Wardæ, iv li. xs. vi d.

De libertate Johannis ducis Lancast. viz.

De villa de Emeldon, iv s. Neuton, super Mare, ii s. Crawcester, ii s. Dunstane, ii s. Stamford, iii s. Shepeley, ii s. Burton, ii s. Warneham, N. ii s. et Warneham, W. ii s. Neuton super Moram, ii s. Cartington, xii d. Lilburne, ii s. Yerdhill, ii s. Fenton, ii s.

Totus Summus, xxx s.

In libertate de Riddisdale, Nill.

De libertate de Hextoldesham, Nill.

In libertate Prioris de Tyne-mouth.

De villa de Tynemouth, Milnton, cum Sheeles, Chirton East, Preston, Munkston, Whitley, Mureton, Eresdon, Bakworth, Seghall, Wolsington, Dissyngton, Elswyke, Wylom, Hersord, Cowpon, Bebside, Weltden, Hauxlawe, Ambell, Eglynham, Bewyke, Lilburne, Flatworth, Middle Chirton, West Chirton.

Warda de inter North

De Burgo de Warkworth, ilis. de Burgo de Morepath, vis. De Burgo de Newbigin, vis. de villa de Seton, iis. Woodhorn, iiis. Hirst et Lyne-mouth, iis. Ellington, Creswell, et Wyden, iiis, ivd. Eshenden, xviii d. Auld-More, xviii d. New-More, xii d. Shepewesh, xiid. Weteworth, iis. Bothell et Langhirst, iis. Pegsworth, iis. Heborne, iis. Benrige, xii d. Highlawe, xii d. Pigden, xii d. Newton-Underwood, iis. Throphill, iis. Thorneton, iis. Angreton, et Hertburn, iiis. Bolam et Trewyke, iiis. South Middelton. iis. Middelton-Morell, iis. Rotheley et Newton-Grange, iis. Camhoe, iis. Wallington, xviiid. Hertwayton, et West Hertwayton, iiis. Lighton, xiid. Wotton, iis. Witton, iiis. Stanton, iis. Ritton. xviiid. Wyndgates et Gererdley, iis. Horsley et Todburn, iiis. Efpley, xiid. Fenrother, xviiid. Tritlington, xviiid. Erefdon, xiid. Eschet et Bokenfelde, iiis. Thrathreston, iis. Aklington, iis. Morwyke, xviii d. Togesden, ii s. Hadston, ii s. East Chevington, ii s. West Chevington, iis. Woodrington et Drurige, iis. Lynton, xiid.

Totus Summus hujus Wardæ, Civs. xd.

Warda de inter South.

De burgo de Mitford, ii s. Molesdon, xii d. Meldon, ii s. Shilvington, ii s. Edington, xii d. Ogle, iii s. Twizel, ii s. Saltwyke, ii s. Dissington, iii s. Neuham, iii s. Milburn cum Grange, iii s.
Dudden East, xii d. Dudden West, xii s. Stranwell, xii d. Hepscotes, ii s. Stannington et Bellasis, iii s. Coupon, ii s. Bepside, ii s. Neuson et Horton, iii s. Hertford et Stiklawe, iii s. iv d. Seton Delavale, iv s. Hertlawe, iv s. Haliwell, iii s. Cramlinton et Whitlawe, iii s.
iv d. Cliston et Caldwell, iii s. Shotton, iii s. Blakeden, xviii d.
Brinklawe, ii s. Berwike, ii s. vi d. Pont-eland, iii s. Caluerton Valence, xviii d. Kirklawe et Caldcotes, iv s. Dissington-Delavale, ii s. Neuham, xviii d. Prestwyke, ii s. Merssen, ii s. Donyngton, xviii d.

xviii d. Black Calverton, ii s. Calverton Darreynes, ii s. West Burneton, ii s. East Burneton, xviii d. Fawedon, xii d. Weteslade North, xviii d. Weteslade South, xviii d. Burrowedon, xii d. Gosford North, ii s. Killingworth, ii s. Benton Magna, ii s. Benton Parva, xviii d. Walker, xviii d. Biker, ii s. Heton, ii s. Jesmont, xviii d. South Gosford, ii s. Kynton, ii s. Benwell et Fenham, ii s. Denton et Newbigin, ii s. Whalton et Riplinton, ii s. vi d. Horton-Grange, xii d. Newburne, Wallbotell, Throklawe, Dewlawe et Butterlawe, iv s.

Totus Summus hujus Wardæ, vi li. viii s. viii d.

No. 2. Vol. II.

The Foundation-deed of Hayden-Bridge School.

THIS indenture made the feventeenth day of June, in the first year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord James the Second by the Grace of God of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, King, defender of the faith, &c. Anno Dom. 1685, between John Shaftoe of Nether Warden in the county of Northumberland, clerk, of the one part, and William Shaftoe of Cary-Coates in the said county, gent. nephew of the said John Shaftoe, John Armstrong of Wood Shields in the said county, Gent. John Bacon of Staward in the said county, Gent. Farrer Armstrong, son of the said John Armstrong, Nicholas Maughen of Whinnetly in the said county, Yeoman, and John Atkinson of Haydon-bridge in the said county, Yeoman, and Ralph Shaftoe, of the other part, Witnesseth, that the said John Shaftoe for the settling of the messuages, lands, and tenements hereinaster mentioned to the honour and glory of Almighty God in the education and instruction of youth in the knowledge of his word, and for and towards the maintenance of poor diftreffed protestant families, and for putting out to apprentices poor children, and for divers other good caufes and valuable considerations him the said John Shaftor hereunto moving, hath granted, alienated, fold, released, and confirmed, and by these prefents doth for himself and his heirs, grant, alien, sell, releafe, and confirm unto the faid William Shaftoe, John Armstrong, John Bacon, Farrer Armstrong, Nicholas Maughen, John Atkinson, and Ralph Shaftoe, their heirs and affignes for ever all that his manor, lordship, or capital messuage of Musphen, alias Mousen, with the appurtenances, and also all those towns, villages, and hamlets, of Mousen and Newlands, with all lands, tenements, hereditaments, and appurtenances whatfoever, to them and every of them belonging, or in any wife appertaining, fituate in the parish of Bambrough and county of Northumberland aforefaid, and all the tithes of corn, grain, pig, goofe, calf, and all other ecclefiaftical right within the manour, lordship, or capital meffuage of Mulphen, alias Moulen, and Nevaland aforefaid (the tithe of wool and lamb, and the water-corn-mill there, called Mousen-mill. only excepted) together with all and fingular houses, edifices, buildings, barns, byers, stables, dove-coates, orchards, garths, gardens, lands, tenements, meadows, leafones, feedings, paftures, commons, and common of pasture, and turbary, wastes, wast-grounds, heaths, moors, whinnes, quarrys, woods, underwoods, and trees, water, fifthings, rents, reversions, fervices, eafements, ways, paths, paffages, profits, commodities, hereditaments, and appurtenances, whatfoever to the faid manour. lordship, or capital messuage, messuages, townships, villages, and hamlets belonging or in any wife appertaining, or to or with the fame now or at any time heretofore held, used, occupied, or enjoyed, or accepted, reputed, taken, or known to be as part, parcell, or member thereof; and the reversion, and reversions, re-Vol. II. Dddd mainder.

mainder, and remainders, of all and fingular the premifes, and every part and parcel thereof, and all his the faid John Shaftoe's estate, right, title, interest, use, possession, claim, property, and demand whatfoever of, in, and to the premifes, or any part, or parcell thereof (the faid William Shaftoe, John Armstrong, John Bacon, Farrer Armstrong, Nicholas Maughen, John Atkinson, and Ralph Shaftoe, being in actual possession of all and singular the premisses. by virtue of a deed or bargain and fale bearing date the day next before the date of these presents, whereby the premisses are demised to them, their heirs, and assignes, for the term of one whole year, to commence from the day next before the making thereof, and of the statute for transferring uses into possession. to the end that they might be enabled to take a grant, releafed or confirmation thereof to them, and their heirs for ever; to have and to hold the faid manor, lordship, or capital messuage, towns, townships, villages, or hamlets, meffuages, lands, tenements, and premisses, and all and singular other the premisses above, herein, and hereby granted, alienated, releafed, and confirmed, or mentioned, or intended fo to be, with their and every of their appurtenances, unto the faid William Shaftoe, John Armfirong, John Bacon, Farrer Armftrong, Nicholas Maughen, John Atkinson, and Ralph Shaftoe, their heirs, and assignes, for ever to the feveral uses, intents, and purposes nevertheless in these presents mentioned, exprest, and declared, and upon the feveral trusts hereinafter mentioned, and in them, and their affignes, reposed; (That is to fay) to the use and behoof of the faid John Shaftor, and his assignes for and during the term of his natural life, withour impeachment of or for any manner of waste, and from and after his death and deceafe, then all and fingular the above mentioned premiffes unto the faid William Shaftoe, John Armstrong, John Bacon, Farrer Armstrong, Nicholas Maughen, John Atkinson, and Ralph Saftoe, their heirs and affignes, and the furvivour or furviyours of them who shall be living at the death of the faid John Shaftor, to these several intents and purposes, and upon the several trusts and confidences hereafter mentioned in them reposed; (That is to fav) upon trust and confidence in them the faid William Shaftoe, John Armstrong, John Bacon, Farrer Armstrong, Nicholas Maurben, John Atkinson, and Ralph Shaftoe, and the furvivours of them, and their affignes, reposed: That they the faid trustees, and the furvivours of them, or the major number of them, or the furvivours of them who shall be living at the time of the decease of the said John Shaftoe, shall with all the convenient freed that may be after the death of the faid John Shaftoe, fett, 1ett, or demife all and every part of the faid premisses for any number of years, as to them shall seem meet, reserving the full improved rents at four quarterly payments; and that they, or the furvivours of them, or the major part of them, shall annually elect, and choose one of them which shall be thought most fit to receive and pay the faid rents and profits, according to the disposition and appointment her mafter expressed, which person fo elected shall enter into bond to any one or more of them the faid truftees, or furvivour, or furvivours of them, in double the computed yearly value of the faid premisses for the true payment and disposing of all the faid rents and profits of the faid premisses to the uses and purposes herein after mentioned, and give a just account thereof to the rest of them the said trustees, or the furvivours of them, or their assignes, within one month after demand thereof, retaining for the trouble therein for the year twenty shillings, and twenty shillings more to defray his and the other trustees expences one whole year in meeting or otherwise concerning the trust in them reposed. And upon trust and confidence in them the faid trustees, and the survivours of them, and the heirs and affignes of the furvivours of them, who Dddd 2 fha.

shall be trustees, reposed, That they the faid trustees, and the furviyours of them and their affignes, or the major number of them, shall with the one moiety of the faid rents and profits of the faid premisses, as foon as there is sufficient, purchase a convenient parcel of land in Haydon-Bridge aforefaid to themfelves, and fettle the fame in like manner as the above faid premiffes shall be vested at the time of the purchase thereof, and the uses herein mentioned, and shall thereupon erect and build a house for a free grammar school-house, and keep an English school, and a dwelling-house for the master of the same school, and shall by a note by them, or the survivours of them, or the major part of them, figned, elect, and choose, by the advice and examination of fome reverend divines, an able scholar, being an University-scholar, of the degree of Master of Arts, and of good life and conversation, approved by the Bilbop or Archdeacon of the diocese, by signing the same note; and one usher, to be approved of by the Minister of the parish of Warden, who shall teach and instruct any number of boys, girls, and young men, who are or shall be born within the chapelry of Haydon, or at Wood-Shields in the chapelry of Newbrough, both in the parish of Warden, and county of Northumberland, and shall pay unto the usher of the same school yearly ten pounds, and no more, out of the moiety of the rents and profits of the faid premisses at four quarterly payments, and the refidue of the moiery of the rents and profits of the fame premisses, the moiety of the neceffary charges of gathering and receiving the fame deducted. shall pay yearly to the masters of the said grammar-school, at four payments, as the same shall be had in, and received, for their maintenance and falary: and upon the like trust and confidence, that they the faid truftees, and their affignes who shall be truftees, and feized of the faid premiffes, do take fecurity to fome some two of them at the least, from such to keep the faid house and school-house in good and sufficient reparation, and leave it fo in repair. And that if such master or other, as shall at any time be chosen thall wilfully and obstinately neglect the duty of stheir or either of their places, or shall become unfit for the faine by any means whatfoever; that then the faid truftees, and those who shall at any time hereafter be trustees and seized of the faid premisses or the major number of them, shall and may, by writing under their hands shewing the cause thereof. declare such master and usher to be unfit, and put him or them out and thereupon, and upon the death of either of them, to elect another in manner aforefaid. And that the faid truftees, and fuch who shall at any time hereafter be trustees, and seizedof the faid estate, shall not permit the under-master or usher to take for the teaching of any boy or girl, who shall be born within the chapelry of Haydon and Wood-sheets aforefaid, above one penny for every quarter of the year for teaching and instructing them in the Latin and Greek tongues, upon pain of forfeiting: and being turned out of their faid places: and upon further trust in them the faid truftees, and those who shall be truftees, and feized of the faid premisses, reposed, That if by the death of the faid mafter and usher, and either of them, or other vacancy, the falary or stipend of the said masters, and either of them, fhall lie and remain in the hands of fuch receiver or trustees to be chosen as aforefaid, that they shall from time to time, as often as fuch accidents happen, in fuch vacancy of a master, therewith or with part thereof, repair, new-build, or amend, the school-house, and dwelling-house, to be built as aforesaid, and the clear overplus of fuch fums to as aforefaid coming unto the faid grantees or trustees hands; shall be by them distributed amongst the poor hereafter mentioned, and as is hereafter directed. And upon this further trust and confidence in them the faid a faid truffces, and fuch other persons who shall be truftees, and feized of the faid premisses, reposed. That they, or the major number of them, do, and shall pay and distribute the other moiety of the other remaining moiety, or the fourth part of the whole clear rent of the premisses (a fourth part of the necessary charges for receiving the same being deducted) for ever halfyearly among poor protestant families within the faid chapelry of Hayden and Wood-sheels aforefaid, according to their several necessities, and the discretion of the faid grantees or trustees, or those who shall at any time be trustees or grantees, or the major number of them: and the other fourth part, the remainder of the rents and profits of the faid premisses, to be disposed of yearly for putting out to trades poor protestant children, born. or to be born, within the chapelry of Haydon, or any of the owners tenants or farmers at Wood-sheels aforesaid, at the discretion of the faid truftees, or those who shall be truftees, or the major number of them: Provided always, and it is the true intent and meaning of these presents, and of all the parties hereunto, and these presents, are upon the further trust and confidence in them the faid trustees, and survivour or survivours of them, and in all and every other person or persons who shall be truftees and feized of the faid premisses, reposed. That as soon as it shall happen any three or more of the said grantees or trustees, or of any other trustees who shall at any time hereafter be feized of the above-mentioned premisses; shall dye, then the furviving grantees or truftees shall, with all convenient speed, that may be, elect and choose three or more to make up the number of feven to be trustees, and fill up the vacancy of those who are dead, and shall convey over the premisses to some person or perfons by them, or the major part of them, agreed on the fee and inheritance of the faid premisses, who shall immediately. reconvey to the old truftees, and fuch new truftees as shall be elected.

A 1972 1 319

elected, the faid premisses, to the use of themselves, and the faid other grantees or truftees to be elected, and for the uses and benefits above in these presents mentioned and declared, and so from time to time when only four truftees are furviving. They, or fuch as shall furvive, shall continually and with all speed join with themselves three or more other grantees or trustees of the premisses in manner and form aforefaid, as by the counsell learned in the law may be advised; to the intent, that the fee and inheritance of the faid premiffes, and the rents, iffues, and profits, may for ever hereafter be disposed of to the wses, intents, and purposes, and in such fort, manner and form, as is above in these presents mentioned, expressed, and declared: And, lastly, upon this further trust and considence in them the said trustees, and their assignes, who shall be trustees, reposed, That if it shall at any time hereafter happen any difference shall arise concerning election or putting out of the schoolmaster, usher, fcholar, poor, or objects of charity, or concerning any matter whatfoever by them to be done as trustees by virtue thereof, fo that they the faid trustees are divided in their votes, that then the bishop or archdeacon of the diocese shall have the casting vote. and then that they the faid trustees shall do and perform according as either of them shall approve of. In witness whereof the parties aforesaid to these presents interchangeably have set their hands and feals the day and year first above written.

An Anecdote annexed to the faid Deed.

JOHN Shaftoe, clerk, granted to Patrick Crow, Gent. all that messuage, hamlet, village, or tenement, with its rights, members, and appurtenances, commonly called and known by the name of Newland, situate, lying, or being in the said county of Northumberland, and now or late in the possession and occupation of Gilbert Savinoe, or his under-tenant, or affignes, together with feven flints or beaft-gates, and liberty of depafturing at all times in the vear for feven beafts, or flints, in and throughout the demesne-lands. of Musfen, alias Mousen, in the said county of Northumberland; together also with two horses grass, and thirty sheep's grass, or liberty of depasturing, feeding, and going at all times in the year for two horses or mares, and thirty sheep, in and throughout the town-fields of Musfen, alias Mousen, aforesaid, in the said county of Northumberland; and also all that water-corn-mill, with its rights, members, and appurtenances, fituate, flanding, and being in Musfen, alias Mousen, aforesaid, commonly called or known by the name of Mousen-mill, now or late in the possession or occupation of the faid Gilbert Swinoe or his affignes; and also one cow's grafs, with a calf, or follower, and two horses, or liberty of depasturing and feeding one cow, with a calf, or follower, and two horses or mares, at all times in the year, in and throughout the faid town-fields of Musfen, alias Mousen, aforesaid, in right of, and as belonging to the faid water-corn-mill.

Vol. II. No. 3.

Mr. Shaftoe's Will.

In the county of Northumberland, clerk, being in good health of body and of found and perfect mind and memory, praise be therefore given to Almighty God, do make and ordain this my present last will and testament in manner and form following; (that is to say) first and principally I commend my soul into the hands of Almighty God, hoping through the merits of the death and passion of my Saviour Jesus Christ, to have full and free pardon and forgiveness of all my sins, and to inherit everlasting lafting life, and my body I commit to the earth to be decently buried at the discretion of my executors hereafter named, and as touching the disposition of all such temporal estate as it hath pleased Almighty God to bestow upon me, I give and dispose thereof as followeth. First, I give and bequeath to the chapelry of Haydon one annuity or annual rent of twenty pounds per annum for ever, to be paid out of my lands, tenements, and hereditaments of Mousin in the county of Northumberland, at the feasts and terms of Martinmas and Penticost yearly by equal portions, the first payment thereof to begin at fuch of the faid feafts as shall next happen after the death of me the faid John Shaftoe, and not before, for the use of a Grammar-School to be kept at Haydon-bridge, and maintenance of poor families in the faid chappelry of Haydon, equally to be divided (viz.) ten pounds per annum to the faid school, and ten pounds per annum to the said poor families. Item, I give and bequeath to the faid chappelry of Haydon, in the faid county of Northumberland, one other annuity of twenty pounds per annum for ever, to be iffuing or going out of these engagements or mortgages I have of the lands and estate of Sir John Heron, Bart. late deceased (viz.) ten pounds per annum thereof towards the keeping of the faid grammar school, and the other ten pounds to the use of the said poor families in the said chappelry, at the feafts of Martinmas and penticost yearly by equal portions, the first payment thereof likewise to begin at such of the faid feafts as shall next happen after the death of me the faid John Shaftoe. Item, I give and bequeath an augmentation of ten pounds for ever to the parish church of Slaley in the said county of Northumberland, to be paid out of the faid engagements or mortgages of the faid Sir John Heron's estate, at the feasts and terms aforesaid, and I do hereby ordain and appoint Mr. Archdeacon, and Mr. John Rowell, and their successors, executors for all the faid monies for the aforesaid charitable and pious uses, and I do hereby YOL. IL. Eeee hereby nominate and appoint John Bacon, of Staward, in the aforefaid county, Efg. John Atkinson of Haydon-Bridge, and Nicholds Maugham of Tedeaftle, both in the aforesaid chappelry of Haydon, veomen, truftees and governors of the faid money bequeathed by me for the faid school and poor of Haydon chappelry, and when any of them shall die, the survivors to elect a third perfon with them in, and at all time and times after my death to provide a fufficient schoolmaster for the said school, and distribute the faid monies so bequeathed to such needful and poor families as they shall think fit in the faid chappelry. Item, I give and bequeath to my nephew Mr. Ralph Shaftoe. of Carycoats, the fum of eight hundred pounds out of engagements and mortgages of Sir John Heron's estate, the interest thereof to be paid him at feasts and terms above-faid. Item. I give and bequeath unto my nephew Mr. John Shaftoe, fon of my brother Mr. Charles Shaftoe of Carycoates the fum of two hundred pounds out of the faid engagements or mortgages of Sir John Heron's estate, the interest thereof to be paid him at the feafts and terms aforefaid. Item, I give and bequeath to my faid. brother Charles Shaftce's five daughters, that are now unmarried the fum of eight hundred pounds in manner and form following (viz.) Five hundred pounds thereof out of the faid engagements or mortgages of Sir John Heron's estate, the interest thereof to be paid them at the feafts and terms above-mentioned; and other three hundred pounds to be paid by my fon Daniel Shaftoe. his heirs or affigns, out of my lands and hereditaments of Moufin. the faid eight hundred pounds to be disposed of among them as their father and mother think fit. Item, I give and bequeath unto John Atkinson of Haydon-bridge, my clerke, and servant, the fum of four hundred pounds for the use of his children that are now unmarried (viz.) Two hundred pounds thereof upon a mortgage of Gabriel Read's estate of Trough-end, Esq; with all my title and interest to the same, and one other hundred pounds, part thereof upon a mortgage of Mr. Ralph Fewwick's of Bavington. with all my title and interest to the same; and one other hundred pounds to be paid him or them by my fon Daniel Shaftoe, his heirs or assigns, out of my lands and hereditaments of Mousin, immediately after my death. And my will and pleafure is, that the faid John Atkinson shall distribute all the faid four hundred pounds amongst his faid three children, (viz.) John, Mary, and Margaret, as he thinks fit and convenient. Item, I give and bequeath to my fon Daniel Shaftoe, and to his heirs for ever, all my lands, tenements, and hereditaments of Mousin aforesaid, he and they paying and discharging all such legacies as I have bequeathed and given in this my last will and testament, to the uses and persons aforesaid, to be paid out of the said estate of Mousin. And I give to the faid John Bacon, Esq; and John Atkinson, my trustees aforesaid for the said pious and charitable uses, each of them a guinea for a token, to be paid by my executors. Item, all the rest of my goods and chattells, ready money, bills and bonds, and all debts whatfoever, in whose hands soever, I give to my loving brother Charles Shaftoe of Carycoates, and John Shaftoe of Bavington, Efg; equally to be divided betwixt them, whom I make my joint executors of this my last will and testament, and of the execution of the fame—excepting only for the pious and charitable uses. And I do revoke and difannull, and make void all former wills and testaments, as witness this thirteenth day of May, in the year of the reign of our fovereign Lord and Lady William and Mary, by the grace of God King and Queen of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defenders of the faith, &c. Annog; Domini 1693.

Signed, fealed, and delivered by the faid John Shaftoe, as and for his last will and testament, in the presence of us

18

Joseph Yellowley,
Thomas Shaftoe,
John Shaftoe, Jun'.
William Errington, Jun'.

Be it known unto all men by these presents, that whereas I John Shaftoe, of Nether-Warden, in the county of Northumberland, clerk, have made and declared my last will and testament in writing, bearing date with these presents, I the said John Shaftoe do by this Codicil confirm and ratify my said last will and testament, and do give and bequeath unto Ann, the daughter of William Errington of Bradley, in the said county, yeoman, the sum of one hundred pounds of good English money, and my will and meaning is, that this Codicil be adjudged as part of my last will and testament, and that all things contained and mentioned be truly and fully performed, as full and amply in every respect as if the same were declared and set down in my said last will and testament within written. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year within written, 1693.

Sealed and delivered } in the prefence of us

John Shaftoe, Jun.
Ralph Shaftoe,
John Atkinson.

Number 4.

Giles Heron's Will.

In the name of God, Amen, I Giles Heron, late of Lee-ball, and now of Wark, in the parish of Simonburn, and county of Northumberland, yeoman, being well of body and of perfect mind and remembrance, do willingly and with a free heart render and give again, into the hands of my Lord God and Creator, my fpirit, which he of his fatherly goodness gave unto me, when he first fashioned me in my mother's womb, making me a living and reasonable creature, nothing doubting but for his infinite mercies fet forth in the precious blood of his dearly beloved Son TESUS CHRIST, our only Saviour and Redeemer, he will receive my foul into his glory, and place it in the company of the heavenly angels and bleffed spirits; and as concerning my body, even with algood will und free heart I give it over, commending it to the earth whereof it came, nothing doubting but according to the articles of my faith and the great day of the general refurrection, when we shall appear before the judgment feat of CHRIST, I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God wherewith he is able to fubdue all things to himself, not a corruptible vile and weak body as it is now, but an incorruptible strong and perfect body in all parts like unto the body of my Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and as touching the disposition of all fuch temporal estate, as God of his great goodness hath given unto me, I do by this my last will and testament give and dispose thereof as followeth. First, I think it a good work of charity, and commendable before God, to distribute the greatest part of the same to pious and charitable uses, and it is rather my defire defire to fee fome part for fuch uses settled in my lifetime, than to leave it by and according to the direction of any other person or persons to be done after my death, and considering the great necessity of a free school for the education of children of all and every the inhabitants within the faid parish, and the inhabitants of Chipchace, Birtley, and Birtley-Sheels within the parish of Chollerton. I do therefore give and bequeath unto the parish of Simonburn the fum of two hundred pounds now in the hands of William Charleton of Hesleyside, and Cuthbert Charleton of Lee-ball, in the faid county, Gent, received by them of me for the use abovementioned, and for no other use or purpose whatsoever. And my will and pleasure therefore is, that my trustees, namely George Heron, John Reed, Thomas Dobson, Thomas White, and Edward Robson, all of Humshaugh, William Smith of Westerhaughton, Robert Elliot of Haughton-Strother, William Liddle of Long-Rigge, and Nicholas Ridley of Eals. do immediately in my name (in case the said William Charleton, and Cuthbert refuse to pay the said sum of two hundred pounds) profecute and implead the faid William Charleton, and Cutbbert Charleton, and their fureties or any of them, for the faid fum, in any court of common law or chancery, and upon the receipt thereof that they my faid trustees and Christopher Charleton of Hetherington, Reginald Charleton of Motebill, and Edward Dodd of Eth, or the major part of them, together with the parson of Simonburn-parish, for the time being, do choose and appoint an able and sufficient schoolmaster, such as shall be approved on by the lord bishop of the diocese of Durbam, and so from time to time upon the death or removal of fuch schoolmaster, such another to reside and teach a free school at the town of Wark in the said parish for ever; and that the faid trustees shall make the best advantage and profit of the faid fum, they upholding the principal as a flock, and the profits and interest thereof they shall receive at two terms in the year (that is to fay) by half yearly payments, and at the faid terms by equal portions, they shall pay the interest so received unto the schoolmaster of the said free school for the time, that he shall discharge the duty of an able schoolmaster in manner as aforefaid; and my mind is, that the parson of Simonburn, for the time being, and his fucceffors with my truftees aforefaid, and Christopher Charleton, Reginald Charleton, and Edward Dodd, and the furvivours of them, shall be the governors of the said free school, and shall have the presenting of a schoolmaster as aforesaid. and that all bonds or fecurities to be taken for the faid monies shall be taken in their names, and in case of the decease of them or any of them, then the parson and the survivours of them the faid trustees, shall, in convenient time, elect and choose one or more of fuch able and fit inhabitants of the faid parish of Simonburn, to fupply the place or places of fuch dying truftees, who shall fucceed them therein. Item, all the rest and residue of my goods and chattels, as well real as perfonal, and my ready money, mortgages, rent charges, bills, bonds, book-debts, debts due upon fimple contract, in whose hand or hands soever they be, I give unto the faid truftees first before named merely in trust for the use of the poor of the said parish of Simonburn (that is to fay) that they may to the best of their skill make the best, fureft, and greatest advantage and profit thereof upon good security for interest, and the said advantage and profit they shall receive, pay and distribute among such poor, needy and indigent perfons of the same parish of Simonburn, as they shall judge most necessitated and proper for it, at two feasts or terms of payment, (that is to fay) All Saints Day and Good Friday, by even and equalportions, but the principal to be always kept intire and upheld. as a flock for the end aforefaid; and my will and pleafure is, that if there be any indigent persons within the said parish of Simonburn of the name of Heron, or coming from any other parish to inhabit or refide in the faid parish, that they shall have a proportion of the faid distribution in the first place. And further my will and defire is, that if there happen to be any furpluffage remaining of the faid profits, interest or consideration-money, that then the fame shall be employed on or towards the binding of fome one or more of the children of some of the poor inhabitants of the same parish of Simonburn, to be apprentices to such trades and in fuch places as the faid parson and my trustees or the major part of them shall think fit, and if any of the faid children shall happen to be of the name of Heron, that they shall be first provided for; and my will is, that my said trustees shall yearly make an account of their distributions and payments aforesaid, and of the rest of their trust, to the parson and churchwardens of the faid parish of Simonburn at Penticost, which shall be registred in the parish book. And I do hereby name and appoint the faid George Heron, John Reed, Thomas Dobson, Thomas White, Edward Robson, William Smith, Robert Elliot, William Liddle, and Nicholas Ridley, my executors in trust for the uses aforesaid, for the better performance of the faid trufts, and I revoke all former wills. As witness my hand and feal this three and twentieth day of September, in the one and thirtieth year of the reign of our fovereign Lord Charles the fecond by the grace of God, King of England, &c. Annoq; Dom. 1679. Signed, fealed, published, and declared by the within named Gyles Heron, as and for his last will and testament, in the presence of us Robert Delaval, George Ridler, Thomas Teafdaile, Tim. Pye, Peter Barrell.

GYLES HERON.

Collatione fideli facta, concordat hæc copia cum Gab. Newhouse, originali, existente apud Register.

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRATA

Vol. II.

JOURNEY I. Page	4. for turf or fuel, read turf for fuel.
p. 5.	for cornelian, read, carnelian.
p. 16.	at the bottom (d), for turris, read terris.
p. 25	. for via vacinalis, read via vicinalis.
p. 33	at the bottom (v), for denariat. read denarios.
p. 39	at the bottom (f), for cornargium, read cornagium.
p. 41	at the bottom (i), for libræ, read liberæ.
p. 79	at the bottom (n), for Breet. read Bracton de legibus Angliæ. Lib. iii.
D. 13	3. at the bottom (c), for per annum x, read per annum x s.
p. 13	9. at the bottom (h), for dat regi v, read dat regi vs.
p. ib.	for dat regi x. read dat regi x l.
p. ib.	for per tervicium x. read per tervicium x.l.
p. 16	4. at the bottom (z), for de dimid. feod. read et dimid. feod. for vallem prædit. read vallem prædict.
p. ib.	for per annum xx, read per annum xxs.
D: 17	6. for Cleolfridi Abbatis, read Ceolfridi Abbatis.
p. 10	6. for the fairs and Lammas, read the fairs of Lammas.
p. 22	I. for orati, read orate.
D. 24	7. for Helburne, read Hebburne.
	I and the second
JOURNEY II. p. 28	35. at the bottom (s), for Baelcampo, read Bellocampo.
	36. at the bottom (u), for uxor, read uxore.
p. 20	99. at the bottom (v), for comitæ cestriæ, read comite cestriæ.
p. 20	95. at the bottom (o), for pers ipso, read per ipsos.
p. 33	30. at the bottom (c), for cum turris, read cum terris.
p. 34	49. at the bottom (w), for penes met, read penes me.
p. 35	3. at the bottom (f), for valorum prædictarum, read valorem prædictarum.
p. 35	57. at the bottom (f), for comitiffe, read comitiffæ.
p. 37	78. dele the reference (1).
p. 40	2. for at his castle, read at this castle.
p.,40	22. for at his castle, read at this castle. 25. for prior of Nostill, read priory of Nostill.
JOURNEY III. p.	449. at the bottom (b), for Norray, read Norroy.
p.,	491. at the bottom (b), for Bobertus, read Robertus: and for Roxham read Broxham.
p.	498. for Procter, read Proctor.
p.	503. at the bottom (n), for medietatis, read medietatem.
p.	532. at the bottom (r), for Johanni, read Johannis.
p.	547. for Allen, read Ellen.

DA 670 N8W2

v.2

Wallis, John
The natural history and antiquities of Northumberland

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE

CARDS OR SLIPS FROM THIS POCKET

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY

